THE firm of S. W. Bell & Co., the celebrated soap manufacturers of Toledo, has been dissolved, Mr. S. W. Bell retiring from the firm. The other partners, Jno. B. Bell and Jas. A. H. Bell have formed a co-partnership under the firm name of John B. Bell & Co., and will continue the manufacture of soaps under the various brands and trade marks of the late firm of S. W. Bell & Co., at the old stand on Lucas street.

Morenci Observer: Forty-six years ago last Saturday, Aug. 21, our venerated townsman, Horatio N. Wilson, piloted the first party of settlers that ever visited the spot where our village is located. The pleasing incidents of Mr. Wilson's first journey from the land of wooden nutmegs to Michigan, then the Eldorado of the far west, in which he became acquainted with the lady who subsequently became his wife—theirs being the first marriage in this township—would make a romantic chapter in our local history.

MARINE CITY DISASTER.

Miss Anna Brewer's Statement.

Miss Brewer, being asked to recount her experience upon the burning steamer, stated to our reporter this morning as follows: That she was sitting in the cabin when she heard the alarm of fire, and upon looking around she saw dense black smoke issuing through the cracks of the floor near the engine room which was in the center of the boat. Men, women and children were running about in the greatest confusion, while she taking in the circumstances stood perfectly quiet. While standing here, in a few seconds after the alarm of fire, Misses Jennie and Maggie McConnell came to her with three life preservers. They then went out upon the deck; there was a gentleman standing there who seemed by his coolness to understand the situation. The three young ladies not knowing how to attach the life preservers asked him to help them. He kindly assisted, and told them to keep quiet and not to jump into the water, as many had already done. The three stood upon this deck for considerable length of time and finally determined to go down on to the deck below near the gangway so that if they had to jump they would be prepared. They stood here for a number of minutes, seemingly hours, while the blackest of black smoke poured in around them, so that they could not distinguish each other, and the heat became every minute more intense and almost unendurable. The hats of many of the ladies about them were beginning to burn from the intenseness of the heat.

While standing here they saw a small steamer far in the distance moving toward them but seemingly at a very slow rate. Finally it drew near the Marine City, but to the great disappointment of the three young ladies, it passed out of their sight and went to the other end of the boat. The boat that came to the relief of the burning steamer was soon found to be the Vulcan. It took all the persons at that end of the boat and then on account of the heat it was compelled to steam away from the Marine City.

Miss Brewer said that they three saw it moving away and then determined the only chance of life they had was to jump into the water, which they did. Misses Jennie and Maggie became separated from her in the water and she found herself washed up near the side of the boat and was driven by the waves away under the projecting side of the boat. Here she caught hold of a beam and by means of this and the life preserver she kept above water except when a large wave would wash over her and throw her violently against the boat, bruising her body considerably. She attempted to get out from under the side of the boat where she would be seen, but failed until she saw a gentleman with a lady and a child near, holding on to a spar, whom she asked to help her. She clung hold of his shoulder and in this way finally got out into sight.

There was a life boat near which came up finally and picked her up in a weak and exhausted condition. Miss Brewer could not say too much in praise of one of the mates, Mr. Downey. She said that she was certain that if it had not been for his coolness and advice they would have jumped into the water at the very first and been drowned. Miss Brewer also spoke in the highest terms of the kindness and hospitality which Mr. Frank Beard, of Alcona, extended to them by opening up his house to the rescued possengers and doing everything for their comfort.

The three young ladies lost all their baggage, but thoughts of baggage were quite foreign to their minds. Misses Jennie and Maggie were picked up they think sooner than Miss Anna by the tug Grayling.

The young ladies received a joyful welcome home by their many friends and can be sincerely congratulated upon their almost miraculous escape from drowning.

Temperance Mass Meeting.

Arrangements have been perfected for the Temperance Mass Meeting to be held to-morrow, and the present indications are that there will be a large crowd in attendance. The officers have arranged the following program of literary and musical exercises which will take place in the grove:

Music by the Band.
General Congratulations.
Dinner.

J. H. OSBORN, Chairman.
REV. C. E. CONLEY, Secretary.

THE workingmen's excursion last Tuesday was very well patronized from this section, about one hundred and fifty persons taking tickets along the Jackson Branch. A portion of the excursionists went to Detroit entirely by rail, instead of taking the boat at Monroe. All who went from here report a pretty warm day, but a good time nevertheless.

PIONEER MEETING.

The tenth annual reunion of Kalamazoo County Pioneers met on Wednesday, Aug. 25th. The State Society held their semi-annual meeting here with them. The committee of arrangements had well performed their part. The speakers' stand, tables and seats were arranged for a multitude in the Court House yard. The weather was cloudy but no rain. It was estimated that there was between three and four thousand people present.

At half past ten o'clock Hon. Stephen F. Brown, president of the society, called the meeting to order. Rev. J. T. Robe invoked the blessing of heaven on the pioneers, to continue the gifts of providence and love. President Brown gave a very beautiful address of welcome. Judge Wells, president of the State society, responded in his urbane and admirable way.

There was an adjournment of one hour for dinner; the tables were beautifully spread and bountifully supplied. In the afternoon Judge Briggs was the first speaker; then Hon. Levi Bishop, of Detroit, followed by Hon. O. C. Comstock, Marshall; F. A. Dewey, president of Lenawee County Society; Judge Cross, Centreville; Hon. Erastus Hussy, Battle Creek; I. N. Mattis, Kalamazoo; Asa Stoddard, Judge Hall, Battle Creek. The exercises closed and the cheerful pioneer meeting was adjourned. D.

SELECT SCHOOL.

Miss Fanny Stocking having retired from her place as teacher in our public schools, has decided to open a private school in her own parlors. Miss Stocking will divide the school year into the same terms, use the same text books, observe the same holidays, follow the same curriculum of study and in all respects keep her pupils abreast of those in the primary departments of the public schools; and that when they pass from one to the other, they may have all the advantages of the more careful drill possible to such a training school without the disadvantage often urged against private schools that much of the work in one is of little practical value in the other, owing to the difference in text books and general mode of teaching.

It happens to be within our knowledge that Miss Stocking takes this step at the solicitation of friends who assure her a good send off in the number of pupils wishing to be placed under her genial influence and skillful hand. The change from the crowded primary departments of our public schools to the quiet and fresh air of Miss Fanny's parlors is pretty sure to bring the little tots through the long months of winter study into the spring with less of palor and more of bloom on their cheeks.

OBITUARY.

In the midst of life, we are in death. At noon on Wednesday, Aug. 25th, Geo. E. Wilson was the picture of health and happiness. In one short hour he was stricken down by the fearful accident, which sent a shock through our entire village. The best of medical skill, the kindest care failed to restore him to consciousness, and he quietly passed away as the sunlight was streaking the horizon on Friday morning last. Had he lived, he would have been seventeen years of age on the 12th day of December next. The poor sufferer was never able to tell the sad story of his mishap. It was a crushing blow to parents and friends, for George was a model young man, of kind disposition, of industrious habits, giving bright promise of a future career of usefulness and honor. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. H. Shepard at the father's residence, last Saturday afternoon. Many friends gathered to pay their last tribute of respect to George's memory, the services were beautiful and impressive, and the floral offerings were exceedingly appropriate.

This dispensation, so sudden, so fearful, so mournful, was such as few parents are called upon to endure. Their heart-strings are wrung with grief, but they can lean for support on the sympathy of their neighbors and friends, and drink consolation from these words of Our Savior: Blessed are they that mourn, for they shall be comforted.

SANITARY SCIENCE.

THE NEED OF CLOSER STUDY OF LOCALIZED FEVERS.

The study of the fever which prevailed at Princeton has more than a local interest. Like the cases in Cairns College, Chamberlain and others, they will serve as an aid in the study of the causes of disease. So far as the College is concerned, it is evident that it is being placed on a more strict sanitary basis than are most of our institutions. Indeed, all public institutions will do well to imitate its example, without the need of an epidemic of their own as a prelude. The trustees were found to be more radical than the Sanitary Commission. They ordered all the indoor conveniences out of the College. All the sinks, water-closets, and pipes have been removed, sewers and cess-pools disinfected and removed, and a return been made to an entire out-of-door and separate system. While we believe it possible to have indoor arrangements entirely safe from sewer-gas, yet in a college of young men it is urged that there is no need for exotic treatment. After the sad experience of the last term, it was perhaps due that not only risk, but all suspacions of risk should be removed.

But, besides the local interests of the College, this fever has great importance as an etiological study. It has long been a question whether typhoid fever ever originates spontaneously. While small-pox is made worse by reason of foul conditions, it is not believed that any amount of concentrated filthiness ever originates a case of small-pox. There are very many that take the same view as to typhoid fever. It is thought to be owing to a specific infective particle. While a favoring soil is required for its growth into epidemic proportions, it is still claimed [illegible] In England, Dr. W. Budd and his followers believe that the fever arises only from contagion, and especially from the alvine dejections of the patient. Dr. Murchison, on the other hand, in his able treatise on "The Continued Fevers of Great Britain," claims that it arises from sewer and emanations. "So far as we know," says he "it is necessary for the production of enteric fever that the matter undergoing fermentation be either in a confined space or a drain or sewer, or that it be in a state of stagnation."

In our country there is a similar diversity of opinion. Austin Flint says: "Facts appear to show the spontaneous generation of the causative agent in the great majority of cases." Loomis, on the other hand, believes it always to arise from antecedent cases or a diffusion of the secretions therefrom, in the air, or in the water, or in milk. Prof. Clark holds to the view that there is a fever allied to typhoid, but yet distinct from the English typhoid, and deserving to be called cesspool fever. The Princeton cases are being studied carefully, in order to obtain light on the question of origin. It has been proven to the satisfaction of the expert committee that the fever originated in a certain house; so much so that its cleansing and alterations has been regarded as a very important part of the sanitary work. It was here that seven persons first sickened, two of them not rooming in the college and one of them being a maid-servant, whose case only recently has been traced. A very plausible and, perhaps, probable origin can be made out from antecedent cases elsewhere. While this does not alter the fact that cesspools and sewers and wells gave great invitation to an epidemic, it is of great interest as a fact in tracing of disease. The State Board of Health of New Jersey is diligently engaged in the investigation, holding series of facts in suspension until all the evidence can be procured and sifted.—There can be no doubt that sewer and cesspool gas and that animal or organic constituents in drinking water are unfavorable to health and may produce diarrhœa headache, and a general malaise. But it is so important to know whether the entity known as typhoid fever has such a spontaneous origin that we hope this and other inquiries of a similar kind will be followed out with rigid discrimination and a close logical arrangement and study of the facts in evidence. At present one of the most practical applications of all science is to that great social, moral, and physical question how to prevent disease. In certain lines of direction it is already apparent that sanitarians know very thoroughly how to abate, and limit, and well-nigh prevent certain diseases. As to these, the lack is far more in civic administration than in definite knowledge. As to others, there is still an unexplored remainder. But every distinct, isolated class of cases should be seized upon for that kind of study which collects and arranges facts that sifts the evidence with expert skill.—While medical science is bolder in treatment and more abundant in remedial agencies than ever before, the real physical relief of society is to come from the closest study of the animal man in his physiological requirements, and in the study of the prevention and abatement of those evils in the world about him which embarrass life, originate and propagate disease, and cause premature death.

LEGAL NOTICES.

ESTATE OF JACOB L. VAN WINKLE.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, ss.

At a session of the Probate Court, held at the Probate Office, in the city of Adrian, on Tuesday, the 27th day of July, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty.

Present, Norman Geddes, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Jacob L. Van Winkle, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition, of Harvey A. Wood, administrator, with the will annexed of said deceased, alleging that he has paid the debts of deceased, the expenses of administration thus incurred, and all legacies bequeathed in and by said will except residuary legacies, and intends to file his final account in this court, and praying for the allowance of said account, for an assignment and distribution of the residue of said estate to the persons entitled thereto, and for his discharge.

Thereupon it is ordered, That Monday, the 11th day of September next, at 10 o'clock, in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs at law of said deceased, and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said Court, then to be holden at the Probate Office, in the City of Adrian, and show cause if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said County of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing. Ayer's Hair Vigor,

FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR TO ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR.

It is a most agreeable dressing, which is at once harmless and effectual, for preserving the hair. It restores, with the gloss and freshness of youth, faded or gray, locks, and restores, to a vivid brown, or deep black, as may be desired. By its use thin hair is thickened, and baldness often though not always cured. It checks falling of the hair immediately, and causes a new growth in all cases where the glands are not decayed; while to brashy, weak, or otherwise diseased hair, it imparts vitality and strength, and renders it pliable.

The VIGOR cleanses the scalp, cures and prevents the formation of dandruff; and, by its cooling, stimulating, and soothing properties, it heals most if not all of the humors and diseases peculiar to the scalp, keeping it cool, clean, and soft, under which conditions diseases of the scalp and hair are impossible.

As a Dressing for Ladies' Hair

The VIGOR is incomparable. It is colorless, contains neither oil nor dye, and will not soil white cambric. It imparts an agreeable and lasting perfume, and as an article for the toilet it is economical and unsurpassed in its excellence.

THE FARMERS' PAGE.

EDUCATION FOR FARMERS.

The [illegible] and greatest value of education is often lost sight of in the desire and attempt to acquire in school a detailed technical knowledge of some [illegible] which will enable one to support himself by a prominent and lucrative place in the chosen vocation. When education is attempted from this false standpoint the results are disappointing and unfortunate. Even in those professions which are most dependent on special school instruction there is another fact that he cannot step at once from school into a good practice. A certain amount of practical experience, acquired by actual work in his profession is necessary to enable him to employ successfully the knowledge he has gained by a course of study.

The young would be farmer should not expect to graduate from an agricultural college, a thoroughly experienced farmer. He may yet lack much of the judgment and sagacity which are necessary for successful farming.—He should have the patience and energy to go on a farm and get these powers through actual work and observation. It would be a waste of time and money for one to spend his college life in mere field work. The graduate from an agricultural college should be what every educated man is, a trained thinker, capable of grappling intelligently with any subject that may require his attention. He should have been introduced to some of the best thought of the world. He should have a method and ability for research and critical observation. He should have a knowledge of the sciences and arts which are related to his work, with at least an understanding of the principles of other pure and applied sciences.

If he has in addition had an opportunity for work and observation on a well appointed and conducted farm, he has also become familiar with some of the best methods of cultivation and farm management. He has not finished his education on graduating from the college. He has only fairly laid the foundation for it, and prepared himself to continue it with success.—Having learned the theory of his work combined with some of its practical details, he has a guide to the rapid acquirement of fuller practical experience. For correct theory is not the antagonist of practice, but its most reliable helper and guide. The advantage of education to the farmer is not in its enabling him to raise a larger crop of potatoes. It is in the higher, broader, nobler and more useful life which it makes him capable of living. It is in his increased resources for happiness and good, and in his greater power to successfully grapple with the various combination of circumstances by which he is continually confronted.

Instead of complaining, as farmers sometimes do, that they as a class are not sufficiently represented in positions of public responsibility and trust, they should honestly and earnestly set themselves to the work of getting adequate preparation for such service as public men are called upon to perform. When farmers as a class become men of sound education and cultivated minds, when they have a knowledge of the causes and tendencies which affect human affairs, when their lives and interests are not confined to the narrow limits of their farm work, then they will become a power for good in society, and will find that their capacities will be called into use. Then, also, will they find themselves possessed of a higher and deeper happiness than that they before knew, the happiness of serving their race.—Massachusetts Ploughman.

A Wonderful Discovery.

For the speedy cure of Consumption and all diseases that lead to it, such as stubborn Coughs, neglected Colds Bronchitis, Hay Fever, Asthma, pain in the side and chest, dry hacking cough, tickling in the throat, Hoarseness, Sore Throat, and all chronic or lingering diseases of the throat and lungs. Dr. King's New Discovery has no equal and has established for itself a world-wide reputation. Many leading physicians recommend and use it in their practice. The formula from which it is prepared is highly recommended by all medical journals. The clergy and the press have complimented it in the most glowing terms. CROP REPORTS.

The following summary of the condition on the 1st of August of the crops mentioned below is furnished by the Department of Agriculture. The condition of the potato crop is somewhat better than last year, and is 98 against 87 then. The New England and Middle States, except a portion of New Jersey and Delaware, all report a high average crop. The Gulf States, and those States in the Mississippi valley report an average above that of last year. The States north of the Ohio River and bordering on it are somewhat below the report of 1878, but still the crop is reported as a promising one. West of the Mississippi, both Kansas and Nebraska report low averages on account of drouth and insect injuries.

The area sown to buckwheat shows a slight decline since last year. New York and Pennsylvania, the two States which grow nearly half the entire crop of the country, show a decline of 2 per cent in the acreage sown. Minnesota and Nebraska each report an increase in acreage, and the other buckwheat producing States show an average nearly the same as in 1879.

The summer of 1880 has not been favorable for the hay crop. The drouth in June and early in July was very detrimental in all the Atlantic States except Maine and New Hampshire. In the States bordering on the Ohio River the average is higher than last year. West of the Mississippi, the average is low, and on the Pacific Slope it is very high.

A partial summary is also furnished of sugar determinations made by the chemical division of the department from sorghum canes grown on the Department grounds. More than forty varieties of cane were tested at different stages of their growth, and the result, as shown in the summary, indicates a gradual increase between July 12 and August 13 in the percentage of sucrose or cane sugar found in all of them. In the juice extracted from several varieties of cane, about the 12th of August, more than 13 per cent of sucrose was found.

Letters from England recently received, speak unfavorably relative to the heavy storms which occurred some two or three weeks since in some portions of the country, and of their injurious effect upon the maturing wheat crop. Under the depressing influences immediately following those storms, these reports were penned, and which are now in some cases just finding their way into print. Telegraphic returns of a recent date are of a more encouraging tenor, indicating that the injury to the harvest generally was not as severe as at one time it was feared it would be. Under date of Aug. 21, Mr. James Card, eminent agricultural authority, writes to the London Times that returns from Great Britain and Ireland show, as compared with 1879, a slight increase in the acreage of wheat, a decrease of 7½ per cent in barley, an increase of 5 per cent in that of oats and scarcely any change in that of potatoes. The quality and yield of wheat will be so greatly superior that if the present splendid harvest weather continues a fortnight longer they may reckon on a crop of from 3,000,000 to 4,000,000 quarters, or nearly two months' consumption better than in 1879. Potatoes promise most favorably. The dry, clear weather will, it may be reasonably hoped, go far to check further progress of disease. Grass and green crops, except mangold, are abundant. The first hay crop was light and much damaged by rain, but it will be largely supplemented by a heavy second crop.—Michigan Homestead.

HOW TO KEEP BUTTER.

A correspondent of the Rural Home says: I learned one or two things about butter last Spring. One of them is that butter of all kinds should either be made stiff and set away in a cool place, or if not made so stiff should be put in gallon or half gallon jars and either sealed up or thick paper (old letter paper will do) brushed over with the white of an egg fastened securely over the top. Before sealing them up, however, it is well to put about half a teacup of sugar over the top of each, but if made thick enough they will not need it. In canning fruit this should always be done, as it prevents them from moulding, providing they are not moved and jolted around.

IVY IN ROOMS.

Ivy may be grown in any part of the room. The pot may be placed on the floor and the plants so trained as to festoon a window or an arch doorway, or to wreathe a picture-frame or mirror. They require to be watered often, yet the water must not be allowed to stand about the roots. There are varieties with golden and silver variegated leaves; others with lobed or palmate or heart-shape leaved. All are pretty, grow rapidly, and endure the heat of our sitting-rooms, with their dust and extremes of temperature and want of light in a most astonishing manner.

The best thing for a bathing-dress would be a duck suit.

TESTIMONY

Of the Hon. Jos. E. Gray, Judge of the Superior Court, Chicago, Ill.

CHICAGO, Dec. 14, 1878.

DR. S. D. HOWE:

Dear Sir,—Permit me to add my grateful testimony to the army of witnesses to the virtue of your justly celebrated Arabian remedies. For a long time my wife was seriously afflicted with hacking cough, oppressed breathing, soreness of the chest, and constant acute pain in the lower portion of the right lung and under the shoulder blade. Her sufferings were intense, and she became extremely nervous and prostrated. Her disease was pronounced consumption by the physicians of Chicago and other cities, whose prescriptions had been taken without benefit. When you visited Chicago in June, 1878, we called on you, having very little hope of derriving help from your treatment. We were inspired with hope by the skillful manner in which your thorough examination was conducted, and the satisfactory explanation with which you closed your diagnosis. My wife determined to take your medicines in accordance with your plain and practical directions. She began to use the Arabian Milk Cure and Arabian Tonic; their beneficial effect at once became manifest—the cough loosened and soon ceased, respiration became easy, the soreness of the chest was relieved and all pain removed; she began to gain in flesh and improve in strength and appearance. I fully believe that your medicines and skillful advice have saved the life of my wife. She unites with me in this grateful tribute to the merit of your remedies.

Very respectfully yours,
JOSEPH E. GRAY.

PERFECT HARMONY.

TO THE AFFLICTED.

Since the introduction of Kellogg's Columbian Oil it has made more permanent cures and given better satisfaction on Kidney complaints and Rheumatism than any know remedy. Its continued series of wonderful cures in all climates has made it known as against all aches and pains which are the forerunners of more serious disorders. It acts speedily and surely, always relieving suffering and often saving life. The protection it affords by its timely use on Rheumatism, kidney affection, and all aches and pains, wounds, cramping pains, cholera morbus, diarrhœa, coughs, colds, catarrh, and disorders among children, makes it an invaluable remedy to be kept always on hand in every home. No person can afford to be without it, and those who have once used it never will. It is absolutely certain in its remedial effects and will always cure when cures are possible. Call at C. A. Wright & Co's. and get a memorandum book giving more full details of the curative properties of this wonderful medicine.

Greatest Remedy Known.

Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumptive is certainly the greatest medical remedy ever placed within the reach of suffering humanity.—Thousands of once hopeless sufferers, now loudly proclaim their praise for this Discovery to which they owe their lives. Not only does it positively cure Consumption, but Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, Hay Fever, Hoarseness and all affections of the Throat, Chest and Lungs yield at once to its wonderful curative powers as if by magic. We do not ask you to buy a large bottle until you know what you are getting. We therefore earnestly request you to call on your Druggist, M. Wright & Son, and get a trial bottle free of cost which will convince the most skeptical of its wonderful merits, and show you what a regular one dollar size bottle will do. For sale by M. Wright & Son, Tecumseh.

Poverty and Suffering.

"I was dragged down with debt, poverty and suffering for years, caused by a sick family and large bills for doctoring, which did them no good.—I was completely discouraged, until one year ago, by the advice of my pastor, I procured Hop Bitters and commenced their use, and in one month we were all well and none of us have seen a sick day since, and I want to say to all poor men, you can keep your families well a year with Hop Bitters for less than one doctor's visit will cost—I know it.

A WORKINGMAN."

Envied Beauty.

What is more handsome than a nice bright, clear complexion, showing the beauties of perfect health? All can enjoy these advantages by using Electric Bitters. Impure blood, and all diseases of the Stomach, Liver, Kidneys and Urinary Organs are speedily cured. For nervousness and attendant ailments, they are a never failing remedy, and positively cure where all others fail. Try the Electric Bitters and be convinced of their wonderful merits. For sale by C. A. Wright & Co. at fifty cents a bottle.

Miraculous Power.

The Forest and Stream has it: "To preserve health use Warren's Safe Remedies. These are almost of miraculous power in removing diseases for which recommended. The wonderful curative qualities they are possessed of is vouched for by tens of thousands.

THE READY FAMILY SOAP MAKER:

LEWIS' LYE

98 PER CENT. PURE.
(Patented.)
FINELY POWDERED.
HIGHLY PERFUMED.

The strongest and purest Lye made. Will make 12 pounds of the best Perfumed Hard Soap in 20 minutes without boiling.

The best water-softener made.

The best disinfectant.

The following are some of the advantages claimed by using Lewis' 98 Per Cent. Powdered Lye:

First. It is packed in an iron can with a slip or removable lid, easily taken off and leaving the contents exposed, thereby saving the trouble, annoyance, and danger (from flying particles), as with other Lyes, which, being sold in the cans, must be broken with a hammer to get the Lye out.

Second. It being a fine powder, you can remove the lid and pour out all the contents, being always ready for use.

Third. A teaspoonful or more can be used, as perfaps desiring, scrubbing, etc., just the lid returned to the can, and thereby save the balance of contents. With other Lyes all must be dissolved at once and used in a short time, or the strength is gone.

Fourth. Absolute purity. Free from all adulterations.

Fifth. The best Soap can be made in from ten to twenty minutes with this Lye.

Sixth. No failure is possible in making Soap with this Lye when the simple directions given are followed.

Seventh. One can of this Powdered Lye is equal to twenty pounds of Sal Soda or Washing Soda.

Eighth. One can of this Lye will saponify one pound more of grease than any other Concentrated Lye, Ball Potash, or Saponifier.

Ninth. This Lye is 38 per cent. stronger than any other Lye or Potash.

Tenth. One to two teaspoonfuls will soften a tub of the hardest water.

Eleventh. One teaspoonful will thoroughly cleanse Sinks, Drains, or Closets.

Invaluable for killing Roaches, Mice, Rats, etc.

The best article for washing Trees.

TEMPERANCE MASS MEETING.

The Proposed Constitutional Amendment Ratified by a Large Crowd—Picnic Dinner and Good Speakers.

The weather last Friday morning was inclement and in every way unfavorable for a mass meeting. But after a time the sky became clear, and the threatening rain passed over, and by this time the people from all the neighboring towns had filled the streets. The citizens of Raisin and Clinton sent large delegations with four horse teams and banners, while the citizens of Tecumseh had made great preparations in the way of decorated wagons and becoming mottoes for the procession.

Although the streets were muddy, the crowd determined to ratify the proposed amendment, and so about 10:30 A. M., Chief Marshal W. C. Fitzsimmons and his aides commenced to form the procession. In a short time strains of music filled the air and the procession commenced to move down Chicago St. from Union. The Manchester band led the line of teams then came six and four horse teams drawing large conveyances filled with Red Ribbon clubs from several places, other temperance organizations and a great number of persons in favor of the amendment. Almost every wagon had a banner held above it. Among the various mottoes were "No Whiskey for Us," which was implanted in the midst of a large load of women. "Tax Laws Mean Free Whiskey," "Politicians Beware," "200,000 Voters Demand the Amendment," about the center of the procession was a very attractively arranged car of states. Elevated seats, after the manner of stairs were constructed, running around a large truck and culminating in and forming a square. Children representing the different states were arranged upon the seats which had been draped with bunting and gaily decked with flowers. Standing above was the Goddess of Liberty grasping the national colors. The Franklin band dispersed music for one end of the procession, while the Manchester band led the other part. Raisin people made up a good part of the line, waving conspicously on high a banner characterizing their community as follows: "No Saloons, No Rows, No Lawsuits, No Paupers." South Macon and Clinton turned out and helped to form the procession which contained about 150 teams reaching nearly 2 miles in length.

After completing the line of march through the principle streets the procession headed toward Adams' grove. They arrived here about noon, and the people unloaded themselves with their lunch baskets and sought cool, sequestered spots where they could replenish the inner man.

A delegate of the HERALD who had meandered down to the grove and was perambulating about with a starved look upon his face was, to his great material comfort, taken compassion on by the Chief Marshal of the day, and asked to picnic with his party. We quickly accepted the kind offer and we have only one fault to find, and that is that the excellency of the dinner so overcame us that our remembrance of the proceedings of the day clusters around nothing else but pressed chicken, dutch cheese, etc.

THE EXERCISES.

When the people had satiated themselves, they strolled down to the speakers' stand and seated themselves upon seats conveniently arranged on the hillside. The crowd filled all the seats and room about the stand and showed by their actions that the amendment should pass. After the crowd had congregated, Chairman Osborne mounted the stand and with a stentorian voice called the people to order.

The exercises opened with music by the band, and prayer by Prof. McKeever of Adrian.

The orator of the day Sam'l Dickie was then introduced. Mr. Dickie, although he came all the way from Jackson to Tecumseh with a horse and buggy in the forenoon, was energetic and full of enthusiasm. His speech was forcible and highly interesting.

He commenced with the statement: I shall take it for granted that all the persons I see present here to-day are interested in temperance. I shall discuss to-day the policy maintained by our state temperance question.

Let me say that there are three important factors in a great question like this. There is the religious, the social, and the financial elements that make up the grand question of temperance. And the problem, what shall we do? when asked in regard to temperance, must be considered in its religious, social and financial point of view. As regards the third, the finances of the nation are closely connected with the dram shop. The dram shop keeps the national debt hovering over the people's head, and if we could do away with the traffic in spiritous liquors, we could in two and a half years free ourselves from the bondage of our immense indebtedness.

The liquor traffic unlike most others, is not an example of the principle that the demand creates a supply. But it is an anomalous business in which the supply creates the demand. The demand to-day is unnatural, contrary to the laws of trade. To illustrate, suppose that a colony of temperate men and women locate in a new unsettled country. In time they feel the want of clothes and as a natural consequence a traffic in dry goods is established, in the same way they want provisions, consequently a grocery store is built. But not so as regards liquors, this colony is temperate and does not demand spiritous drink, so no traffic in liquors is established on account of the demand. But if a dram shop comes into their midst it must either fall through want of patronage, or obtain business because the supply created the demand. In this way our dram shops were started, not because they were demanded but because the proprietors could create a demand by keeping a supply.

We can do three things with the sale of intoxicating drink. We can let it alone, educate the sentiment of the commonwealth to rebel against, or we can legislate against it. Some tell us to let drink alone and it will let us alone. But it is not so. We can shun it in all manner of ways and at all times, but I tell you, it will dog our heels and cling to us in a relentless manner. If you don't believe me, go with me to the many children in the cities, that know no home but the streets. They will tell you that they let whiskey alone, but that it has taken their fathers, their mothers, their homes, their all, and gave them the cold world in their stead. In the same way go to the people of the farming country and you will find many a sad case where whiskey has come into the home uninvited and fought against. The most pernicious and unfortunate dabauchee will repeat the same answer to your question.

Let me say something concerning the second horn of this trilemma. In the entire history of this great question, in this or in other lands, no legislative enactment regulating the drink traffic can be found to be successful. I pronounce the present liquor law passed in '75 to be a total and gigantic failure.

There are three prominent features of this law. First, it prohibits the sale of strong drink to boys under 20 years of age. But I do not know of a place where liquor is sold that a boy cannot procure strong drink if he has the money. The second feature is that liquor shall not be sold on the Sabbath. But I know that this provision of the law is not enforced from observation. When I was in East Saginaw one Sunday I counted seven saloons in active operation. And in Marshall I counted four one Sunday night. In Detroit the Common Council have gone so far as to encourage this Sunday traffic. In your own town, I dare say, that more than one back door is opened for this unlawful trade.

The third provision is that strong drink shall not be sold to habitual drunkards. But it is a dead letter as the experience of 5 years has proved. No person has been reformed through the influence of this provision. Here are seven hundred of you, but not one can tell me of a case of reformation of a drunkard by this clause of the law.

Don't charge upon the law the fault of its being violated, but blame the friends of the law. Yet I want to affirm that the law is a compact with hell, a law that is damning to a communnity. I believe by this law we are placing our young men in greatest danger. I have not the words to express the evils of it, I can't do them justice. Our childrens' children may hereafter read of the Michigan liquor law of '74 and '75. They will throw the history down and says "This is not history, but the weird fancies of affected minds."

Furthermore as regards the second horn of this trilemma. In the entire history of the past we can put our hand upon no legislative enactment looking to the suppression of the sale of liquor that was a failure. Our old law was not a failure, it was enforced far better than the present law. But the public sentiment was not then as it is now. The true standard for judging the value of a law is not as many people suppose, but the ratio of complaints is the true measure of the public sentiment and the ratio of convictions the measure of legislative arrests.

The old law with the public sentiment as it is now would in six short weeks free Tecumseh and Clinton of their saloons.

At the late convention at Jackson men came from all the slum holes in the state and organized themselves into a body under the name of "Liquor Dealers' Association." They as a body declared the old liquor bill a failure. They said it was a dead letter, that it meant free whiskey.

Why did they do this? If I had been there, I would have told them that they lied, as they did, because the old liquor bill was not a failure.

The Public Leader, the vilest paper that comes from the roll of a printing press, cried for the Mosher Bill in its editorial columns with the same spirit that the liquor men's convention declared the old law a failure. It was manifest from the paper itself as in the same issue of the Leader as its editor crys for the Mosher bill, Mr. Shoddy, the attorney of the Beer Brewers' Ass'n advised them to raise money to use in preventing the passage of the bill, to work in the lobby against it and to make the members of the legislature disdain to vote for it. Here was inconsistency indeed. It clearly shows that they know that the passage of the Mosher bill throws them out of their business.

The prohibition law has worked in Maine, so why not in Michigan? From my correspondence with members of the Maine state legislature, and other prominent men, I know the law is a success. Outside of a few seaport towns, there is not a saloon in Maine. In conclusion let me say that the wisest, best and truest thing for us to do is to run up the flag for our amendment.

The reason for making the Mosher bill an amendment, is to put it in the organic law out of the power of legislatures. The liquor dealers want to keep it upon the floor of the House, but we don't, because they will tamper with the members of our legislature. This amendment will be carried by thirty or forty thousand majority.

After the close of Prof. Dickie's speech, the Band of Hope under the direction of Mrs. C. H. McConnell sang a selection in a way that was creditable to themselves and to their teacher.

Then the chairman introduced Hon. C. E. Mosher, of Mosherville, an ex-member of the state legislature and the author of the Mosher bill. Mr. Mosher, somewhat like Cincinnatus, left the plough share to go to battle, but his fighting was for his bill.

He gave an interesting account of the origin and growth of pledges, saying that the pledge of old Billy Williams was the first, it was a promise to abstain from the use of alcoholic drinks, except upon special occasions. The last form of a pledge, that of Reynolds and Murphy, to abstain from the use of alcoholic beverages by the aid of Almighty God was his ideal pledge.

Mr. Mosher then went on to state the history of his bill, and concluded with a vigorous appeal for every man interested in the suppression of the sale of liquor to vote for the amendment. He stated that he had always been a staunch Republican and at the same time a prohibitionist, but his allegiance to the republican party had always been stronger at election time, in consequence of which he had never in his life split his ticket. But this year was to see a great change, and if the nominees of the Republican party were not strictly temperate he would spot them and cast his vote against them.

At the close of Mr. Mosher's speech there was music by the band, singing, and congratulatory remarks by different ones present. The exercises closed with the benediction, and all went home declaring their intention to vote for the amendment.

Morenci Observer: Miss Judian Holben, an aged aunt of Lewis Beck, of Medina township, died at the residence of the latter on Wednesday last, of typhoid fever, aged 71 years. The deceased was a native of Pennsylvania, and was a pattern of industry and sturdy honesty—characteristics peculiar to the German type of the old denizens of the Key Stone State. Her remains were committed to their last resting place, in Oak Grove cemetery, on Thursday.

THE State Fair will be held at Detroit, commencing on Monday, Sept. 13th. The L. S. & M. S. road will give reduced fare from all places. The fare from Tecumseh and return being $2.25.

THE third district republicans, of this county, last Tuesday at Clayton renominated Hon. Manson Carpenter, of Woodstock for the legislature.

SOUTH MACON.

The hurly-burly of house repairing for the past two months has prevented the usual communications from this section. We have been giving our dwelling a thorough overhauling from cellar to garret, by way of grafting, enlarging, re-enclosing, roofing, plastering, painting, etc., and hope in a few weeks to be more comfortably situated.

Everything is moving along about as heretofore. Farmers are engaged in threshing and fall seeding, which the warm, wet weather somewhat retards. Wheat is yielding well, oats light, corn medium, potatoes good but inclined to rot in wet places.

We are also keeping up the usual society and social gatherings, as recreation from ordinary labor, or prompters to greater enterprise. The ladies mite society hold their meetings every two weeks. The meeting last Thursday evening was a pound social and netted the society $12. A splendid company and good time, but we noticed the young folks in playing "jersey boys," stole in a little "monie musk" and "Scotch reel" unbeknown to anybody. Why not repeal the law against dancing so that it won't be wicked? There is certainly no more harm in stepping to the time of a quadrille than to the "jersey boys" or "needle's-eye," and not half so simple.

The red ribbon club meet every two weeks, and is doing a good work. It contributed two four-horse teams and numerous carriages to the grand procession at Tecumseh last Friday. P. S. McKinnon and I. Osborn will lecture before the club next Saturday evening, the 11th inst.

The Grange is also in a prosperous condition, taking in members at nearly every meeting. C. L. Whitney, lecturer of the State Grange, and C. E. Mickley, lecturer of the county Grange, lectured before the Macon Grange in the afternoon and to the public in the evening of August 13th. Both lectures were well received. The Grange has just received a car-load of salt and distributed it among the members, and also resumes the purchasing of goods, so that members can procure supplies at the store-room in the hall at regular meetings.

We have a sprinkling of base ball every two weeks, and the young folks "high away" to the lakes and other favorite resorts about every full moon so that we are well supplied with variety.

Politics quiet and a shade lower. I. S. Osborn planted a splendid ash pole about 100 feet high, from which float the names of Garfield and Arthur. The Republicans have organized a club at the hall, and will get a starter next Thursday night by T. M. Hunter, of Adrian, and Hon. Edwin Willitts, of Monroe. Otherwise there has been no political demonstration in this township. The nominations are quite favorably received, but there is a little distrust in the manner of conducting the primary meetings. Nearly every one favors W. A. Underwood's plan of a free and unbiased expression, instead of the rush and ring-master way of doing business. There will be some kicking here and there, but nothing serious. The Greenbackers are looming up some, and will probably poll 25 or 30 votes in this township.

This community mourns the loss of Miss S. L. Scudder, who died last Monday, the 30th, of typhoid fever, at the age of 33 years. Miss Scudder has followed music teaching during the past fifteen years, and was well and favorably known throughout this section, and will be missed more than any other individual. The funeral was conducted at Mooreville. Over 100 teams followed the remains from the family home.

Simon Gould and Emory Auten are very low with typhoid fever.

Mrs. T. B. Gould and G. A. Wilkins have been very low for several weeks from general debility, but are now improving.

Michael Karcher is down with inflammation of the lungs, but is now improving.

Robert Stewart is still afflicted with hip disease, and the prospect of recovery is not very flattering. He contemplates going to Ann Arbor the first of next month for examination before Prof. McLain. A. E.

A "down-east" exchange exclaims, apparently with western experience or observation: "There are two, yea three, things that are mighty uncertain. The first is where lightning is going to strike. The second is what the verdict of the average petit jury will be, and the third is the action of a congressional nominating convention. Any one of them is about as safe to bet on as either of the others.

RIDGEWAY'S LUCK.

Guernsey P. Waring Nominated for Representative in the Legislature by Republicans of the First District.

Monday afternoon the Republicans of the First District of this county, met in convention at Tecumseh to nominate a representative at the state legislature.

Hon. A. D. Hall mounted the stand and called the meeting to order about 1:45, and proceeded with the organization. T. G. Chandler, of Riga, was appointed chairman, and P. S. McKinnon, of Tecumseh, secretary.

A. W. Mills, of Tecumseh; Madison Graves, Palmyra; J. M. Robertson, Blissfield; B. I. Laing, Raisin; I. B. Kellogg, Riga, were then chosen as a committee on credentials.

The District committee appointed consisted of L. B. Hill, Palmyra; N. Spencer, Raisin; John Britton, Ridgeway; I. S. Osborn, Macon; E. J. Butler, Deerfield; W. F. Baxter, Tecumseh; T. G. Chandler, Riga; D. M. Bainbridge, Clinton; Daniel Baluss, Ogden; O. F. Sheldon, Blissfield.

I. S. Osborn, Macon; C. F. Bliven, Deerfield, were appointed tellers.

Fractional Districts were allowed to cast the full vote.

A. W. Mills then presented the report of the committee on credentials which gave the following delegates seats in the convention:

Tecumseh—R. R. Hall, Witter F. Baxter, Peter S. McKinnon, A. W. Mills, R. Raymond, W. H. Mather.

Palmyra—C. J. Corbet, N. Ganun, M. Graves, L. B. Hill, A. Harrison, L. B. Wood.

Raisin—Nathan Spencer, B. I. Laing, H. E. Wilson, Wm. Lovett, J. K. Webb, D. H. Chase.

Ridgeway—John Britton, G. W. Jackson, W. R. Wilson, T. H. Temple, D. M. Heath, N. M. Hindes.

Deerfield—E. J. Butler, J. Riley, C. F. Bliven, W. F. Hood, D. F. Griswold, L. Ormsby.

Clinton—A. W. Alvord, D. M. Bainbridge, C. C. Dell, B. G. Swift, H. P. Pugh, A. P. Halladay.

Blissfield—O. F. Sheldon, P. D. Davenport, J. M. Robertson, R. E. C. Newcomb, John Fuller, M. H. Cogswell.

Riga—Thomas G. Chandler I. B. Kellogg, J. VanPelt, C. M. Comstock, H. C. Gillam, P. A. Belman.

Macon—I. Pennington, G. F. Harmon, Chas. Skinner, G. Howell, S. Linn, I. S. Osborn.

Ogden—J. H. Hodges, D. D. Baluss, G. Corwin, E. Shays. E. C. Wootring, M. B. Luke.

Then the presentation of names for candidates for the nomination of representative were in order. Whereupon W. F. Baxter, of Tecumseh, presented the name of Guernsey P. Waring, of Ridgeway.

John Britton arose and in behalf of the Ridgeway delegation supported the nomination, which was followed by the support of the Macon delegation. R. B. Newcomb, of Blissfield, presented the name of his fellow-citizen Fred G. Beagle. The nomination received the support of M. Robertson and most of the delegation.

Other names being presented an informal ballot was taken with the following result:

Number of votes cast,	60.
Guernsey P. Waring	41
Fredrick G. Beagle	19

Mr. Waring was then declared unanimously nominated.

The chair appointed Newcomb, of Blissfield, and Alexander Ormsby, of Deerfield, were appointed as a committee to await upon Mr. Waring and inform him of his success. They soon returned with the nominee, who, in a neat little speech, returned thanks to the convention for the conferred honor, and declared his intentions to uphold the party principles.

Fred G. Beagle, the next best, being called upon made a short speech. He was followed by Hon. B. L. Baxter. Whereupon the convention adjourned.

Mr. Waring is well known in this section of the county and his support will be none the less on account of it. He is one of the best business men in Ridgeway, and has a peculiar fitness for the nomination, and will make as strong a run in November as any man they could have put up.

RIDGEWAY.

Two cases of diphtheria at Warren Holdridge's, in Raisin; both convalescing.

Base ball, Dundee vs. Ridgeway, last Saturday: 9 to 12 in favor of the latter.

The social announced for to-morrow evening at G. P. Waring's, has been postponed for one week.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Barnes celebrated the tenth wedding anniversary on the 1st inst. About fifty of the relatives and friends of the couple were present and report a splendid time.—The presents were numerous, consisting of silver, etc., to the amount of $35 or $40. Appropriate remarks were made by Rev. A. B. Wood.

Advices from John B. Pattison assure his friends of his safe arrival in England. He disguised himself as a pedlar and called upon his parents; failing to sell his mother anything he went to the field to hire out to his father. The old gentleman didn't want to hire, so John had to make himself known.

The annual school meeting was held on Monday night of this week. The vote for Moderator resulted in the election of John Van Vleet on the second ballot. The number of casualties was small, owing to the fact that throwing anything larger than a brick was prohibited. It was decided to build a wood shed, somehow, somewhere. An attempt to get in nine months school and eighteen weeks vacation next year failed.

The members of the M. E. congregation met in the lecture room on Tuesday evening for the purpose of presenting to Mr. Wood a beautifully upholstered arm chair and foot rest, and to Mrs. Wood a dozen tea and a dozen table spoons, beautiful silver, as tokens of love and esteem. Remarks in behalf of the donors by T. H. Temple and others, and were responded to by the recipients. After which ice cream and cake were served, and the balance of the evening was given up to a farewell social.

Miss Jennie Sweet, daughter of Lyman Sweet died on the evening of the 5th. The funeral took place at the house on the 7th, and was largely attended.

Miss Kitty, daughter of David Ousterhout, deceased, died of consumption on Wednesday morning, aged 18 years.

On Sabbath, Sept. 12, a sermon in vindication of the wisdom, justice and benevolence of God, in the creation and fall of man, will be given at Ridgeway by Rev. Peter Sharp.

FRANKLIN.

Rev. E. P. Pierce left for Bay City Tuesday to attend the M. E. Conference, and will be absent over Sabbath, but his pulpit will be supplied. We understand he expects to be returned for another year.

Rev. James Vincent has decided to close his labors with the Congregational Church at the close of his present year, about Oct. 15th, a fact that will be very much regretted, even by many outside the church, and it is feared the society will experience considerable difficulty in procuring a successor of equal talent.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Lewis are happy over the addition of a 9½ lbs. girl to their family; all doing finely, and a new front gate will soon be in order.

The first gun of the political campaign is expected to boom here Wednesday evening. Hon. Edwin Willits, of Monroe, is advertised to address our citizens from the Republican standpoint.

Those of our citizens who attended the Temperance Mass Meeting at Tecumseh, last week, were well pleased with the whole affair, and hope much for the cause of temperance in the future.

Our new grocer, Mr. Mansfield, is getting settled in his new quarters; he has his family here, and is destined to secure a liberal share of patronage, which he is determined to merit.

Schools of Macon.

The following is a list of those who have neither been absent nor tardy during the spring or summer terms of school, and who are therefore entitled to "cards of honor" which will be distributed soon. If anyone is entitled to a card whose name does not appear in the list, we would be glad to be informed of it. In school district No. 1—Bertha Allen, Jessie Frost, Lizzie Jacobus, Johnnie Pennington, Addie Crittenden, Ellen Camburn, Persis Rimert, Hattie and May Smith. In No. 2—Ella Hand, Oca Wilkins and John Lewis. In No. 3—Annie and Johnnie Baker, Blanch Mead and Anna Bailey. In No. 4—Frank and Lula Gilmore.

TOWNSHIP SUPT.

Hudson Gazette.—The fiendish attempt to wreck a train at this place on Thursday night last, was repeated at Allen's station, west of Jonesville, on Saturday night, large stones being placed upon the track again. Capt. Allen's shot-gun policy should be put in operation against these intending murderers.

WESTERN NOTES.

From Tecumseh to Northfield, Minn., with Observations on the Country.

NORTHFIELD, MINN. Aug. 30.

EDITOR HERALD:

As I promised many friends I would report my whereabouts thro' the columns of your paper, I think it high time I started my pen. It was the last week in June we left Michigan, the most beautiful part of the year. Then, the binders could be heard in many parts of the county, and the heavy standing grain just turning into a bright, golden color.—In the counties farther west and in Northern Indiana, from one-third to one-half of the wheat was in the shock, but was much surprised to find so few binders used; only two did we see from Adrian to Chicago. Grain good and standing well. I thought what a good chance to sell one hundred binders the coming season.

We spent two weeks in Chicago; found it quite a live town. On the street every man seemed to move as though filled with electricity; and that energy will not slacken until Chicago is the second city in the Union.

A short trip into Wisconsin gave us a fine view of a part of Northern Illinois and Southern Wisconsin, a beautiful country and good crops. We tarried a few days at Genevia Lake, one of the finest, three miles wide and nine miles in length; deep waters, gravelly shores, with three fine steamers and a number of hotels; a grand place for invalids, like myself.

We spent three weeks in Henry Co. Ill., which is said to be one of the best in the State. Their main crop is corn and they can excel the world. In passing through one field I found some ears most out of reach, only being able to reach them with the tips of my fingers. I would say this is better than the average. Many of the cribs are full of old corn, and well fattened hogs moving to market daily, at $4.20 to $4.30 per hundred. In passing to the great Mississippi over the C. B. & Q. railroad mother earth seemed to groan from the burden of corn. Oats were raised quite extensively and good.—We stopped at Burlington, a town of 20,000 inhabitants; land very broken, but full of life and business. The Mississippi is as grand as ever, ¾ mile wide at low water mark, but in time of high water, this spring, it raised 15 feet, and was nearly nine miles in width. Snakes were found in great numbers clinging to the tree tops, and rabbits floating on pieces of wood and boards to escape destruction.

In passing from Burlington to Ottumwa we found oats and wheat still in shock, darkened much by the rain and the sun, owing to scarcity of help. Corn good but not as tall as in Illinois. In a few places they were threshing with the old fashioned horse-killer.—Going North we found about the same country, with poor wheat, but corn and oats good. We concluded to make a stop at Grinnell, Powshick Co., Ia., a town of 2300 inhabitants; well located; good schools and churches and fine farming country around, and last but not least, a temperance town, and always has been. Any one selling strong drink within two miles of the corporation is wound up so quickly he is willing to abandon the traffic.

It has two direct lines to Chicago besides our North and South roads; its growth is steady and sure.

I made a short stop at Newton, Jasper Co., where I found many Clinton friends who received me gladly, and made my stay very pleasant. It being the county seat makes it desirable and has quite an extended trade and building rapidly. We spent one week at a little town called Victor, in Iowa county, in among the hills, but noted for much business. While there a friend gave me a drive of over sixty miles one beautiful day; a rare chance to see all kinds of soil, and hills without number. We saw much fine table lands, burdened with corn. Stopping for dinner and to feed and rest our steeds at Keswick, a new town with railroad just finished. We found the town full of life, and prospects good for new openings. After a splendid repast, we desired to visit another new town on the railroad, just starting. Calling for a team, we were furnished with a pair of the long-eared kind, said to be fast. Of course I had to drive, and found they were all we could ask for. We soon reached this town, called Thomburg; 150 inhabitants, very nicely located, many new houses going up; some families living in tents while building; everything booming. One hardware firm had sold $4000 worth of goods since March. Nice farming country to sustain a live town. Returning to Keswick we found our team fresh, and were soon homeward bound.

We left Grinnell on the 25th, A. M., reaching Northfield 5 o'clock, P. M.—Spending the day in sight seeing, country most beautiful and heavily laden with grain. As we came north we found more wheat and less corn, and better improvements than we had seen before. Minnesota is truly the great wheat belt of the west. Apples are raised to some extent, while small are quite plenty.

The Great Healer of all Inflamed Injuries and Disorders.

It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the unparalleled demand with which it meets, stamps it at once as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.

The most incredulous are convinced, and the most skeptical are compelled to believe in the power of this great remedy.

WHAT IT CURES.

ALL SORES, CUTS, BRUISES, SPRAINS, BURNS, SORE THROAT, LAMENESS, RHEUMATISM, PILES, INFLAMMATION of LUNGS and BOWELS, BRONCHITIS, CROUP, SALT RHEUM, CHILBLAINS, AFFECTIONS of the SPINE, ERYSIPELAS, NERVOUS IRRITATION, and all disorders attendant with INFLAMMATION.

It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is gained over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame; every bone, muscle, vein, nerve, and ligament is searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it copes readily with internal as well as external diseases.

Over 40 Years

This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such that as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates of cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should feel perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.

Price 25 and 40 cents per bottle. Sold by all dealers in medicine.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL.

COL. WATTS, of Adrian, gave us a call Monday.

COONING parties are now the order these dark nights.

COUNTY Fairs and horse trots will soon be booming.

THE Prohibitionists were out in full force last Friday.

JUD DEPUY'S basket of fine peaches was appreciated.

REPUBLICAN politicians were very plenty in town last Monday.

C. A. WRIGHT & CO.'s store front now glistens with black and gold.

THE old school bell grates once again upon the school boy's ears.

MISS JENNIE ROOT returned home last week from her trip to Marquette.

FRED. BEAGLE, of Blissfield paid the HERALD office a call on Monday last.

ED KELLY has returned to Tecumseh again after an extended tour in the west.

MISS CLARA SMITH, of Eaton Rapids, is the guest of the Misses Monaghans.

LAST Friday saw the largest crowd in Tecumseh that has been here since the 4th of July.

MISS FLORA TALLMAN, of Mt. Morris, N. Y., is visiting for a few weeks at E. F. Blood's.

WE have had "drummers" enough this week to talk a good sized community to death.

THE State has forwarded the funds to Capt. House for paying off the boys for services at camp.

MISS LILLIE MORTIMER took leave of her many Tecumseh friends last week to return to her home.

DR. HOUSE read the sermon last Sunday night at the M. E. church, as they have not yet procured a minister.

THE friends of Miss Anna Frazer will be glad to learn that she is slowly recovering from her recent illness.

THE six horse team which drew the car of state in the procession last Friday was driven by John Hanley. It was a fine team and well handled.

JOHN O'NEIL raised a fine hickory pole in front of his house last Friday evening, and unfurled a Hancock banner to the breeze. This is the first hickory pole raised in the village.

PERHAPS the air wasn't blue around Sutton & Swan's last Friday when a seemingly perfectly sober man tumbled off into the mud on all fours and heard the laughter of those round about.

HUDSON CONKLING did the Ohio State Fair last week, exhibiting H. Brewer & Co.'s Tile and Brick Machine. He came away with a first premium for their new horizontal machine.

YESTERDAY the work of constructing the two bridges at the White Mill pond commenced. Messrs. Smith and Heck have been particular as to the material, and now feel as if they were to have substantial bridges.

JUDGE A. P. SMITH, of Courtland county, N. Y., Dr. W. Chittock and wife, and Mrs. C. D. Hobbart, of Jackson, who have been visiting Mr. Lucius Bates and family departed this week for their respective homes.

BERT CATLIN entered the Detroit Medical School last Monday and intends to complete a regular course of medical lectures there. He passed the preliminary examinations without trouble and is now fairly at work in his new field.

THE best and neatest croquet ground of Tecumseh's numerous ones, was laid out and completed a short time since by Peter J. VanVleet and others in the old cemetery. A rather peculiar use for hallowed ground but time works wondrous changes.

SCHOOL began last Monday in all the departments. Prof. Fairfield, the new Superintendent is taking hold of his duties like an expert. He has already made a very favorable impression upon both pupils and patrons.—The outlook is now favorable for a very successful school year.

ANNUAL SCHOOL MEETING.

Presentation and Adoption of the Annual Report—Election of Two Trustees.

The Annual School Meeting of School District No. 7, was held in the Central Building last Monday evening. The attendance was smaller than usual, and nothing but the ordinary routine business was transacted. As the Moderator of the Board, Mr. Perley Bills, was absent by reason of sickness, the meeting was called to order by the Director, and on motion, Mr. B. L. Baxter was chosen Moderator pro tem for the evening.

The Director then presented his annual report, together with an appendix to the same, showing all the items of expenditure in detail, which was, on motion, accepted and adopted.

Below we give the report proper, as adopted by the meeting:

S. C. STACY, Director.

The meeting then proceeded to elect two trustees for three years in place of Wm. Hayden and Perley Bills, whose terms of office expired this year. Dr. E. Hause and M. E. Conklin were chosen tellers, and an informal ballot was first taken for a trustee to fill Mr. Hayden's place. Mr. Hayden received a large majority of the votes and he was then elected by acclamation as his own successor. A ballot was then taken for trustee to fill Mr. Bills' place and he also received nearly all the votes cast, after which he was unanimously elected as his own successor. The meeting then adjourned.

Garfield and Arthur Club.

Pursuant to call there was a good attendance of Republicans at the office of Dr. R. B. House, Sept. 4th, for the purpose of organizing a Garfield and Arthur club for the campaign.

Woolston Comfort was made chairman and Wm. DeMott secretary. The following named persons were appointed a committee on Constitution and By-Laws: L. P. Tribou, L. J. Dutton, R. B. House, H. E. Stout and Willis Merritt.

After some remarks by Messrs. W. Merritt, W. Comfort, Dr. House and others, the meeting adjourned to meet at the office of Dr. House next Friday evening, at 7½ o'clock, for a permanent organization. WM. DEMOTT, Secretary.

Base Ball.

Last Friday afternoon the Morenci base ball nine met the Raisin boys at Tecumseh and had a friendly contest. There was a good crowd present, and the weather was fair, so that they played under auspicious circumstances. The nines were about equal in regard to their playing, but nevertheless the Morenci boys seemed to be better at running bases and got in 13 runs to the Raisin boys 5.

DEMOCRATIC RALLY.

Chas. S. May Addresses a Large Audience at the Opera House.

Last Tuesday evening the Opera House was packed full of ladies and gentlemen to listen to Chas. S. May's of Kalamazoo, address upon the political issues of the day. Matteson, Clinton and the surrounding towns sent large delegations, while Adrian sent two coaches full together with the Knight Templar band, a special train being chartered for the occasion.

The train arrived about 7:45, and after the band had discoursed some fine music in front of the Opera House, the speaker put in an appearance. He was conducted upon the stage by Wm. Hayden, President of the Hancock and English club. W. H. Waldby, Democratic nominee for Congress; Walter Gardner, chairman of Democratic county committee; Judge C. A. Stacy and Hon. Jno. J. Adam also occupied seats on the stage.

Mr. May was greeted with applause as he stepped upon the stage, and as soon as it subsided the band played a selection, and then President Hayden introduced the speaker.

The speech was listened to throughout with extreme attentiveness and was from time to time interrupted by enthusiastic applause. It was a fair and candid representation of some of the prominent political issues of the day, being perfectly free from mud slinging and a speech that gained the interest of all without regard to party preferences. It was carefully prepared, and the product of a close reasoning, literary mind.

We give a few extracts of the speech. He said that the real question of such a campaign as this ought to be, which party ought we to trust, and which will best administer the power of the government? Then another thing, what one of the candidates can most be trusted? These two points should be the end of the discussion. But from the nature of the campaign we can not stop here, as our opponents are not willing to meet us upon such questions. They want to go back and discuss the history of the two parties. They also turn to the South, and say that it ought not to be trusted with power.

You know that the Republican party has become corrupt, and there are reasons for it. In the first place it has enjoyed a long reign, a reign of twenty years. Secondly, it was trusted with the power at the termination of a great war, and history plainly shows us that corruption always follows in the wake of wars and especially civil wars, because of the vast opportunities and rings that exist. Now the Republican party on account of these things has grown corrupt. And the Democrats come and ask for a change and present that great man, that magnificent general, with a party that has new blood in its veins.

The Republicans say that the South is not in a state for taking charge of affairs because of the helpless state of the negro and the disorders that arise there. But we say that it is not true, that it is slanderous. Now if you Republicans are guilty of slander you will admit that your party should fail to accomplish its purpose by this slander. But suppose for the sake of argument that you are right in your assertions, then I take this position. If you tell the truth concerning the condition at the South, if after your party has reconstructed it, after your party has borne political sway at the South, if after fifteen years of Republican rule a state of semi-barbarism, a condition of disorder and riot, as you say, exists, then I say that it is high time that we should have a change.

Now the South is a part of this union, it is a component part of the government, and now is it wise and fair to hold a part of a union of States under restraint? Go across the ocean for your answer, see how quick the English are to resent such a policy on the part of the government. If Gladstone should at any time carry out such a policy toward Ireland as the Republican party has maintained toward the South in this country, the people of the United Kingdom would rise and say that party must go out and a new election would ensue in which the opposition would be successful as they ought. So the people should do here, and I say that after you have sent your carpet baggers to the South and, as you say, the negro is in a helpless and oppressed state, the section rife with disorders, the people in a semi-barbarous condition, that it is high time for a change and you should give the rule over to the Democratic party.

You talk about sectionalism. Now only one-fourth of the Democratic party exists at the South. Mr. Tilden who in '76 was elected President by over four million votes, only received one million votes at the South. You must remember that all the Southern States did not rebel. States like Kentucky and Missouri remained steadfast. And the Democratic State of Missouri sent 118,000 soldiers into the ranks of the union army to the 76,000 that the leading Republican State of Iowa sent.

There were 100,000 more soldiers in the union army than there are Republicans to-day, so that granting that every Republican did go into the war which by no means they did, the army would still not be a partizan army.

THE number of children in this district of schoolable age is about 575.

DR. STEINHOFF is building a new residence on the corner of Logan and Union streets.

THE man who sleeps with nothing but a sheet over him these cold nights has not much fear of death.

MISS DELETTA BIRDLOW returned this week from her extended trip to Sandusky and the northern part of the State.

FRANK JOHNSON is making his many friends in Tecumseh a visit. He has been seriously ill and came here to recruit. Frank always receives a hearty welcome at his old home.

MRS. JOSEPH GRAY, Sr., with her daughter, while returning from church last Sunday morning, their horse became frightened and the buggy was upset. Mrs. Gray in falling received a broken arm.

SUNNER COLLINS will cast his maiden Presidential vote this fall, and to commemorate it he raised a hickory pole last Saturday afternoon in front of his home in Macon. S. C. Stacy was present and did the speaking.

S. C. STACY had a severe chill yesterday morning, and upon arriving at the office he decided to return home and take a sleep of a few hours. But he became worse and has been confined to his bed ever since.

CAPT. HENRY ROMEYN arrived in Tecumseh yesterday, having spent part of his vacation in the West where he was formerly stationed. He returns soon to his present position in the Government school at Hampton, Va., of which he has charge.

JEHIEL DAVIDSON is moving into his new quarters to-day. He has rented the store lately occupied by Mr. Sherrard and has divided it up into three departments. The front room is quite commodious, where he can carry and arrange to a good advantage a large stock of his line of goods. Another room will be fitted up for a dining and lunch room, where a man can drop in and get a cup of coffee and a dish of oysters and the like at any time of day. He intends to have the best stock of the kind in town.

COMMON COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS.

VILLAGE OF TECUMSEH, MICH., Council Room, Sept. 6, 1880.

At this regular session the Council convened at the usual hour.

Present the entire Council except Mr. Stout.

Minutes of proceedings of the last four preceding sessions read and approved.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

On Finance:

Report in writing approving of and recommending the payment of the claims of

Slayton & Son, for	$23 25
F. S. Wilson	2 50

The report was adopted and orders directed to be drawn for the several amounts.

On Streets:

Report verbally that some of the street lamps are out of repair and broken; and recommend that such lamps be repaired or replaced with others.

On motion the Committee on Streets is instructed to procure such supplies as are necessary to put in good condition all the lamps now on the streets.

REPORTS OF OFFICERS.

The Street Commissioner presented his report in writing, dating from Aug. 2, 1880, to Sept. 6, 1880, showing that during that time there was performed on the streets of team work 87 days, and of hand labor 11½ days. The report was received and placed on file.

PETITIONS AND APPLICATIONS.

From tax-payers and residents of Shawnee street asking that the Council may cause to be constructed a plank sidewalk along the south side of Shawnee street from the east line of Union street to the west line of Evans street.

Referred to Committee on Streets.

From tax-payers and residents of Maiden Lane praying for the construction of a plank sidewalk along the east side of Maiden Lane from the north line of Logan street to the south line of Shawnee street.

Referred to same committee.

Messrs. Bills and Lilley, through the Committee on Fire and Fire Limits, make verbal application for permission to erect on block 6 of Hewitt's addition to the village of Tecumseh, in the rear of Sink's Hotel, and to be used in connection therewith, a frame building; its dimensions to be 20 feet by 40 feet and the wall thereof 9 feet high.

On motion it was resolved that the application be granted, provided the building so erected be covered with a metalic roof.

NEW BUSINESS.

Complaint having been made that sec. 3, of an ordinance passed May 22, 1867, relative to the government and preservation of the cemetery is being violated from time to time, more particularly on the Sabbath.

Therefore, on motion, the Committee on Cemetery was instructed to use the means necessary for the preservation of quiet and order in the cemetery at all times.

The following bills against the corporation were presented and referred to Finance Committee:

T. C. Cummins	$ 5 50	John Gilchrist	$ 6 00
J. B. Haynes	2 00	E. H. Hyde	6 92
P. S. McKinnon	50	W. C. Jordan	64 00
Chas. Burridge	2 00	J. McConnell	48 65
James Moir	5 75

The attention of Council was called to the fact that certain parties had without any authority ploughed up part of the south park, known as the old cemetery grounds, and thereon prepared a place for the purpose of playing croquet and other like games.

On motion the matter was referred to the Committee on Public Grounds and Buildings.

On motion, council then adjourned.

P. S. MCKINNON, Recorder.

SANITARY SCIENCE.

DRINKS FOR THE SICK.

The sick, especially those afflicted with fever, often suffer from intense thirst. The quenching of this without injuring the patient is a matter which requires knowledge and good judgment. Dr. H. H. Kane says that plain water, when taken beyond a certain amount, is very apt to disorder the stomach and bowels, especially in fevers, where much fluid and but little solid food is taken. Enough water to quench the thirst would certainly be enough, in most cases, to disorder digestion, and so important is the little that remains of this function that we cannot afford to abuse it.

Small pieces of ice held in the mouth and allowed to dissolve sometimes answer the purpose, but not in the majority of cases.

Up to a certain point the action of water taken internally in fevers, is excellent. Aside from allaying irritation by quenching thirst it flushes the kidneys, carrying off much of the effete material produced by the high temperature.

It is has been found that the addition of certain substances to water greatly increases its power to quench thirst.

This is especially the case with acids. One drachm of hydrochloric acid added to a quart of water will give it sufficient acidity to accomplish the desired purpose, while at the same time it adds to the pleasantness, and sometimes relieves nausea.

The use of acids in fevers is highly commended by some authors, and this is, I think the best way in which to administer them. The same amount of sulphurous acid may be added to a quart of water when the [illegible] that way.

In these cases acidulated barley water is pleasant and nourishing. The same may be said of toast water.

In constipation, oatmeal water may be used in the same manner. A few tamarinds added to a glass of water will often assuage the thirst and open the bowels gently.

Theory and experience both show that drinks made slightly bitter and somewhat acid, slake thirst most effectually.

A weak infusion of cascarilla or orange peel, acidulated slightly with hydrochloric acid, was with Graves, of Dublin, a favorite thirst-allaying drink for fever patients.

Raspberry vinegar is a useful drink. Sucking ice is very grateful.

Sweet fruits, although at first agreeable and refreshing, must be taken with care and moderation, for they often give rise to a disagreeable taste, and are apt to produce flatulence and diarrhœa.

A REMEDY FOR ADVERSITY.

The Lancet suggests that more account ought to be taken than is taken of the condition of health in estimating the causes of success or failure in life. The habit of failing is formed in some families, and seems to be transmitted by inheritance; the same is the case with constitutional peculiarities, and often with certain morbid conditions. It would be an interesting and profitable study to examine how far what is called ill-luck or bad fortune is induced by such peculiarities. Accepting this view, "so far from its being strange that failure of success should 'run in families,' it would be inexplicable, contrary to every natural law and precedent, if he did not do so. The force of character, strength of will, clearness of mental vision, and qualities of vigor, patience, and perseverance, which constitute the secrets of success in life, are the several properties of the physical organism, compounded as it is of the body and mind." A new cure is suggested then, the "health cure," as a remedy for adversity, which would be first personal, then hereditary in its aim, aspects, and bearing. The subject is worthy the attention of medical men and social philosophers.

FOR CHOLERA MORBUS.

Take black pepper and grind it tolerably fine. Then put in a glass a table-spoonful of this and a table-spoonful of salt, and fill about half full with warm water, and then fill up the glass with good cider vinegar, and stir it up. Now take one table-spoonful, and then wait a little and take another, and keep on stirring and using it while the vomiting lasts. If one glass does not cure, try another.

The following message, intended to break bad news gently, was sent to the widow of a man who had just been killed by a railroad accident: "Dear Madam: Your husband is unavoidably detained for the present. To-morrow an undertaker will call upon you with full particulars."

It shocks ones faith in human nature to be accosted on the street after nightfall with: "Uf you blees, gif me a few pennies. I vas a Irish suffererman."—"Boston Courier."

ESTATE OF JACOB L. VAN WINKLE.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, ss.

At a session of the Probate Court for the county of Lenawee, holden at the Probate Office in the city of Adrian, on Tuesday, the 24th day of August, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty.

Present, Norman Geddes, Judge of Probate.

[illegible] petition of [illegible] administrator, with the will annexed of said deceased, praying that he may pay the debts of deceased, the expenses of administration thus far incurred, and the legacies bequeathed in said will and codicils, [illegible] and of said will and codicils, [illegible] of said deceased and distribution of the residue of said estate to the persons entitled thereto and for his discharge.

It is ordered that the [illegible] day of September next, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs at law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate are required to appear at a session of said Court, then to be holden at the Probate Office, in the City of Adrian, and show cause if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said County of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing. Ayer's Hair Vigor,

FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR TO ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR.

It is a most agreeable dressing, which is at once harmless and effectual, for preserving the hair. It restores, with the glow and freshness of youth, faded or gray, light, and red hair, to a rich brown, or deep black, as may be desired. By its use thin hair is thickened, and baldness often though not always cured. It checks falling of the hair immediately, and causes a new growth in all cases where the glands are not decayed; while to brashy, weak, or otherwise diseased hair, it imparts vitality and strength, and renders it pliable.

The VIGOR cleanses the scalp, cures and prevents the formation of dandruff; and, by its cooling, stimulating, and soothing properties, it heals most if not all of the humors and diseases peculiar to the scalp, keeping it cool, clean, and soft, under which conditions diseases of the scalp and hair are impossible.

As a Dressing for Ladies' Hair

The VIGOR is incomparable. It is colorless, contains neither oil nor dye, and will not soil white cambric. It imparts an agreeable and lasting perfume, and as an article for the toilet it is economical and unsurpassed in its excellence.

THE FARMERS' PAGE.

TOP DRESSING FOR GRASS LAND.

The present is a proper and desirable time of the year for thought and action concerning the top-dressing of grass land with some good fertilizer.—In absence of a sufficient quantity of properly prepared compost of barn-yard manure, or such as farmers can save up about the farm, there are quite a number of reliable commercial fertilizers, well known to the readers of your paper, which are profitable to use in reasonable quantities.

After many years experience in farming, I have come to the conclusion that there are many pieces of meadow land where top-dressing with some good fertilizer is far better than re-plowing. There are many pieces of grass land which are too wet or perhaps too full of stones to be plowed conveniently, while the same plots are now laid down nice and comfortable to work, yet perhaps have become reduced in fertility by continuous croping. Something should be done to bring this land into a condition for producing fair returns.

Such grass lands cannot be plowed without great expense and labor. Yet with a moderate outlay in top-dressing, and, in some instances, the scattering on of grass seed, these pieces can be made quite productive for many years and at comparatively moderate [illegible] Again, nearly every farmer has small pieces and corners of [illegible] that has been neglected and [illegible] a temporary stimulant until a convenient season for plowing. In such as these, top-dressing will frequently serve a good purpose. Once the farmer's thought and attention is drawn to this subject, various methods of proceeding, adapted to circumstances, will be subjected for improving many unproductive spots, and thus adding to the yearly returns from the farm.

Next occurs the question, which is the best season of the year for applying the top-dressing? From my own experience I prefer the fall of the year for such applications. If the fertilizer is applied in the spring, the work must be performed early in the season when there is less liability to heavy rains, with their ill-effects of washing especially upon hill-sides. Frequently a large percentage of the fertilizer might be carried away and lost.

With the application of the top-dressing in the fall, the soluble portion will be likely to soak into the ground, making close connection with the grass roots, stimulating them and enabling them to make an early and vigorous start in the spring.

The query may arise, should such an application of fertilizer be early or late in the fall? In my own practice I favor early in the season. It is no disadvantage to grass to feel the invigorating influence of a good fertilizer early in the fall. September is perhaps early enough; October would do in some localities, while November would be too late for such treatment of grass lands. Through the columns of your valuable paper I hope to see the question discussed by my brother farmers, since through the ventilation and comparison of other's experience, we may learn many valuable lessons.—Nathan G. Pierce, in Am. Cultivator.

CARE OF SHEEP.

There are a great many men who are simply negligent. They know enough, and mean to act up to their knowledge, but then they do not do it and so for their own interests the journal which they read, simply gives them a little reminder, not in the spirit of exercising authority, but wholly in the spirit of kindness.—"House those sheep next Winter," says the agricultural paper. "Oh, certainly," replies the reader, "I expected to do that anyhow. Why waste time and space in giving useless advice like that." We presume that no such advice need be given to the class of intelligent men who subscribe for agricultural papers. But we will tell you kind friend, what we have seen, and that may be sufficient grounds for you to excuse us for what we are about to say upon the care of sheep. Some years ago we knew a flock-master who professed to be and was regarded as being a kind hearted man and a good sheep breeder. His sheep always had enough to eat, and their Winter quarters were warm, beautiful and convenient. But in the Fall before it was thought to be time to house the sheep at night, but not before some very chilly rains had fallen, we have seen these poor sheep with their fleeces wet to their hides, standing with a countenance that betokened anything but peaceful "thoughts" or physical comfort. Somewhere we heard a speaker give or have read a beautiful illustration of this sort of treatment of sheep. Said the speaker or writer: "Suppose we should wear all through the dusty Summer, without change, a suit of clothes of fair thickness, and then in the Fall suppose a heavy drenching rain should fall upon us, running through our dirty clothes and carrying the filth down our persons, and then suppose we had to stand in the cool air while this clothing dried, do you think we should escape the contraction of disease?" It was a good illustration and to the point; and the lesson of all this will readily be seen. Sheep need protection from exposure to the inclement weather of the Autumn. Unless this precaution is taken it is altogether likely that your flock will be attacked by catarrh and other diseases, and the wool any one knows will suffer.

In the Autumn, too, the flock should have some grain. As we said in our last issue, sheep should be brought into the Winter in good condition if we expect them to come out of the Winter right, in health and with fleece in a good and perfect condition. Just when grain feeding should be commenced it is impossible to say in any particular case. Judgment must guide in such matters. It does not do, however, to depend upon the appearance of the sheep as an indication of their condition, for sheep will sometimes look to be in capital condition in the Fall when the truth is they are falling off in condition. Perhaps as good a rule as can be laid down is this: If you are uncertain when to begin to feed grain, begin to feed when you know that your flock has not suffered in condition. A few quarts or bushels of feed, will not be missed under ordinary circumstances. Sheep thus taken care of will pay for all the extra care and all the extra grain.—Western Rural.

WATERING HORSES.

There is always something said on this subject when hot weather comes around and we see horses perspiring and covered with foam; and especially when we see them being watered, their mouths sponged and their partaking freely of cold water. Many think that it is the one thing needful the giving a horse all he can drink, when the thermometer ranges at from 120 to 130 deg. in the sun, and by it he will stand anything. Now, as to ourselves, we have never been the advocate of frequent or plentiful watering of severely driven horses in hot weather. All animals will suffer from thirst if deprived of water for an unnatural period, horses especially, in hot weather, when they perspire freely; but it is not to be inferred from this that they need very frequent and liberal supplies of water. On the contrary; they should be watered just enough, and, if frequently, in a very moderate quantity at a time. This will not only meet all the necessities of the animal, but will keep him in a more vigorous condition and better health, and will not render him liable to some of the diseases which frequent and large doses of water and fast driving will often produce. Feeding and watering three times in the twenty-four hours, in proper quantities will preserve a horse in better health and enable him to perform all the labor expected of him than oftener. Besides, it is well-known, whether applied to man or beast, that liberal or excessive watering causes profuse perspiration, and this in time requires continuous drinking to keep up the routine.

The fact is that both man and beast take into their stomachs, as a rule, about twice the quantity of liquids that the system requires; and this is followed by the other fact that the system can be habituated to a reduction to the extent referred to. It may at the outset be some degree of a trial; but it will be only for a little while when it will be discovered, not only how easy it is to adapt ourselves to the change, but how greatly it adds to our comfort, as well as proves to be a convenience, very much to our surprise and vastly to our satisfaction.

There is not the slightest doubt in our mind but that it operates on the horse in the same way.—Germantown Telegraph.

POTATO ROT.

A correspondent of the N. Y. Tribune gives the following information about this disease: "Potato rot appears as a black decaying matter upon the surface of the tubers, which has a disagreeable smell. If the potato is cut into the black appearance, is sometimes seen penetrating in spots or streaks. The cause is fungus growth which just now appears only at the surface, but in time it will penetrate deeper. The best thing to do is to sprinkle the potatoes with air-slaked lime, which destroys the fungus.—This may be done when the crop is gathered. It will prevent the spread, if it cannot restore the injured tubers."

The Laboratory for the manufacture of Electric Bitters is one of Chicago's greatest enterprises, giving employment to a large number of hands. CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED.

This fact has been demonstrated in more than Ten Thousand Cases, by

DR. S. D. HOWE,

The Great Consumption Doctor of New York, formerly of Paris.

Arabian Medicines,

Celebrated throughout the World for their remarkable Cures.

Dr. Howe's Arabian Milk-Cure.
Dr. Howe's Arabian Tonic,
Dr. Howe's Arabian Liver Pills.

The ONLY MEDICINE that EVER BEEN KNOWN to "POSITIVELY" CURE CONSUMPTION.

TESTIMONY

Of the Hon. Jos. E. Gray, Judge of the Superior Court, Chicago, Ill.

CHICAGO, Dec. 14, 1876.

DR. S. D. HOWE,

DEAR SIR.—Permit me to add my grateful testimony to the army of witnesses to the virtue of your justly celebrated Arabian remedies. For a long time my wife was seriously afflicted with hacking cough, oppressed breathing, soreness of the chest, and constant acute pain in the lower portion of the right lung and under the shoulder blade. Her sufferings were intense, and she became extremely nervous and prostrated. Her disease was pronounced consumption by the physicians of Chicago and other cities, whose prescriptions had been taken without benefit. When you visited Chicago in June, 1873, we called on you, having very little hope of deriving help from your treatment. We were inspired with hope by the skillful manner in which your thorough examination was conducted, and the satisfactory explanation with which you closed your diagnosis. My wife determined to take your medicines in accordance with your plan and practical directions. She began to use the Arabian Milk Cure and Arabian Tonic; their beneficial effect at once became manifest—the cough loosened and soon ceased, respiration became easy, the soreness of the chest was relieved and all pain removed; she began to gain in flesh and improve in strength and appearance. I fully believe that your medicines and skillful advice have saved the life of my wife. She unites with me in this grateful tribute to the merit of your remedies.

Very Respectfully yours,
JOSEPH E. GRAY.

TO THE AFFLICTED.

Since the introduction of Kellogg's Columbian Oil it has made more permanent cures and given better satisfaction on Kidney complaints and Rheumatism than any know remedy. Its continued series of wonderful cures in all climates has made it known as a safe and reliable agent to employ against all aches and pains, which are the forerunners of more serious disorders. It acts speedily and surely, always relieving suffering and often saving life. The protection it affords by its timely use on Rheumatism, kidney affection, and all aches and pains, wounds, cramping pains, cholera-morbus, diarrhœa, coughs, colds, catarrh, and disorders among children, makes it an invaluable remedy to be kept always on hand in every home. No person can afford to be without it, and those who have once used it never will. It is absolutely certain in its remedial effects and will always cure when cures are possible. Call at C. A. Wright & Co's. and get a memorandum book giving more full details of the curative properties of this wonderful medicine.

An Honest Medicine Free of Charge.

Of all medicines advertised to cure any affection of the Throat, Chest or Lungs, we know of none we can recommend so highly as Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, Hay Fever, Hoarseness, Tickling in the Throat, loss of voice, etc. This medicine does positively cure, and that where everything else has failed. No medicine can show one-half so many positive and permanent cures as have already been effected by this truly wonderful remedy. For Asthma and Bronchitis it is a perfect specific, curing the worst cases in the shortest time possible. Trial bottles free. Regular size 1.00. For sale by M. Wright & Son, Tecumseh Mich.

Envied Beauty.

What is more handsome than a nice bright, clear complexion, showing the beauties of perfect health? All can enjoy these advantages by using Electric Bitters. Impure blood, and all diseases of the Stomach, Liver, Kidneys and Urinary Organs are speedily cured. For nervousness and attendant ailments, they are a never failing remedy, and positively cure where all others fail. Try the Electric Bitters and be convinced of their wonderful merits. For sale by C. HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN HAIR RENEWER

Has been in constant use by the public for over twenty years, and is the best preparation ever invented for RESTORING GRAY HAIR TO ITS YOUTHFUL COLOR AND LIFE.

It supplies the natural food and color to the hair glands without staining the skin. It will increase and thicken the growth of the hair, prevent its blanching and falling off, and thus AVERT BALDNESS.

It cures Itching, Eruptions and Dandruff. As a HAIR DRESSING it is very desirable, giving the hair a silken softness which all admire. It keeps the head clean, sweet and healthy.

The State Assayer and Chemist of Mass. and leading Physicians endorse and recommend it as a great triumph in medicine.

BUCKINGHAM'S DYE FOR THE WHISKERS

will change the beard to a BROWN or BLACK at discretion. Being in one preparation it is easily applied, and produces a permanent color that will not wash off.

THE READY FAMILY SOAP MAKER:

LEWIS' LYE

98 PER CENT. PURE.
(Patented.)
FINELY POWDERED.
HIGHLY PERFUMED.

The strongest and purest Lye made. Will make 12 pounds of the best Perfumed Hard Soap in 20 minutes without boiling.

The best water-softener made.

The best disinfectant.

The following are some of the advantages obtained by using Lewis' 98 Per Cent. Powdered Lye:

First. It is packed in an iron can with a slip or removable lid, easily taken off and leaving the contents exposed, thereby saving the trouble, annoyance, and danger (from flying particles), as with other Lyes, which, being sold in the cans, must be broken with a hammer to get the Lye out.

Second. It being a fine powder, you can remove the lid and pour out all the contents, being always ready for use.

Third. A teaspoonful or more can be used, as in water-softening, scrubbing, etc., and the lid returned to the can, and thereby save the balance of contents. With other Lyes all must be dissolved at once and used in a short time, or the strength is gone.

Fourth. Absolute purity. Free from all adulterations.

Fifth. The best Soap can be made in from ten to twenty minutes with this Lye.

Sixth. No failure is possible in making Soap with this Lye when the simple directions given are followed.

Seventh. One can of this Powdered Lye is equal to twenty pounds of Sal Soda or Washing Soda.

Eighth. One can of this Lye will saponify one pound more of grease than any other Concentrated Lye, Ball Potash, or Saponifier.

Ninth. This Lye is 98 per cent. stronger than any other Lye or Potash.

Tenth. One, to two teaspoonfuls will soften a tub of the hardest water.

Eleventh. One teaspoonful will thoroughly cleanse Sinks, Drains, or Closets.

Invaluable for killing Roaches, Mice, Rats, etc.

The best article for washing Trees.

MANUFACTURED ONLY BY

AROUND THE COUNTY.

RIDGEWAY.

Social at Waring's Friday evening.

Rev. G. H. Field will occupy the M. E. church pulpit the coming year.

The Christian church building is progressing finely. The brick vaneer is nearly finished and fine.

The paymaster on the Butler road was around Wednesday, and the boys are happy.

Mrs. Samuel Snedecor was buried on Tuesday afternoon. She had been a long sufferer.

On Friday evening, 24th, Hon. E. Willits and Col. Fitzsimmons will speak in this village. Preparations will be made to accommodate everybody who will turn out.

"Gip" and DeWitt Arner are making ready to raise a hickory pole over their way. A Hancock and English banner will adorn the top.

There will be a meeting of Republicans at the old Exchange Hall on Monday evening, 20th, for the purpose of organizing a Garfield club.—This hall has been rented for the season and will be fitted up for political meetings.

The temperance meeting announced for Friday eve., 24th, has been changed to Thursday evening, 23d, to accommodate other important meetings. This meeting is in the interest of the proposed amendment, and will be addressed by Mr. Conley and others.

FRANKLIN.

Our town was startled on Monday by the report that Mrs. Eli Knight had been stricken down by a stroke of paralysis, and fears are entertained that she will not recover, owing to her advanced age.

Mrs. Harvey Doty has also lain in a critical condition for several days with a spinal difficulty, with but slight hopes of her recovery.

We have just learned that Mr. Jas. Morseman, late resident of this township, died in Tecumseh, on Monday, of consumption, after a protracted illness.

Mr. Jerry Tuttle is building an addition to the rear of his store for the better accommodation of his family.

Our farmers are too busy with their seeding and corn cutting to come to the corners and consequently news is remarkably scarce.

Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Langdon's infant daughter died Wednesday morning of cholera infantum.

THE NEW M. E. APPOINTMENTS.

Below we give the appointments of M. E. ministers for the Adrian District. There is no change at Clinton or Franklin. Rev. R. S. Pardington comes to Tecumseh, and Rev. G. H. Field is returned to his old Ridgeway home:

B. F. Cocker, professor in Michigan University and member of Ann Arbor quarterly conference.

How to dispose of your rubbish—that is to say, weeds, brush, old fruit cans, old tin pans, old boxes, old boots and shoes, etc. Throw all such—including rotten vegetables of every kind and description—into the street in front of your beautiful places of business, as well as in front of your beautiful dwellings, and when the streets can contain nothing more, why then throw the residue into our beautiful street gutters and drains. If our proud citizens will but follow the above advice, very much will be added to the fine appearance of this beautiful village.

SUICIDE.

George H. Royer, an Old and Well-known Citizen, Ends his Earthly Troubles.

Our usually quiet villagers were considerably excited about noon on Thursday, the 9th, by the report that Mr George H. Royer, an old and respected resident of the village, had left his home at 8:30 o'clock that morning, to perform an errand down town, and since which time he had not been seen. He had that morning purchased a small quantity of strychnine at the drug store of W. F. Hood & Co., to use, as he said, in killing rats, and it was feared he had done away with himself.

The report spread quickly among them, and soon a large crowd of men and boys were hunting for him. The most reliable proof of his whereabouts was that he was last seen near Cannon & Porter's grist mill, and thither the main search tended. The search was continued all the afternoon and until nine o'clock in the evening, which resulted in the finding of a label inscribed "poison," on the road about sixty rods south of the grist mill, and three or four rods from the river bank. A coat and hat was also seen near the same place, during the forenoon, by several persons who passed over the highway, which were supposed to have been picked up by a tramp who went along that way, and who was afterwards noticed to have a bundle of clothing.

The search was again commenced Friday morning, when boats and grappling hooks were obtained and used to drag the bottom of the river near where the above named articles were seen. At 9:30 A.M. the search was rewarded by the discovery of the dead body of Mr. Royer, at a point about twenty feet from the bank, and just opposite the spot where the poison label was found.

A coroner's jury was impanelled by A. Hood, Justice of the peace, at 10:30 A.M., and the witnesses connected with the case examined.

Mr. Royer was 57 years of age, and had lived in this village about thirty years, where he has always been regarded as an upright and honorable citizen. He leaves a wife and five children—two girls and three boys, all of whom are grown to maturity—to mourn his tragic death, and who in this, their hour of affliction, have the sympathy of the community.—Deerfield Record.

THE STATE FAIR.

The Entries Numerous and Attractive—Arrangements by the Officers Perfect.

The fair opened last Monday at Detroit; the weather was somewhat unfavorable at first but cleared up on the following days. The displays and exhibits are more numerous and attractive this year than usual. Machinery hall is crowded, there being a fine exhibition of engines, force pumps, etc. The hall has been supplied with steam power and shafting so as to give the different machines a fair trial.

The main hall is the center of attraction. The exhibitors have decorated their departments and vied with each other in making their locations the most attractive, so that it is a rich feast for the eyes. The exhibits of this department comprise stoves and like manufactures, also dry goods, jewelry, musical instruments, etc.

The pomological and agricultural displays are as large as this year's harvest has been. Thoroughbred cattle, swine and sheep of the finest breed fill the alloted spaces.

The entries of horses, in some respects, exceed anything made at previous State Fairs. There are twenty-four in the class of thoroughbreds, 80 horses of all work, 146 roadsters, 42 gentlemen's driving horses, 28 draught horses, 36 carriage horses, 30 roadsters and thoroughbreds for special premiums, 72 in the classes of mares and geldings not judged for speed, and 9 in sweepstakes class for stallions.

The society will offer first premiums as follows, the second premiums will be equal in number and the special premiums will also increase the total: First premiums on cattle, 112; horses, 87; sheep, 45; swine, 26; poultry, 72; farm and garden products, 115; dairy and other products, 39; farm implements, 107; vehicles, 21; machinery, 81; manufactured goods, 142; musical instruments, 16; art display, 80; stationery, 16; needlework, 96; miscellaneous entries, 35.

A great many people from Tecumseh and vicinity are in attendance. The Tri-State Fair at Toledo of course draws many from Detroit, but the fair will undoubtedly be as financially successful as the managers hoped for.

HAVE you heard from Maine?

GRAND PUBLIC PROCESSION IN ADRIAN.

On Wednesday, Sept. 22, between the hours of nine and ten o'clock in the forenoon, Forepaugh's Great Show which is to exhibit at Adrian on that day, will make a grand public street procession. It is free to all, it will pay to see it and is worth miles of travel to behold.

Imagine the oriental magnificence and splendor of the pageant. Fifteen harnessed elephants, half a million dollars in sumptuous sun-bright chariots, "beautiful in various dyes, richer than the opening dawn;" living lions loose in the street; 300 peerless, prancing steeds; two great martial bands; 100 tableau cars. The grand march is led by Prof. Russell's Military Orchestra, seated in the jeweled and resplendent classical Car of the Muses, adorned with artistic statuary representations of Clio, Melpomene, Terpsichore, Polyphymnia, Thalia, Urania, Euterpe, Erato, and Calliope, followed by the Commander of the Faithful, accompanied by his Sultania, slaves, jeweled warriors, and a royal retinue of richly robed processionists, droves of black and white camels and the gorgeous Car of India. Next comes the magnificent golden chariot, representing the mystic rites of Brahma, Vishnu and Shiva.

Hirst's Marine Band, seated in the Car of the seasons, drawn by snow white steeds, followed by the superb mechanical master-piece, the 100 horse power electric engine, mounted on wheels and drawn by coal-black horses. In front of it is visible the lightening-producing illuminators, which are daily to be seen in operation beneath the mammoth pavillions. Then finally appear the colossal chariot of Olympus and the musical steam orchestrion. The parade will start from the show grounds between the hours of 9 and 10 A.M., on the morning of Sept. 22.

The grand balloon ascension will take place at its close. Exhibition opens at 1 and 6½ o'clock, and begins one hour later. It is the first and last really great show, that will appear in this county this season.

THE INTER-STATE EXPOSITION OF CHICAGO.

The Eighth Annual Exhibition of this Institution is Announced to Commence September 8th, and Close October 23d, 1880.

The people of the Northwest are fully acquainted with the general character and purpose of this important organization, and it can hardly be necessary to assure our readers that these annual exhibitions present to them the only opportunity, from year to year, of keeping abreast of the world in the progress of industry and art. The simple truth is, that the half million people who regularly attend the Exposition, expect to find there whatever there is new up to date, and the inventors and manufacturers who have produced anything new and important, expect to show it then and there to the people.

For the present year we are assured that returning prosperity to the country has brought forth its fruits in this as in everything else. The pressure for space has been far beyond the capacity of the mammoth structure in which the exhibition is to be held, and the quality of the display in all departments will be very choice.

The management has expended about fifty thousand dollars during the past year in the beautifying and improvement of the building, and has spared neither labor nor expense in preparing for the public a brilliant, attractive and instructive display. All railways give their lowest excursion rates to visitors.

THE MAINE RESULT.

The latest returns from Maine show that Plaisted, fusionist, is elected Governor by a majority of about 1,000, that the Republicans carry three Congressional districts and the Fusionists two, and that the Republicans have a good working majority in the legislature. A comparison of this result with the figures of previous years will show what a remarkable political revolution has taken place in Maine. The following table exhibits the majorities for Governor and President each Presidential year since the organization of the Republican party:

1856. Governor	17,881	1868. Governor	20,402
1856. President	24,774	1868. President	28,630
1860. Governor	15,091	1872. Governor	17,336
1860. President	24,704	1872. President	32,355
1864. Governor	15,946	1876. Governor	15,459
1864. President	17,592	1876. President	16,286

The Republican majority of 15,459 in 1876, has been wiped out. A similar change in New York would give that State to Hancock by 100,000 majority.

GLEANINGS FROM THE COUNTY PRESS.

Deerfield Record: Deerfield isn't represent'd on any of the various county tickets. Can't she make the same plea for public pap that Ridgeway did at the representative convention at Tecumseh?

Adrian Times: A stone, supposed to be an Indian's scalping knife, has been found on the farm of Wm. Silvers, in Clinton. It is about 8 inches long by 6 inches wide, tapers to a point, and has over 30 notches of various sizes cut on the edges.

A woman Haz-lett a strong mind take her away from family cares and spoke to a fair house, Saturday evening at Blissfield. She gave rather an extended review of the political questions of the day, and presented some fine arguments. A large number of ladies were present.

The sheriff and his deputies struck a trail to Blissfield and captured a big time. The Advance says, the sheriff and deputy sheriffs, to the number of fifteen or sixteen, gave a farewell supper to B. H. Wheeler, late of their number, Friday evening. Neighbors say they must have had a jolly old time. At least there was considerable racket made.

Hudson Gazette: Our Charlie took it into his head to attend church on Sunday, with nothing on his head. He walked up and down the long ailes, it is reported, with reverent mien, and finally took a seat with the worshippers. He says he "'set down when the rest did, and when the others 'set' (stood) up he 'set' up too;" and that he walked around back of the pulpit "to hear the band play."—He has been very pious all the week.

Morenci Observer: Some two years since Hiram and Sarah Ann Inman, an aged couple of Dover, Ohio, got up on their ear and parted—got a divorce and divided the house: Hiram taking one side and Sarah Ann the other. But the new order of things proving somewhat irksome, they came to town on Thursday, went into Esquire Randall's grocery and were then and there made one flesh again by that amiable magistrate. It was the maiden effort of our new magistrate in the conjugal knot-tying business.

Hudson Gazette: "Uncle Jo" Robinson, who has only a few square rods to cultivate, has been studying and experimenting to see how far he could make his garden patch go, and he succeeded in raising three substantial crops from it this season. First he planted early rose potatoes; when hilling these he put in a later variety between the rows; when he dug his first crop, he hilled the latter variety, and at the same time planted six-weeks' corn in the first potato rows. On Wednesday he brought us a fine mess of each crop; and we think his ingenuity and success in making mother earth yield a triple crop in one season is worth mentioning.

Hudson Gazette: The Hamtramck school muss has its counterpart, in some respects, in Hudson. One room on the West' side has been closed a part of the week, and might as well have been the whole of the week, for with two pretending teachers attempting to hold the fort, the interests of school children are of course put in abeyance. It seems that Miss Osborn was as regularly and legally hired as any teacher has been, and her name was published in the new school circular as teacher in the second grammar department. She had an examination afterwards, (which on the whole, was pronounced very good), and she was given to understand that it was satisfactory to those making it. An opposition to her was then trumped up (or renewed) on the part of one or more members of the board, and a new teacher hired, although Miss Osborn had been promised another examination. The lady considering herself fairly employed by the board, has been on hand to teach every day so far. Yesterday the village marshal was appealed to to remove her, but didn't choose to mix in the affair; and one sage trustee, we hear, appealed to the village attorney to exercise his authority. Application was also made to Justice Hiller for papers, but that officer didn't seem inclined to act hastily, hoping the difficulty might be amicably adjusted. It is a pretty mess as it is. But then, the people pay their money and make their choice of teachers or school officers; and the children, heaven help them! can get an education the best way they can.

Our readers will do well to notice the advertisement of Hermon W. Ladd XX Cot, in our paper this week. Here is a good bed for a little money, but it is appreciated, as the enormous sales of the past year fully prove.

THE FAMILY CIRCLE.

THE DOCTOR.

Who often called when we were young
And asked to see our little tongue,
While on his lips our mother hung?
The Doctor.

Who came when croup our child did seize,
Or cheap tonic our mother teased,
And gave us many a bitter dose?
The Doctor.

Who humored and kissed and chaunt his ditty,
When none else little dangers spied,
As if he feared we'd soon be dead?
The Doctor.

Who gave us salve and potions, too,
And sent us bottles green and blue,
With dregs of every drafte and brew?
The Doctor.

Who often calls upon us still,
And makes us swallow many a pill,
And wipe a sour lip from his bill?
The Doctor.

Who lives just here in Pollville,
And better than ourselves doth know
What kind of pills can cure our woe?
Our Doctor.

THE LYING WITNESS.

I will now narrate a case showing upon what slight circumstances the verdict of a jury sometimes turns. I cannot now recall the year, and my notes of the case were burned in the great fire of 1871. I think about 1846 my friend Emerson Murray, who then lived at Deer Park, La Salle County, sent for me to come to Ottawa and defend his hired man, who killing a neighbor in a quarrel, had been indicted for murder. A sudden quarrel had arisen, and the prisoner seizing a hickory stake from his sled, had struck the deceased one hard blow on the head, producing death.

I sat down to the trial, supposing I had a clear case of manslaughter, and one free from difficulty, and that the only question would be the extent of the client's imprisonment. There was no controversy about the quarrel and the blow, and that death was the result. These facts having been proved, the prosecution called the officer who had arrested the prisoner. He was a large muscular man, very dark and sinister in his appearance, and as he took the stand I saw him scowl at the prisoner, who was an impulsive passionate Irishman, in a way that startled me. I immediately asked the defendant if he had ever had any difficulty with the witness. "Yes," he replied; "the witness hates me, and has threatened to have me hanged."

After describing the arrest, the witness was asked: "Did you on your way to the county jail, have any conversation with the prisoner in regard to the killing, and if so, state what he said." He replied: "On our way, as we were riding across the prairie, I asked him what made him strike the deceased, and why he struck so hard. Prisoner answered:— him; I'm glad he is dead; I have long had a grudge against him, and I am——glad I have killed him."

"Take the witness" said the state's attorney; in the tone of a man who had made out his case and he had. The witness had supplied the proof to change the killing from manslaughter to murder, and unless I could break down or contradict him my client was lost. By one of those impulses which I cannot explain, but which all of us have often experienced, I felt that the witness had been swearing false. I knew it, but how could I make it manifest to the jury? The terrible confession was made, as the witness said, when he and the prisoner were alone upon the prairie, and therefore there was no possibility of contradiction. "It is a lie, every word of it," whispered the prisoner. I knew it perfectly well, but how to prove it?

I began the cross-examination without a plan; at first putting a few questions quietly, and studying the man whom I had never before seen. After a few unimportant questions, asked to gain time and try and make out what manner of man he was, I led him back to the confession. I asked him if he was sure he had repeated the exact words of the prisoner. He replied, "I have not altered one of them." I saw he was one of those who, if he once swore the horse was sixteen ft. high, would stick to it. I then asked him to repeat the confession, which he did, and, as I expected, with variations. I then called his attention to the fact that some months had passed between the confession and the trial, and then asked him why, if in his direct evidence he had given the identical words, he could not now on the stand repeat them twice in the same way. He thought it necessary to strengthen his statement, and he said: "I wrote down at the time what the prisoner said, so I might not forget it, and I have got the paper yet, and I have read it over to-day, and it is the very words I first stated." I knew that he was lying, I felt it, and I arose and asked him sternly, "where is the paper? Tell me instantly."

"In my pocket," said he.

"Produce it," said I. I knew that he had no such paper. He turned pale; the sweat rolled down his face.

On my repeating my demand for the paper, he refused point blank.

I repeated, "You have sworn you wrote down at the time on paper, the statement of what the prisoner said, that you brought the paper with you to court, have read it over to-day, and that you have it now in your pocket. Is that true?"

"Yes," said he, faltering.

"Then," said I, "will you produce it and let me see it?"

"No," said he, "the paper shall see my private papers."

"Is there anything on the written paper besides the memorandum of what the prisoner said?"

"Yes, on the same paper are private writings which no man shall see."

"Hold the paper in your own hands, then, so that I can see and read only the memorandum." "Have you any objection to that?" said I.

"You shall not see any of it," said he. He was sinking deeper and deeper in the morass.

"Very well," said I.

"Perhaps you will allow the Judge or the jury to see it, if you don't want me to see it?"

"Nobody shall see it," said he.

"This has gone far enough," said I, "You have no such paper and never had, and I now ask the court to make an order that you produce the paper or be committed to jail until you do produce it."

The Judge made the order, and as the hour for dinner had come adjourned. I knew that my client was saved; but not by any skill of mine, but by what I hardly know how to characterize. But I think we old lawyers often see results which indicate that there is something outside ourselves or any known agency, which sometimes leads to the triumph of truth and the protection of the innocent.

On the coming in of the court the witness was forced to acknowledge that he had no such paper, and the State's attorney said: "I will not ask the jury to place any reliance upon this witness."

A verdict of manslaughter and a short imprisonment was the upshot of the trial.—Arnold's Recollections of the Illinois Bar.

AN EDITOR'S DREAM.

The editor fell asleep after a time and lo! he dreamed a dream. And it seemed to him in a vision that having armed himself with certain papers and books, he turned his steps once more toward Heaven and knocked at the gate.

"Hello, is that you again?" said Peter. "What do you wish?"

"Let these persons again come forth," replied the editor, and Peter made them all pass through the gate and stand outside.

They came as before, and uttered the same cries as before.

"Why didn't you notice the big egg I sent you?" yelled the first.

"It was rotten," replied the editor.

"Why didn't you write up my soda fountain?" cried the druggist.

"You had your tickets printed at the other office," calmly replied the local man.

"Why did you write about old Tomlinson's hen and never speak about my new gate?" shouted the third.

"Old Tomlinson paid for his advertising and you didn't. Here's the bill," said the editor.

"Why did you spell my name wrong in the programme?" groaned the local talent.

"Take a look at this manuscript of yours and see for yourself," said the editor with a grim smile.

The rest of the company yelled their complaints in unison, and the editor calmly sorted out a series of bills for unpaid subscriptions and presented each with one, and it was so that when they had received them, they all tore their hair and rushed violently down a steep place into the sea and St. Peter, taking the editor calmly by the hand, led him within the gate and said:

"Come, friend; those chaps managed to slip through here in spite of us, but, thanks to the press, we now know what sort of fellows they are. Come in and stay; we need a few such men as you here."—Schuylerville, N.Y. Standard.

We hear a good deal about "worn out" and "exhausted" land in this country, though scarcely a generation has passed since such land was reclaimed from the forest. This early exhaustion is proof of unwise and therefore unprofitable tillage. With all our science and study of fertilizers we might still learn something from the despised Chinese. Gen. Grant says that he was shown a piece of land in China which has been under cultivation every year for 5,000 years without deterioration of the soil. This result is effected by returning to the soil everything taken from it that is not consumed.

Speaking of the crops in the northwestern part of the Lower Peninsula the Elk Rapids Progress says: We learn from some of the farmers that the spring wheat in this part of the State is almost a total loss, a great many not harvesting it at all, while others who did thresh theirs, where they expected a big yield there were only four or five bushels. It is tho't that the very warm weather we had the 1st of July injured the wheat, and we believe that the fly committed some depredations.

BUSINESS LAW.

If a note is lost or stolen, it does not release the maker; he must pay it if the consideration for which it was given and the amount can be proven.

Notes bear interest only when so stated.

Principals are responsible for the acts of their agents.

Each individual in a partnership is responsible for the whole amount of the debts of the firm, except in cases of "special partnership."

Ignorance of law excuses no one.

The law requires men to do the possible.

An agreement without consideration is void.

A note made on Sunday is void.

Contracts made on Sunday cannot be enforced.

A note made by a minor is voidable.

A contract made with a minor is void.

A contract made with a lunatic is void.

A note obtained by fraud, or from a person in a state of intoxication, cannot be collected.

It is a crime to conceal a fraud.

Signatures made with a lead pencil are good in law.

A receipt for money is not always conclusive.

The act of one partner binds all the rest.

"Value received" is usually written in a note, and should be, but is not necessary. If not written it is presumed by the law, or may be supplied by proof.

The maker of an "accommodation" bill or note (one for which he has received no consideration, having lent his name or credit for the accommodation of the holder) is not bound to the person accommodated, but is bound to all other parties, precisely as if there was a good consideration.

No consideration is sufficient in law which is illegal in its nature.

THE GREATEST MEDICAL DISCOVERY OF THE AGE.

Kellogg's Columbian Oil is a powerful remedy, which can be taken internally as well as externally by the tenderest infant. It cures almost instantly, is pleasant, acting directly upon the nervous system, causing a sudden buoyancy of the mind. In short the wonderful effects of this most wonderful remedy cannot be explained in written language. A single dose inhaled and taken according to directions will convince any one that it is all that is claimed for it. Warranted to cure the following diseases: Rheumatism or Kidney Disease in any form, Headache, Toothache, Neuralgia, Sprains, Bruises, Flesh Wounds, Bunions, Burns, Corns, Spinal Affection, Colic, Cramping Pains, Cholera Morbus, Flux, Diarrhoea, Coughs, Colds, Bronchial affection, Catarrh, and all aches and pains, external and internal. Full directions with each bottle. For sale by C. A. Wright & Co., Tecumseh.

A CAT PUZZLE.

"John take this slate, you rascal, and work out this sum. If a cat falls into a well sixty feet deep, and crawls out six feet each day, falling back eight feet every night, how much time would the cat require to get out of the well?"

John set to ciphering, and covered both sides of his slate with figures; then placing one edge of the slate on his knees, and resting his chin on the other, he gazed into vacancy.

"Well, John, how about the cat?"

"Father, I ain't got any more room on the slate, but if I had another square, I'd have that cat in h—l in three minutes."

THE LION MALARIA AND LIVER PAD. With Body and Foot Plasters, will cure Malaria, Chills and Fever, Intermittent, Remittent and Typhoid Fevers, absolutely, without the use of internal medicine. The whole combined remedy for one dollar. For sale by Druggists.

"Your visits remind me of the growth of a successful newspaper," said Uncle Jabez, leaning his chin on his cane and glancing on William Henry, who was sweet on Angelica.

"Why so?" inquired William Henry.

"Well, they commenced as a weekly, grew to be a tri-weekly, and have now become daily, with a Sunday supplement."

"Yes," said William Henry, bracing up, "and after we are married we will issue an extra——"

"Sh-h," said Angelica, and then they went out for a stroll.

Given Up by the Doctors.

Where doctors have failed to cure, and have given their patients up to die, Electric Bitters have often been used, and a cure effected, greatly to the astonishment of all. Diseases of the Stomach, Liver, Kidneys and Urinary Organs are positively cured by Electric Bitters. They invariably cure Constipation, Headache and all Bilious Attacks. Try them and be convinced that they are the best medicine ever used. Sold by C.A. Wright & Co., at fifty cents a bottle.

Prefer loss before unjust gain, for that brings grief but once, and this forever.

The Great Healer of all Inflamed Injuries and Disorders.

It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the unparalleled demand with which it meets, stamps it at once as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.

The most incredulous are convinced, and the most skeptical are compelled to believe in the power of this great remedy.

WHAT IT CURES.

ALL SORES, CUTS, BRUISES, SPRAINS, BURNS, SORE THROAT, LAMENESS, RHEUMATISM, PILES, INFLAMMATION of LUNGS and BOWELS, BRONCHITIS, CROUP, SALT RHEUM, CHILBLAINS, AFFECTIONS of the SPINE, ERYSIPELAS, NERVOUS IRRITATION, and all disorders attendant with INFLAMMATION.

It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is gained over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame; every bone, muscle, vein, nerve, and ligament is searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it copes readily with internal as well as external diseases.

Over 40 Years

This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such that as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates of cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should feel perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlets around each bottle.

Price 25 and 50 cents per bottle. Sold by all dealers in medicine.

EFFECTS OF PERFUME ON HEALTH.

We learn that an Italian professor has recently made some very agreeable medicinal researches resulting in the discovery that vegetable perfumes exercises a positively healthful influence on the atmosphere, converting its oxygen into ozone, and thus increasing its oxidizing influence. The essences found to develop the largest quantity of ozone are those of cherry, laurel, clover, lavender, mint, juniper, lemon, fennel and bergamot; those that give it in smaller quantity are anise, nutmeg and thyme. The flowers of the narcissus, hyacinth, mignonette, heliotrope and lily of the valley develop ozone in closed vessels. Flowers destitute of perfume do not develop it, and those which have but slight perfume develop it in small quantities. Reasoning from these facts, the professor recommends the cultivation of flowers in marshy districts and in all places infected with animal emanations on account of the powerful oxidizing influence of ozone.

TO THE AFFLICTED.

Since the introduction of Kellogg's Columbian Oil it has made more permanent cures and given better satisfaction on Kidney complaints and Rheumatism than any know remedy. Its continued series of wonderful cures in all climates has made it known as a safe and reliable agent to employ against all aches and pains, which are the forerunners of more serious disorders. It acts speedily and surely, always relieving suffering and often saving life. The protection it affords by its timely use on Rheumatism, kidney affection, and all aches and pains, wounds, cramping pains, cholera morbus, diarrhœa, coughs, colds, catarrh, and disorders among children, makes it an invaluable remedy to be kept always on hand in every home. No person can afford to be without it, and those who have once used it never will. It is absolutely certain in its remedial effects and will always cure when cures are possible. Call at C. A. Wright & Co's. and get a memorandum book giving more full details of the curative properties of this wonderful medicine.

"Any other member of your family lying down?"

"Well, if my brother-in-law was here I expect he would be lying down in the court-house. He is a lawyer, unless he has reformed recently.

Greatest Remedy Known.

Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumptive is certainly the greatest medical remedy ever placed within the reach of suffering humanity.—Thousands of once hopeless sufferers, now loudly proclaim their praise for this Discovery to which they owe their lives. Not only does it positively cure Consumption, but Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, Hay Fever, Hoarseness and all affections of the Throat, Chest and Lungs yield at once to its wonderful curative powers as if by magic. We do not ask you to buy a large bottle until you know what you are getting. We therefore earnestly request you to call on your druggists, M. Wright & Son, and get a trial bottle free of cost which will convince the most skeptical of its wonderful merits, and show you what a regular one dollar size bottle will do. For sale by M. Wright & Son, Tecumseh.

Envied Beauty.

What is more handsome than a nice bright, clear complexion, showing the beauties of perfect health? All can enjoy these advantages by using Electric Bitters. Impure blood, and all diseases of the Stomach, Liver, Kidneys and Urinary Organs are speedily cured. For nervousness and attendant ailments, they are a never failing remedy, and positively cure where all others fail. Try the Electric Bitters and be convinced of their wonderful merits. For sale by C. A. Wright & Co. at fifty cents a bottle.

Chicago Ahead.

All the world now looks up to Chicago as the great western metropolis of America, being far ahead of all competing cities; but none the less so, in its line, is Electric Bitters. From their real intrinsic value they have advanced to the front, and are now far ahead of all other remedies, positively curing where everything else fails. To try them is to be convinced. For sale by C. A. Wright & Co. at fifty cents per bottle.

Better Times.

The Democrat, New Orleans, La., says: "Suffering among such as have been troubled with diseases of kidneys and liver, has been perceptibly better since the introduction among us of Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure.

LEWIS' CONDENSED BAKING POWDER

STRICTLY PURE!

We will give $1000.00 for any Alum or other adulteration found in this POWDER.

Indorsed by the Brooklyn Board of Health, and by the best chemists in the United States.

It is STRONGER than any Yeast Powder in the world.

It NEVER FAILS to make light bread when used as directed.

It is COMMENDED by every housekeeper who has given it a fair trial.

It is an entirely NEW INVENTION, without any of the bad qualities of soda or saleratus, yeast or other baking powders.

It has in itself a tendency to sustain and nourish the system.

Good food makes good health; and health is improved or impaired in proportion as the food we eat is nutritious or otherwise.

LEWIS' BAKING POWDER always makes good food.

One can of this is worth two of any other baking compound.

It makes bread whiter and richer.

More than half the complaints of bad flour, arise from the use of common baking powders, which often make the best of flour turn out dark bread.

The most delicate persons can eat food prepared with it without injury.

Nearly every other baking powder is adulterated and is absolutely injurious.

This is made from Refined Grape Cream of Tartar, and is PERFECTLY PURE.

It makes the BEST, lightest, and most nutritious

BREAD, BISCUIT, CAKE, CRULLERS, BUCKWHEAT, INDIAN, AND FLANNEL CAKES.

A single trial will prove the superiority of this Powder.

Chambers' Encyclopædia.

15 Vols. Over 13,000 Pages. Price During July, $6.25.

Among the wonderful things which have been accomplished for lovers of good books by the "Literary Revolution," perhaps the most wonderful is the reproduction of this great Encyclopædia at a merely nominal cost.

It is a verbatim reprint of the last English edition, in 15 beautiful volumes, clear nonpareil type, handsomely bound in cloth, for $7.50; the same printed on finer, heavier paper, wide margins, and bound in half Russia, gilt top, price $15.00. The first ten volumes are ready for delivery. Vol. 11 will be ready July 10. The remaining volumes will be completed by October next.

$6.25. An Amazing Offer. $6,25.

The more widely and rapidly these volumes are scattered, the greater is their influence in inducing other purchasers of this and our many standard publications. Accordingly we give special terms to early subscribers.

To all, whose orders and money are received during the month of July, we will supply the 15 volumes in cloth, for $6.25, and in half Russia, gilt top, for $12.50. To any one sending from any place where we have no special agent (usually the leading bookseller of the town), a club of five orders, we will allow a commission of 10 per cent. The volumes ordered will be sent at once by express, and the remaining volumes when completed.

A specimen volume in cloth will be sent, postpaid, for 50 cents, or in half Russia, gilt top, for $1.00, and may be returned at once, if not satisfactory.

The "CHAMBERS'S ENCYCLOPÆDIA" comprises the first 15 volumes of our "Library of Universal Knowledge," and the remaining volumes, complete in themselves, will be sold separately when published.

WILLIAM H. CORBET.

Nominated by the Democrats of the 2nd District of this County for State Representative.

The Democrats from the various townships of this district of this county assembled at Tecumseh, about noon yesterday, and after dinner proceeded to Armory Hall to attend a convention.

Upon assembling, Wm. L. Wooster called the meeting to order, and announced Julius Robinson of Blissfield as chairman, and Wm. A. Weaver was chosen secretary.

Upon motion, the chair appointed the following committee on credentials: J. W. Brooks, Clinton; E. L. Holmes, Blissfield; J. L. Swan, Tecumseh.

The committee, soon entitled the following persons to seats in the convention:

Tecumseh—Oliver Adams, Wesley Kerr, E. C. Stacy, W. L. Wooster, Jerome Bower, V. V. Codrington.

Seneca—John Adams, Henry Wiley, Lodi Robinson, J. E. Dennis, E. C. Manser, J. Brooks.

Raisin—E. Hodges, Jas. Sanders, Wm. Jones, L. Ford, Chas. Everett.

Ridge—Wm. Gerow, Hiram Robinson, Oliver E. Irons, John Schneider, Wm. Wagner.

Ridgeway—E. L. Lowe, E. J. Van Vleet, Samuel Bingham, Wm. H. Green, Jay Smith, Henry Eaton.

Clinton—J. S. Clark, J. W. Brooks, J. V. Miller, J. C. Kurtzmiler, Wm. C. Rogers, N. Gritendon.

Blissfield—W. H. Kerr, Wm. Gerow, Wm. J. Bartlett, E. E. Robinson, Lewis Westfall, John Beam.

Macon—M. J. Martin, J. C. Miller, J. Henderson, Alex. Robinson, L. Sagood.

Wm. L. Wooster moved that each town appoint a man to form a district committee. Upon vote, motion was followed, persons were appointed as members of the committee.

L. C. Van Vleet, Ridgeway; Robt. Boyle, Raisin; E. E. Dennis, Palmyra; M. J. Martin, Macon; W. H. Kerr, Blissfield; W. R. Forster, Tecumseh; Wm. C. Rogers, Clinton; H. Robins, Ridge; Jas. Sanders, Lodi; Henry Manning, Deerfield.

E. E. Dennis was afterwards appointed chairman of the committee.

H. Robins of Ridge then presented the name of Wm. H. Corbet, of Blissfield, for Democratic nominee for representative.

Wm. L. Wooster, with a neat little speech, seconded the nomination.

Thereupon Mr. Corbet was unanimously nominated by acclamation.

E. C. Stacy was then called out for a speech, which responded with a few words.

The nominee, Mr. Corbet, was born in 1839, in N. Y. State, removing to Michigan with his parents when a child. In 1856, upon the death of his mother, he went to live with W. A. Power, of Macon. Both in attendance at school until 18, when he commenced the idea to become a railroad engineer. In accordance with this idea he obtained a position as fireman upon the Michigan Southern road. Two years afterwards found him an engineer, running the old engine "Vigilant," the first engine that ran on the L. S. road. He followed this occupation until 1861, when he purchased the Jared Pratt farm a few miles west of Blissfield. He tilled this farm until 1866, when he sold out and bought the Elias Dewey farm, about two miles north east of Blissfield, where he now resides.

Mr. Corbet has been a very successful farmer, and has won the esteem of all who have chanced to meet him. From time to time he has held different offices of trust and filled the obligations in a becoming manner.

In 1878 he was nominated for the same office as he was yesterday. He ran against Hon. A. D. Hall, the Republican candidate, and Frank Fairbrook, the Greenback candidate. In that election Hall received 1,500 votes, Corbet, 1,165, and Fairbrook 665. This gave the opposition 338 majority.—Thus, there being no national ticket in the field, it seems that if the policy of Maine was carried out in this district, Mr. Corbet would be the next representative. Mr. Corbet will make a strong run ahead of his ticket in Blissfield and will also command which ever railroad influence there is in this district.

THE MAINE ELECTION.

Comments of the Leading Newspapers Thereon.

New York press comments:

The Herald (Ind.) says: The Republicans of Maine seem to have redeemed without their head. In spite of all their efforts and advantage, the Republicans have either lost Maine or have come so near losing it as to make their recent boast ridiculous.

The Tribune (Rep.) says: The result in Maine will somewhat disappoint the Republicans. Where they hoped for a small majority, the vote is so close as to leave the State in doubt. It is well enough to remember however that the fight began with odds against the Republicans. The Republican party began growing too confident of late, and has been enjoying its vantage in advance.

The Times (Rep.) says: The contest between the Democrats and Greenbackers in Maine has achieved a success which will surprise even the friends in other States. So far as the influence of the result of the election on the popular feeling is concerned, it is plain that it would have been much less had not the Republican managers went out such confident predictions of decided victory. At the present writing Reed is reported defeated, while Ladd and March are reported elected. Happily Frye has beaten Fogg, but two Greenbackers are returned and one Democrat is elected in place of a Republican. The net result is not flattering.

The World (Dem.) says: As the Republican organs have agreed to treat the result in Maine as decisive of the hopes of their party in the Presidential campaign, the work done yesterday

THE PEOPLE DEMAND A CHANGE.

We believe that a large majority of the people of the United States desire a change of parties in the national administration. There is ample evidence in our correspondence from all sections of the country, that the large class of citizens who are not attached to either party, look upon such a change as essential to our national prosperity, and beyond this, and of still greater political significance, not a few of the more thoughtful members of the present dominant party are more or less openly expressing their content with the signs that indicate the coming revolution. The latter class have been trying for years to effect reform within their own organization. They have seen its worst elements in control, not only of party measures, but of public affairs. Political rewards have been given to the notoriously corrupt and incompetent for unscrupulous devotion to the leaders who thus maintained their supremacy. The solid sense and sound judgment of the best men of the party have gone for naught when weighed against politic devices and trickery. Disparaging of a sound administration without the overthrow of those who have used the Republican for their own selfish gain, the men who should be at the front in this organization are ready to accept the change as the only means of effecting the desired result.

With the non-partisan public the feeling is one of intense desire for a restoration of that peace and unity between the several sections of the country, and especially between the Northern and Southern States, which is essential to our prosperity, but which it seems impossible to obtain under the present ruling organization. The middle men of all parties in all sections are eager for it; but the unscrupulous politicians, who use sectional bugbears so long as afraid that the hold of power will be lost the moment the rallying war cry dies away on the public ear.

The party machine has broken in the nomination made at Cincinnati. The people took the matter into their own hands and nominated Hancock in despite of the leaders and their ready-made slate.

It is this fact upon which we build our hopes of ultimate success in the campaign. The people are not only far in advance of their leaders, but are filled with that enthusiasm which alone can command success by pursuing the methods that deserve it.—N. Y. Journal of Commerce.

Franklin, Oct. 4th, Geo. Willard.

A Card.

To the many kind friends and neighbors who so faithfully cared for, and ministered to the wants of our deceased wife and mother during her last illness, we respectfully tender our sincere thanks. We assure them that the attention shown to her and the sympathy extended to us will ever be held in grateful remembrance.

SAMUEL SNEDECOR,
COURTLAND SNEDECOR,
EDWARD SNEDECOR,
C. H. SNEDECOR,

The following, clipped from the Sedalia, Mo. Democrat's description of the fair held in that city during last week, pays tribute to former Tecumseh musical talent:

The attractiveness and symmetrical arrangements of Mr. Truxel's musical department, and the fine music produced from his instruments was indeed charming, and with the skillful performers and cultivated singers, Misses Allie King and Mable Van Camp charmed the hundreds of spectators and held them spell bound during the day. He had also the Messrs Snyder Brothers, of Denver, Colorado, who rendered the most beautiful music from the violin and piano. In the afternoon Mr. Fred VanCamp, assisted by the Snyder Brothers, drew hundreds of spectators to Floral Hall.

CANDIDATE FOR WEST POINT.

At the competitive examination for the cadetship for this district there were nine applicants. Two of them, Harry H. Snell and Jno. B. Whelan, being from Tecumseh. Among the judges was Col. Fitzsimmons of this place. The successful applicant was Charles Muir, of Erie, Monroe Co. He is a farmer's son who never attended any school but a country district school, but it was evident from his answers that he had made good use of his winter evenings.

The alternate candidate, J. Emmet Robinson, of Sharon, son of Hon. John J. Robinson, obtained the same percentage as Muir in the literary examination, but owing to a defect in the form of one of his toes he gave way to Muir who was perfect in his physique.

Politically the nine candidates were with one exception Democrats. But, owing undoubtedly to some bull-dozing, the odd Republican couldn't give a free expression to his mind and lost the appointment.

THE finest piece of new furniture we have been allowed to look at in some time is the new dressing case in Dave Macham's barber shop. It is made for three chairs, and in all makes for Dave the neatest barber shop in Lenawee county.

"More food and less medicine, more of nourishment and strength, less of the debilitating influence of drugs is what our feeble and exhausted constitutions require," said Baron Liebig, when he perfected the composition of the "Malt Bitters."

A Kansas City reporter records the fact that the defeated candidate "took his way to the train, wrapped in gloom and new store clothes. The gloom was an elegant fit, but the store clothes were to short in the legs and very baggy about the shoulders."

LAVERN WHEELER is at work upon a few portrait paintings which will soon be completed. He has three large sized portraits, one each of Miss Francina Adams, Mrs. A. B. Cotton, and the late Deacon Isaac Adams, and two smaller ones of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Eccles. The parties for whom he is doing the work are much pleased with them.

THE work on the Christian church, just below Ridgeway, is nearly completed. The brick work which has been done by F. E. Pocklington, will be completed in about a week, and the carpenter work done by Whittier and Burrill, will be completed in about three weeks. It is a very neat, building, or will be when finished, and the work in all branches has been well done.

THE G. and A. Club of this place met at the office of Dr. R. B. House last Friday evening and elected the following officers:

Cor. Sec.—W. C. Fitzsimmons.
Treasurer—L. P. Tribou.
Delegate to National Convention of clubs at Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 15.—Willis Merritt.

The meeting also made arrangements to carry on the campaign in an effective manner.

THE COUNTY FAIR.

Mr. W. T. Lawrence is putting Lawrence Park in fine condition for the coming county fair. The Times, in commenting upon the prospects, says:

The preparations at Lawrence park for the approaching county fair are progressing rapidly, and are of such a character as will place every well-wisher of the agricultural society under obligations to the enterprising proprietor. A force of thirty men are busily employed putting up buildings, repairing sheds and stalls, and enlarging the track and grounds. Mr. Lawrence is pushing improvements with vigor, and the society is not idle. The agricultural society has had many difficulties to surmount, and the unhappy culmination of the exhibition a year ago seemed almost insurmountable, but the outlook to-day is full of promise. Evidences are not wanting that the coming fair will be a grand success. Mr. Lawrence has the pluck to rebuild, the society has the faith to offer again a liberal premium list, and we are much mistaken if the farmers of Lenawee county do not heartily respond.

THE GROUNDS

could hardly be more conveniently located. There is probably no other fair ground in the state so easily accessible or better adapted for agricultural exhibitions. The property originally consisted of twelve acres, but about thirteen acres have been added by purchase and otherwise. Mr. Lawrence has expended nearly $8,000 in driving piles and filling in with earth, and estimates the grounds to be fully 25 acres.

SOMETHING ABOUT MINNESOTA.

Minneapolis, Sept. 11th, 1880.

EDITOR HERALD:

We have felt very much lost without the HERALD, as it has failed to reach us the past month. We do not get the amount of news from the pens of our friends that your paper gives us when we receive it. When we get where it is waiting for us we will have a grand time in perusing its columns.

Our stay in Northfield, Minn., was more than pleasant, we being received by warm hearts and kind friends; much pains being taken to show us their beautiful town and surrounding country. Northfield numbers over 3,000 inhabitants; is well located and is surrounded by good farming lands. School privileges are very superior.—Wheat is grown very extensively, but farmers are seeing the necessity of a change in crops, and are seeding down, cutting more hay and adding to their stock.

On the 4th we came to Minneapolis, which has a population of 50,000. I think no one ever visited it but called it the most beautiful city of the West. The soil a sandy loam, a very little rolling, with the best water power known. It is a great sight to visit the mills and different manufactories.—One flouring mill now being built, when completed will have a capacity of 3000 barrels daily.

No place more interesting than the saw mills. The perfect order and manner of handling the logs. After taking them from the water, in very brief time they will be moving in all directions, made into wood, lath, shingle and all kinds of lumber, from the poorest to the best grade.

Although the town has made the most rapid growth of any city in the north-west for the last ten years, still its growth seems not to slacken, and must ever be the leading one.

I am as well pleased with Minnesota as any State I have visited; the soil is very strong and adapted to all kinds of produce and fruits, with few exceptions. Apples are raised to a limited extent, but doing better every year.—Peaches are not a success as yet, but grapes and other small fruits do well. It is colder at times than in Michigan, but very steady and dry air, which does not penetrate as one might think. Farmers are buoyant this year, after securing a good wheat crop with fair prices. I desire to see the Northern part of the State, and may then have something new to relate.

CYRUS W. WELLS.

UNIVERSALIST STATE CONVENTION.

The State Convention Universalists, held at Hillsdale, Sept. 7, 8 and 9, was very largely attended and was, on the whole, a very great success, reflecting great credit upon the managers having charge of the same. Everything passed off smoothly and harmoniously and all were well entertained by members of the Parish.

A very fine brick church edifice has been recently erected at a cost of $8000 and is a model of neatness, showing what can be done by a small society, if they only work and work harmoniously together, and for a common purpose for good.

A large number of the ministers of the State were in attendance, and delegates represented the Parishes at Hillsdale, Lansing, Portland, Farmington, Rochester, Benton Harbor, Liberty, Marshall, Concord, Detroit, Grand Rapids and Tecumseh.

The two Parishes at Detroit and Mooreville were admitted to fellowship, and N. R. Quackenbush, of Benton Harbor was ordained.

A good program was prepared by the committee and was carried out fully in nearly all its parts; the exception being caused by the absence of Rev. A. Crum, of Bay City. A large amount of business was transacted, some of it promising good results, especially the work relating to missionary work, which was conceded by all to be a great need of the cause in this State.

From the Port Chester, N. Y. Journal, of Sept. 2d, we clip the following:

DIED, at Darien, Conn., Aug. 27, Rena Mather, in the 97th year of her age. Miss M. died in the house in which she was born, and from which she has never been absent except for short visits. She was a daughter of Deacon Jos. Mather and grand daughter of Rev. Moses Mather, who preached in the church in Darien, (formerly Middlesex,) 64 years, it being his only parish. Both Moses, and his son Joseph, are notably mentioned in the History of Connecticut for their sufferings and privations during the war of the revolution.

The deceased, Miss Rana Mather, was an aunt of Wm. H. Mather, of this village. Mr. Mather visited the old homestead four years ago where Miss Rana had lived for over 96 years.

LAST Friday Alex. Parks was driving home from Franklin with an immense load of straw, and while trotting along at an easy gait in front of Ab. Wilson's, the left forewheel ran off the axletree, and before one could say "Jack Robinson" that load of straw flopped right square bottom-side up, as slick as a slap-jack on a December morning. Fortunately no one was hurt, but it took Alex. the better part of the next day to get his straw home in installments.

THE FAR WEST.

OSCEOLA, Iowa Sept. 6, 1880.

EDITOR HERALD:

Perhaps something in regard to the western country will be interesting to your readers. We left Tecumseh Aug. 24, one of those very warm dusty days characteristic of the month of August. We arrived at Chicago at 4:45 P.M., looking like it subjects for some minstrel troupe from the result of the coal smoke. At 9:30 P.M. we left Chicago, crossing the bridge at Burlington, said to be five-eighths of a mile in length. We found the Mississippi to be a very fine looking river, but not a comparison to our Detroit for beauty. After partaking of a good hearty breakfast at Burlington we left for Osceola, reaching that place at 2 P.M. on Wednesday. Through Illinois the prairie country is very level, while in Iowa it is very rolling, more so than any you find in Michigan. The corn all along the line through Iowa is rather better than in Michigan, the best they have had for years. The farms at the present time resemble those at the east, as the laboring classes are becoming more industrious, and are taking more pride than they have for years past. The country being largely destitute of timber, groves have been set out, which gives it an eastern appearance. The population of Osceola is estimated to be about 3,000 inhabitants, and is situated about 130 miles east of Omaha, on the main line of the C. B. & Q. railroad. The business done on this line is perhaps larger than on any other through this section. The average number of trains every twenty-four hours at the present season is twenty-four, six being passenger trains. The business portion of Osceola, as most of the county seats, is arranged around a square consisting of about five acres. This square is designed for a court house, yet the people here find as much difficulty in getting one as they do at Adrian.

D. R. Raymond, of the firm of Raymond & Co., machinists at Tecumseh, is doing a thriving business in the flouring mill, it being the only one in the place. There being but few mills in this section the amount of custom work is very great. It has been nothing uncommon for people to come from a distance of twenty miles about here to get work of this kind done and camp out three or four days before going back. They are usually from 300 to 1,000 bushels behind in this mill most of the time. They have a public school here consisting of ten departments and about 500 pupils. The people generally are alive to their educational interests. They are preparing to build a new branch building costing from thirteen to fifteen thousand dollars, the present buildings being inadequate for the accommodation of the pupils. The Clark county institute is in session at the present time, having an enrollment of 110 teachers.

GALA DAY AT ADRIAN.

On Wednesday, Sept. 22, the great Forepaugh show, which for almost a quarter of a century has been acknowledged to be the most magnificent menagerie, museum and circus combination in this country, is to exhibit afternoon and evening at Adrian. Note a few of its special features, which will surely be exhibited, and which have never been previously seen in this country: Fifteen performing elephants—a sight in itself worth going a hundred miles to see. A human being shot from a monster cannon. This seeming incredible act is actually performed. Fifteen hundred rare animals and birds in the great menagerie, including the wonderful hippopotamus, rhinoceros, sea lions, and hundreds of equally rare animals. Trained lions, tigers, giraffes working in harness, and performing dogs, goats, monkeys, mules, horses and other animals. A great circus in two separate rings, with one hundred distinguished performers. Horses riding through fire. Zuila crossing the high wire, sixty ft. in mid air, blindfolded and with feet in sacks, and riding a velocipede across the slender wire. The wonderful electric light, which illuminates all the tents, and is to be seen afternoons as well as evenings. Grand balloon ascension from the ground. The wonderful nursing baby elephant. Fifty trained Arabian horses, and a long list of similar rare and wonderful features not to be seen in any other show and only in Forepaugh's, and any single one of which is worth all that is required to visit the entire exhibition. The grand gorgeous street parade will take place between the hours of 9 and 10 o'clock on the forenoon of exhibition day. Reduced rates and excursion trains will be arranged for from all parts of the county. Hurrah for Forepaugh, king of showmen!

THE FARMERS' PAGE.

NORTHERN LENAWEE FARMERS' CLUB

(This Club will hold its meetings regularly on each alternate Saturday of each month, at the Reform Club Hall in Tecumseh, at 2 o'clock P. M. until further notice. All are heartily welcomed and cordially invited to attend. Communications thankfully received. Correspondence solicited from other clubs, especially where co-operative action can accomplish desirable results. All letters should be addressed to E. L. Russell, Sec., Tecumseh, Mich.)

SATURDAY, Sept. 11, 1880.

Every season in the year, and every day in the season, brings its work for the farmer. They find very few leisure moments, and but little time for recreation. They have "seed time and harvest" promised them, but they are well aware that they shall not reap unless they sow. Still, right in the busiest part of wheat seeding, a small numbers of farmers found their way to the hall and voted that the Club should continue to exist, at least for one more trial.

The few who attended did not come as a matter of curiosity, or for the purpose of whiling away a few leisure moments, for want of a more interesting place to spend their time, but as a matter of business. They left their farms amidst the pressure of work, and some even coming on foot, that their teams might be spared for service in the field while they attended to matters intimately connected with their vocations. If the mass of farmers surrounding our village would look upon this subject in the same light, and resolve that they would spend one-half day each fortnight in discussing matters of interest and importance to themselves as a class, then our Club would prosper and prove a source of great satisfaction and mutual benefit to farmers.

Some time was spent in discussing the benefits to be derived from, and the importance of sustaining a farmers' club.

Mr. Baxter asked advice in regard to cutting up corn upon the prairie, the corn being green, but the indications of frost being strong.

President Benedict advised him to let it remain until the frost did come, as two weeks of good warm weather would do much toward ripening it, if he would trust it to providence a little longer.

Mr. Baxter thought that providence performed her share of the work perfectly, and done much for us in her regular course, but he had rather tend to cutting up his own corn.

Some members remarked that corn cut green and put up in small shocks would cure and harden although it would be shrunken, while frosted corn would never harden, and it was a question to know just how long to leave it.

A communication was received from Mr. Cyrus Wells, a highly prized member of the Club, dated at Grinnell, Iowa. He sent the Club some catalogues of a barbed wire fence which was being more generally used there than any other kind of fence; also a sample of rye which was claimed to have been grown from pure seed wheat obtained from Michigan. He wished those who doubted the "wheat turning into cheese" theory to explain away the mystery.

One year ago the Club received eight different kinds of seed wheat from the Missouri Agricultural College.—The wheat was distributed as follows: President Benedict took charge of four quarts of Tappahannock, Mr. A. Richard of four quarts of White Rogers and two quarts of one variety of Russian, Mr. Orin Finch of four quarts of Landcaster, Mr. F. Rector of four quarts of Russian No. 2, and E. L. Russell, of four quarts of Deihl, four of Russian No. 8, and two of Russian No. 5.

Mr. Richard was not present to report upon the result of his. Mr. O. Finch was absent from home when the wheat arrived, which was late in the season, and consequently did not sow his portion.

Mr. Rector cultivated his in on corn stubble the very last of September or first of October. It being situated favorably for all kinds of stock to tresspass upon whenever they escaped from their enclosures; a horse and colt pasturing upon it all winter. He presented a specimen of very plump white wheat, of which he said he saved four bushels, machine measure. The straw short, and ripening one week earlier than his Clawson.

Mr. Benedict reported his cultivated in upon 20 rods, or ¼ of an acre, the 25th of September; ripening early and yielding over six and one half bushels of very nice, plump wheat.

Mr. Russell reported four quarts of Deihl, and four quarts Russian No. 8, drilled in upon 20 rods of ground each, and two quarts of Russian No. 5, drilled in upon 10 rods of ground. All sown the 25th of September. The Russian No. 5, ripened fifteen days later than his Fultz, and yielded three bushels of very badly shrunken red wheat. It is a club head and short straw. Russian No. 8 ripened ten days later than his Fultz; straw tall, soft and bright, and yielded over five and one half bushels of white wheat, considerably shrunken. The Deihl had nothing common about it to our Deihl; ripened ten days earlier than the Fultz, and yielded a little over six and one half bushels of very plump and nice red wheat.

They all express themselves well pleased with the results, and will carefully sow all the seed they have again this fall, unless it is two kinds of late Russian.

As most of the members were absent who were to take part in the program, it was again laid over for the next meeting. Those members will accordingly please take notice and be on hand.

On motion the meeting adjourned for two weeks or to September 25th, at 2 o'clock, P. M.

DAIRY CATTLE.

We presume that few have ever thought how much money is annually lost in dairies through sheer stubbornness, as manifested in a settled determination to keep a certain breed of cows, or individual cows, because the dairyman has become attached to them. It is presumed that most of those who are engaged in dairying are so engaged for the purpose of making money, and if that presumption is correct, it would naturally be supposed that every means would be taken to increase the profits. The Jersey may be a very beautiful cow in our eyes, or she may be an excruciatingly ugly one, but if the former and there is a breed of ugly looking cows that will give more and better milk, we should lose no time in getting rid of her; and if she is the best cow we can find, but in our opinion, the homeliest creature that we ever saw, we should at once make her the queen of our dairy. The same should be true of the Hereford, Holstein, or any other breed. We have no disposition to advise as to the selection of breeds, for it is very rarely the case that a man wants any information in that direction; he has either made up his mind already; or would not be satisfied with our selection.

But there are certain general principles that must be observed in the selection of an animal for the dairy, if we would get the best; and among these is the necessity of selecting a cow that is kind and docile. Anything of a vicious character about the animal unfits for dairy purposes, and for reasons that are obvious. The secretion of milk of a good quality and in good quantity, depends very much upon the "evenness of disposition" on the part of the cow. If she is unnaturally irritable and easily excited to anger, her milk secretion will likely be affected adversely. Usually a cow that has a tendency to viciousness will show it in her countenance. The face of a cow is by no means expressionless but is, on the contrary, quite indicative of the disposition of the animal. Generally speaking, a cow with an open and wide face, rather round body and standing low, can be relied upon for vigor and economy in keep.

The yield mark should be carefully observed. There is no humbug about the matter. If it exists it is an assurance that the cow comes from a milking family, and it is pretty certain, unless it is evident that the animal has been bred with a view to other points, that she will be a good milker. For uses on the farm we should prefer the heavier breeds, for we think that as good milkers can be found among them, and then, when they are of no further use in the dairy, there is still something valuable left in them.

Professor Culbertson has, by experiments, proven to his satisfaction that wheat, barley, rye and oats should not be covered deeper than two inches.—If planted five inches deep it will never come up. At a depth of three inches the sprout from the grain when near the surface formed a bulb, and from the bulb roots were sent out and the stalk took a new growth from the bulb upward. He agrees that wheat should be covered from an inch to an inch and a half, instead of being covered deeper, as is usually done.

It is difficult to form any clear idea of the magnitude of the grain shipments from the United States to Europe, the whole being a comparatively new business. To carry the immense amount of grain exported from this country across the water, in June alone, required 367 vessels, consisting of 94 steamers, 31 ships, 228 barques and 75 brigs.

TESTIMONY

Of the Hon. Jos. E. Gray, Judge of the Superior Court, Chicago, Ill.

CHICAGO, Dec. 14, 1876.

DR. S. D. HOWE,

DEAR SIR:—Permit me to add my grateful testimony to the army of witnesses to the virtue of your justly celebrated Arabian remedies. For a long time my wife was seriously afflicted with hacking cough, oppressed breathing, soreness of the chest, and constant acute pain in the lower portion of the right lung and under the shoulder blade. Her sufferings were intense, and she became extremely nervous and prostrated. Her disease was pronounced consumption by the physicians of Chicago and other cities, whose prescriptions had been taken without benefit. When you visited Chicago in June, 1873, we called on you, having very little hope of deriving help from your treatment. We were inspired with hope by the skillful manner in which your thorough examination was conducted, and the satisfactory explanation with which you closed your diagnosis. My wife determined to take your medicines in accordance with your plan and practical directions. She began to use the Arabian Milk Cure and Arabian Tonic; their beneficial effect at once became manifest—the cough loosened and soon ceased, respiration became easy, the soreness of the chest was relieved and all pain removed, she began to gain in flesh and improve in strength and appearance. I fully believe that your medicines and skillful advice have saved the life of my wife. She unites with me in this grateful tribute to the merit of your remedies.

Very respectfully yours,
JOSEPH E. GRAY.

THE READY FAMILY SOAP MAKER:
LEWIS' LYE
98 PER CENT. PURE.
(Patented.)
FINELY POWDERED.
HIGHLY PERFUMED.

The strongest and purest Lye made. Will make 3 pounds of the best Perfumed Hard Soap in 15 minutes without boiling.

The best stove-enamel cleaner.

The best disinfectant.

The following are some of the advantages claimed by using Lewis' 98 Per Cent. Powdered Lye:

First. Dissolved lye has been sold with a guarantee for 48 hours, and many cans of it have lain the common amount, thereby saving the trouble, annoyance, and waste of time in dissolving lye, and other lyes which, in the case, must be broken with a hammer to get the lye out.

Second. It being a finer powder, you can remove the lid and pour out all the contents, leaving always ready for use.

Third. It requires no stove and be used, as in manufacturing, scrubbing, etc., and the lid secured to the can, and therefore save the balance of contents. With other lyes all must be dissolved at once and used at a short time, or the strength is gone.

Fourth. Powder, dissolves more freely than do all substitutes.

Fifth. The best Soap can be made from any powdered alkali with any fat or oil, which fail to be possible in making Soap with this lye when the simple directions given are followed.

Sixth. One can of this Powdered Lye is equal to twenty pounds of best Soda or Washing Soda.

Eighth. One can of this Lye will accomplish more permanent results than any other disinfectant.

Ninth. This Lye is 98 per cent. stronger than any other lye in Portland, or Eastern and Western lye, is the most compatible with soften a soft of the hardest water.

Eleventh. This unequaled will thoroughly cleanse Sinks, Drains, Closets, Stables, Privies, Disinfectant for Sulphur Bacteria, Mice, Rats, etc. The best article for washing Floors.

TO THE AFFLICTED.

Since the introduction of Kidney-Wort this has made more permanent cures and given better satisfaction in Kidney complaints and Rheumatism than any known remedy. Its continued series of wonderful cures in all climates has made it known as a safe and reliable agent to employ against all aches and pains, which are the forerunners of more serious disorders. It acts specially and speedily in overcoming Constipation, and always relieving suffering and often saving life. The proprietors feel authorized by its timely use on Rheumatism, Kidney affection, and all aches and pains, wounds, changing pains, chronic diseases, diarrhoea, coughs, colds, catarrh, and disorders among children, to make an unexceptionable remedy to be kept always on hand in every home. No person can afford to be without it, and those who have once used it never will. It is unusually certain in its remedial effects and will always cure when cures are possible. Call at C. A. Wright & Co's. and get a pamphlet-form book giving more full details of the curative properties of this wonderful medicine.

Free of Cost.

MR. HOWE'S ARABIAN BALM for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, etc., is given away in trial bottles free of cost to the afflicted. If you have a severe cough, cold, difficulty of breathing, hoarseness or any affection of the throat or lungs by all means give this wonderful remedy a trial. As you value your health or your life don't let this opportunity pass. We cannot afford, and would not give the remedy away unless we knew it would accomplish what we claim for it. Thousands of hopeless cases have already been completely cured by it. There is no medicine in the world that will cure one-half the cases that Dr. King's New Discovery will cure. For sale by C. A. Wright & Co., Tecumseh.

Feels Young Again.

"My mother was afflicted for long time with Neuralgia and a dull, heavy, languid condition of the whole system, headache, became emaciated, and was almost helpless. No physicians or medicines did her any good. Three months ago she began to use Hop Bitters, with such good effect that she seems and feels young again, although over 70 years old.—We think there is no other medicine fit to use in the family."—A. Lady, Providence, R. I.

Given Up by the Doctors.

Where doctors have failed to cure, and have given their patients up to die, Electric Bitters have often been used, and a cure effected, greatly to the astonishment of all. Diseases of the Stomach, Liver, Kidneys and Urinary Organs are positively cured by Electric Bitters. They invariably cure Constipation. Headache and all Bilious Attacks. Try them and be convinced that they are the best medicine ever used. Sold by C. A. Wright & Co., at fifty cents a bottle.

AROUND THE COUNTY.

FRANKLIN.

The Greenbackers of this township held a caucus last Wednesday evening, after which a Weaver club was organized embracing over twenty members. A pretty good send off.

We received a friendly call from friend Stacy of the HERALD on Monday. Glad to see him. John Hialey of Tecumseh also called upon us yesterday. He reports business flourishing in town. Uncle Joseph Slater also came to the corners last week for the first time in many months, and is slowly regaining his health.

Mr. S. S. Decker moved into his house last week, and has commenced improvements preparatory to opening his house to the public on the first of October.

Mrs. Eli Knight and Mrs. Doty, whom we mentioned last week as being dangerously ill, we are glad to learn appear to be improving, and it is hoped may yet recover.

Doctor Chas. Rynd, of Adrian, is advertised to address a Republican meeting at Tuttle's hall on Friday evening, 24th inst., and his reputation as a public speaker will doubtless draw a full house. But little enthusiasm has yet been manifested here in matters politically.

Mr. and Mrs. Mulby who reside on Ezra Simmons' farm, have a female heir and are happy of course.

Two of our most enterprising citizens, Messrs. B. F. Reynolds and Joseph Keeney are dealing largely in live stock generally, but make a specialty of sheep of all grades, and persons wishing to purchase in that line will consult their interests by examining their flocks.

John H. Osborn, Esq., of Tecumseh, will deliver a temperance address at the M. E. church next Sunday evening, in place of the usual service. A full house is desired.

RIDGEWAY.

Frank Pocklington is the happy father of a nine pound boy.

Politics don't seem to enthuse with us yet, and railroads and base ball are quiet.

D. W. Loree expects to have six tons of pork to sell from his prairie farm.

R. S. Housman and wife are visiting in Clinton county this week.

About an average supply of sorghum is being made up in this vicinity.—Slap-jack timber is more scarce.

Phon Sutton has turned the novelty works into a cooper shop, and is turning out apple barrels.

There is a project on foot to organize a cornet band in Macon, in the neighborhood of the Grange, and farms that were worth loads of money can be bought for a song. If the boys are not ku-kluxed before they get to tooting, call us no prophet.

Our school opened up last week with a fair attendance. Mr. Moore, of Tecumseh, as teacher.

SOUTH MACON.

At the last regular meeting of the red ribbon club, J. H. Osborn and P. S. McKinnon drew a large crowd. Mr. Osborn spoke first and closed by saying that it was customary to reserve the big gun until the last; whereupon the other gentlemen observed that this time the big gun went off first.

A good literary program is in store for those who come next Saturday evening.

The base ball mania has at last taken possession of the Macon boys. An organization has been effected and a nine will soon be chosen. A lively game was played last Saturday—little too lively for Frank Aten, who had his thumb put out of joint, and Henry Karcher, who got a smart rap under the eye.

The band is going to be a sure thing this time, as we heard some terrible squawking last Saturday night. Officers have been elected and they are nearly ready to purchase their instruments. Go ahead boys, you are doing well so far, but you will find it will take some sand to get up a band, but you are the ones that have got it.

A number of our young people have gone to Tecumseh and Raisin Valley to school. Success attend them. Perhaps their departure will tend to do away with the Grange school. Who knows?

The school in the Mills district will be taught the coming winter by Clem. S. Lester. We bespeak for him a good day school and perhaps a good singing school.

Lester Osgood has eight acres of corn cut and hasked and stalks drawn.

THE DETROIT EVENING NEWS.

The Evening News, which has always been a welcome visitor to our editorial sanctum, has just donned a new dress, and is now better looking and more newsy than ever. A splendid new press has been put in the office, which the proprietors claim to be the fastest printing press ever built. May the News live long and continue to prosper. We append their description of the new press:

When the circulation of the Evening News reached 22,000, about a year ago, its proprietors became convinced that the time had come when much faster machinery was demanded, and began seriously looking about for the best fast printing machinery in the market. After a full study of the Bullock, the Hoe and various other styles of fast web presses, they finally settled down upon an entirely new machine, only one of which had up to that time been built. It was selected because it was believed to be the simplest, fastest, and in every way the most reliable press that had thus far been invented. It was the invention of Walter Scott, the pressman of the Chicago Inter-Ocean, and a mechanician of rare talent. Several visits were made by experts to the press then in operation, and each resulted in a most flattering report. Then the order was given for one, and it was expected to have been in readiness for use in April or May last, but it took much longer to build than was anticipated, and has only just been finally put in operation.

Like the Bullock, the Hoe web, the Walter, and other modern presses it prints from a continuous web or roll of paper, but it prints at a speed that none of its predecessors have reached. When noticeably running at a very low speed, yesterday, it was timed and found to be delivering folded sheets at the rate of over 20,000 per hour, while 7000 or 8000 per hour has been the largest product that has yet been attained by the improved Bullock press set up in the Free Press office in this city a few months ago. When for a little while the belt was thrown more fully on, the speed increased to 26,090 per hour and even the one day's experience has sufficiently convinced every one who saw the press that 30,000 folded sheets per hour will be easily compassed. The press occupies scarcely more room than an ordinary bedstead, is very heavily and substantially built, and beautifully finished. The builders were C. Potter, Jr., of New York, and the machine was constructed and set up under the personal supervision of Mr. Scott, the patentee, himself.

THE GREATEST MEDICAL DISCOVERY OF THE AGE.

Kellogg's Columbian Oil is a powerful remedy, which can be taken internally as well as externally by the tenderest infant. It cures almost instantly, is pleasant, acting directly upon the nervous system, causing a sudden buoyancy of the mind. In short the wonderful effects of this most wonderful remedy cannot be explained in written language. A single dose inhaled and taken according to directions will convince any one that it is all that is claimed for it. Warranted to cure the following diseases: Rheumatism or Kidney Disease in any form, Headache, Toothache, Neuralgia, Sprains, Bruises, Flesh Wounds, Bunions, Burns, Corns, Spinal Affection, Colic, Cramping Pains, Cholera Morbus, Flux, Diarrhoea, Coughs, Colds, Bronchial affection, Catarrh, and all aches and pains, external and internal. Full directions with each bottle. For sale by C. A. Wright & Co., Tecumseh.

Silence. Very few men know how to keep still. The Italians have a proverb, "Hear, see, and say nothing if you wish to live in peace." The man who is bent on telling all he knows generally ends by telling a great deal more than he knows. The tongue is harder to bridle than the wildest horse that ever roamed the prairie. The Germans say truly that talking comes by nature, while silence comes of the understanding.

Mr. Edison says that he has completely solved the problem of electric lighting. In the October number of the North American Review he will state the advantages of electricity over gas, and explains how the new light is to be introduced.

REV. J. B. GILMAN left Manchester for Macomb, Ill., last week, where he is engaged in the ministry the coming year.

LAVERN WHEELER has received twelve portraits to paint in oil from Chicago.

Resolved, by the Common Council of the village of Tecumseh, that a sidewalk be and the same is hereby required to be constructed along the east line of Maiden Lane street from the north line of Logan street to the south line of Shawnee street; that such sidewalk be constructed four feet wide of sound pine plank not less than 1½ inches in thickness or more than 6 inches in width, the same to be laid lengthwise and well spiked down, on sound white oak or burr oak stringers, which shall not be more than 2½ feet apart, and that such walk be completed to the acceptance of the committee on streets within 30 days from the serving of a copy of this resolution on the owners or their agents, of the premises in front of which such walk is to be built.

On motion the Recorder was instructed to draw an order in favor of the cemetery fund for $135, to wit: $35 interest on loan made May 5th, 1879, and $100 of the principal thereof.

On motion, it was

Resolved, That a road be opened this fall along the east end, the south side, the west end and across the middle from north to south of the newly acquired portion of the cemetery grounds, such road to be opened according to the plat of said grounds.

The Committee on Public Grounds and Buildings not being prepared to submit a report on the matter referred at last session of Council, on motion the committee was instructed to report on the same at the next regular meeting.

The following bills against the corporation were presented and referred to Finance Committee:

Wilcox Bros., 2 bbls. oil and freight	$ 13 71
E. H. Merritt, 1 day's service	2 00
Heeman Hand, for 1 horse and damage to buggy and harness	235 00
West & Gahan, 1269 feet of lumber	19 04
West & Gahan, 1090 feet of lumber	16 35
Elijah Wilson, ½ day with team	1 50

On motion, council then adjourned.

P. S. MCKINNON, Recorder.

Adrian Times: This afternoon a fellow living near Baker's corners, named Hilliker, suffering from an overdose of soothing syrup, entered Hod Munn's saloon and assumed a very belligerent attitude. There appearing to be no one in the room desiring to fight Hilliker amused himself by striking a man, whereupon Munn put him out; but he returned, and was put out again. The fellow seemed to be spoiling for a fight, and re-entered the saloon once more, but the third time Munn put him out for keeps. Hilliker was thrown upon the sidewalk with such force as to partially stun him, and he now reposes in the cooler.

GLEANINGS FROM THE COUNTY PRESS.

Charles Lane, of Hudson, who has periodic tumbles from horses, was flopped from one Tuesday, but escaped without serious injuries.

Clinton News: It does the average country printer good to step into the Tecumseh HERALD office, and see how complete and handy their office is.—Ah, well, we can't all be rich.

Morenci Observer: Will VanAikin, of Hudson, is the "innocent purchaser" of that $150 note which the new fangled washing machine snides obtained from Moses Negus, of this township.

Blissfield Advance. Five dollars per head was offered for delegates to secure the nomination of Geddes. A Riga man was offered a V, but scorned to take it. The party had barked up the wrong tree.

Morenci Observer: There was a tremor of excitement at the high school building Wednesday noon. A half-crazy man, who had been provoked by some mischievous young scholars, entered the hall and accosting a lady teacher, deliberately slapped her in the face, nearly knocking her over.

Deerfield Record: Wm. Miller had the misfortune on Saturday last, while at work around Nathan Comstock's threshing machine, to have the concave drop upon his hands, and one of the teeth of which pierced through both of those useful members. He will be laid up some time by the accident.

Hudson Gazette: It looks very much as if Tim Tarsney, the talented, genial and popular Saginaw lawyer, who once represented Whittier's "Barefoot Boy," on the streets of this, his native town, will represent the people of the great valley in the national legislature for the next two years if not longer.

Adrian Press: A few days since Schottey, the barber, had a contemporary, Preston, arrested and fined for keeping his establishment open on the Sabbath day. Yesterday Preston reciprocated by having Schottey arrested for a violation of the city ordinance prohibiting the firing off of a gun inside the corporation.

Hudson Gazette: After the saloons had closed on Saturday night (as they are obliged to at 10 o'clock, in the interest of good morals and good order,) a fight took place on the street, which was short, sharp and decisive. The dead was buried, and the wounded gathered up and removed before the vigilant police were aware there had been a battle.

Adrian Press: Mr. D. Hayden, the proprietor of the Gibson House, whose death occurred Monday evening, came here from Ohio, and lately took charge of the hotel. Though a comparative stranger, he had won many friends by his straightforward business conduct, and was fast gaining the respect of all who came in contact with him. His disease was typhoid fever, from which he suffered terribly. His remains were taken to Ohio for interment.

Adrian Times: While Ralph Jewell was across the street bull-dozing the inoffensive greenbackers Saturday afternoon, some one entered the warehouse in the rear of the store and appropriated five conch shells. Ralph went before justice Lamb and solemnly deposed that he had reason to believe that Christ. Eisele was the thief. It appears that Eisele took the shells for a little merriment, but he pleaded guilty to larceny, and contributed $10.25 to the city's wealth.

Adrian Press: Gen. J. W. Brown, the oldest settler in this county, has voted regularly every year for 67 yrs. He has voted at 16 presidential elections and has never voted any other than the Democratic ticket excepting once, when he received a temporary fall from grace and voted for Harrison in 1840. He sought the first opportunity to lift his feet from the miry clay and plant them on the Democratic rock. His chief desire now is to live till the 2nd day of November, in order that he may cast his ballot for Winfield Scott Hancock and victory.

Morenci Observer: The adage that misfortune never come singly, was again illustrated at the funeral of our honored citizen, Estel Rorick, at Medina, last Wednesday; as while the casket was being taken from the hearse to the church, the handles upon one side broke and let it fall rudely to the ground; and the officiating minister, who was afflicted with the ague, came near fainting in the midst of the sermon and had to stop awhile to recover. These little accidents, although unpleasant, will sometimes occur even on the most solemn occasions.

A FORGED CHECK.

BY A NEW YORK DETECTIVE.

The Telephone bell sounded off office call, and stepping to the instrument I learned that I was wanted at once by a downtown commission merchant. Taking an elevated train, I proceeded to the address given, and entering introduced myself to the senior member of the firm. He stated that a forgery on the firm for five thousand dollars had nearly proved successful about an hour previously, and that he desired me to make an immediate investigation. I asked him to relate the circumstances attending the transaction and he told me the following:

The firm were the agents of a foreign country, and among other things frequently purchased gold coin belonging to the country which they represented, for shipment, and that some one familiar with their mode of business had forged a check for the above amount and had presented it to the "Foreign Exchange" broker with whom they did business, but owing to the ignorance of the person presenting the check the broker's suspicions were awakened to the fact that something was wrong. He questioned the young man closely, and became convinced that either the check was a forgery, or else it had been lost by the firm and found by the one presenting it. He took the young man into custody, when he assured him that everything was all right which he could prove, if the broker would only go around to the firm who issued it. He was so earnest and plausible that the gentleman did not want to inflict any hardship on the young man if he was innocent, and he therefore consented to accompany him. On the way to the merchant's office the young man tripped the broker, and before the latter could recover himself, he had disappeared in the crowd. The broker however retained the check, which he immediately took to the firm, who pronounced it bogus.

I at once asked for specimens of the writing of all their clerks, which were produced without exciting any comment. I found that the "body" of the check was a strong imitation of the clerk's writing who usually filled out the checks, while the signature was a very clever imitation of the firms. After carefully examining the "check clerk's" writing with the specimens exhibited by the firm, I was satisfied that he knew nothing of it, at least, that the writing was not his, and so on until I had passed on the writing of the rest of the clerks. I then suggested that possibly the work had been done by some discharged employee, when they stated that they had discharged a young man some two months before, whom they had no reason of suspecting. To my demand for some of his writing, they opened a book which contained many pages of it, and I decided in a few moments that he was not the culprit, but who was the guilty one? I looked at the check again and saw what had escaped my notice at first, that the figures had been cancelled with a peculiar cancelling stamp, and I asked to see the one they used. I found it to be identical with the one that had been used on the check, and was finally convinced that the forgery had been committed by some one having access to the office. I then called for the check book, and asking how many checks it contained was told two hundred and fifty. I found that they were printed six on a sheet, and counting the sheets discovered that there were but two hundred and forty-four stubs and checks, and looking closely saw where one entire sheet had been removed from the book. Now I was convinced that the work had been done by an inside person, and not by a professional forger. After these revelations I questioned the firm as to who could possibly get into the office without forcing an entrance, which I noticed at the outset had not been done, when they said no one except the janitor and his assistant, and enquiring about them, I learned that the janitor's assistant was in the habit of sweeping the office out every evening. I then called upon the janitor and found that his assistant was not for the afternoon. Making a pretext that I wanted to engage a young man for office work, I stated that a friend had spoken to him as being ready to be recommended with a young man out of employment, and he said, why yes I have a young man here, a nephew of mine, who would like a place. I asked where he had been employed, and he said the last place was in a Railroad office, and he had been obliged to leave it on account of ill health. After promising to call again in a few days I proceeded to the office where his nephew had been employed, and seeking the manager was told that he had been discharged for having stolen several dollars worth of postage stamps.

I began to think I was on the right track, and therefore wrote him a letter in which I told him that I had seen his uncle, and that I was satisfied with his reference, but as I required a good penman I would like to have him write me an application. I had already made arrangements with a business friend to receive the letter in his name. The next day he handed me a letter from the young man, whom I will call Walter, and upon comparing it with the body of the check, saw at a glance that he was the guilty one. You must bear in mind that it is one thing to be satisfied of a fact, and still another to possess the proof. Walter was a young man, 18 years of age, good looking, inclined to be fast, and naturally dishonest. I therefore sent one of our men, with instructions to shadow him for a few days, day and night, for the purpose of learning who his associates were. Our detective reported that Walter was one of a gang of fast young fellows who cared more for moonlight picnics than they did for their work, and that they all drank a great deal of lager beer, and were in the habit of going off on all kinds of spurs.

My next move was to place a young man of their own age among them, and ascertain if possible who it was that presented the check for payment, we were sure the young man would meet Walter after the excitement had passed over. At the same time I had continued to shadow him, and was watching him closely. Our detective had reported that on several occasions Walter had visited a saloon in the immediate vicinity of his house, and seemed anxious to find some one who as yet, had not put in an appearance, thinking he was expecting to see his accomplice in this place I detailed another detective who was disguised as a whiskey bummer, and furnished with the description of Walter and his supposed accomplice, instructed him to hang around the saloon and if he should see any one answering to the description given, to shadow and locate him, and then report to me at once. No one knows the hardships a poor whiskey bum has to endure, but one of that class; my whiskey bum was knocked around from "pillar to post," and the way the police went for him was really laughable. Once he was pretending to be asleep, when a policeman came along swinging his club lazily, when all of a sudden he espied my man, and the way he rapped the soles of his boots was a caution to bummers. The thing got so hot for him that in order to remain there he was obliged to show up, who he was, when they both indulged in a hearty laugh. He was not molested after that.

The third night of his watch he saw Walter enter the saloon, and following him in saw him speak to a young man somewhat answering the description I had given him. Walter and the stranger entered a rear room where several young men were playing cards, and seating themselves in a corner, engaged in a long earnest conversation. My detective decided to shadow the stranger at all hazards and ascertain who he was, and where he lived. He did so and discovered that he lived in the upper portion of the city and like Walter, was without an occupation, living simply by what he could steal.

The next morning I was apprised of these facts, and going down town I saw the broker and asked him to accompany me up town to see if he could identify the stranger whom Walter had met the previous evening as the young man who had presented the check. The moment he saw him he cried "yes, that's the villain!" I immediately secured him, and charged him with the offense. He admitted his guilt but persistently refused to say from whom he had received the check, until I told him I already knew and that I had arrested Walter about an hour before, and that Walter had told us that he was the one who had assisted us, when overcome with rage at Walter's supposed perfidy he confessed all, implicating Walter and another young man. I hurried him to a station house and then started after Walter, and when I accused him of forging the check, wanted to know what proof I had on which to base my charge. I told him of my previous arrest when he completely broke down and admitted the charge. I then arrested the third party and shortly afterwards had their trial, Walter receiving a sentence of 7 yrs and his accomplices 5 years each.

JUST WHERE HE HAD THE.

Half an hour before the departure of a lake steamer from her wharf yesterday the captain was approached by a stranger who had been inspecting the boat from the deck for the last ten minutes, introducing himself as a would-be passenger, he asked:

"Captain, is this boat provided with life-preservers?"

"She is."

"Are they all right?"

"They are."

"Can your crew launch a life-boat?"

"They can."

"Is your life raft all right?"

"It is."

"Is the fire hose all ready for instant service?"

"It is."

"Will your engineer stand to his post in case of disaster?"

"He will."

"Do you call yourself a cool and collected man in the presence of danger?"

"I do."

"Do you know exactly what you would do in case of a terrible gale or a fire?"

"I do."

"Can the mate be depended on to second all your effort?"

"He can."

"And will your crew stand by and obey you?"

"They will."

"Are your green and red lights all right?"

"They are."

"Machinery in perfect order?"

"It is."

"Going to overload the boat?"

"No sir."

"Expect to do any racing?"

"No sir."

"Is she fixed to blow off at forty-six pounds."

"She is."

"Donkey engine working all right?"

"It is."

The stranger heaved a sigh and was walking away when the captain asked if his baggage was aboard.

"No, and I guess I'll go afoot," was the reply. "Every boat which has burned up or gone down in the last five years had everything in the nicest kind of order, and I'll either look for a craft making six feet of water an hour or run the risk of going through a railroad bridge. Good-by captain I shall look in the dailies all this week to see who of your passengers were saved."—Detroit Free Press.

TO THE AFFLICTED.

Since the introduction of Kellogg's Columbian Oil it has made more permanent cures and given better satisfaction on Kidney complaints and Rheumatism than any know remedy. Its continued series of wonderful cures in all climates has made it known as a safe and reliable agent to employ against all aches and pains, which are the forerunners of more serious disorders. It acts speedily and surely, always relieving suffering and often saving life. The protection it affords by its timely use on Rheumatism, kidney affection, and all aches and pains, wounds, cramping pains, cholera morbus, diarrhœa, coughs, colds, catarrh, and disorders among children, makes it an invaluable remedy to be kept always on hand in every home. No person can afford to be without it, and those who have once used it never will. It is absolutely certain in its remedial effects and will always cure when cures are possible. Call at C.A. Wright & Co's. and get a memorandum book giving more full details of the curative properties of this wonderful medicine.

FOOLING A CHINAMAN.

A plump little Celestial, his almond eyes twinkling with delight, and an extraordinary grin lighting up his yellow countenance dropped in to witness the lottery drawing the other day.

He watched the blindfolded boys draw the numbers from the wheel with apparent interest, and here the joke of the crowd stood with evident good-nature.

"Say, John, you washee that man's shirtee?" asked one of the crowd, pointing to one of the benevolent looking commissioners.

"I washee heapee plenty shirtee if I winee prize," replied the bland Mongolian.

"Have you got a ticket, John?" inquired a man in the crowd.

"Well, me tlinkee me habee," replied the Chinaman, drawing one from his pocket. "Tlinkee win?" he inquired.

The man in the crowd looked at the number, and scanning his list, found that it had come in for a $500 prize.

"Well, John," replied the man in the crowd, very innocently, "I think you've lost."

"Chinee man losee alle time," said the subject of the Flowery Kingdom, "gottee no luckee. Gless tlow tlickee away."

"You needn't do that, John," said the man with a patronizing air, "I'll give you a dime for it."

"Dlime too lillee. Gimme a dollar," said the Celestial.

"A dollar's too much for a ticket that can't win. We'll split the difference and call it half a dollar, eh?" said John's kind informant.

"Chinee man glotte no luckee; Melican man takee allee malonee. Takee the tickee and gimme flo' bittee," and John passed over his ticket in exchange for the money.

When the Mongolian's grinning features had disappeared, the man chuckled and remarked that he had "got her this time."

"Let's see the ticket!" said one of his friends.

The man who had made the lucky investment handed the ticket over, when his friend exclaimed:

"Why, George, it was drawn last June!"

"Is that so?" asked the man, dumbfounded, the revelation that he had been duped dawning upon him. "Where is that lying rascal of a heathen Chinee who put this job on me?"

But the Chinaman could nowhere be found, and the man had to be satisfied with the experience he had purchased for half a dollar.—New Orleans Picayune.

Mr. Thomas A. Edison contributes an article to the October number of the North American Review, in which he states that he has succeeded in making the electric light entirely practicable for all illuminating purposes. He shows the advantages of electricity over gas, and explains how his system is to be introduced. He comments upon the unfavorable opinions that have been passed upon his work, and says that similar judgments were pronounced upon telegraphy, steam navigation, and other great discoveries. Other articles in the October number of the Review are: "The Democratic Party judged by its History," by Emory Storrs; "The Observance of the Sabbath," by Rev. Dr. Leonard Bacon; "The Campaign of 1862," by Judge D. Thew Wright; "The Taxation of Church Property," by Rev. Dr. A. W. Pitzer; and "Recent Progress in Astronomy," by Prof. E. S. Holden.

"I have taken nearly a package of Kidney-Wort and it has made me so much better that I wish to recommend it to all that may need such a remedy. I am sixty years old, and have raised a large family of children. I have not been able to do my housework for many years, but now I have sent my girls all off and am doing my work alone, which surprises all the people that know me." MRS. P. MORSE.

Evans, Col., Jan 8th, '80.

Dear Sirs—The Kidney-Wort I got of you is the best medicine I ever used. I shall recommend it to all my friends. I thank you and kind providence for conveying it to me, it is a great temporal blessing. Very Respectfully,

WM. ELLIS.

THE lot of the agriculturist is not always a happy one. There seems to be a constant struggle going on between himself and the elements and the animal creation. Drouth, mildew, excessive heat, too much cold, lack of snow, tornadoes, floods, weavil, grasshoppers, potato bugs, and army worms, combine to keep the farmer in a constant state of worry and activity. The very latest pest of the Ohio farmer is the mole cricket.

Better Times.

The Democrat, New Orleans, La., says: "Suffering among such as have been troubled with diseases of kidneys and liver, has been perceptibly better since the introduction among us of Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure.

The ladies give as a reason for marrying for money, that they now seldom find anything else in a man worth having.

Chicago Ahead.

All the world now looks up to Chicago as the great western metropolis of America, being far ahead of all competing cities; but none the less so, in its line, is Electric Bitters. From their real intrinsic value they have advanced to the front, and are now far ahead of all other remedies, positively curing where everything else fails. To try them is to be convinced. For sale by C. A. Wright & Co. at fifty cents per bottle.

A young scapegrace threw the ball at his sister, and hit her on the back of the head so hard that the bawl came out of her mouth.

Poverty and Suffering.

"I was dragged down with debt, poverty and suffering for years, caused by a sick family and large bills for doctoring, which did them no good.—I was completely discouraged, until one year ago, by the advice of my pastor, I procured Hop Bitters and commenced their use, and in one month we were all well and none of us have seen a sick day since, and I want to say to all poor men, you can keep your families well a year with Hop Bitters for less than one doctor's visit will cost—I know it.

A WORKINGMAN."

THE GREATEST MEDICAL DISCOVERY OF THE AGE.

Kellogg's Columbian Oil is a powerful remedy, which can be taken internally as well as externally by the tender infant. It is almost instantly, is pleasant, acting directly upon the nervous system, causing a sudden buoyancy of the mind. In short the wonderful effects of this most wonderful remedy cannot be explained in written language. A single dose has been sufficient in many cases, according to directions will convince any one that it is all that is claimed for it. Warranted to cure the following diseases: Rheumatism or Kidney Disease in any form, Headache, Toothache, Neuralgia, Sprains, Bruises, Flesh Wounds, Bunions, Burns, Corns, Spinal Affection, Colic, Cramping Pains, Cholera Morbus, Flux, Diarrhœa, Coughs, Colds, Bronchial affection, Catarrh, and all aches and pains, external and internal. Full directions with each bottle. For sale by C. A. Wright & Co., Tecumseh.

He had been sitting still so long that the mother expected to find him asleep when she looked around and asked, "Well, Harry, what are you thinking of?" "Ma, are we very rich?" he solemnly enquired, by way of reply. "In one way we are," she said: "your father says he values me at three million dollars, you at two million dollars and the baby at one." That closed the conversation on that subject, but next morning, as Harry was getting on his overcoat he examined the new patch which had been added, and coolly observed: "Well, I think father had better sell off about half of you or the whole of the baby, and get the rest of us some decent duds to put on."

Free of Cost.

DR. KING'S NEW DISCOVERY for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, etc., is given away in trial bottles free of cost to the afflicted. If you have a severe cough, cold, difficulty of breathing, hoarseness or any affection of the throat or lungs by all means give this wonderful remedy a trial. As you value your existence you cannot afford to let this opportunity pass. We cannot afford, and would not give the remedy away unless we knew it would accomplish what we claim for it. Thousands of hopeless cases have already been completely cured by it. There is no medicine in the world that will cure one-half the cases that Dr. King's New Discovery will cure. For sale by C. A. Wright & Co., Tecumseh.

A deception successfully practiced on a number of farmers is known as the "butter contract." A couple of well-dressed fellows drive to the house of the expected victim and makes an engagement with him to take all his butter for a year at a high price. A written agreement is then made and in due time the "contract" is returned in the form of a note held by a third party, which the farmer is bound to pay. The safest plan is to make no written contracts with strangers who thus suddenly turn up and of whom nothing is known.

Given Up by the Doctors.

Where doctors have failed to cure, and have given their patients up to die, Electric Bitters have often been used, and a cure effected, greatly to the astonishment of all. Diseases of the Stomach, Liver, Kidneys and Urinary Organs are positively cured by Electric Bitters. They invariably cure Constipation, Headache and all Bilious Attacks. Try them and be convinced that they are the best medicine ever used. Sold by C. A. Wright & Co., at fifty cents a bottle.

More poultry and less pork would prove more profitable to many producers and more healthful to all consumers. At least that seems to be the belief of health-seekers at the fashionable watering places. A Ballston, N. Y., poultry dealer is dressing daily for the Saratoga hotels an average of 2,000 chickens, 50 turkeys, and 200 geese and ducks.

BEST IS CHEAPEST!

LEWIS' CONDENSED BAKING POWDER

STRICTLY PURE!

We will pay $1000.00 for any Alum or other adulteration found in this POWDER.

Analyzed by the Brooklyn Board of Health, and by the best chemists in the United States.

It is STRENGTH, then any MAN, Farmer, in the world, IF HE WILL, can make light bread when directed.

IT IS CONCEDED by every housekeeper who has given it a fair trial,

It is an entirely NEW INVENTION, without any of the bad qualities of soda or saleratus, yeast or other baking powders.

It has in itself a tendency to sustain and nourish the system.

Good food makes good health; and health is improved or impaired in proportion as the food we eat is nutritious or otherwise.

LEWIS' BAKING POWDER always makes good food.

One can of this is worth two of any other baking compound.

It makes bread whiter and richer.

More than half the complaints of bad flour arise from the use of common baking powders, which often make the best of flour turn out dark bread.

The most delicate persons can eat food prepared with it without injury.

Nearly every other baking powder is adulterated and is absolutely injurious.

This is made from Refined Grape Cream of Tartar, and is PERFECTLY PURE.

It makes the BEST, lightest, and most nutritious

BREAD, BISCUIT, CAKE, CRULLERS, BUCKWHEAT, INDIAN, AND FLANNEL CAKES.

A single trial will prove the superiority of this Powder.

KIDNEY-WORT

The Only Remedy

THAT ACTS AT THE SAME TIME ON THE LIVER, THE BOWELS, and the KIDNEYS.

This combined action gives it wonderful power to cure all diseases.

Why Are We Sick?

Because we allow these great organs to become clogged or torpid, and poisonous humors are therefore forced into the blood that should be expelled naturally.

KIDNEY-WORT WILL CURE

BILIOUSNESS, PILES, CONSTIPATION, KIDNEY COMPLAINTS, URINARY DISEASES, FEMALE WEAKNESSES, AND NERVOUS DISORDERS,

by causing free action of these organs and restoring their power to throw off disease.

Why Suffer Bilious pains and aches?
Why tormented with Piles, Constipation?
Why frightened over disordered Kidneys?
Why endure nervous or sick headaches?
Why have sleepless nights?

Use KIDNEY-WORT and rejoice in health. It is a dry vegetable compound and

One package will make six qts. of Medicine. Get it of your Druggist, he will order it for you. Price, $1.00.

Chambers' Encyclopædia.

15 Vols. Over 13,000 Pages. Price During July, $6.25.

Among the wonderful things which have been accomplished for lovers of good books by the "Literary Revolution," perhaps the most wonderful is the reproduction of this great Encyclopædia at a merely nominal cost.

It is a verbatim reprint of the last English edition, in 15 beautiful volumes, clear nonpareil type, handsomely bound in cloth, for $7.50; the same printed on finer, heavier paper, wide margins, and bound in half Russia, gilt top, price $15.00. The first ten volumes are ready for delivery. Vol. 11 will be ready July 10. The remaining volumes will be completed by October next.

$6.25. An Amazing Offer. $6.25.

The more widely and rapidly these volumes are scattered, the greater is their influence in inducing other purchasers of this and our many standard publications. Accordingly we give special terms to early subscribers.

To all, whose orders and money are received during the month of July, we will supply the 15 volumes in cloth, for $6.25, and in half Russia, gilt top, for $12.50. To any one sending from any place where we have no special agent (usually the leading bookseller of the town), a club of five orders, we will allow a commission of 10 per cent. The volumes issued will be sent at once by express, and the remaining volumes when completed.

A specimen volume in cloth will be sent, postpaid, for 50 cents, or in half Russia, gilt top, for $1.00, and may be returned at once, if not satisfactory.

The "CHAMBERS'S ENCYCLOPÆDIA" comprises the first 15 volumes of our "Library of Universal Knowledge," and the remaining volumes, complete in themselves, will be sold separately when published.

A SLIGHT MISTAKE.

The Adrian Times of last Monday contained this article:

"M. E. Chittenden, of the firm of M. E. Chittenden & Co., is recognized as one of our most prominent, energetic and shrewd business men. He has always, hitherto, been a democrat, but now he announces his determination to work for the election of and to vote for Gen. Garfield. Mr. Chittenden, whose acquaintance and business connection extends all over the state, puts his new departure on strict business grounds. He says the country, under republican rule is prosperous, business is good, trade of all kinds is flourishing, and that he does not want a change.—He says that a change would unsettle and paralyze business, and this he does not want, and the business men of the country cannot afford it. He says that he is not influenced by any fear that the democrats, if they get into power, will pay rebel claims, but he does feel that with their accession to power would come a fatal unsettling of business. He says the property he has acquired, accumulated while the republicans were in power, and he wants them to continue. He says that on local matters he shall act independently, but the continuation of the national prosperity necessitates the election of Gen. Garfield, and he shall aid the republican national ticket with all his might.

Mr. Chittenden returned Sunday morning from Chicago, where he had a conference with heavy business men who have been democrats, and they all stand with him in the idea that Hancock's election would be almost fatal to the business interests of the country, that it would be a blow from which it would take years to recover, and that, as business men, their interests dictate that they should work and vote for Garfield.

"Mr. Chittenden's decision only adds another proof to his business capacity. He is right. The business interests of the country demand the election of Garfield. Let the men who control these interests act accordingly."

The Times of Tuesday evening has the following card from Mr. Chittenden which pretty clearly explains itself:

ADRIAN, Mich., Sept. 20, '80.

To the Editor of The Times:—I observe in your issue of yesterday an article to the effect that I have changed my life long political views and am now an ardent supporter of Garfield and Arthur; this is to deny any such imputations. I have the utmost faith in our gallant standard bearer, I have confidence in the great party and its principles, believing as I always have, that it and it only is the true protector of the rights of the people and the producing classes.

I shall therefore vote for the true and loyal representative of the people, W. S. Hancock, whose election I feel confident of.

Respectfully yours,
M. E. CHITTENDEN.

Score Another for Hancock.

The New York Express is responsible for the following:

"We are informed on good authority that last week a number of rich men waited on Gen. Hancock and told him they would raise $225,000 toward the legitimate expenses of his election if he would permit them to name the Secretary of the Treasury, should he be elected President. Gen. Hancock was told that while the Republicans were raising and spending vast sums of money in this campaign, and it was proposed to raise $1,000,000 by private subscriptions to insure the election of Garfield, the Dem. committee had no funds to speak of, and were obliged to depend upon the spontaneous enthusiasm of the people for contributions.

Gen. Hancock listened to their statement with respect, and courteously replied: "Gentlemen, I must decline your offer. If elected to the Presidency I must take the office unpledged."

"More food and less medicine, more of nourishment and strength, less of the debilitating influence of drugs is what our feeble and exhausted constitutions require," said Baron Liebig, when he perfected the composition of the "Malt Bitters."

FACTS FOR THE PEOPLE.

The appropriation for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1876, had already been made when the Democratic House took possession in December, 1875, at the opening of the Forty-fourth Congress. Mr. Randall was Chairman of the Appropriations. The estimates from the Treasury footed up $203,000,000 in round numbers for the service of 1877. Mr. Randall reported $147,000,000 for the year, and had to confront a partisan opposition of the most bitter kind in the House. The Senate was Republican, and when the bill went there these economies were denounced by Mr. Sherman especially, and by others, as an attempt by the "rebel Brigadiers" to cripple the public service. The Republican Senate added twenty-one millions to the aggregate, and returned the bill to the House with a threat of defeating the appropriations unless concessions were made. Finally, a compromise was effected, and the twelve bills footed up $147,719,074.85, against the Republican aggregate of $177,663,327.71 for similar bills for 1876. Here was a retrenchment of thirty millions at the first session of the reform House. The pledge was redeemed in good faith.

This was the beginning of a new policy which gave confidence to the country, strengthened the public credit, and materially aided resumption of specie payments. Great crops in the United States and bad crops in Europe have helped to consummate the work. The reform was carried out in spite of all that the Grant administration and the Republican leaders could do to thwart, to misrepresent, and to defeat the change from extravagance to economy.

Now, to compare the cost of carrying on the government for six years, let us take the figures of the last annual report of the Secretary of the Treasury, page 17, under the head of "Net ordinary expenditures." The year 1880 is not officially reported:

Republican House.

1874	$104,118,985 00
1875	171,529,848 27
1876	164,857,813 36
Total	$530,506,646 63

Democratic House.

1877	$144,209,963 28
1878	134,463,452 15
1879	161,619,934 53
Total	$445,293,349 96

Recapitulation.

3 years Rep. House	$530,506,646 63
3 years Dem. House	440,293,349 96
Dem. retrenchment	$90,213,296 67

This large reduction, averaging thirty millions a year, does not represent all that was achieved. The Republicans left a legacy of many millions of deficiency, for naval and other expenditures, held back until Gen. Grant went out of office. The Democrats voted eight millions of additional pensions last year, and had to vote five millions for the Halifax award, more than half of which was not fairly due. But the country had been committed by Republican jugglery, and Congress had to foot the fraudulent bill.

These plain facts speak for themselves. They are taken from Mr. Sherman's report to Congress last December. Mr. Garfield voted for and defended on every occasion the profligacy of his party. And if he had the power he would restore the extravagance and jobbery for which as Chairman of the Appropriations, he was directly responsible during the three years above cited.

KEEP COOL.

The following excellent advice is taken from the N. Y. Herald, the leading Republican Independent paper of New York:

"Meantime we urge all the readers of the Herald to keep cool, and remember that it does not greatly matter who is elected. The country is equally safe whether Garfield or Hancock becomes President. There is not the least occasion for alarm. If anybody is to lie awake of nights thinking about his poor country we advise that this painful duty be put upon the candidates and the stump speakers.—They have little else to do, and are all fat robust men. If the Democrats should come in not a Republican will sell a bond under the highest market price unless he is swindled by his broker, and if the Republicans should come in not a Democrat will leave the country out of fear of his liberty. It is all a ridiculous sham, this daily exhortation rung in our ears that ruin stares us in the face. Prosperity is what really stares us in the face—unmitigated, undeniable prosperity—and neither Hancock nor Garfield, neither a Republican nor a Democratic Congress, can or will injure or interfere with that.

Let us all keep cool and wait for Indiana.

The Great Healer of all Inflamed Injuries and Disorders.

It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the unparalleled demand with which it meets, stamps it at once as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.

The most incredulous are convinced, and the most skeptical are compelled to believe in the power of this great remedy.

WHAT IT CURES.

All SORES, CUTS, BRUISES, SPRAINS, BURNS, SORE THROAT, LAMENESS, RHEUMATISM, PILES, INFLAMMATION of LUNGS and BOWELS, BRONCHITIS, CROUP, SALT RHEUM, CHILBLAINS, AFFECTIONS of the SPINE, ERYSIPELAS, NERVOUS IRRITATION, and all disorders attendant with INFLAMMATION.

It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is gained over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame; every bone, muscle, vein, nerve, and ligament is searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it copes readily with internal as well as external diseases.

Over 40 Years

This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such that as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates of cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should feel perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.

Price 25 and 50 cents per bottle. Sold by all dealers in medicine.

Our Girls.

Manager Stevenson writes that he will present "Our Girls" at the Opera House on Saturday and Monday evenings, October 2 and 4. It will be presented by a new comedy company organized by Manager Stevenson. The Jackson Citizen has this to say of the new company and the play:

"The last rehearsal except the four public rehearsals of "Our Girls," by the new comedy company, was had this morning. Our reporter pronounced himself well pleased with the attraction, and says the company is evenly balanced, and of more than ordinary merit. The piece is one of those jolly musical extravaganzas that cannot help meeting with the approbation of all classes. We congratulate Manager Stevenson on having surrounded himself with a class of talented artists that cannot help but make and leave a fine impression wherever they may appear. We wish him every success. To-night is their first appearance here, in this piece, which has never been presented in this State, and the public will have an opportunity to see for themselves."

THE evening services at the Universalist church, which were suspended on account of the pastor's services elsewhere, will be resumed Sunday evening, Sept. 26th.

A COMMODIOUS building is being erected in the rear of Sink's Hotel for a wash-room and wood shed. It will be a great convenience and something that has long been needed there.

WE are informed by the committee on Health that they have a large quantity of copperas at the village Council Building. Parties who wish it to disinfect their premises should call before the supply is gone.

MANY political blunders are inevitable but the blunder made by the Times as regards Mark Chittenden's presidential preferences was perfectly unexcusable, and not liable to strengthen local confidence in the Times.

TECUMSEH seems to be particularly favored in the way of candidates for office this year. At the Greenback convention held at Adrian last Saturday, O. W. Bean, of this village, received the nomination of Judge of Probate.

THE house of Lon Welch in Franklin was entered by burglars one day last week and a gold watch and several articles of clothing were carried off. A suspicious looking tramp was seen in the neighborhood that day and has not been seen since.

PROF. TIBBITTS of Detroit has returned from his vacation East, and is stopping a few days in Tecumseh, prior to beginning his fall season in Detroit. An effort is being made to have him give one day in the week for the winter, to Tecumseh pupils.

WILLIS MERRITT returned yesterday noon from the Republican National Convention of G. & A. clubs, at Indianapolis. After the convention he took a trip through Missouri and Kansas. At Indianapolis Willis was appointed the member from Michigan upon the executive committee.

A FINE new cross walk has been laid between Cotton's and Adamson's corners.

THE Hancock Club of Tecumseh will have a public meeting at the Opera House next Monday evening Sept. 27th. Hon. H. Cramer, of Ann Arbor, and Lieut. L. H. Salsbury, of Hudson, will address the people. The ladies are invited to attend.

DR. R. B. HOUSE has rented the rooms in the rear of his present office and will enlarge his quarters. The front apartment will constitute a general reception room, and the room in the rear will be fitted up for a private office. When completed the doctor will have as fine a suit of rooms as can be found in the village.

THE Rev. A. J. Bigelow and family leave this week for Howell. Mr. Bigelow has accomplished good work in his field in Tecumseh, and his services have been such that will always be remembered with pleasure. The family leave many friends behind them who wish them a pleasant life in their future home.

REV. MR. SWIFT, of Adrian, will speak at the Opera House on Sunday afternoon, Sept. 26, at 3 o'clock. If the citizens of Tecumseh wish to hear one of the best temperance speakers in the State, let them turn out and hear Mr. Swift, and they will not be disappointed. Let us have a grand rally. By order of REFORM CLUB COMMITTEE.

THE Zeigler Sewing Machine Treadle Co. has rented rented room and steam power in Palmer's chair factory, and the shafting and machinery is being put into position this week. It is expected that active work will begin next week in manufacturing the treadles. Samples were exhibited at the Detroit and Toledo fairs last week and they take splendidly among sewing machine men.

Detroit Free Press: The Rev. R. S. Pardington has been assigned to the Methodist Church at Tecumseh, and will preach there next Sunday. Mr. Pardington was the first pastor of the Fort street M. E. Church of this city, in charge of which he remained three years. He was also pastor of the Jefferson avenue church three years, during which time he doubled its membership. He is a faithful man, and the people of Tecumseh are to be congratulated that he is to live among them.

Pearl Diamond, of Clinton, the Tecumseh correspondent to the Clinton News, was in our village yesterday visiting friends.—Tecumseh Herald.

Oh, head it up, George, head it up. We told you some weeks ago that Pearl Diamond does not reside in Clinton. Thinkest thou that we know not whereof we speak?—Clinton News.

Brother Clough, it is evident to us that you certainly cannot be posted as to whom your Tecumseh correspondent is, or where Pearl Diamond resides.—We would advise you to make the acquaintance of said party, who resides under the parental roof in the township of Clinton, and whose father is at the present time one of its officers.

CIRCUIT COURT COMMISSIONER.

The office of Circuit Court Commissioner is by no means as unimportant as many people suppose. In a county the size of Lenawee the commissioners have much business of a responsible character. The Democrats are fortunate in having two such good candidates for these positions upon their ticket.

W. R. Wooden is a young man who has passed his youth and school days in Tecumseh, is a graduate of the law department of our State University, and has already acquired a lucrative practice. He is at present the junior member of the firm of Merritt & Wooden of this village. He is well known in Cambridge where his father formerly resided and in fact has quite an extended acquaintance throughout the entire Northern section of this county.

Smith Wilbur, of Clinton, the other candidate, is a native of New York State. He is also a graduate of the Law School at Ann Arbor, class of 1878. He was chosen county surveyor of Washtenaw county in 1874 by 300 majority, and was re-elected in 1876 by over 500 majority. He is entirely a self-made man, having had to rely on his own resources since he was eleven years of age. During his brief residence in Clinton he has gained a good business and secured the confidence and esteem of that community.

Both of these candidates are well fitted for the offices they are running for, and from present indications we should say there was a good prospect of their election.

POLITICAL MEETING.

"Bob" Frazer Addresses the Republicans of Tecumseh—An Entertaining Speech, and a Good Audience.

Tuesday evening the Opera House was filled with ladies and gentlemen to listen to Robt. Frazer of Ann Arbor. His speech was interesting throughout; being a characteristic speech of Bob's, it was of course, enthusiastic and relieved from time to time with a good story.

The audience was appreciative, and bursts of applause were frequent. Chairman, Lilley introduced the speaker, after the audience had sung "Old John Brown," with variations. A brief outline of the speech is as follows:

Ladies and Gentlemen:—I come here for the purpose of presenting to you some of the questions that are agitating the people during this campaign. I have come to address you because it is a habit and custom, not that I am an office seeker. I never held a political office nor did I ever aspire to be a public speaker and teacher. I believe it is no man's duty to believe every one, for men are liable to err and to make mistakes. Men owe more to their country than to their party, and ought to follow the dictates of their reason. Nor should a man follow the same party always.

It's the duty of ev'ry man to kno' what he is doing in every political canvass, and not to follow blindly the dictates of the party leaders. This tenacity of purpose, this following of leaders is an institution peculiar to the democracy. Every democrat knows that he follows the party dictators on account of the traditions of that party. They plead that the man should stick to their party, but still they rather inconsistently at the same time invite the members of other parties to come over and join them.

A few nights ago a democrat stood upon this platform asking you to come over and join the democracy. The democratic party point to him with pride, they forget his record as a republican. To-night I stand in the same position as Chas. S. May. He denounces the republican party and has been cheered to the echo for such, but I am not here to throw mud or dirt at any one. I ought to be received with that degree of candor in your consideration as if I had always been a republican. When a man leaves his party he is charged with being bought or sold. I don't charge Chas. S. May of selling out. No man ought to charge a man of such an offense unless he positively knows that such is the case. They also charge a flopper with seeking office. But I am not a candidate, I simply ask the confidence of the republican party.

I have been a democrat, I have been a greenbacker, but I had my reasons. I belonged to the greenback party because I thought some party ought to be reared up to oppose the republican party.

I was taught that the Republican party was going to build up a centralized government, a monarchy. That they were going to nominate Ulysses S. Grant, the man on horseback. I saw that the Republican party didn't nominate Grant, that they nominated a man who never sought the office. While on the other hand the democrats nominated a man on horse-back, and subjected themselves to the same thing that they charged the Republican party with, consequently I tho't the democrats were not honest and left them to join the republican ranks.

I thought the greenbackers were honest in their convictions as they were. But I have lived to see the country prosperous under the Resumption act, to see the homes throughout the land blessed with happiness and plenty, to see all trades and business become stable and thrifty. And not the greenback but the republican party effected this.

The way for the greenbackers to obtain their purpose, their great idea of prosperity is to work, spend less than you earn, rear a contented and happy family and treat your wife decently. Prosperous men work on the canal, then teach school, become college professors, and by the grace of God become Presidents of the U. S. This is the way to solve the greenback problem.

When I belonged to the democratic party I became mad when the republicans called us "Copper heads" for it wasn't true, we sent many a boy in blue to the war to fight for the union, we were not in favor of the South ruling the country, we didn't believe in secession. But to-day you want to join with the south and give them possession of the government. I want some democrat to show me a single Southern democrat or paper that says the war was wrong. And if they are not willing to say that they fought wrongly I am not willing to vote for them. And furthermore if you are against the war and not in favor of the South ruling, you ought to pause to consider, before you vote the democratic ticket. To-day I am not in favor of supporting that party which is in favor of the principles for which Jackson and Lee fought.

The democrats of the South have always been a source of turmoil, their policy is to rule or ruin. But the Northern democrats say the South cannot influence Gen. Hancock, they expect the tail to wag the dog, but, I tell you, it will never happen. Mr. May begs for reconciliation, but what is the use if they don't want reconciliation at the South? I tell you the object is to get electoral votes, they are hungry and like the man out of meat after the woodchuck.

The democrats say that the republicans commit too many frauds. Well, I know that Grant's administration was disgraced with great frauds. There is no use of denying it. But the republican party has put its foot upon it. Look at the administration of R. B. Hayes. There are no frauds to be found under him. The republican party has redeemed itself.

As regards the stealing of the presidency by the republicans, they were too sharp for the democrats, they beat them at their own game. It makes considerable difference who is officer of the court on a political question.

The democrats talk about Garfield's Credit Mobilier, but they didn't know anything about it until it came out from the other party. As soon as I heard Garfield was nominated I went to the papers to find out about the Credit Mobilier charge, I found that all the testimony of Oakes Ames was left out, so I didn't put any confidence in the reports. I know that the people who live about him had the confidence in him to elect him to the U. S. senate.

The democrats also want a change, just because they do. I had rather trust the North than the South, and that is all you have got to decide. I ask you to vote right, according to your interest and duty, remembering the names of those who died to save you. I thank God that the purifying elements of the party are such that I can stand here and pay homage to that party that saved us, that fought for our country, that has given us prosperity, that has given us a currency equal to any in the world. Remember that this is a battle of the vigilant, and do your duty at the polls and then lay your heads down in peace, assured of success and common liberty.

THE COUNTY FAIR.

The preparations for the County Fair to be held next week, at Adrian, are being rapidly completed. The Times says:

"Next Tuesday the county fair commences in this city, and continues four days. We are pleased to announce that, with reasonably fair weather, the forthcoming exhibition gives promise of being a grand success. The officers of the society are exerting themselves to leave nothing undone on their part, the grounds and buildings are in first-class shape, and the liberal premium list and a just local pride ought to induce the farmers of Lenawee county to contribute by their presence and productions in making the coming fair second to none of its predecessors. The people of the city are heartily co-operating with the agricultural society, and we feel assured that the farmers of the county, who more than any other class determine the character of such exhibitions, will make the fair one of the most attractive ever held in the city.

GREENBACK COUNTY CONVENTION.

The Greenbackers of Lenawee county held a county convention at Adrian last Saturday. C. H. Dewey, of Cambridge, was chosen President, and Ed Learnard, of Franklin, was elected secretary. After the usual preliminary business, reports of committees, etc. the convention placed in nomination the following ticket:

Senator—H. C. Hall, of Hudson.
Sheriff—Benj. Reynolds, Franklin.
Clerk—J. B. Allen, Adrian.
Register—Sam. D. Moore, Raisin.
Treas.—Japheth Cross, Adrian.
Probate Judge—O. W. Bean, Tecumseh.
Surveyor—J. Hemenway, Deerfield.
Coroners—C. B. Case, Palmyra; W. Pelham, Woodstock.

No nominations were made for Prosecuting Attorney or Circuit Court Commissioners.

The tickets are all in the field. Now let the music begin.

We have received a book entitled Southeastern Kansas, written by a member of the Chicago press. The book is neatly gotten up and well written, contains full map and gives full and reliable information in regard to all counties in Southern and Southeastern Kansas, the more fertile portions of the State—with map of each county. Also valuable information in regard to the great lead and zinc mines of Southwest Missouri and Southeastern Kansas. The book is for gratuitous distribution, and may be had free of postage by addressing J. E. Lockwood, Kansas City, Mo. It should be in the hands of every person going to Kansas.

SANITARY SCIENCE.

WEARY WOMEN.

The Folly of Doing too much in the Endeavor to do Enough.

Nothing is more reprehensible and unspeakably wrong than the idea that a woman should be her duty by doing an amount of work that is far beyond her strength. She has only done not half her duty, but she has done injurious [illegible] to herself. [illegible] work, without stopping like a machine, then, for the sake of lightening [illegible] the work, go. Better to live in the midst of disorder than that order should be purchased at so high a price—the cost of health, strength, happiness and all that makes existence endurable. The woman who spends her life in unnecessary labor is by this very labor unfitted for the highest duties of home. She should be the loved of rest to which her husband [illegible] intelligent partner and guide of the one. The tender confidant and helpmate of the other. How is it possible for a woman exhausted in body, and as a natural consequence in mind also, to perform either of these offices? No, it is not possible. The natural check is too great. Nature gives why be death at. She loses health, and spirit and hopefulness, and more than all, her peace, the last thing that a woman should allow to slip from her, for, no matter how old she is in years and feeling, for the period of age she should be growing to begin to anticipate the attractive time youth itself. To the over-wrought woman this group old age is out of the question; old age comes on her now as a yellow before its time. Her disposition is ruined, her temper perverted, her very nature is changed by the burden which, too heavy to carry, is thrown along as very as worried feet and tired hands can do their part. Even her affections are blighted, and she becomes merely a machine—a woman without the name to be womanly, a mother without the time to train and guide her children, not only a mother but a wife without the time to sympathize with and cheer her husband, a woman so overworked during the day that when night comes her sole thought and most intense longing is for the rest and sleep that very probably will not come, and even if it should, that she is too tired to enjoy. Better by far let everything go unfinished, to live as best she can, than to entail on herself and family the curse of overwork.—Sanitary Magazine.

HOT-AIR BATHS.

Now that the hot-air bath has been fairly naturalized, it is necessary to examine the institution critically. One of the most obvious sanitary conditions of the bath, but unfortunately, that which it is most difficult to secure, is the purity of the atmosphere in which the breathing organs of persons in a peculiarly susceptible or physiological state, are immersed. The breather of impure gases, under ordinary circumstances, takes his poison largely diluted. If the air of a Turkish bath is laden with germs of disease thrown off from the lungs of a fever or a consumptive patient, there are currents to carry the particles away. It is a physical certainty that others breathing in the bath must inhale them. This is an evident source of peril, and suggests the wisdom of taking measures to insure the frequent changing of an atmosphere which may be so easily polluted. Care is also required to compel those who conduct such baths in the way of trade to provide attendants who not only can but will do what is necessary for the bathers. For example, if cold water is ordered for a patient, he or she should not be deprived of the full benefit such application may be likely to afford because the attendants are too indolent to procure the requisite appliances, as recently happened at a well-known bath.—London Lancet.

HOW TO GET RICH.

The great secret of obtaining riches is first to practice economy, and as good old "Deacon Snyder" says, "It used to worry the life out of me to pay enormous doctor's bills. But now I have 'struck it rich.' Health and happiness reign supreme in our little household, and all simply because we use no other medicine but Electric Bitters and only cost fifty cents a bottle. Sold by C. A. Wright & Co., Tecumseh.

A mother noticing her little daughter wipe her mouth with her clean sleeve, asked her what her handkerchief was for. Said the little one—"It is to shake at the ladies in the street.—That is what papa does with his."

Cathartic Pills

Combine the choicest cathartic principles in medicine by proportions accurately adjusted to secure activity, certainty, and uniformity of effect. They are the result of years of careful study and practical experiment, and are the most effectual, safe yet disagreeable remedies for diseases caused by derangement of the stomach, liver, and bowels, which require prompt and effectual treatment. AYER'S PILLS are specifically applicable to this class of complaints. They act promptly on the digestive and assimilative processes, and restore regular healthy action. Their extensive use for years proves their value in the cure of the many kinds of disease to which they are adapted, and their perfectly reliable purgative properties. Being compounded of the concentrated extract of purely vegetable substances, they are positively free from calomel or any injurious properties, and can be administered to children with perfect safety.

AYER'S PILLS are an effectual cure for Constipation, or Costiveness, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Loss of Appetite, Foul Stomach and Breath, Dizziness, Headache, Loss of Memory, Numbness, Biliousness, Jaundice, Rheumatism, Erysipelas and Skin Diseases, Dropsy, Tumors, Worms, Neuralgia, Colic, Gripes, Diarrhœa, Dysentery, Gout, Piles, Disorders of the Liver, and all other diseases resulting from a disordered state of the digestive apparatus.

As a Dinner Pill they have no equal.

While gentle in their action, these Pills are the most thorough and searching cathartic that can be employed, and never give pain unless the bowels are inflamed and then their influence is healing. They stimulate the appetite and digestive organs, they operate to purify and enrich the blood, and impart renewed health and vigor to the whole system.

SELECTING SEED CORN.

In selecting seed-corn observe the time of ripening, number of ears upon the stalk, and the perfection of ears. Corn which ripens earliest in the field, other things being favorable is to be preferred. Choose from stalks that have two or three ears developed, selecting the ear that grows low on the stalk. Ears that grow on long footstalks are objectionable. A full-sized ear on which the rows are regular, well filled out at the end and but little larger at the butt than in the middle, if it has ripened in good season and grows low on a moderate sized stalk and is taken from the standing corn, is first-class for the variety to which it belongs.

There is considerable diversity of opinion as to the precise period when the selection of seed-corn should be made. Some cultivators claim that seed gathered and dried in the sun as soon as the kernel is out of the milk has more vitality to withstand cold and damp after it is planted than that allowed to remain on the stalk until dead ripe. Others, and the larger class, argue that perfect maturity of seed is desirable, and all acknowledge the necessity of the thorough drying of corn before the hard freezing weather of winter.

An ear with a large cob is not a good keeper, for the reason that the cob contains such a quantity of sap that the ear is liable to retain dampness, especially if the season proves a warm and damp one. In selecting seed from yellow corn the color may be changed from a dark to a light yellow by selecting a light-colored corn or vice versa. When it is desired to retain the corn as you get it, the custom is to select both colors. If the crop from which you are choosing tends to much to chaff or bran, give preference to the more flinty ears and you can soon remedy this difficulty.

After having sun-dried their seed-corn the farmers of some section store it in lofts of smoke-houses in order that it may become permeated with the odor of meat undergoing smoking there, and thus gain a protection when in the ground against the depredations of field-mice, worms, etc. The argument in favor of this practice is that the corn is thoroughly saturated with creosote, which is offensive, especially to squirrels.

The grain should remain until spring, when it is carefully shelled by hand and every ear examined to make sure that it is sound and perfect. All small grains near the point of the cob should be discarded and only the perfect ones saved for planting. The ears ought to be stowed in a dry place to be secure from rats and mice, and where they will not be exposed to sudden changes of temperature, which are liable to affect injuriously the germinating of the seed. An old-time practice still followed in many localities consists of pulling the husks back to the but and braiding the ears together by them in long strings. These strings are then hung in some dry and well-ventilated place, as an attic or loft, until such time as the corn is required for planting.—New York World.

The common disease in cows and sheep which appears by watery blisters on the feet and between the claws of the hoof, followed by raw spots which are difficult to heal, is known as aphthous fever. Sometimes it is accompanied by similar blisters on the lips and tongue, when it is called foot and mouth disease. It is fever, or blood disease, and is contagious and troublesome, but not serious, and easily submits to treatment, as follows: Give one pound of salts, and when that has operated, give one ounce of hyposulphite of soda, daily; wash the sore spots with water and soap, and dress them with an ointment as follows: Melt four ounces of lard and one ounce of spermaceti together, and one ounce of acetate of copper (verdigris), and stir thoroughly, and while still fluid add one ounce of turpentine and stir until cold. Keep for use. The ointment is excellent for any raw sores or galls, and may be usefully kept in any stable.

A correspondent informs us that, while on a visit in the fall to a friend, he was surprised to see the number of eggs he daily obtained. He had but sixteen hens, and the product per diem averaged thirteen eggs. He was in the habit of giving, on every alternate day, a teaspoonful and a quarter of cayenne peper-mixed with soft food, and took care that each hen obtained her share. The experiment of omitting the pepper was tried, when it was found that the number of eggs was reduced each trial to from five to six daily. Our correspondent believes that the moderate use of this stimulant not only increases the number of eggs, but effectually wards off diseases to which chickens are subject.—Germantown Telegraph.

FINE WOOL SHEEP.

Though several varieties of fine-wool sheep are cultivated in the United States it is seldom that any other than the American Merino will be found on exhibition. A few French sheep are owned in the States and a goodly number on the Pacific slope.—The French Merino has more size, though less hardiness, than the improved Spanish type, christened the "American Merino." The Silesian Merino will be occasionally met with. These differ from the other varieties of fine-wools in the absence of wrinkles—especially observable in the rams—and a longer, though less dense fleece. They are sometimes called Delaine Merinos, their wool being adapted to the manufacture of goods bearing that name.

"The little, greasy Merinos," as they are sometimes derisively termed, tho' possessing fewer attractions to the eye of the casual observer than most other breeds of sheep, are the backbone of the wool growing industry of more than one nation. They, with their crosses, yield a large majority of the wool, and fully half the mutton, consumed in the United States. They are the sheet anchor of the Australian and South American sheep husbandry. Let him who doubts their merits as wool producers carefully lay open the uninviting exterior of the fleece, and feast his eyes upon the lustrous fibres therein hidden, and then, if he can, repress his admiration for the humble bearer of the "golden fleece." The males of all the fine-wool varieties have heavy, spiral-shaped horns, projecting from the side of the forehead, which they can use to advantage by way of defense or attack.—Nat. Live Stock Journal.

TRANSPLANTING TREES.

We have two or three inquiries now before us, as to whether spring or fall is the best time to set out trees. We can't tell how often we have treated on this subject, but it is natural that the question should continue to be asked, as young men grow up, marry and either go to farming or in other ways possess land and desire information as to what fruit-trees to plant and when to plant them. In a very few words we would say that there is not much choice in the season. If the soil is naturally moist, spring is probably to be preferred for setting out; if dry, fall. If the trees are large early fall should be chosen, and as soon as the trees are done growing and the leaves begin to drop. In both cases the trees should be taken out of the ground carefully and with as many of the small roots as possible, and be planted as soon after as possible, before the roots become dry. To prevent this becoming so they should be well covered, kept out of the sun in transporting, and "heeled in" or buried and liberally watered as soon as they arrive until ready for planting. The planting cannot be done too carefully. The hole should be large enough to receive all the roots carefully spread out, and the ground put about them sho'd be fine and rich. If the roots are too big they should be somewhat pruned, and the branches of the trees also—Sometimes the branches, where the roots are few and have been injured in taking up, should be severely shortened to save the life of the tree.—Germantown Telegraph.

Feels Young Again.

"My mother was afflicted a long time with Neuralgia and a dull, heavy, inactive condition of the whole system, headache, nervous prostration, and was almost helpless. No physicians or medicines did her any good. Three months ago she began to use Hop Bitters, with such good effect that she seems and feels young again, although over 70 years old.—We think there is no other medicine fit to use in the family."—A lady, Providence, R. I.

The sales of cattle this year in Texas, it is estimated, will reach 7,000,000 head, all of which will have to be driven or transported thousands of miles to market. With an abundance of good and cheap land so much nearer market, it does seem that beef-raising in Michigan should be a larger and more profitable business than it is.

Astonishing the World.

For a perfect renovation of exhausted and enfeebled constitutions, female weakness and decline, nothing so surely and speedily produces a permanent cure as does Electric Bitters. Their wonderful cures are astonishing the world. For Kidney or Urinary complaints they are a perfect specific. Do not give up in dispair, for Electric Bitters will positively cure, and that where everything else fails. Sold by C. A. Wright & Co., at 50 cents a bottle.

To the question, "What do you estimate the annual cost of keeping sheep to be per head?" submitted by the Commissioner of Agriculture of the State of Tennessee to seventy-one different persons, the answer varied from 25 cents to two dollars. Several put it at 30 cents and 33 cents. Four answers from Sumner county put it respectively at $1, $1.25 and $2.

This cut represents the Hoe of the

STRAYER DRILL.

Each Hoe spreading the grain over a space

THREE INCHES WIDE,

So that in a 9-Hoed Drill there is

27 INCHES

Of ground covered with grain,

THREE TIMES THE AMOUNT

Of ground that other Drills cover, thereby equalizing the seed as well as the strength of the ground. We make a depth gauge on each Hoe so that each row is put in a proper depth, an advantage over all other Drills in the field.

Hundreds of the best farmers in Michigan, Ohio and Indiana will testify that

More Wheat Can Be Raised

To the Acre by using such a Hoe than any other. Farmers will please examine the Strayer Drill before purchasing.

TESTIMONY

Of the Hon. John E. Gray, Judge of the Superior Court, Chicago, Ill.

CHICAGO, Dec. 14, 1876.

DR. S. D. HOWE,

DEAR SIR:—Permit me to add my grateful testimony to the army of witnesses to the virtue of your justly celebrated Arabian remedies. For a long time my wife was seriously afflicted with hacking cough, oppressed breathing, soreness of the chest, and constant acute pain in the lower portion of the right lung and under the shoulder blade. Her sufferings were intense, and she became extremely nervous and prostrated. Her disease was pronounced consumption by the physicians of Chicago and other cities, whose prescriptions had been taken without benefit. When you visited Chicago in June, 1873, we called on you, having very little hope of deriving help from your treatment. We were inspired with hope by the skillful manner in which your thorough examination was conducted, and the satisfactory explanation with which you closed your diagnosis. My wife determined to take your medicines in accordance with your plan and practical directions. She began to use the Arabian Milk Cure and Arabian Tonic; their beneficial effect at once became manifest—the cough loosened and soon ceased, respiration became easy, the soreness of the chest was relieved and all pain removed, she began to gain in flesh and improve in strength and appearance. I fully believe that your medicines and skillful advice have saved the life of my wife. She unites with me in this grateful tribute to the merit of your remedies.

Very respectfully yours,
JOSEPH E. GRAY.

TO THE AFFLICTED.

Since the introduction of Kellogg's Columbian Oil it has made more permanent cures and given better satisfaction on Kidney complaints and Rheumatism than any know remedy. Its continued series of wonderful cures in all climates has made it known as a safe and reliable agent to employ against all aches and pains, which are the forerunners of more serious disorders. It acts speedily and surely, always relieving suffering and often saving life. The protection it affords by its timely use on Rheumatism, kidney affection, and all aches and pains, wounds, cramping pains, cholera morbus, diarrhœa, coughs, colds, catarrh, and disorders among children, makes it an invaluable remedy to be kept always on hand in every home. No person can afford to be without it, and those who have once used it never will. It is absolutely certain in its remedial effects and will always cure when cures are possible. Call at C. A. Wright & Co's. and get a memorandum book giving more full details of the curative properties of this wonderful medicine.

Greatest Remedy Known.

Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumptive is certainly the greatest medical remedy ever placed within the reach of suffering humanity.—Thousands of once hopeless sufferers, now loudly proclaim their praise for this Discovery to which they owe their lives. Not only does it positively cure Consumption, but Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, Hay Fever, Hoarseness and all affections of the Throat, Chest and Lungs yield at once to its wonderful curative powers as if by magic. We do not ask you to buy a large bottle until you know what you are getting. We therefore earnestly request you to call on your druggists, M. Wright & Son, and get a trial bottle free of cost which will convince the most skeptical of its wonderful merits, and show you what a regular one dollar size bottle will do. For sale by M. Wright & Son, Tecumseh.

Poverty and Suffering.

"I was dragged down with debt, poverty and suffering for years, caused by a sick family and large bills for doctoring, which did them no good.—I was completely discouraged, until one year ago, by the advice of my pastor, I procured Hop Bitters and commenced their use, and in one month we were all well and none of us have seen a sick day since, and I want to say to all poor men, you can keep your families well a year with Hop Bitters for less than one doctor's visit will cost—I know it.

A WORKINGMAN."

How to Get Rich.

The great secret of obtaining riches, is first to practice economy, and as good old "Deacon Snyder," says, "It used to worry the life out of me to pay enormous doctor's bills, but now I have "struck it rich." Health and happiness reign supreme in our little household, and all simply because we use no other medicine but Electric Bitters and only costs fifty cents a bottle. Sold by C. A Wright & Co., Tecumseh.

THE ONLY MEDICINE
That Acts at the Same Time on THE LIVER,
THE BOWELS,
and the KIDNEYS.

These great organs are the natural cleansers of the system. If they work well, health will be perfect; if they become clogged, dreadful diseases are sure to follow with

TERRIBLE SUFFERING.

Biliousness, Headache, Dyspepsia, Jaundice, Constipation and Piles, or Kidney Complaints, Gravel, Diabetes, Sediment in the Urine, Milky or Ropy Urine; or Rheumatic Pains and Aches, are developed because the blood is poisoned with the humors that should have been expelled naturally.

KIDNEY-WORT

will restore the healthy action and all these destroying evils will be banished; neglect them and you will live but to suffer.

Thousands have been cured. Try it and you will add one more to the number. Take it and health will once more gladden your heart.

Why suffer longer from the torment of an aching back?
Why bear such distress from Constipation and Piles?
Why be so fearful because of disordered urine?

KIDNEY-WORT will cure you. Try a pack age at once and be satisfied.

It is a dry vegetable compound and One Package makes six quarts of Medicine.

Your Druggist has it, or will get it for you. Insist upon having it. Price, $1.00.

THE READY FAMILY SOAP MAKER:

LEWIS' LYE

98 PER CENT. PURE.
(Patented.)
FINELY POWDERED.
HIGHLY PERFUMED.

The strongest and purest Lye made. Will make 12 pounds of the best Perfumed Hard Soap in 20 minutes without boiling.
The best water-softener made.
The best disinfectant.
The following are some of the advantages obtained by using Lewis' 98 Per Cent. Powdered Lye:

First. It is packed in an iron can with a sifter top, easily taken off and leaving the contents exposed, thereby saving the trouble, annoyance, and danger (from flying particles), as with other Lyes, which, being solid in the cans, must be broken with a hammer to get the Lye out.

Second. It being a fine powder, you can remove the lid and pour out all the contents, being always ready for use.

Third. A teaspoonful or more can be used, as in water-softening, scrubbing, etc., and the lid returned to the can, and thereby save the balance of contents. With other Lyes all must be dissolved at once and used in a short time, or the strength is gone.

Fourth. Absolute purity. Free from all adulterations.

Fifth. The best Soap can be made in from ten to twenty minutes with this Lye.

Sixth. No failure is possible in making Soap with this Lye when the simple directions given are followed.

Seventh. One can of this Powdered Lye is equal to twenty pounds of Sal Soda or Washing Soda.

Eighth. One can of this Lye will saponify one pound more of grease than any other Concentrated Lye, Ball Potash, or Saponifier.

Ninth. This Lye is 98 per cent. stronger than any other Lye or Potash.

Tenth. One to two teaspoonfuls will soften a tub of the hardest water.

Eleventh. One teaspoonful will thoroughly cleanse Sinks, Drains, or Closets.

Invaluable for killing Roaches, Mice, Rats, etc.

The best article for washing Trees.

AROUND THE COUNTY.

FRANKLIN.

The republican meeting on Friday evening last was largely attended, and Dr. Bynd fully sustained the reputation he enjoys of being one of the most eloquent and candid political speakers in Southern Michigan, and at the same time awakened much enthusiasm on the part of republicans in this vicinity. At the close of the speech it was proposed to organize a Garfield & Arthur club, and 73 names were obtained, and we are informed that many have been added since, but a thorough organization has not yet been effected.

Mrs. Will Lewis, daughter of S. S. Decker, has been very sick for some days with inflammation of the bowels, but is now out of danger it is hoped.

Our town is well represented at the county fair, especially in sheep, for which it is noted throughout the State.

The regular communion service will be held at the Congregational Church next Sabbath morning, and one week from that time Rev. J. Vincent will close his labors here, and contemplates moving to Detroit soon thereafter.

Mrs. Eli Knight is still in a critical condition, and her complete recovery seems hardly possible.

We forgot to mention in connection with the republican meeting here, the Glee Club, from Adrian, consisting of Messrs. Rice, Bliss & Johnson, who sang several campaign songs in a manner peculiar to themselves, adding much to the interest and pleasure of the meeting.

Hon. George Williard is advertised to address the republican meeting at Tuttle's Hall on Monday evening next.

RIDGEWAY.

Who is the Times cor. now?

Who was hunting savages on the straw stack of Jesse Exelby the other day?

All the saw mills in this vicinity are in full blast getting out R. R. timber.

Clark & Son are repainting and otherwise improving their store preparatory to filling it with fall goods.

We expect the usual weakly criticism of this week's communication by the P. M. upon the arrival of the mail to-morrow afternoon.

Ask Chas. Brownson what time it is and get a glimpse of his new hunting-case frying pan.

John Arner, aged 81 years, died at his late residence on the Ridge road, on Sunday morning. The funeral took place at the M. E. church on Monday, at 3 o'clock, and was largely attended; the discourse was preached by the Rev. Mr. De Spelder, of Macon.

The annual renting of the pews in the M. E. church will take place in the auditorium of the church on Wednesday, Oct. 6th, in the afternoon. A full attendance is desired.

The Opera House was well filled last Friday evening to hear the Hon. E. Willits and Col. Fitzsimmons.

Dr. R. R. Nelson is getting material onto the ground for a new house on North street.

The carpenter's are at work putting in cattle guards on the Bowen contract of the D. & B. R. R.

The Adrian Times prints a batch of Ridgeway items last week under the head of "Tecumseh Topics." Well, well, we had heard that it was mighty dull in T. lately, but didn't suppose you had to come so far out as the Ridge to get "Tecumseh Topics."

SOUTH MACON.

The Red Ribbon club met as usual last Saturday evening with a good attendance, below is the program:

Singing by the choir.
Ins. music—Hattie Osgood.
Rec.—Maggie Clarkson.
Dec.—S. G. Osborne.
Singing by the choir.

A few remarks on temperance by A. Eastlick, followed by Edward Howell and M. J. Martin.

The club will hold a chicken pie and lemonade party at the hall Saturday evening next, let everybody come.

David Harrison has lost two horses inside of three weeks.

A match game of base ball will be played next Saturday afternoon, between the Grange Hall club and the Lake Ridge club on the Grange Hall grounds. Refreshments will be served on the grounds. Admittance to the grand stand 10 cts.

Covert Osgood and wife are visiting friends in this vicinity.

M. J. Martin is at work for Milan Sage, boiling down cane juice. He is an extra hand as this is his 18th season he has worked at the business.

SOME PLAIN TALK.

Gen. Hancock's Views on the Allowance of "Rebel Claims."

On the 20th inst. Theodore Cook, of Cincinnati, wrote a letter to Gen. Hancock, inclosing newspaper clippings asserting that if he (Hancock) were elected president, the claims of disloyalists in the south for losses by the war would be paid by the United States, and calling upon him as "a frank, honest hearted soldier, now the representative of the democratic party and having a right to speak for it," to give his views on the matter of rebel claims. In reply Mr. Cook received the following letter:

GOVERNOR'S ISLAND, NEW YORK, September 23, 1880.

To Theodore Cook, Esq., Cincinnati, O.

Dear Sir—Your letter of the 20th inst, has been received. I regret that you are disturbed about that bugbear—southern war claims. The people cannot be misled by it. To suppose that "rebel claims," or claims in the interest of persons who were in the rebellion, or in any way or in any degree countenanced it, is an imputation of disloyalty such as used to be made against democrats even when they were in arms defending the country. So far as it touches me, I denounce it. The government can never pay a debt or grant a pension or reward of any sort for waging war upon its own existence, nor could I be induced to approve or encourage the payment of such a debt, pension or reward. Nobody expects or wants such unnatural action. To propose it would be an insult to the intelligence and honor of our people. When the rebellion was crushed the heresy of secession, in every form and in every incident, went down forever. It is the thing of the dead past. We move forward, not backward. If I were president I would veto all legislation which might come before me providing for the consideration or payment of claims of any kind for losses or damage by persons who were in the rebellion, whether pardoned or not.

In relation to union war claims, the government's obligations to its defenders come first. They are lasting and sacred. The public laws of civilized nations do not in general recognize claims for injuries to property resulting from the operations of the war. Nevertheless our government has treated with great indulgence the claims for losses and damages suffered by union men from the military operation of the war of the union. But as hostilities were closed more than fifteen years ago, claims of that nature, now mostly in the hands of brokers or persons other than the original sufferers, are becoming stale, and in my judgement might fairly be considered as barred by the lapse of time, and if hereafter entertained at all should be subjected to the strictest scrutiny. Yours very truly,

W. S. HANCOCK.

Intense Suffering from Kidneys Cured.

Montgomery Center, Vt. Feb. 25.

Gentlemen—I feel it a duty and a pleasure not only to acknowledge my gratitude to you personally, but also to bring my case before the public, and testify after eight years intense suffering, what your Kidney-Wort has done for me. For the past year have been taking different remedies for Kidney Disease, but derived no benefit. Have had trouble with my Kidneys for eight years very bad by spells, and for several months, able to do but very little work, at times passing blood from the bladder, and experienced a prickly sensation all over. I was fearful of paralysis, and was dizzy, afraid to stoop over from fear of falling. At last in January commenced taking your Kidney-Wort and found almost immediate relief. One box made a new man of me. I feel almost as well as ever in my life, and I sincerely believe it will restore to health all who may be similarly afflicted.

MICHAEL COTO.

Messrs. Wells, Richardson & Co.,

Gentlemen—The above named person has been in our employ the past three years, and we know him to be a man of truth and honor; we believe and know his condition and statement to be true. We know of others in this vicinity equally as thankful for the benefits derived from the use of this medicine. Respectfully Yours,

Sherman, Bradish & Co.

The London Live Stock Journal says that America will beat England in a fair cheap, popular make of cheese. But in fine qualities her only real rivals are some Continental makes, and there is a safe market yet for all who will study the better class of English palates, both in butter and cheese.—Many a dairy farmer, it says, would do well to leave the beaten track, and try to make more out of the luxuries which a good dairy is capable of producing.

SEPT. 30th, Oct. 7th and Oct. 14th, the Lake Shore road will sell excursion tickets from Adrian to those wishing to attend the Chicago exposition at $4.25 for the round trip. Tickets good for three days.

DON'T forget to see "Our Girls" at the Opera House, Saturday evening.

GLEANINGS FROM THE COUNTY PRESS.

Adrian Press: An Adrian young man whose surname contains fifteen vowels and consonants has heard that for seven dollars he can send to Lansing to have his name changed. If he does he'll change it to "Schotty"—oh! we didn't intend to mention names!

Hudson Post: Last Monday, Sept. 20, Allie, a son of Joseph Webster, of Rollin, accidently shot himself with a revolver, the ball striking him over the right lung. It was at first feared that it had entered the lung, but he was taken to Dr. Hyde, of Rollin, who probed the wound, but could not find the ball.

Clinton News: A seven-year old son of Frank Bradly met with a painful accident last Saturday. His father placed him on a horse for a little ride, but the horse brushed against a cedar tree to rub off the flies, and the boy was also brushed off, falling in such a manner as to break both bones of his right fore arm. Dr. J. L. Tuttle was called and set the bones, and at last accounts the little fellow was getting along nicely.

Adrian Press: The Hudson Post states that while the Garfield Guards were on parade Wednesday evening, they were followed by a lot of boys and youngsters who threw sand stones, dead rats and other missles, and blew out torches. This if true is disgraceful in the extreme. It is no justification for such conduct that the republicans at Tecumseh two years ago threw rotten eggs at the speaker. Democracy and manliness demand that such cowardly offenses be punished severely by whomsoever perpetrated.

Deerfield Record: Henry Cowles, a farmer residing in the western part of the township, had a fit in W. F. Hood & Co's drug store, last Saturday afternoon. In falling he ran his left hand through a pane of glass in the front door and cut a terrible gash in his wrist on the ragged glass. Dr. Jones, of Petersburg, who happened to be in town, was immediately called, and dressed the wound, which necessitated the taking of seven stiches. After the operation Mr. Cowles returned to his home, where he will be laid up for some time by the accident.

Adrian Press: A young man well-known in the city, and thoroughly posted in most things, though a little off on biblical history, saw in the Press a comparison between Ananias and a political speaker, and looking up innocently inquired, "who the d—l is this Ananias? I noticed that another newspaper gave him a stab yesterday." Seeing that our friend was really in earnest in his inquiry, a biblical scholar present explained that it was Ananias who is recorded in sacred history as having been struck dead for lying. "Ah," said the young man "if it had been in any other book I would have known all about it."

Clinton News: On Saturday last, Henry Palmer and Joseph Rawson, of Bridgewater, were returning home from Fred Marble's blacksmith shop, in an open buggy. Another horse which they were leading behind the buggy, caught its leg in the wheel in such a manner as to upset the buggy, throwing both gentlemen out, Mr. Rawson striking on his neck and shoulders and the buggy falling on top of him. Mr. Palmer jumped upon the horse, which had also fallen over, and held him down until help arrived, thus preventing the buggy from being dragged over Mr. Rawson. When Mr. R. was extracted, it was found that he was senseless and very severely injured. The buggy was badly broken, but neither horse was injured, and Mr. Palmer escaped with a few slight scratches.

Hudson Post: Last Saturday afternoon, about five o'clock, a terrible tragedy occurred at the residence of Andrew Tiffany, about two miles west of Jonesville, in which Henry Lindley, a young man about 23 years old, a hired man of Mr. Tiffany, shot Alice, a daughter of his employer, and then shot himself. There were no adults in the house at the time but the victims, but some children who were at home, seeing Lindley with his revolver, thought something was wrong, ran to a neighbor's and gave the alarm. The neighbors summoned, came to the house and found Alice lying at the top of the stairs, and Lindley in a room below, both dead. Alice was only 18 years old, but it is said that she had led a rather wild life, and it is also rumored that she had been married to a man that is now in State's prison. Lindley was a rough looking illiterate fellow, and is thought formed an attachment for the woman which was not reciprocated, and to that cause is attributed the crime.

THE FAMILY CIRCLE.

DEAD LEAVES.

BY WILLIAM O. RICHARDS.

A week ago—how beautiful!
To-day—how sere they lie!
The glory of the forest fled—
Like splendor from the sky,
Trample on the fallen leaves
That yesterday, like gems,
Flashed brightness and my wondering eyes
From countless diadems!

They answer my heedless feet
With crispness in their tones:
"Tread lightly for the beauty's sake
Thine eyes in us have known;
We were but shadows, when we glowed
In crimson, of thy pride;
We still are shadows of its fall,
And just before it, alike!"

I would the withered leaves were fair,
That I might strew to tread
Their dying verdure in the dust
With which my hopes fall dead;
For when, in crimson and in gold,
My ripened joys shall flame,
The brief, bright beauty of the leaves
Is theirs—to sere the same!

A FAMILY SECRET.

In the records of the secret service there are many cases the real facts of which are never made public. The ends of justice achieved, and the guilty ones punished, there is no need to drag the names of their relatives through the mire of public scandal; and while there are many sensations thus suppressed, more than one family secret is kept inviolate.

An instance is the Eastchamp tragedy.

Lady Eastchamp was the widow of a gentleman who had owned one of the finest estates in the English county of Yorkshire. She was the sole executor of her husband's property, which she held in trust for their only son. The age at which it should be handed over to him was not the usual age of 21, however, but 25.

At this age he was also to receive another fortune, bequeathed by an eccentric relative in Scotland, and which, principal and accumulated interest, amounted to more than a million sterling.

The one peculiar condition about this last bequest was that if the young man did not take possession precisely at twelve o'clock upon his 25th birthday it was to revert to the next named heir named in the will, and between whom and the late Sir Charles Eastchamp had existed a life-long dislike, amounting almost to positive hatred.

The young man, now Sir Henry, had always had a taste, almost amounting to passion, for traveling, and when he had reached the age of twenty-three had accompanied an exploring expedition into the interior of Africa. Nearly two years passed without any word from him reaching home, until, within a week of his twenty-fifth birthday, he returned, and claiming his property according to the conditions of both wills, took up his residence at the hall.

A month afterward Lady Eastchamp was taken suddenly ill, and for several weeks was confined to her bed with a malignant fever.

During the whole time she was most tenderly nursed by a young girl, her adopted daughter, and thanks to her care, the crisis of the fever was safely passed, and the lady was on the fair way to recovery.

For nearly a week these favorable symptoms continued, and she was fast approaching convalescence, when one morning the nurse awakening from her doze in her chair found the lady lying dead and cold in her bed.

The alarm was given at once, and the physicians, hurridly summoned, declared that she had died by poison.

Laudanum was the drug that had been used, and when the fact was learned that the previous afternoon the lady's adopted daughter had purchased it in the adjoining village, though not at once brought into custody, she was placed under strict surveillance.

This adopted daughter, whose name was Clara Lowell, was a very beautiful girl of not more than eighteen. The child of one of former schoolmates, who had died in giving her birth, Lady Eastchamp had always treated her as if she had really been her own daughter and now the girl could not have appeared more inconsolable had she in reality lost a mother.

Notwithstanding her display of grief, however, the circumstances appeared so strong against her that she was arrested.

She admitted having purchased the laudanum in compliance with Lady Eastchamp's request who had given the vial to her son. This, however, the young man positively denied.

When asked why she had not set up with the sick lady as she had done on previous nights, she replied she had done until twelve o'clock, when it was at Lady Eastchamp's own request she had retired.

"As for any further questions you may ask," she said firmly, "I will not answer them. Though I may have suspicions, I do not know anything except that I am innocent."

She adhered firmly to her resolution of silence and the strictest examination could not extort an answer from her. Her obstinacy, however had the effect of confirming the magistrates in their belief in her guilt, and she was consigned to prison to await her trial.

Though such was the effect upon the magistrates, there was one person who thought differently. This was a young detective who had been sent from Scotland Yard to work up the case, and his belief in the girls innocence was firm.

"She's hiding some family secret, not her own guilt," he said to himself; and proceeding to the prison he tried to engage her in conversation, in the hope that some chance word would give him a clew to the solution of the mystery.

In this hope he was doomed to disappointment, however, for the girl still remained firmly reticent, and quite discouraged he returned to the hall, but with an idea that had before occured to him taking more definite shape in his brain.

"If I could but imagine a motive," he said to himself, I would say it was the son who was guilty; but no; there could be none possible."

Still the idea would not be banished from his mind, and, remaining at the hall for two days longer, he watched the young baronet night and day, but without finding the least confirmation of his suspicions.

He was on the point of giving it up in utter despair, when on the evening before the funeral of the murdered lady a note was brought to him.

It was from the Eastchamp family lawyer and contained but half a dozen words:

"Come to my office at once."

Rewarding the messenger with a small coin, the detective at once started to obey the lawyer's summons.

He found him waiting with a flushed face and excited manner, and seizing him by the arm, he dragged him toward the inner office.

"A most extraordinary thing," he said. "Marvelous!"

Before the detective could reply they had passed into the private office, and found themselves face to face with a young man whose resemblance to the young baronet was so remarkable that involuntarily he exclaimed:

"Sir Henry Eastchamp!"

"Yes," the young man answered, "the real one. You are, I understand, a detective. Explain—"

An involuntary exclamation from the detective's lips as the truth flashed upon him, interrupted this sentence.

"Idiot," he cried, "not to have tho't of it before. I see it all now."

Then addressing the young man:

"But how do you, sir, explain your absence at the time when you should have appeared in person to claim your legacy?"

"Simply enough. I was with an exploring expedition in Africa. I was taken prisoner by the natives, and kept in captivity for over a year. As soon as I escaped I made the best of my way home, only to find another man stepped into my shoes."

"And did you send no word until your arrival in England?"

"Yes, I telegraphed to my mother from Aden."

"And that was?"

"A week ago to-day."

"And you have reached home several days sooner than you expected when you telegraphed?"

"Yes."

The detective could not refrain from an expression of pleasure.

"It grows as clear as noonday," he said. "It was the following night your mother was murdered."

He was silent for a moment, evidently thinking deeply. Then he asked:

"Is there any one at the hall—any old servant that has known you from childhood?"

"Yes, several. There is my old nurse, Ester, besides—"

"That will do," the detective interrupted: "let us lose no time, but go to the hall. We may be to late as it is."

His enthusiasm and energy were not without their effect upon his companions, and in silence they followed him from the office, and, hailing a passing carriage, entered it, and were driven to the hall.

At the park gates they alighted, and proceeding to the house, entered by the servants' door.

"Where is Sir Henry?" the detective asked one of the servants.

"In the library, sir," the man answered; "but he is busy, and does not wish to be disturbed to-night."

"It is no matter," the detective said, "send his old nurse, Mrs. Esther, there at once."

After giving his command, he passed rapidly along the passage and up the staircase, still followed by the lawyer and his companion, until he reached the library door, which without knocking, he opened, and entered the room.

The supposed baronet was seated at an escretoire writing, and at the intrusion he looked up, with a haughty frown on his face.

"What does this mean?" he began, but before he could finish the sentence the detective had reached his side, and laid his hand on his arm.

"It means," he answered, "that the rightful heir has come to claim his own, and that I, an officer of the detective force, arrest you for the murder of Lady Eastchamp."

A cry of despair broke from the lips of the arrested man, but with a sudden leap, he wreached himself from the detective's grasp, while his hand sought his breast.

Thinking he was about to draw a weapon, the detective's hand also grasped his revolver, but before he had done so the prisoner's hand had again been taken from his breast and raised to his mouth.

The sound of breaking glass as a vial crushed between his teeth, caused a malediction to leave the detective's lips.

"He has escaped us," he cried, with chagrin.

"Yes," the prisoner answered, in a voice of despairing triumph. "I have escaped you. In a few minutes I will be, in heaven!"

His voice died away in a choking, gasping sob, and he fell, face downward on the floor.

Almost at the same instant the door of the library again opened, and an old woman of more than sixty entered. For a moment she stood as one bewildered, and then quickly advanced to where the real baronet was standing.

"Ah, master Henry," she said, "it is you indeed. My poor, dear mistress never would believe you were dead, and it was that you might have your own when you came home that she got another to take your place."

The three visitors stood astonished at the secret her words revealed as she went on to tell how, sooner than allow the bequest to pass into the hands of her husband's enemy, Lady Eastchamp had procured a substitute to represent her son. They also understood how, learning that the real heir was about to return home, the impostor had sought to confirm his claim to the name and fortune gained by a fraud by a still darker crime.

He was free from human punishment now, however, for the poison he had swallowed was almost instantaneous in its effect, and he was dead. Miss Lowell was of course, at once released from prison, and a year or two later became Lady Eastchamp. The suicide of the impostor satisfied the public mind and beyond a favored few outside of the ranks of the secret service, no one ever knew the darker shades of this family secret.

THE KING OF BEASTS.

William Gahart denies Congressman Daggett's assertion that the mule is the king of beasts. Gahart accords the palm of superiority to the hog. A hog always knows what he is about. Gahart claims that no man on earth ever got the better of a hog in a fair struggle. He has tried to drive over hogs many times, but was successful only once. They sometimes lie in a hollow of the road fast asleep. Mr. Gahart has often borne down on them at a 2-40 pace, with a five-ton stage and a six-in-hand on a down grade. Just, however, as he confidently expected to see the air filled with wagon-grease and spare-ribs, they would lurch clear of the wheel or glide under the stage and come out all safe and sound, with a grunt of quiet satisfaction and a look that was more exasperating than to be robbed by road agents. Mr. Gahart never got away with a hog but once. The animal dodged a train of cars coming out of a tunnel, and he whipped up his horses and caught the hog square in the neck with one of the fore wheels and killed it. The stage however, upset and smashed everything in sight. Two men were killed outright and several woman maimed for life. The hog calculated all right for the locomotive, but was out of his reckoning on the stage. But the company thought the victory over the hog was dearly purchased.

Gahart also asserts that a hog can whip a mule, Daggett's assertion to the contrary notwithstanding.

"I say, old lady," said a man on a country road near this city yesterday, "did you see a bicycle pass here just now?" "No, I didn't see see no kind of a sickle, mister; but just now I seed a wagon wheel runnin away with a man. You kin believe it or not. I wouldn't if I hadn't seed it myself.

"You get up all kinds of bricks here don't you?" inquired a man at one of our leading brickyards. "Yes, about all. What do you want?" The man edged toward the front of the yard as he replied. "Cambrics would do," and then cam-bricks at his head in every direction as he took to flight.

A misfortune.—A poor woman called on a gentleman: "You remember me," she said; "I am the wife of the blind man to whom you have been so kind." "What has happened?" "A great misfortune has overtaken us." "I am very sorry; what is it?" "My husband has recovered his sight."

A down-town policeman found a loafer last week on the wharf asleep, with his mouth wide open. Being at loss what charge to make, the sergeant suggested that he charge him with keeping a rum-hole open without license.

TO-DAY AND TO-MORROW.

To-day we gather bright and beautiful flowers—to-morrow they are faded and dead.

To-day a wreath of leaves shades us—to-morrow sear, and, fallen, they crumble beneath our tread.

To-day the earth is covered with a carpet of green—to-morrow it is brown with the withered grass.

To-day the vigorous stalk only bends before the gale—to-morrow leafless and sapless, a child may break the brittle stem.

To-day the ripening fruit and waving grain—to-morrow the land is taking its rest after toil.

To-day we hear sweet songsters of meadows and forests, the buzz and hum of myriad insects—to-morrow breath softly, all nature is hushed and silent.

To-day a stately edifice, complete in finish and surrounding, attracts the passer-by—to-morrow a heap of ruins marks the site.

To-day there are cattle upon a thousand hills—to-morrow they fall by slaughter.

The fashion of the world passes away. But let Christ dwell within us, and though we pass away like the faded leaf and shapeless stalk, we shall arise to newness of life.

'Where everlasting joy abides,
And never withering flowers.'

THE GREATEST MEDICAL DISCOVERY OF THE AGE.

Kellogg's Columbian Oil is a powerful remedy, which can be taken internally as well as externally by the tenderest infant. It cures almost instantly, is pleasant, acting directly upon the nervous system, causing a sudden buoyancy of the mind. Warranted to cure the following diseases: Rheumatism or Kidney Disease in any form, Headache, Toothache, Neuralgia, Sprains, Bruises, Flesh Wounds, Bunions, Burns, Corns, Spinal Affection, Colic, Cramping Pains, Cholera Morbus, Flux, Diarrhoea, Coughs, Colds, Bronchial affection, Catarrh, and all aches and pains, external and internal. Full directions with each bottle. For sale by C. A. Wright & Co., Tecumseh

WEARINESS OF LIFE.

There is a so-called weariness of life which is almost as common with the young as it is with the old, and in some cases ought to be easier to cure, since it has not the whole stiffness of long and rigid habits of life to fight against as the weariness of life which comes of eager acting when eager acting is no longer possible, certainly has. Should there not be much more general recognition than our Western world admits, that neither all women nor all men are fitted for a pushing life, and yet that a good number of both sexes are quite competent for a certain fullness of life in quiet form, which they simply spoil by forcing themselves into the heat and turmoil of our Western world's busiest scenes?—The Spectator.

Stop That Cough.

A girl was found nailed to a plank, so that she could move neither hands nor feet, and floating on the Yangtse river, in China. Besides her was the head of a Buddhist priest, and some coins. An inscription said: "This money is provided for her coffin when she is dead." She belonged to a wealthy family, and her two brothers, petty mandarins, used this cruel treatment because she married the priest whose head was on the plank with her.

It NEVER FAILS to make light bread when used as directed.

It is COMMENDED by every housekeeper who has given it a fair trial.

It is an entirely NEW INVENTION, without any of the bad qualities of soda or saleratus, yeast or other baking powders.

It has in itself a tendency to sustain and nourish the system.

Good food makes good health; and health is improved or impaired in proportion as the food we eat is nutritious or otherwise.

LEWIS' BAKING POWDER always makes good food.

One can of this is worth two of any other baking compound.

It makes bread whiter and richer.

More than half the complaints of bad flour are from the use of common baking powders, which often make the best of flour turn out dark bread.

The most delicate persons can eat food prepared with it without injury.

Nearly every other baking powder is adulterated and is merely inferior.

This is made from Refined Grape Cream of Tartar, and is PERFECTLY PURE.

It makes the BEST, lightest, and most nutritious

BREAD, BISCUIT, CAKE, CRULLERS, BUCKWHEAT, INDIAN, AND FLANNEL CAKES.

A single trial will prove the superiority of this Powder.

Chambers' Encyclopædia.

15 Vols. Over 13,000 Pages. Price During July, $6.25.

Among the wonderful things which have been accomplished for lovers of good books by the "Literary Revolution," perhaps the most wonderful is the reproduction of this great Encyclopædia at a merely nominal cost.

It is a verbatim reprint of the last English edition, in 15 beautiful volumes, clear nonpareil type, handsomely bound in cloth, for $7.50; the same printed on finer, heavier paper, wide margins, and bound in half Russia, gilt top, price $15.00. The first ten volumes are ready for delivery. Vol. 11 will be ready July 10. The remaining volumes will be completed by October next.

$6.25. An Amazing Offer. $6,25.

The more widely and rapidly these volumes are scattered, the greater is their influence in inducing other purchasers of this and our many standard publications. Accordingly we give special terms to early subscribers.

To all, whose orders and money are received during the month of July, we will supply the 15 volumes in cloth, for $6.25, and in half Russia, gilt top, for $12.50. To any one sending from any place where we have no special agent (usually the leading bookseller of the town), a club of five orders, we will allow a commission of 10 per cent. The volumes issued will be sent at once by express, and the remaining volumes when completed.

A specimen volume in cloth will be sent, postpaid, for 50 cents, or in half Russia, gilt top, for $1.00, and may be returned at once, if not satisfactory.

The "CHAMBERS'S ENCYCLOPÆDIA" comprises the first 15 volumes of our "Library of Universal Knowledge," and the remaining volumes, complete in themselves, will be sold separately when published.

THE DEMOCRACY.

Hon. D. Cramer and Lieut. Salsbury Address the Tecumseh Hancock Club at the Opera House.

The democracy of Tecumseh and the surrounding communities filled the opera house last Monday evening to listen to the speeches of the civilian, Hon. D. Cramer of Ann Arbor, and the soldier, Lieut. Salsbury of Hudson.

Upon the stage along with the speakers, were seated Chairman Wm. Hayden, Hon. Jno. J. Adam, Wm. Richards and others. The fife and drum sounded out some ringing martial music and called the audience together. The speech of Cramer's was enthusiastic and filled with many effective shots at the republican administration and candidates for the presidency. Capt. Connett, of Chicago made a few emphatic remarks in which he assured the audience that Illinois was going to break its allegiance to the republican party and in next Nov. give a good round majority for Winfield Scott Hancock.

Lieut. Salsbury gave the closing speech and in a cool, unimpassive address showed the fallacy in the cry that Hancock would pay the Southern claims, that the country's prosperity was due to the republican management of affairs, and that the democratic party was the enemy of the union soldiers. He closed with an eloquent and beautiful description of the battle of Gettysburg in which the valiant Gen. Hancock put to flight the rebel Gen. Longstreet and saved the country which drew forth unbounded applause.

We give a brief sketch of some of the chief points of the speeches.

Mr. Cramer upon being introduced by Chairman Wm. Hayden, congratulated the people of Tecumseh for their business activity which was shown in the vast improvements that had been made in the town since he passed through here 23 years ago, on his way to Adrian with a load of wheat.

He said: I came home from the war and voted for Lincoln, I voted for Grant, but from the time of Grant's administration I have been a democrat. I shall speak to the republicans present for I know something about the republican party. I was connected with it a long time. I held office under its patronage, I was a representative to the convention that nominated Lincoln.

We ought to commence, wherever the republicans want us to commence, so I will go back to the beginning of the war. We then had the whigs and the democrats, but the republicans soon superceded the whigs, and at the historical Charleston convention where the democrats failed to agree, they were divided into two factions. They separated. One faction clung to the nation, the other became aliens with a determination to break up this union. The Rebellion followed, it was lasting and bloody. In it the democrats and republicans walked side by side against the rebels. Democrats alike with republicans were appointed to the highest offices of the army. Some companies were half and half. No one at that time tho't of politics. We were fighting then against rebels, we succeeded, and bless the men that did it. At the close of the war the party in power thought it was not best to hang all the southern men. But the republican party made them citizens and gave them the rights of sovereign states and citizens. And they thought by so doing, it would make the republican party popular in the south. I know this for I was with you then. You were true and right in giving them suffrage and establishing the sovereign states in the south. And when you treated them well, and with that spirit with which you brought them back into the union they voted with you. But when you commence to call them all rebel brigadiers and say they were not loyal, they ceased to support you, as men with reason would do.

You had the south under your tutelage for fifteen years, and if they are in the condition you say they are, are you not ashamed? are you not bad teachers? If you can be abashed by anything, you ought to be ashamed that the south does not vote for you. It shows your bad management.

Another thing, I want to speak a little while about your republican candidate. Mr. Garfield is an able man, he is an educated man, but he is not a pure man, not an honest man. I have borrowed and lent money, and so have most all persons, but I never heard of a man borrowing $20 dollars. I have heard of men borrowing $325 and $500 but never $20. Still some of you republicans say that Jas. A. Garfield did it. Well I think that Jas. A. Garfield did as Ben Butler says, he did intend to go into the Credit Mobilier but the cry that was sent up against him frightened him out, so that he turns to Oakes Ames and says, that $329 must be a loan. He, nevertheless, did not look upon it as a loan.

Again, he once made a brief for a De Golyer pavement contract. Well a brief is not a hard thing to make out. Any lawyer will tell you that such a brief would not take over a day to make it out, and $50 would be ample pay for the services. Thos. M. Cooley, the best of constitutional lawyers would not charge over $50 for drawing up such a brief. Yet Jas. Garfield, an inferior lawyer, charged $5,000 for that pavement brief, but $5,000 was more for something, that an honest man would not barter away, than for the mere drawing up of the brief. He knew the money was to obtain his influence in Congress and he accepted it. You can not call such a man pure. Again Jas. A. Garfield attempted to stir up sectional strife, when he was a member of the Returning Board in Louisana. And by doing this he caused Banks, Trumbull, Geo. W. Julian, Chas. Francis Adams and others to renounce the republican party.

Last Saturday night the democratic state central committee of Ohio finished its canvass of that state. The canvass was the most careful one ever taken and shows that the state where Garfield lives, is very doubtful.

Lieut. Salsbury followed. In the course of his speech he said:

The republican party says there is no reason for a change in the administration of the government, the business interests of the country demand the republicans to control the national affairs. You say that the prosperity of the country to-day is due to your management, but I say that it is due to the bounteous crops of the country and the famine in Europe. If a farmer has a surplus of produce he sells it and has a surplus of cash. Just so with the nation; it was God in his goodness that made us prosperous by giving us an abundant harvest.

Jno. Sherman can not be praised for paying the national debt. If he has a surplus where else can he put it, if not in redeeming our bonds? Europe is pouring her money into our country and adds to our national wealth, it isn't Jno. Sherman or the Resumption Act.

Well once we had a war. The southern states rebelled. Who was the man that ordered the first shot to be fired against the northern flag? It was a man who will vote the republican ticket this fall. It was Gen. Beauregard, who will vote for Garfield. The republicans say he has made an atonement by voting the republican ticket. If rebel brigadiers are good enough for the republicans to make Post Master Generals, Att'y Generals, Ministers to Turkey and to Russia out of them, aren't they good enough to send to Congress to represent the democrats? I am against this hypocrisy of the republican party.

Another republican argument why they should have the power, is that the democrats will pension the rebel soldiers if they get a chance. But it is a noticeable fact that the democratic party has cared more zealously for the union soldiers than the republicans have. The congressional records show this.

During the session of the 43rd Congress a bill came up regarding the equalization of bounties. Every soldier knows what this means. If a man happened to enlist a day after a certain date he can receive no bounty, but a man that enlisted the day before him may according to the law receive a 2 or 300 dollar pension: Well this bill that looked toward the remedying of this injustice was passed, both by the democratic house and senate. But when it reached President Grant he never found time to sign before his term of office expired.

Again it was brought up by Gen. Phillip Cook a good democrat. And again it passed the "confederate" democratic house and went to the republican senate and there it has slept the sleep of death. This is why some of you republican soldiers can not get your bounties. In 1878 Gen. Rice introduced a bill for the relief of soldiers disabled in the war, and it passed both houses and is a law to-day. You owe all this to that "confederate" democratic congress. In the last three years the democrats have paid more pensions than the republicans did four years before. They have also reduced the legal fee that goes to the pension agent, some 10 or 15 dollars, so that the pensioner receives so much more.

JACK FROST made us a call last night.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

From our Regular Correspondent.

DOM PEDRO HEARD FROM.

Washington, Sept. 25, 1880.

The pleasant season in Washington, which comes with fall weather and the return of summer absentees, has now commenced. It is the season, too, when visitors and sight seers at the capital are most numerous. From now on sheepish bridal couples wandering about seeking the attractions of the city will be as plentiful as robins in spring. Just now the Smithsonian Institution seems to be the special attraction for visitors. It is estimated that for the past week the average of visiting strangers has been two hundred daily. Many are disappointed because the new museum, which is to be filled with many familiar contributions from the centennial, and the many curiosities Uncle Sam has gathered in the past century, is not open to the public. The building itself is completed save the floor, and the introduction of heating appliances. The appropriation having been exhausted, it is probable the flooring will not be laid until next spring, and the building will not be formally opened until that time. One of the features of the Smithsonian collection which is now attracting more than passing attention is the grouped photographic collection of the eminent scientists of the world. Included herein are also the photographs of the correspondents of the institution. It is a study to analyze these faces. They differ as do the lights and shades of a picture, and yet in each face there is to be found some marked characteristic. It would seem for one thing that scientific men as a rule are blondes and have blue eyes.

Politics is the chief concern of this now beautiful metropolis, and being the capital of the Nation it could not be otherwise. But gradually literature, art and science are finding a home and congenial fostering. The Congressional Library, the Corcoran Art Gallery, the Smithsonian Institute, and the National Museum are not by any means all the centres of attraction to educated and cultivated visitors. During the season Washington offers social attractions as splendid and free as are to be found anywhere. It is true that society in Washington has a ceremonial and official side, which is quite as empty and unsatisfactory and a great deal more miscellaneous than society is elsewhere. But if any one judges from the reports that find their way into the press of the country that this is all, he is mistaken. While there is a circle into which admission depends chiefly upon official station, there are others where intelligence, accomplishments and virtue are carefully regarded.

Washington is a popular winter resort, not only for politicians, but for men of learning, of achievement, of philanthropy. It is not only a chosen resort, but it is becoming the chosen home of such people, as well as of men of wealth and leisure. People who have no engrossing business that confines them to one city, but wish to have a residence where the climate is not too severe and where they may always be sure of congenial society when they care to enjoy it, are discovering that Washington is such a place. This is a movement which, once begun, is likely to increase year by year.

Some funny correspondence comes to hand in the various departments occasionally. The Treasurer of the United States received one day this week a letter from an old colored man "over 74 and full of years," enclosing $254 in confederate money, which was passed on him in payment for a due bill which he held on a man in Wilmington, Del. As he was old and poor, he thought he would drop a few lines to the Treasurer, hoping that he might not starve in the reach of fraternal light. This is the kind of money that has been insinuated on me. Please do me some good. Please think on me in a fraternal light, as I am a barber by trade, and in my life have shaved seven of our Presidents—the honored Andrew Jackson, Zachary Taylor, James K. Polk, Millard Fillmore, Wm. Henry Harrison, Franklin Pierce and John Tyler." The letter is signed by Rev. S. G. Golden, "an Ethiopen P.M.M." Not long ago the Treasurer had some interesting correspondence with a distrustful individual down South who had a torn $20 Treasury note which he desired redeemed. But he was loth to send it until he got the $20 in new notes, fearing the Treasurer would cheat him out of it. Finally he was induced to take the chances and wrote saying he hoped they would deal honestly with him.

Politics are getting very hot here. The Congressional Committees of both parties are sending out tons of documents and all the signs are watched with eager interest. Work has been resumed on the Washington Monument, one hundred and seventy-five men being now employed. It is possible that the old concern may be finished some time within the next one hundred years.

The Great Healer of all Inflamed Injuries and Disorders.

It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the unparalleled demand with which it meets, stamps it at once as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.

The most incredulous are convinced, and the most skeptical are compelled to believe in the power of this great remedy.

WHAT IT CURES.

All SORES, CUTS, BRUISES, SPRAINS, BURNS, SORE THROAT, LAMENESS, RHEUMATISM, PILES, INFLAMMATION of LUNGS and BOWELS, BRONCHITIS, CROUP, SALT RHEUM, CHILBLAINS, AFFECTIONS of the SPINE, ERYSIPELAS, NERVOUS IRRITATION, and all disorders attendant with INFLAMMATION.

It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is gained over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame; every bone, muscle, vein, nerve, and ligament is searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it copes readily with internal as well as external diseases.

Over 40 Years

This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such that as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates of cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should feel perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.

Price 25 and 40 cents per bottle. Sold by all dealers in medicine.

THE MONROE EXPLOSION.

Two Persons Killed and Many Wounded.

The most frightful calamity that has befallen Monroe for many years happened about 10 o'clock last Friday morning.

The boiler in the fruit drying establishment of Loose & Sons blew up completely demolishing the building and covering many of the employees with the debris.

Two persons were killed. Henry O'Brien, the engineer, who was scalded and horribly mangled, soon dying from the effects of his injuries. A boy 18 years of age, Leonard Martin, a fruit cutter was also killed. The wounded were Chas. Ingilfritz, C. E. Fairbanks, Capt. Wm. F. Haight, Mrs. S. Beckel, Mrs. F. Lochner, Eli Charboneaux, Mrs. Bishop, L. Wagner, Mrs. Goodall, Mrs. Schwab, Reub. Annis, Mrs Rummell, Mrs. Rudolph and John Stevens. Others received slight injuries. There has as yet been no explanation given for the explosion, the men say that the boiler was full of water. The coroners' inquest has been adjourned till the first of October.

The mill is located on the bank of the Raisin river, and the explosion was heard many miles away. Immediately after the explosion the debris caught fire, and this added considerable to the people's fright.

The loss sustained by the firm will probably reach $5,000. The insurance was only $500.

Adrian Times: Robert Sims and wife, of Morenci, had a disagreeable experience in Detroit, in consequence of being separated from each other while on the fair ground Friday afternoon. Mr. S. did not learn of his wife's whereabouts until the next day, after an active search, and all the time she had remained upon the fair ground, in a state of anxious suspence.

THE freight train going South last Saturday evening started out of Tecumseh about eight o'clock, and in two hours afterwards the depot men were surprised by seeing it coming back. Upon inquiring it was found that the train broke in two in going over the heavy grade South of Tecumseh, and it was only after many attempts that they succeeded in backing up over the grade to Tecumseh.

Adrian Times: Monday morning Mr. G. L. Bidwell received some severe bruises by falling from a load of lumber. A man in the employ of James Berry was driving, and while in front of the old Gregg place, on Church street, took too short a turn precipitated lumber and passengers to terra firma. The right side of Mr. Bidwell's forehead was badly bruised, and his left ear was nearly cut off. The left side of his head was also considerably damaged. Dr. Rynd sewed on the ear and attended to his injuries.—While Mr. Bidwell was badly hurt, nothing serious is apprehended.

THE COUNTY FAIR.

The Lenawee County Fair commenced operations last Tuesday, and although the weather was not very inviting, still a fine start was made, and the prospects are good for a very successful exhibition. Floral Hall has been finely ornamented by the officers, and presents a very attractive appearance. The entries poured in all day and during yesterday forenoon and the exhibits in all departments will be very creditable. The grand stand and other buildings are all ready for occupancy, and the track will be in good condition unless more rain shall fall. We shall endeavor to give a general outline of the fair in next week's HERALD.

A NEW BUSINESS ENTERPRISE.

A new business has been recently started in Tecumseh which gives promise of developing into a fine and paying industry. Geo. W. Zeigler who has been working at the jewelry business and repairing of sewing machines for several years, has been for some months experimenting on an improved kind of foot power. He first got up an improved treadle for a jeweler's lathe, and afterwards improved upon it and so adapted it that it can be used on sewing machines of any make. The patent has been allowed upon the improved treadle, and a company has been formed here to push the manufacture of them for sale. The treadles were exhibited at both the Detroit and Toledo fairs held week before last, and the company are highly pleased with the manner in which the new invention seemed to take with the people. Certificates were obtained from leading physicians in both Detroit and Toledo, giving the treadle a warm recommend as a health saving invention. The Northern Ohio Democrat in its report of the Tri-State Fair has this to say of it:

A HEALTH PRESERVING INVENTION.

One of the most novel as well as useful inventions of the age is Zeigler's sewing machine treadle exhibited in the Main Hall. This treadle is something entirely new as the improvement on the patent bears date September 3, 1880. This novel invention has so far been exhibited only at the Michigan State Fair, Detroit, and our own Fair, and at these fairs over one thousand orders were taken. Every lady who had a sewing machine, the moment she examined the novelty, ordered one. This treadle is constructed wholly on scientific principles. It has three different movements and can be changed from one to another in an instant. The combined motion does away with a dead center, which enables the operator to run as slow as one stitch per second and not put the hand to the wheel, the entire movement being controlled by the foot alone.

The points of superiority are:

1st. The labor performed is equally divided between the muscles of the foot and limb.

2d. The treadle is absolutely noiseless.

3d. It does not cause enlargement of the ankle or in any way distress or impair the health of the operator. All who have used the old treadle well know the effect produced by the over-exertion and cramping of the muscles, by the oscillating motion of the foot-piece—this motion being entirely unnatural, and no means being provided for changing the motion to give rest to the over-taxed muscles.

In this new treadle means of adjustment for all ages and sizes, are provided, and ease and comfort is assured.—This treadle is adapted to all sewing machines.

Among the many who were delighted with the working was Dr. B. A. Wright, one of our most prominent city physicians, who voluntarily gave Mr. Zeigler, the inventor, the following flattering testimonial as to the merits, from a medical standpoint, of the treadle.

"After a careful examination and satisfactory investigation, I take great pleasure in recommending to the public George Zeigler's sewing machine treadle. Its superiority consists in a double movement. 1st. In a moderate foot movement not more than a fourth as much as is used in the old treadle. 2d. In an easy swinging motion of the foot and lower limb, giving altogether about the same motion of the limb and foot as in walking. Therefore it is an easy, natural movement, not liable to fatigue the operator, especially as only one limb is used at a time. My opinion is that a lady will do more sewing and easier with one foot with Zeigler's improvement than with both with the old treadle. The liability, therefore, for the operator to contract any form of various diseases from over exercise and unnatural movement is almost impossible. Very truly,

B. A. WRIGHT, M. D."

Fred Landgraf, who exhibited the treadle at the Detroit fair, obtained a similar certificate from one of the leading physicians of that city.

The treadle is being exhibited this week at the Lansing and Hillsdale fairs. Rooms have been rented in Palmer's chair factory, the machinery has been put in place, and the material has arrived for the first thousand treadles; the manufacturing of them will begin next week. The company expect in a few days to be able to fill all orders, of which they have a large number on hand. The firm will be known as "The Zeigler Sewing Machine Treadle Co." The partners who have taken stock and own the business and patent rights are Geo. W. Zeigler, C. S. Fitzsimmons, I. P. Keyser, L. A. Chapman, A. A. Kennedy and S. C. Stacy. The company intend to push the manufacture and sale of the treadles as rapidly as possible, and they have strong confidence that the business may be developed into a lucrative one.

Frank Leslie's Sunday Magazine

This October number is particularly attractive; there is such an abundance of good things, literary and artistic, as to fully justify its claim to be considered the best and cheapest magazine published. There are 128 quarto pages in each number, and the illustrations generally exceed 100. Single copies are 25 cents each, and the annual subscription $3 sent postpaid. Address Frank Leslie's Publishing House, 53, 55 and 57 Park Place, N.Y.

SANITARY SCIENCE.

HEALTHFULNESS OF FRUIT.

No intelligent person can doubt that the free use of ripe fruit is conducive to health. On the other hand, it is obvious that fruits as an exclusive article of diet, do not meet all the demands of the system. The chemistry of the apple, pear, tomato, grape, etc., is well understood, and it can be stated how much nutriment or, assimilable food each is capable of affording; but this does not answer all the questions connected with the healthfulness of fruit. Besides furnishing nutriment fruits exerts other influences upon the animal economy of the highest importance. The acids of fruits are not properly nutritive substances, but they produce physiological effects, of a cooling or corrective nature, which are highly salutary.

Fruits are largely composed of water, and this fluid has come to them through extraordinary channels. The tiny root fibres have collected in the dark earth, and, by vital action, it has been forced through the most minute tubes, until it is finally deposited in the fruit cell. So far as we know, the water undergoes no modifications; it is water in the soil, and it is the same in its wonderful associations in fruits. It, however, holds saccharine elements and other principles which modify its physical appearance and taste. The great amount of water contained in fruits is in itself an advantage, as it aids in cleaning the alimentary canal and other excretory ducts, and thus promotes healthy action.

Fruits are capable of sustaining life for long periods, but the lack of the nitrogeneous elements detracts from their strength giving power, and any one living exclusively on them would not be able to labor effectually. We have heard of a man who rowed his boat along the coast of New England, sustained alone by whortleberries; but if the voyage had lasted six months, or even three; his nerves and muscles would have entirely failed him.

The present is a season of abundant fruits. Perhaps never in the history of the northern and eastern States have apples been so plenty. The rich and poor can indulge in this noble fruit, to the greatest possible extent, at small cost. If the fruit is largely consumed in connection with a proper proportion of animal or nitrogeneous foods, a much higher standard of health will be attained among all classes.

KEEP THE BLOOD PURE.

I will now tell you, writes a physician in Harper's Weekly, of a few things which tend to render the blood pure and healthy. Rising in the morning at a reasonable early hour, and going out for a short walk before breakfast, does, previously having bathed and dressed without undue haste. The walk need not be a long one, and a glass of pure cold water can always be taken, just before starting, with advantage, or a cup of milk by those who are weakly. Seven o'clock, or earlier in summer, is a good time to get up. It is just possible, however, that when called you may be enjoying a sound sleep, not having rested very well in the first part of the night. If such be the case, are you to get up? Yes get up all the same; you will sleep better next night. Secure yourself being aroused at a certain hour every morning by an alarm or otherwise.—Early rising is a habit that is not by any means difficult to acquire, but it really is a blessed one. The walk, too, before breakfast may not be relished for a time, but it will soon be found to have improved the appetite. The breakfast on the live-by-rule principle should be a fairly substantial one both in quality and quantity. As to the latter, be guided by your own judgment; there ought to be a sense of satiety after eating, but no feeling of fullness and no depression of spirits or sleepiness. The morning meal, and indeed all meals, ought to be taken at the same hour every day. By getting up soon you gain many advantages, two of which are these: you have not to hurry through with breakfast—due mastication is the very first act in the manufacture of healthy food—and you can spare half an hour after the meal before going to work or business; this gives the stomach a fair start, and enables it to do its work properly. If you have more than half an hour to spare, and letters to write, by all means write them, for the evening before retiring to rest should be a time of perfect peace of mind and repose of body.

Chicago Ahead.

All the world now looks up to Chicago as the great western metropolis of America, being far ahead of all competing cities; but none the less so, in its line, is Electric Bitters. From their real intrinsic value they have advanced to the front, and are now far ahead of all other remedies, positively curing where everything else fails. To try them is to be convinced. ESTATE OF JACOB L. VAN WINKLE.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, ss.

At a session of the Probate Court for the county of Lenawee, holden at the Probate Office in the city of Adrian, on Tuesday, the 24th day of August, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty.

Present, Norman Geddes, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Jacob L. Van Winkle, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of Edwin D. Wood, administrator with the will annexed of said deceased, alleging that he has paid the debts of the deceased, the expenses of administration thus far incurred, and all legacies bequeathed in said will, except residuary legacies, and is ready to file his final account in this court, and praying for the allowance of said account, for an assignment and distribution of the residue of said estate to the persons entitled thereto and for his discharge.

Thereupon it is ordered, That Monday, the 13th day of September next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition; and that the heirs at law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said Court, then to be holden at the Probate office, in the City of Adrian, and show cause if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said County of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing. Cathartic Pills

Combine the choicest cathartic principles in medicine, in proportions accurately adjusted to secure activity, certainty, and uniformity of effect. They are the result of years of careful study and practical experiment, and are the most effectual remedy yet discovered for diseases caused by derangement of the stomach, liver, and bowels, which require prompt and effectual treatment. AYER'S PILLS are specially applicable to this class of diseases. They act directly on the digestive and assimilative processes, and restore regular healthy action. Their extensive use by physicians in their practice, and by all civilized nations, is one of the many proofs of their value as a safe, sure, and perfectly reliable purgative medicine. Being compounded of the concentrated virtues of purely vegetable substances, they are positively free from calomel or any injurious properties, and can be administered to children with perfect safety.

AYER'S PILLS are an effectual cure for Constipation or Costiveness, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Loss of Appetite, Foul Stomach and Breath, Dizziness, Headache, Loss of Memory, Numbness, Biliousness, Jaundice, Rheumatism, Eruptions and Skin Diseases, Dropsy, Tumors, Worms, Neuralgia, Colic, Gripes, Diarrhœa, Dysentery, Gout, Piles, Disorders of the Liver, and all other diseases resulting from a disordered state of the digestive apparatus.

As a Dinner Pill they have no equal.

While gentle in their action, these PILLS are the most thorough and searching cathartic that can be employed, and never give pain unless the bowels are inflamed, and then their influence is healing. They stimulate the appetite and digestive organs; they operate to purify and enrich the blood, and impart renewed health and vigor to the whole system.

NORTHERN LENAWEE FARMERS' CLUB

(This Club will hold its meetings regularly on each alternate Saturday of each month, at the Reform Club Hall in Tecumseh, at 2 o'clock P. M. until further notice. All are heartily welcomed and cordially invited to attend. Communications thankfully received. Correspondence solicited from other clubs, especially where co-operative action can accomplish desirable results. All letters should be addressed to E. L. RUSSELL, Sec., Tecumseh, Mich.)

SATURDAY, Sept. 25, 1880.

Ever since our last meeting your humble correspondent has been cheered with brighter hopes and fairer prospects of a better attendance and more lively times at the next meeting of the Club. These hopes began to fade, and the prospects grew less flattering, as it began to rain just before the hour appointed to meet. Although the shower caused members to be late, and no doubt, some to remain absent yet there were a good number present and a cheerful and lively time manifested.

Preliminary business was soon disposed of, and the subject of "Bread Making" taken up.

Mrs. Lowe, who was to have introduced the subject, being absent, Mrs. F. Rector was called upon, who responded with some remarks, and a fine essay upon the subject.

It was voted that the Secretary should procure her recipe and manner of opperation for publication. So with her consent I have made the following extract from

MRS. RECTOR'S ESSAY:

I am not much posted in hop yeast bread but I expected Mrs. Lowe here to give us good instruction in that line. As a rule, I make salt rising, as my "gude mon" likes it the best for daily use. I am told, the reason I do not succeed so well with hop yeast, is because I am too impatient. I want everything to go railroad speed. If I have the entire handling of every thing, from the time the emptyings are set, (fire included), I can have the bread out of the oven in three hours.

For the benefit of young housekeepers (I could not tell the old ones anything) I will give my modus operandi:

The day before I am going to bake, I take a teacup nearly half full of warm water put in a little salt, soda and ginger, then thicken quite thick with canilla. This I put in a warm place to rise, which will usually be before night, if set in the morning. In warm weather put this in the cellar over night. In the morning when I am getting breakfast I set the emptyings. Take a pitcher and put in what warm water I think it will need a little salt and soda, stir in flour but not very thick, now put in the railroad rising made the day before, and set in a warm place. By the time breakfast is over the emptyings are ready. I now make the sponge. Sift flour enough for the bread, take a dipper full of boiling water in which put salt enough for the bread, pour this into the flour and stir what it will naturally scald, then take the same quantity of sweet milk and stir in the scalded flour, put in the emptyings and stir pretty thick beating the batter hard. Now put in a warm place to rise which will take nearly an hour, then mix into loaves and when light again, bake. This is sufficient for five loaves. I cannot give you any exact length of time for the last mixing as I have none except to mix thoroughly, but long mixing makes it whiter the same as hop yeast. I have no rule for the length of time for baking. I use my own judgment about that, but it wants taking out as soon as done, do not let it dry out in the oven. I make graham bread in the same way except sweeten the sponge and mix it into loaves without letting it rise only in the loaves, as repeated rising makes it too coarse. Will some of the ladies be so kind as to give a recipe for raised corn meal bread.

I think it very important that we instruct our daughters in the mysteries of bread making at an early age. I teach my girls at the age of ten. I often find I have no reason to regret it. Last fall I was very ill and for some time we were unable to get help. Consequently my girls aged 13 and 11, were obliged to do the work until we could find a girl. They had both made bread, cake and pie for some time, so they got along very well until help was found. But they had to continue the bread making even after that as the girls, (we had three different ones) could not make digestible bread.

I think we need better flour in order to secure good bread with salt rising than with hop yeast. I like flour with a yellow tint and will pack together when pressed in the hand. The new patent flour is very nice if you want bread extra white for an extra occasion, but for my use I would not care for it as I think it dries out much sooner than the ordinary flour.

Mr. Goodrich said that bread was the greater portion of his living, and agreed with Mrs. Rector that "milk rising" was the best bread made. He also believed with Mrs. Austin Hall and others, that flour improved by age, and that it was better to have six months' or even a year's supply ground at once; but that flour should never be kept in a damp or moist place.

As "bread is the staff of life," and good bread is palatable, wholesome and healthy, and as there is often a waste of good material by being made up into poor unwholesome bread, I will give the manner of manufacturing bread as stated by one or two more lady members.

MRS. A. G. HALL'S RECIPE.

For yeast pare 6 large potatoes and grate into 1 quart of cold water; cook until quite thick, and add ½ teacup of salt, the same of brown sugar, and ½ pint of water in which a handful of hops have steeped. Stir these well together, and when lukewarm add ½ pint of yeast, and set to rise. In winter I add 1 teaspoon of ginger. Then the night before I wish to bake I take the proper amount of good flour, make a hollow in the center, and in this I stir about 3 pints of warm water and ½ pint of yeast, continuing to stir until quite thick. Set in a warm place to rise; then first in the morning I mix and mould it quite hard, and return to the pan to rise again; this is generally light enough by the time that breakfast is over to mould into loaves; this I do, using as little flour as I can to make smooth loaves; rise again and bake. This will make four or five loaves.

I have often sampled the bread of Mrs. R. B. Titus, and without intending any flattery to her or disparagement to others, will say she is the best bread maker I ever saw.

MRS. TITUS' RECIPE.

First I use soft hop yeast, made as almost every one makes it, except some put in potatoes, which I do not. I set my sponge the last thing in the evening, taking 12 good sized potatoes, boiled and mashed fine; add about 3 pints of water, thicken with flour, adding 1 cup of the yeast, and set in a warm place to rise. In the morning take thick milk, heat it, and add 3 pints of the whey to the sponge; that is sufficient for six loaves. Then mix, the longer the better, set it away to rise again, when sufficiently light mould into loaves, and when nice and light, bake.

She thinks bread mixed with whey is not near so likely to sour as when mixed with sweet milk. She also thinks that no one can make good bread with poor flour, but a little alum, sometimes lard, and sometimes an egg beaten up and added, is an improvement to poor flour, or if you want extra nice bread. A lively discussion followed.

We are aware that a little misunderstanding deprived us of a good discourse upon "Butter Making" but perhaps it was best so, as it will be better appreciated at the next meeting, on account of time.

Under the head of Miscellaneous Questions and Answers, Mr. Austin Hall enquired if any one had had any experience in sowing salt and plaster in the fall, and if so what was the result? Which brought up the subject of "Commercial Fertilizers," which was discussed with considerable spirit and members became so interested that they voted unanimously to make this the subject for the next meeting.—

This, with Preliminary Business, Miscellaneous Questions and Answers and Butter Making will principally occupy the attention of the Club at the next meeting. Do not wait for another but all come.

On motion, the Club adjourned for two weeks.

DRAINAGE OF MARSHES.

La Nature, of July 24, gives an interesting account of the recent thorough regeneration of the principality of Dombes, in France, a region formerly very marshy and unhealthy. In the twenty-one communes, situated about the center, and comprising 39,000 hectares, more than 12,000, or nearly a third, were covered with water. In 1858 the Government decided to assist in the sanitation of Dombes, and a company was formed which pushed the work forward vigorously. By means of drainage, roads, railways and wells, etc., a great change has been effected. The sanitary state has become good; the population is increased one-third; and the average length of life, which was only 22 yrs. 10 months, now exceeds 38 years.—Most of the marshes have disappeared, and the country is crossed in all directions by good roads. The expense has risen to seven million francs in twenty-five years, for a surface of about 1,100 square kilometres.

GOOD VARIETIES OF WHEAT.

At the State Agricultural College of Iowa, Professor Knapp has had on trial a number of kinds of wheat and says: The earlier wheats of the thirty-seven varieties upon the College Farm are harvested; the Sherman and Touzelle much in advance of the others. The straw is not as large as in many seasons, but the berry is of excellent quality. Of the six varieties of hard wheat (Triticum Durum), five have given most excellent satisfaction. These wheats were imported last February from Moscow, Russia. The straw is large and stiff; heads very heavy and bearded; kernel full, large and of rich color. While other wheats near were considerably effected with rust, these were not injured in the least. Should they prove their superiority another year, it will be safe to recommend them as the most valuable varieties known.

This cut represents the Hoe of the

STRAYER DRILL.

Each Hoe spreading the grain over a space

THREE INCHES WIDE,

So that in a 9-Hoed Drill there is

27 INCHES

Of ground covered with grain,

THREE TIMES THE AMOUNT

Of ground that other Drills cover, thereby equalising the seed as well as the strength of the ground. We make a depth gauge on each Hoe so that each row is put in a proper depth, an advantage over all other Drills in the field.

Hundreds of the best farmers in Michigan, Ohio and Indiana will testify that

More Wheat Can Be Raised

To the Acre by using such a Hoe than any other. Farmers will please examine the Strayer Drill before purchasing.

TESTIMONY

Of the Hon. Jos. E. Gray, Judge of the Superior Court, Chicago, Ill.

CHICAGO, Dec. 18, 1879.

DR. S. D. HOWE,

DEAR SIR:—Permit me to add my grateful testimony to the army of witnesses to the virtue of your justly celebrated Arabian remedies. For a long time my wife was seriously afflicted with hacking cough, oppressed breathing, soreness of the chest, and constant acute pain in the lower portion of the right lung and under the shoulder blade. Her sufferings were intense, and she became extremely nervous and prostrated. Her disease was pronounced consumption by the physicians of Chicago and other cities, whose prescriptions had been taken without benefit. When you visited Chicago in June, 1878, we called on you, having very little hope of deriving help from your treatment. We were inspired with hope by the skillful manner in which your thorough examination was conducted, and the [illegible] which you closed your diagnosis. My wife determined to take your medicines in accordance with your plan and practical directions. She began to use the Arabian Milk Cure and Arabian Tonic; their beneficial effect at once became manifest—the cough loosened and soon ceased, respiration became easy, the soreness of the chest was relieved and all pain removed, she began to gain in flesh and improve in strength and appearance. I fully believe that your medicines and skillful advice have saved the life of my wife. She unites with me in this grateful tribute to the merit of your remedies.

Very respectfully yours,

JOSEPH E. GRAY.

THE WHEAT PROSPECT.

The following article taken from the last Michigan Farmer indicates that the price of wheat is not likely to be much higher this season than it is at present.

The wheat market is gradually settling down to business. The reports of the crops in Europe are no longer guess work, but are beginning to be generally understood, and the estimates are much nearer the actual results than at any time previous for three seasons. The wheat year begins in Europe with the 1st of September, and this year the stocks in store were reduced to lower quantities than have been known for some years. With the beginning of the season the large imports into France and Great Britain will be absorbed after meeting the actual consumptive demand in bringing up the stocks to their normal condition. It is estimated that Great Britain will require 110 millions of foreign wheat against 140 millions last year, and that France will require 28 millions bushels instead of 80 millions last year. Then again, Italy, Spain, Holland, Belgium and Denmark, will only require their usual normal amounts, their crops all reaching a general average. Italy that required 17 or 18 million of bu. last year, will feed herself this year. Spain is in the same condition; Austria and Hungary which imported wheat last year, will have ten millions of bushels to export. The German Empire is considered as liable to import 10 millions of bushels. Russia it is now understood will have a minimum surplus for export, and her exports will not exceed 30 millions of bushels, her average for ten years reaching 57 millions of bushels. With this general view of the condition of the countries that consume and those that supply there is little prospect of wheat at any time during the coming winter exceeding in this market a dollar per bushel.

Good Company—Number Twelve.

Good Company, Number Twelve ($3.00 a year; Springville, Mass.,) closes the volume, and subscriptions should be made at once. A specimen copy will be sent to any one not familiar with it for ten cents.

Two papers just read before the American Social Science Association are given, both on subjects which have been attracting considerable attention of late. One, about food adulterations, is by a competent authority, Prof. S. W. Johnson of the Yale Scientific School. It will doubtless relieve some people who have been somewhat alarmed by recent newspaper paragraphs. The other, Associated Charities, explains the method of organization by which the various benevolent societies and individuals in a town unite so that a large proportion of money is given in charity need not be wasted as is now generally the case, and the deserving poor be more effectually reached. It is by an authority on the subject, Rev. Oscar C. McCulloch of Indianapolis, one of the places where the plan is in practical operation. Two other articles bearing on the same general subject are The Destruction of the Poor by President John Bascom of Madison, Wis., University, and an account of the doings of the late Conference of Charities and Corrections.

THE BEST REMEDY
FOR
Diseases of the Throat and Lungs.

AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL.

In diseases of the pulmonary organs a safe and reliable remedy is invaluable. AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL is such a remedy, and no other so eminently merits the confidence of the public. It is a scientific combination of the medicinal principles and curative virtues of the finest drugs chemically united, of such power as to insure the greatest possible efficiency and uniformity of results. It strikes at the foundation of all pulmonary diseases, affording prompt relief and rapid cures, and is adapted to patients of any age or either sex. Being very palatable the youngest children take it readily. In ordinary Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, Bronchitis, Influenza, Clergyman's Sore Throat, Asthma, Croup, and Catarrh, the effects of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL are magical, and multitudes are annually preserved from serious illness by its timely and faithful use. It should be kept at hand in every household for the protection it affords in sudden attacks. In Whooping-cough and Consumption there is no other remedy so efficacious soothing, and helpful.

Low prices are inducements to try some of the many mixtures, or syrups, made of cheap and ineffective ingredients, now offered which, as they contain no curative qualities can afford only temporary relief, and are sure to deceive and disappoint the patient. Diseases of the throat and lungs demand active and effective treatment; and it is dangerous experimenting with unknown and cheap medicines, from the great liability that these diseases may, while so trifled with become deeply seated or incurable. Use AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, and you may confidently expect the best results. It is a standard medical preparation, of known and acknowledged curative power, and is as cheap as its careful preparation and fine ingredients will allow. Eminent physicians knowing its composition, prescribe it in their practice. The test of half a century has proven its absolute certainty to cure all pulmonary complaints not already beyond the reach of human aid.

THE READY FAMILY SOAP MAKER:
LEWIS' LYE
98 PER CENT. PURE.
(Patented.)
FINELY POWDERED.
HIGHLY PERFUMED.

The strongest and purest Lye made. Will make 12 pounds of the best Perfumed Hard Soap in 20 minutes without boiling.
The best water-softener made.
The best disinfectant.
The following are some of the advantages obtained by using Lewis' 98 Per Cent. Powdered Lye:

First. It is packed in an iron can with a slip or removable lid, easily taken off and leaving the contents exposed, thereby saving the trouble, annoyance, and danger (from flying particles) as with other Lyes, which, being sold in the cans, must be broken with a hammer to get the Lye out.

Second. It being a fine powder, you can remove the lid and pour out all the contents, being always ready for use.

Third. A teaspoonful or more can be used, as in water-softening, scrubbing, etc., and the lid returned to the can, and thereby save the balance of contents. With other Lyes all must be dissolved at once and used in a short time, or the strength is gone.

Fourth. Absolute purity. Free from all adulterations.

Fifth. The best Soap can be made in from ten to twenty minutes with this Lye.

Sixth. No failure is possible in making Soap with this Lye when the simple directions given are followed.

Seventh. One can of this Powdered Lye is equal to twenty pounds of Sal Soda or Washing Soda.

Eighth. One can of this Lye will saponify one pound more of grease than any other Concentrated Lye, Ball Potash, or Saponifier.

Ninth. This Lye is 98 per cent. stronger than any other Lye or Potash.

Tenth. One to two teaspoonfuls will soften a tub of the hardest water.

Eleventh. One teaspoonful will thoroughly cleanse Sinks, Drains, or Closets.

Invaluable for killing Roaches, Mice, Rats, etc. The best article for washing Trees.

Mrs. Thomas B. Gould died the 20th, aged 72 years. Mrs. Gould was one of the old pioneers of this township, having lived with her husband 45 years of continous residence on the farm where she died. The family circle consists of 10 children, 30 grand children, and 17 great grand children.

Robert Way met with a sad death the 25th. His team became frightened by the hoisting of an umbrella and in attempting to assist the driver grabbed but one line which turned the team so as to upset the wagon, Mr. Way falling underneath. Further particulars we have not been able to learn except that he lived but a short time and that the funeral was conducted on the 27th inst.

Syke Olds of Ann Arbor, formerly of the township of York, died on the 25th of lingering consumption, age 69. The funeral was conducted at the Universalist church in Mooreville the 28th, Rev. Saxon of Columbus, Ohio officiating.

SPRINGVILLE.

The democratic mass meeting at this place last Saturday afternoon, was well attended by all political parties, and also by the ladies. The meeting was introduced by music by the Springville cornet band, and then followed the raising of a fine hickory pole, something over 100 feet high, upon which was strung a large banner which bears the names of Hancock and English. After music by the band, Orsamus Lamb, of Adrian, was introduced, and after making a few brief remarks introduced Seth Bean, of Adrian, who made a very fine speech in the interest of the democracy, as he is capable of doing.

Thursday, Oct. 14th, a republican mass meeting will be held here. Hon. C. G. Luce is expected to address the meeting.

T. H. Mosher has been at Adrian the past week as one of the commissioners appointed to appraise the damage of the Butler Railroad crossing the M. S. R. R.

The Springville singing class will meet at the M. E. church, next Tuesday evening, after a vacation of several weeks.

Wm. Queal has returned from the east, where he has been visiting relatives and old acquaintances. He reports a pleasant trip and a very fine time.

Mrs. Eliza Marr, widow of Daniel Marr, deceased, died at her residence last Saturday morning. The funeral services were held at the Catholic church, last Monday.

Eugene Monagin, son of John Monagin, was thrown from a horse last week and badly bruised about the face, but nothing very serious.

T. H. Mosher is making a fine improvement in his front yard, drawing dirt and leveling and preparing for a fine lawn next season.

The cider apples are beginning to make their appearance at the cider mill. W. H. Smith is prepared to accommodate all wishing cider made on short notice. Each one receiving the cider from their apples.

Jonathan Hand has started a brick yard on his place. His material for making brick and tile has been pronounced as very fine. We understand he intends making one kiln of brick and one of tile this fall.

WHEAT CULTURE.

We have received a copy of a work treating on "Wheat Culture," published by the Orange Judd Co., New York. The author of the work is D. S. Curtiss, a former resident of Tecumseh, now living at Washington, D. C. The treatise contains 16 chapters treating upon wheat culture, the wheat plant, how to obtain a large yield, incidental requisites to a large yield, planting or sowing wheat, importance of the wheat crop, flour the form in which to sell wheat, varieties the most grown in the United States, green manuring and plowing, recapitulations of operations, examples of successful wheat culture, extracts from letters, diseases and insects, improved machinery and implements, analysis of wheat and straw, conclusion. Thus it covers the whole range of wheat culture, making a comprehensive work, and one that will bring a great many points of useful knowledge to the farmer. The interest that the author has in this topic, and his ability, is well-known by the farming community of this section of the state, and will assure the work a ready sale.

C. H. Dewey Declines.

CAMBRIDGE, Oct. 2, 1880.

To the chairman of the Third district national representative committee:—Having been named as a candidate for representative to the state legislature in said district, I beg leave to say, that lacking the time and means necessary I hardly feel able to prosecute a successful canvass in said district; believing as I do, that no man should accept a place on a political ticket, without making an active and energetic canvass for the success of the ticket. Much as I regret the step I have taken, under the circumstances I have felt it my duty to take it.—Much as I should be pleased to occupy the position offered, I am compelled to ask of you to be relieved from the position as a candidate, with the hope that you may accept it in the same fraternal feeling and spirit of regard that it is offered, and for the best interest of a common cause, alike to one and all.

Trusting you may accept this as a sufficient reason for the course I have taken,

I am, very respectfully yours,
CHAS. H. DEWEY.

THE BUTLER ROAD.

The matter of the crossing of the Butler road over the Lake Shore at Adrian was referred by the court to a commission.

The commissioners appointed by the Judge of Probate visited the place of the crossing and the testimony of the two interested parties was then received by the commission at the city council rooms.

The witnesses in behalf of the Butler road valued the land worth from $25 to $50 but did not give their opinion upon the am'nt of damages the L. Shore road would sustain. The witnesses for the Lake Shore thought the damages would amount to $8,000 or $12,000 on account of the proximity of the crossing to the depot grounds.—The commissioners after taking all the testimony held a closed session, but Tuesday night had not reached a conclusion and adjourned till Saturday.

S. W. Bordine	18.62

On motion the marshal was instructed to ascertain and report at next regular meeting of the Council the names of the parties who, without permission, dug up and removed the sod of part of the cemetery ground.

On motion, council then adjourned.

P. S. McKINNON, Recorder.

Hartford, Wis., Nov. 13, 1880.

Wells, Richardson & Co., Burlington, Vt.,—Dear Sir—For years from time to time I have been troubled with lame back and have never been able to get anything that afforded me little if any relief, until I was recommended to use your Kidney-Wort, have used but part of a box and am entirely cured. Respectfully yours,

David M. Hatten.

Fayetteville, Tenn., April 30, 1880.

Sirs—My wife has been using your Kidney-Wort for a short time for Kidney Complaint, and is greatly benefitted thereby. Enclosed find money for another package.

Rev. A. B. Coleman.

THE convention of the W. C. T. U., of Lenawee county will be held at Clinton, Oct. 27th and 28th. First session will commence at 2 o'clock P. M., Wednesday. There will be a public meeting Wednesday evening addressed by Mrs. O. B. Schuyler, of Ann Arbor. It is hoped that all the Unions of the county will be represented by delegates, and that all our township vice presidents will be present. A general attendance is invited at all the sessions.

M. C. WOOD, Pres.

THERE will be an oyster supper and social at the chapel parlors of the Baptist church, on Tuesday evening Oct. 12, for the benefit of the fund for the sick of this church and society. Supper will be served from 5:30 to 9 o'clock. We earnestly solicit the aid of our friends for this worthy object. Tickets for supper 25 cts.

By Order of Com. on Sick.

Tecumseh, Oct., 6, '80.

CLEANINGS FROM THE COUNTY PRESS.

Adrian Press: Burglars early yesterday morning tackled the residences of T. M. Hunter, Harvey Hitchcock and Maj. Cale, taking Mr. Hunter's clothes, but leaving his slips and baby and securing Mr. Hitchcock's fall suit. The last has been found, and tw tramps are in jail on suspicion.

Clinton News: Married at the residence of the bride's parents in Clinton, on Wednesday, Sept. 22, 1880, by Rev. W. P. Wastell, Mr. George L. Hard and Miss Minnie L. Randall—Thirty years ago Mr. Wastell married the great grandfather of the present bride to his second wife, the widow King. Perhaps a similar occurrence can not be found.

Morenci Observer: J. H. Osborn, of Tecumseh, chairman of the County Committee in the interest of the proposed constitutional amendment, was in town a few hours on Wednesday, and made an appointment to address our people on the subject of said amendment one week from next Sunday evening. Mr. O. is doing vigorous work for this cause. He spoke in Weston on Monday night and at Fairfield on Tuesday.

Hudson Gazette: Mr. E. B. Wood, the Democratic candidate, of Tecumseh, is one of the most popular and competent men ever presented for the responsible office of Judge of Probate. This is the most agreeable circumstance to the list of Republicans in the county who will give him their votes because of the slight put upon Capt. Hadley, who was the choice of the Republican masses for the position. Mr. Wood will lead Mr. Geddes a very lively race.

Adrian Times: The work on the two buildings for the reform school for girls is beginning to show. On the east building the foundation is finished and the ashler work is now being done. The foundation of the west building is nearly finished. The Wright brothers are the sub-contractors for all the brick and stone work. They have some twenty-five men employed on the job, and the work is being done in an exceedingly satisfactory and workmanlike manner.

Blissfield Advance: On Wednesday morning, as Mr. David Wright was engaged in hauling broom handles from the factory to the depot, the front braces of the wood-rack gave way, precipitating Mr. Wright and a quantity of handles to the ground. Mr. Wright was thrown under the wheels of the wagon, which passed over his chest and limbs, but fortunately breaking no bones. He was picked up and carried to the house of Mr. N. Stoner, when medical assistance was sent for. Aside from being badly bruised, a severe contusion of the right ankle was sustained. It was most remarkable that he was not killed outright, the load being a heavy one.

Adrian Press: Again death has been among us, and another respected pioneer of the county has gone to his final rest. Mr. Peter Bogert, one of the most esteemed residents of Adrian township, died yesterday morning at an early hour, being in his eighty-second year. He was in the city with his wife a week ago, and has complained lately of neuralgia. He suffered considerably Wednesday, but his sons were at his house till ten o'clock, and he retired feeling much easier. His wife at midnight awoke, and the old gentlemen said he felt much better. When she awoke at 3 o'clock he did not answer, and upon finding him dead she was so overcome as to be entirely prostrated, and her recovery is considered very doubtful.

Adrian Times: "Guilty of Manslaughter"—This was the verdict rendered by the jury in the Aiken case Saturday. The jurors were charged by the court and retired about half-past eight, but in the course of the forenoon returned to refresh their memory. The reporter read certain portions of the testimony to them, and it took the twelve till four o'clock in the afternoon to digest it. In the meantime Aiken set apparently unconcerned, with a cigar in his mouth, and his daughter by his side. His indifference forsook him when the jury rapped for admission, but as soon as the verdict was announced he regained his composure. We understand that the first battle stood eight for murder in the second degree, two for manslaughter, and two "not guilty."—Section 10 of comp. laws of 1871 provides that "every person who shall commit the crime of manslaughter shall be punished by imprisonment in the state prison not more than fifteen years, or by fine not exceeding $1,000, or both, at the discretion of the court."

THE FAMILY CIRCLE.

THE OLD OAKEN BUCKET.

[As revised and edited by a "Sanitarian."]

With what anguish of mind I remember my childhood
Recalled in the light of a knowledge since gained,
The wolfberries from the wet, fungus-grown wildwood,
Fire-chills that contracted that alone have remained,
The scum-covered duck-pond, the pig-sty close by
The ditch where the cow-emptying house drained its age fed,
The damp shaded swalleys, the foul barn-yard right by,
But worse than all else was that terrible well!
And the old oaken bucket, the mold-crusted bucket,
The moss-covered bucket that hung in the well.

Just think of it! Moss on the vessel that lifted
The water I drank in the days called to mind,
Ere I knew what professors and scientists gifted
In the water of wells by analysis find,
The rotten wood fiber, the oxide of iron,
The algæ, the frog of unusual size,
The water impure as the verses of Byron,
Are things I remember with tears in my eyes.

And to tell the plain truth—tho' I shudder to think it—
I considered that water uncommonly clear.
And often at noon, when I went there to drink it,
I enjoyed it as much as I now enjoy beer.
How ardent I seized it with hands that were grimy,
And quick to the mud-covered bottomed fell;
Then took, with its insects and animal slimy
With matter organic, it rose from the well.

Oh! had I but realized, in time to avoid them,
The dangers that lurked in that pestilent draught,
I'd have tested for organic germs and destroyed them
With potassic permanganate ere I had quaffed.
Or, perchance I'd have boiled it and afterwards strained it
Thro' filters of charcoal and gravel combined,
Or, after distilling, condensed and regained it
In potable form with its filth left behind.

How little I knew of the dread typhoid fever
Which lurked in the water I ventured to drink;
But since I've become a devoted believer
In the teachings of science, I shudder to think
And now, for reasons, from conference I'm deterred
scribing,
The story for warning to others I tell,
And memory reverts to my youthful imbibing
And gag at the thought of that horrible well,
And the old oaken bucket, the fungus-grown bucket,
—In fact, the slop bucket—that hung in the well.

THE MAIL-CARRIER'S ADVENTURE.

During the civil war Joe Albright held the responsible position of night mail-carrier over a mountainous region in Western Virginia. He left Cherryville at six in the evening, and reached Allentown, a distance of thirty miles, at eleven o'clock.

After delivering the mail, feeding and resting his horse for a couple of hours, he made the return trip, arriving at Cherryville again at six o'clock the following morning.

It was rough riding, over a wild and sparsely inhabited region; but this course he had traversed for a number of years, in winter and summer, thro' storm and starlight, always faithful and prompt to time.

At the opening of the war, like many others on that debatable ground, he desired to join in the struggle, but he was strongly urged to continue at his post, as there was often very important news to be transmitted by that route, and it would not be easy to find another equally brave and reliable.

His tall muscular form, well mounted on a fleet horse, was very familiar to the inhabitants of the few hamlets through which he passed. From nearly every house in the early evening, some one was waiting with a little business to be transacted for them at the distant town or at least a cheery greeting. During those earlier years he had never encountered any danger beyond that which the elements sometimes conspired to raise.

But as Western Virginia became more the field of partisan warfare, even his lonely beat was exposed to the raids of the bushwhackers, and the utmost vigilance was required to guard against a surprise.

One cold night in November he left Allentown at two o'clock, as usual, to return to Cherryville. Before starting as the postmaster handed him the bag, he said, with a significant look—

"Do you think you can carry this safely? It's very important that it should go through."

"Why not? Is there any particular danger to-night?"

"Well, I've seen some suspicious looking fellows hanging about all day. You better keep a sharp lookout."

Joe fastened his bag in front of him, felt his pistols to make sure they were ready, and rode away in the darkness. His eyes and ears were on the alert for any unusual signs; but ere long a pelting snowstorm came on, and facing the cold blast made him feel almost reckless of the consequences. So he urged his horse rapidly forward, hoping to cross the spur of Cherry Mountains and reach shelter from the cutting wind in the forest beyond.

While ascending the first slope, his horse suddenly reared, as a dark object sprang up before him. Joe's hand instantly grasped his pistol, and he shouted—

"Clear my track or I'll shoot you."

"Mr. Albright, it's me," cried a shrill boy's voice. "Stop; I've somethin' to tell yer."

"Johnny Bruce! What brings you here this time o' night?"

"I've been waitin' mor'n an hour for yer. My cousin Dick Sharpe, wid a lot o' bush-whackers, is watchin' to murder yer an' take the mail. I can't tell yer how I found 'im out, but they's heerd that some soldiers have been sendin' thar money home in that 'ere bag, an' they's bound to have it. You'd better go back to Allentown, fer they'll kill yer, sure as yer go on."

"I can't bear to go back; yet one agin a crowd on this lonely road wouldn't stand a minute's chance. I wish I could manage to go round 'em," said Joe in a hesitating, troubled voice.

"Well, if yer'll trust me to lead yer on foot, I kin do it," replied the boy eagerly.

"Why should you wish to do this for me?" asked Joe in a suspicious voice.

"Who's took all my whortleberries an' other things an' sold 'em for us at Allentown, never chargin' us nothing' fer the trouble? Ain't we a-livin' outer that money now? But hark! I believe they're comin'."

The faint trampling of horses' feet was heard advancing. Joe sprang to the ground, removing his bag, and turning his horse's face toward Allentown, struck him a sharp cut with a whip. The animal gave a loud snort as if resenting the act, and dashed rapidly away.

"Quick, quick, they're comin' faster! We must hide in that thicket!" cried Johnny, in a terrified voice, as he darted up the side of the mountain. Scarcely had they time to crouch down behind some underbrush before a dozen well-mounted men rode up and halted just where Joe's progress had been arrested.

He felt sure their retreat was discovered, and resolved to sell his life as dearly as possible. He did not dare move or scarcely breathe as he heard Dick Sharke say—

"I could 'a' sworne I heerd his hoss jist here."

"Taint likely he could 'a'got so far," replied another gruff voice. "You're allers hearin' somethin' more'n orn'ary. But I reckon we'll overhaul him by Frogs' Pond. Come on, boys; if we catch him thar, we'll toss him over to the frogs, an' pocket the chink. That's a fair dewision, o' the spoil."

"Remember that hoss o' his'n is to be mine," called Sharpe as they rode rapidly away.

When entirely out of sight and hearing, Johnny sprang to his feet and said in a trembling voice, "Lord a-massy! I thought we were done fer when them chaps pulled up jist thar. Come now, we must stir ourselves right lively!" and he dashed forward with the unerring step of one treading familiar ground. "Are you sure you wont get lost?" asked Joe, as they turned and twisted here and there, now up, now down the steep slopes, often involving very rough climbing.

"I reckon yer can't lose me on any o' these mountings. Thar ain't a squirrel track what I don't know. Yer see we's got to keep shy o' the main road, for yer don't know whar them chaps will turn agin. We's had a powerful close shave, an I'd rather take the longest way round than risk.

Joe warmly expressed his gratitude to his preserver, and together they toiled on till nearly noon, when they entered Cherryville, and he delivered the bag in safety.

But Johny's fidelity had a reward he little expected, for that mail contained a letter, saying that his father had been wounded only, not killed, as first reported. He had recovered his health, was in active service again, and had sent home all of his pay he could spare for their support during the winter.—C. M. Cornwell, in Youth's Companion.

SHE FIXED HIM.

The young man was evidently honest in his intentions, but three years of constant courting had failed to overcome his excessive bashfulness. They were sitting in chairs at a respectful distance apart. Said the young man, having spent five minutes in search of a subject:

"How do you get along with your cooking?"

"Nicely," replied the young miss; "I'm improving wonderfully. I can make splendid cake now."

"Can you?" said the young man in a pleased manner; "what kind do you like best?"

"I like one made with flour and sugar and citron and raisins and currants and lots of those things, and beautiful frosting on top," responded the young miss.

"Why, that's wedding cake," exclaimed the young man, nervously.

"You're right now, honey," said she. "That's just what I meant."

They are married now.

NOTES OF DEPORTMENT.

Keep your nails pared, and keep paired yourself. Single-blessedness is an empty mockery.

Part your hair neatly. Part your fortune fairly.

Toe out, not in. Especially if you are an employer, you had better turn out your feet than your hands.

Keep your face cleanly shaven, and stop there. Dont shave your customers.

Don't talk with your mouth filled with food. And there is no call for your talking much under normal conditions.

A SLICE OF LIMBURGER.

Probably the meanest trick that was ever played on a white man was played last week in this city, and the fact that there is no vigilant committee here is the reason the perpetrators of the trick are still alive. A business man had purchased a new stiff hat, and he went into a saloon with half a dozen friends to fit the hat on his head. They all took leave and passed the hat around so all could see it. One of the meanest men that ever held a county office went to the bartender and had a thin slice of Limburger cheese cut off, and when the party was looking at the frescoed ceiling through the beer glasses the wicked person slipped the cheese under the sweat-leather of the hat, and the man put it on and walked out. The man who owned the hat is one of our nervous people who is always complaining of being sick, and who feels as though some dreadful disease was going to take possession of him and carry him off. He went back to his place of business, took off his hat and lay it on the table, and proceeded to answer some letters. He thought he and when his partner asked him if he didn't feel sick, he said he believed he did. A clerk said it was evident that somebody's feet needed washing. The man turned pale, and said he guessed he would go home. He met a man on the sidewalk who said the air was full of miasma, and in the street car a man who sat next to him moved away to the end of the car, and asked him if he had just come from Chicago. The man with the hat said he had not, when the stranger said they were having a great deal of small-pox there, and he guessed he would get out and walk, and he pulled the bell and jumped off. The cold perspiration broke out on the forehead of the man with the new hat, and he took it off to wipe his forehead, when the whole piece of cheese seemed to turn over and breathe, and the man got the full benefit of it, and he came near fainting away. He got home, and his wife met him and asked him what was the matter? He said he believed mortification had set in, and she took one whiff; and said that she should think it had.

"WHERE DID YOU GET INTO IT?" said she. "Get into it?" said the man. "I have not got into anything, but some deadly disease has got hold of me, and I shall not live." She told him that if any disease that smelled like that had got hold of him, and was to be chronic, she felt as though he would be a burden to himself if he lived long. She got his clothes off, soaked his feet in mustard water, and he slept. The hat was lying on the center table, and the children would come in and get a smell of it and look at each other with reproachful glances, and go out to play. The man slept and dreamed that the small-pox flag was hung in front of his house, and that he was riding in a butcher wagon to the pest-house. The woman sent for a doctor, and when the man of pills arrived she told him all about the case. The doctor picked up the patient's new hat, tried it on, and got a sniff. He said the hat was PICKED BEFORE IT WAS RIPE.

The doctor and the wife held a post-mortem examination of the hat, and found the slice of Limburger. "Few and short were the prayers they said." They woke the patient, and to prepare his mind for the revelation that was going to be made, the doctor asked him if his worldly affairs were arranged in a satisfactory condition. He gasped and said they were. The doctor asked him if he had made his will. He said that he had not, but he wanted a lawyer sent for at once. The doctor asked him if he felt as though he was prepared to shuffle off. The man said he had always tried to lead a different life, and had tried to be done by the same as he would do to himself, but that he might have made a mistake some way, and that he would like to have a minister sent for to take an account of stock. The doctor brought to the bedside the hat,

OPENED UP THE SWEAT LEATHER

and showed the dying man what it was that smelled so, and told him he was as well as any man in the city. The patient pinched himself to see if he was alive, and jumped out of bed and called for his revolver, and the doctor couldn't keep up with him on the way down town. The last we saw of the odiferous citizen he was trying to bribe the bartender to tell which one of those pelicans it was that put that slice of cheese in his hat lining.

Staining Floors.

After experimenting for myself and others how best to paint floors in a good and yet inexpensive color, I found French ochre (yellow ochre) and linseed oil in all respects the best. If allowed to dry and get hard, it will last in regular use three to five years. This looks well, and is easily cleaned. Apply the first coat thin; the subsequent coat tolerably thick, say about as thick as poor cream.—Country Gentleman.

The Great Healer of all Inflamed Injuries and Disorders.

It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the unparalleled demand with which it meets, stamps it at once as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.

The most incredulous are convinced, and the most skeptical are compelled to believe in the power of this great remedy.

WHAT IT CURES.

All SORES, CUTS, BRUISES, SPRAINS, BURNS, SORE THROAT, LAMENESS, RHEUMATISM, PILES, INFLAMMATION of LUNGS and BOWELS, BRONCHITIS, CROUP, SALT RHEUM, CHILBLAINS, AFFECTIONS of the SPINE, ERYSIPELAS, NERVOUS IRRITATION, and all disorders attendant with INFLAMMATION.

It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is gained over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame; every bone, muscle, vein, nerve, and ligament is searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it copes readily with internal as well as external diseases.

Over 40 Years

This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such that as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates of cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should feel perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.

Price 25 and 50 cents per bottle. Sold by all dealers in medicine.

TO THE AFFLICTED.

Since the introduction of Kellogg's Columbian Oil it has made more permanent cures and given better satisfaction on Kidney complaints and Rheumatism than any know remedy. Its continued series of wonderful cures in all climates has made it known as a safe and reliable agent to employ against all aches and pains, which are the forerunners of more serious disorders. It acts speedily and surely, always relieving suffering and often saving life. The protection it affords by its timely use on Rheumatism, kidney affection, and all aches and pains, wounds, cramping pains, cholera morbus, diarrhœa, coughs, colds, catarrh, and disorders among children, makes it an invaluable remedy to be kept always on hand in every home. No person can afford to be without it, and those who have once used it never will. It is absolutely certain in its remedial effects and will always cure when cures are possible. Call at C. A. Wright & Co's. and get a memorandum book giving more full details of the curative properties of this wonderful medicine.

Poverty and Suffering.

"I was dragged down with debt, poverty and suffering for years, caused by a sick family and large bills for doctoring, which did them no good.—I was completely discouraged, until one year ago, by the advice of my pastor, I procured Hop Bitters and commenced their use, and in one month we were all well and none of us have seen a sick day since, and I want to say to all poor men, you can keep your families well a year with Hop Bitters for less than one doctor's visit will cost—I know it.

A WORKINGMAN."

Given Up by the Doctors.

Where doctors have failed to cure, and have given their patients up to die, Electric Bitters have often been used, and a cure effected, greatly to the astonishment of all. Diseases of the Stomach, Liver, Kidneys and Urinary Organs are positively cured by Electric Bitters. They invariably cure Constipation, Headache and all Bilious Attacks. Try them and be convinced that they are the best medicine ever used. Sold by C.A. Wright & Co. at fifty cents a bottle.

LEWIS' CONDENSED BAKING POWDER

STRICTLY PURE!

We will plate $1000.00 for any Alum or other adulteration found in this POWDER.

Indorsed by the Brooklyn Board of Health, and by the best chemists in the United States.

It is STRONGER than any Yeast Powder in the world.

It NEVER FAILS to make light bread when used as directed.

It is COMMENDED by every housekeeper who has given it a fair trial.

It is an entirely NEW INVENTION, without any of the bad qualities of soda or saleratus, yeast or other baking powders.

It has in itself a tendency to sustain and nourish the system.

Good food makes good health; and health is improved or impaired in proportion as the food we eat is nutritious or otherwise.

LEWIS' BAKING POWDER always makes good food.

One can of this is worth two of any other baking compound.

It makes bread whiter and richer.

More than half the complaints of bad flour arise from the use of common baking powders, which often make the best of flour turn out dark bread.

The most delicate persons can eat food prepared with it without injury.

Nearly every other baking powder is adulterated and is absolutely injurious.

This is made from Refined Grape Cream of Tartar, and is PERFECTLY PURE.

It makes the BEST, lightest, and most nutritious

BREAD, BISCUIT, CAKE, CRULLERS, BUCKWHEAT, INDIAN, AND FLANNEL CAKES.

A single trial will prove the superiority of this Powder.

Chambers' Encyclopædia.

15 Vols. Over 13,000 Pages. Price During July, $6.25.

Among the wonderful things which have been accomplished for lovers of good books by the "Literary Revolution," perhaps the most wonderful is the reproduction of this great Encyclopædia at a merely nominal cost.

It is a verbatim reprint of the last English edition, in 15 beautiful volumes, clear nonpareil type, handsomely bound in cloth, for $7.50; the same printed on finer, heavier paper, wide margins, and bound in half Russia, gilt top, price $15.00. The first ten volumes are ready for delivery. Vol. 11 will be ready July 10. The remaining volumes will be completed by October next.

$6.25. An Amazing Offer. $6,25.

The more widely and rapidly these volumes are scattered, the greater is their influence in inducing other purchasers of this and our many standard publications. Accordingly we give special terms to early subscribers.

To all, whose orders and money are received during the month of July, we will supply the 15 volumes in cloth, for $6.25, and in half Russia, gilt top, for $12.50. To any one sending from any place where we have no special agent (usually the leading bookseller of the town), a club of five orders, we will allow a commission of 10 per cent. The volumes issued will be sent at once by express, and the remaining volumes when completed.

A specimen volume in cloth will be sent, postpaid, for 50 cents, or in half Russia, gilt top, for $1.00, and may be returned at once, if not satisfactory.

The "CHAMBERS'S ENCYCLOPÆDIA" comprises the first 15 volumes of our "Library of Universal Knowledge," and the remaining volumes, complete in themselves, will be sold separately when published.

WILL CHANGE AFFECT BUSINESS?

The following communication comes from an intelligent and prominent Republican manufacturer of this city:

To the Editor of the Times:

It is evident to all intelligent business men that the election of General Hancock is now much more probable than the election of General Garfield, and I sympathize with many Republicans of my acquaintance in a desire to change the political control of the Executive power of the government.—The belief is general that long continued power has lowered the standard of integrity and efficiency in the public service, and that a change in the Presidency would, for the present, at least, result in the purification of authority, just as the change of Congress in 1874 has given the country economy and overthrown the ruling lobby of the capital.

But will such change affect business injuriously? On this point some hesitate who would be glad to dismiss offensive Republican political power as they dismissed offensive Democratic political power twenty years ago, and as the offensive Van Buren political power was dismissed twenty years before that. The Times has discussed all such public questions with candor, and I ask its views on the probable effect of Hancock's election on the business interests of the country.

A REPUBLICAN MANUFACTURER.
Philadelphia, Sept. 22, 1880.

The election of Hancock would be no political revolution at all. Democratic Congresses were elected in 1874, in 1876 and in 1878; a Democratic President was elected in 1876 by a popular majority of a quarter of a million, and the Democrats now are in the majority in both Senate and House. All the legislation of the last six years, affecting both politics and business, the reduction and funding of our debt and the restoration of the South to prosperous industry, has come from a revolutionized popular branch of Congress, and that of the present Congress from a revolutionized Senate, and commerce, industry and trade have recovered from the revolution of 1873, when Republican authority was supreme. In 1876, when Tilden's election was proclaimed by the people through the ballot-box, values advanced until the electoral crime of Louisiana threatened anarchy. There is now nothing to revolutionize by the election of Hancock but the Presidency—and that was done four years ago so far as the people could do it—as the present legislative power is Democratic and the next Congress is likely to continue the same supremacy.

Certain branches of what is now called business, and what is pursued with visible profit, would be seriously affected by a political change in the Presidency. It would be utter death to one-half the political organs of Philadelphia, and they are most vehement against a change that is certain to affect business as they understand business. One-half of the partisan journals which now teem with sectional hate and frantic appeals to business men would die if the spoils were taken from them. The party advertising of this city, enlarged by statute from time to time to enable public departments to control the party organs, now amounts to not less than three hundred thousand dollars a year, and without it certainly half of them could not survive six months. A change of political power would involve a halt in all such profligacy, as independent journals do not need or seek such support; and the best half of the organs would become newspapers, and live by legitimate patronage, and the other half would benefit themselves and the community by giving up the ghost.—These journals are now greatly exercised about what they call a change in the government because it will affect business, and they are quite right as far as they either know or care anything about business.

There is another branch of business that would be seriously affected by a change in the Presidency, and that is the office-holders. There are one hundred thousand of them, and they are the empty, noisy instruments of strife. They, or their political associates, have been in place for twenty years, and they are correct in asserting that their business, which is the only business they think about, would be violently revolutionized in case of a new political domination in the White House.—And the one hundred thousand office-holders are not alone in the peril that threatens the only business they care to protect. The office-holders are, as a rule, the dependents of leaders and bosses, and masters and men, possessors and expectants, tremble at the thought of a change in business as they understand it. These are the men who call meetings, lead parades, contribute out of the public money for corruption funds and party displays, and make the most eloquent appeals on the stump to the business interests of the country not to allow a change in the government. Senator George Handy Smith sheds tears over the business desolation that must follow a political change, but manufacturer George Bullock votes for change, to get an honest administration. Prothonotary William B. Mann, Clerk William B. Leeds and Sheriff-residuary-legatee John L. Hill shudder at the depression in business that a change in the Presidency would produce, but Thomas A. Scott, Franklin B. Gowen and the Packers who are looked to by the holders of hundreds of millions of legitimate investments, believe that business will prosper all the more when politicians learn to let it alone. Collector Hartranft, Surveyor Goodrich and Naval Officer Pollock can become apparently heart-broken over the peril to business; but merchants, manufacturers and others who want honest government and honest business to make an honest living know that a regenerated public service would regenerate and prosper legitimate business as well. The office-holders have reason to fear a business revulsion in their line, if the political power of the Presidency shall be changed, and their protests against a change are logical.

One other branch of a recently created but now well established and thrifty business will be sadly broken up by a change in the Presidency.—We refer to the political mendicants and bummers who steal most of the money contributed by business men and office-holders ostensibly to carry elections. They are of various classes, and range from the genteel professionals who rank among Gubernatorial, Senatorial and Congressional expectants down to the petty precinct bummer who gets no more than his taxes and his beer out of the fund. This has become an immense profession in the dominant party, as it had become in the Democratic party twenty years ago, and those who are useful to the party and too indolent to work, live off the contributions of trusting business men who are alarmed by the prophecies of revulsion from the political thieves, and allow themselves to be robbed by those who profit by playing on their fears. The business Republicans of this city have been appealed to recently as never before to subscribe to the professionals. They have done so, and the only consolation the respectable contributors can have to ease their consciences is that, instead of being used to pollute the election in Indiana, as it was knowingly given for, most of it will be stolen before it gets to its destination, and but little crime will result from it. This branch of business will be greatly convulsed by a change in the Presidency, but there the convulsion will end.

Business revulsions are not the accidents of a popular election or of a Jay Cooke & Co. failure. They come as effect follows cause under all administrations and all political rule. When the body politic becomes corrupt business shares its diseased stimulus, and feverish prostration must follow in the fullness of time. It was not because the Republicans were in power in city, State and nation that the panic of 1873 came with its incalculable distress, bankruptcy and want; but it came because the long season of wild speculation, of political and social profligacy, and of general demoralization, had brought its inevitable reckoning. It was not because the Republicans were in power that lawlessness ruled in the great central States; that the rioter possessed our grand highways from the Eastern sea to the Father of Waters, and that Republican Pittsburg was scourged with fire and bloodshed three years ago; but it was the returning ebb of a flood tide of political business and general degeneracy that wrote its horrible lines on the annals of our history. It was not because General Hancock was a Democrat that his presence with two hundred regular soldiers made uneasy business men of Philadelphia go to their counting rooms and factories in confident security; but it was because he was known to be a soldier, a patriot, a wise conservator of law and order and the safe guardian of property and peace, that gave faith to business in our midst in the dark days of 1877. Whether Garfield or Hancock shall be elected, the same Tariff laws will be approved, the same scrupulous maintenance of public credit will be displayed, the same war claims and the same pensions will be paid, and the President who would give the highest measure of tranquility to all sections of the country, would give the highest measure of prosperity to all legitimate business.—Philadelphia Times.

WENDELL PHILLIPS ON THE PRESS.

There is such an indestructible confidence in the human voice and the human countenance that if men constantly and in great numbers, repeat an assertion it requires capacity such as is rarely found to maintain against such an overwhelming conviction, a solitary belief and when you think your press can drop an idea to fifteen million minds at once, follow it up the next day, illustrate it by logic and history, make it personal, make it ethical, make it abstract, put every possible form upon it, and add to it every possible attraction for three hundred successive days, you see how resistless to the ordinary resistance of human nature must be such a power. Palmerston said, in the height of his popularity: "I never dare to contradict a journal, no matter how personal the assault, no matter how offensive the affirmation. I know they have three hundred more days to repeat it and make fun of me." And so the magnanimous and obstinate premier remained silent rather than submit himself to the sarcastic rejoinder of the press. The press of seventy years ago was nothing. The battle of Waterloo, the grandest event in European history for the past hundred years, only gained one-third of a column in the London Times.

I remember well that when Harrison died, in 1840, when the news of it reached Springville, Ill., ten days after the President died. Abraham Lincoln, who was arguing a case in court when the news entered the court-room, denied it on the ground that it was not possible that it could have been known so soon. To-day you buy a paper in the street and you read the words that Queen Victoria is at that moment speaking to her Parliament; or you can buy an evening paper and read what Bismark said before dinner. The man that reads the newspapers has a telegraphic wire that connects him with the world, and the man who does not might as well be Robinson Crusoe on the island.

HON. HENRY WALDRON'S WILL.

The will of Hon. H. Waldron has been filed in the probate court. The following is the substance of the document: To each of his wife's sisters he gives $1,000 each; to two nieces in Chicago, Miss Boutwell and Miss Hollister, $3,000 each; to nieces at Cambria Mills, $500 each; to his wife all his city property, the homestead and furniture, 100 shares in the First National Bank, and one-sixth of all his personal estate; to his brother, Charles N. Waldron, 100 shares in the First National Bank, one-half of his real estate outside of the city of Hillsdale, and one-fourth of all his remaining property after debts and special legacies are paid; to his sister, Mrs. Mary Waterman, of Albany, N. Y., one half of his real estate outside of the city of Hillsdale and one-quarter of his personal property; to the three heirs of his brother William, one-third of his personal property. The executors are his wife, his brother, and his brother-in-law, Jeremiah Waterman, of Albany, N. Y. No inventory of the property, personal or real, has yet been filed; and all estimates are mere guess work. His property is estimated at from $400,000 to $600,000.—Hillsdale Standard.

A NEW PAYING OCCUPATION FOR LADIES AND GENTLEMEN.

The handsome Nickel Plated New Home Lamp being introduced to the public this season, is the most meritorious article ever offered Agents to make money with, is safer, and more convenient than the Student Lamp, which has heretofore had the reputation of being the Safest Lamp made, it has a clamp to firmly attach it to the Sewing Machine, Piano, Organ, Desk, etc. The fear of the ordinary lamp being accidentally upset or thrown from the table, is entirely relieved by this simple contrivance. It can be adjusted to throw the light just where it is wanted to suit the eyes, and can be converted into a handsome wall lamp. It has the best argand burner, a filling indicator, and convenient match box, and its price is within the reach of everyone. It has been fully tested and editorially endorsed by the "Western Christian Advocate," "Am. Christian Review," "Herald and Presbyter," "Journal and Messenger," and "Christian Standard," the leading Religious papers of Cincinnati, and is endorsed by the Mayor and Post-Master of Cincinnati, the Agent of the American Express Companies, as being the Safest, Most Convenient and best Lamp made.

There are three reasons why Agents should seek such an article to canvass for—first for its absolute safety and great convenience, it is needed in every home—second its low price makes its sale immense—third it will be a credit to handle such an article. One southern Agent writes, it sells faster than Gen. Lee's portrait sold right after the war, another writes it beats the palmy days of the Sewing Machine, its rapid sale, low price, and liberal terms surprise old Agents.—Address Home Lamp Co., Cincinnati, O. Mentioning our paper and they will give you full particulars and exclusive territory to canvass in.

The Great Healer of all Inflamed Injuries and Disorders.

It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the unparalleled demand with which it meets, stamps it at once as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.

The most incredulous are convinced, and the most skeptical are compelled to believe in the power of this great remedy.

WHAT IT CURES.

All SORES, CUTS, BRUISES, SPRAINS, BURNS, SORE THROAT, LAMENESS, RHEUMATISM, PILES, INFLAMMATION of LUNGS and BOWELS, BRONCHITIS, CROUP, SALT RHEUM, CHILBLAINS, AFFECTIONS of the SPINE, ERYSIPELAS, NERVOUS IRRITATION, and all disorders attendant with INFLAMMATION.

It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is gained over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame; every bone, muscle, vein, nerve, and ligament is searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it copes readily with internal as well as external diseases.

Over 40 Years

This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such that as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates of cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should feel perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.

Price 25 and 50 cents per bottle. Sold by all dealers in medicine.

EDITOR HERALD:

In your last issue you report me as stumping the county for the prohibitionists. This is a mistake if you mean third party prohibitionists, and I don't acknowledge any others as prohibitionist in the three senses of the word.

have spoken a few words in the interest of the Constitutional Amendment work, but realizing the sensitiveness of that class of persons calling themselves prohibitionists but are not, I have tried and think I have succeeded in laying aside for the time being while speaking upon the Constitutional Amendment my third party views. I do not wish to be understood as in any way surrendering my sentiments as a prohibitionist. I am in full sympathy with the third party movement and shall always remain so until the parties now claiming to be Temperance parties abandon their fealty to rum interests.

THIS is a year when a string of dried apples can be found in the garret of every country house.

PETER ONSTED, of Adrian has 18 children to divide his earthly effects between when he dies.

HON. GEORGE WILLIARD, of Battle Creek, will address the Garfield club at the Opera House this evening.

DR. E. HAUSE has a chinese book. He will lend it to any of his friends who may desire a little choice Sunday reading.

CLINTON wants to have a course of lectures this season. Susan B. Anthony must have had a good effect there last winter.

SINK'S hotel has been enlarged, that is a large wooden building has been built in the rear of the hotel for a wash room, coal house, etc.

CAPT. MANLEY, of Co. A, Ann Arbor has caused one of the members of the company to be court-marshaled for non-attendance to drills.

Keep your clothing well brushed. If you have no brush, tell your wife how you long for your mother's cookery, and you will have one instanter.

IF anything will weigh heavily against the thieves that infested Hudson lately, it will be the fact that they took Mrs. Hazlett's campaign speeches.

MR. GEO. P. WRIGHT and family have gone to Manchester to take charge of the Jas. Weir farm, Mr. Weir and wife having gone to California for a year.

PROF. HARRINGTON, astronomer of the University, espied a new comet last week. A cablegram announces that a German astronomer discovered one on the same night.

DR. REYNOLDS, the leader of the red ribbon movement, and wife, are now at Grand Forks, Dakota. A little girl baby lately made its appearance in their household.

MR. CHAS. S. CREAMER, wife and daughter, are visiting C. M. Burlingame. Mr. Creamer is one of the old HERALD boys, and was of course welcomed; he is now living in Jacksonville, Ill.

MISS MYRA GRAVES was unexpectedly called to her home in Adrian last Thursday at the instance of her grandfather's death, Mr. Peter Bogert. The circumstances attending his death are given in another column.

LAST Friday evening a large company of young people of Tecumseh were very pleasantly entertained at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Ezra Blood. The party was given in honor of their neice, Miss Tallman, of Mt. Morris, N. Y.

TOM NAVIN'S Lung Pad took only one heat in four in the race at Adrian last Saturday. Lung Pad was the favorite in the pools, but W. L. Church's Benny, who sold in the field, took three heats out of four, and consequently the $500 and gate money.

THE funeral obsequies of Miss Laura A. Nixon were attended at the cemetery on Oct. 1st, by the Rev. C. C. Sink, of Marshall. The deceased was the youngest child of William Nixon, of this place, and died at Flint of Dropsy Tuesday, Sept. 28th, aged 28 years.

LAST week on the evening that Hon. Edwin Willets spoke at Ann Arbor the gas was shut off for some cause or other throughout the city. Mr. Willits, who spoke at the court house, had to break off in the midst of his speech and wait until [illegible] procured to relieve the darkness.

TECUMSEH [illegible] do a favor to themselves [illegible] venience no one by following [illegible] example of the merchants of Lansing who have all signed an agreement to close their places of business at the ringing of the Council bell at 8 o'clock every evening except Saturday.

GEO. SCOLLICK, who has for some months past been serving an apprenticeship under M. P. Brown, took leave of his many Tecumseh friends yesterday and started for St. Johns. George is going to open a photographic gallery there and go it alone. His genial manners will insure him a good business.

TOM ADAMSON started for the east last Saturday.

MANCHESTER nimrods had a big hunt yesterday.

NEXT Tuesday night will bring relief to many a wretched mind.

LAST Tuesday night Mrs. V. S. Sherrard returned from the east where she has been visiting during the summer.

J. D. LELAND of Corruna, Mich., was in town last Tuesday visiting his uncle, E. H. Hassell and gave us a friendly call.

THE corporation tax collector is now going the grand rounds, and he meets many a man that would like to give him the grand bounds.

THE proprietor of the Adrian Press has gone up in the Saginaw district and is on the stump for Tarsney. Col. Eldridge is also in the same district.

THE fair at Adrian was a complete success as far as the number and variety of entries was concerned, but the uncontrollable weather was too inclement.

NEXT Tuesday Indiana, Ohio and West Virginia will hold their state elections. Colorado, not as newspapers have reported, will have its state election Nov. 2d.

THE Jane Coombs combination will play the Shakespearean tragedy "Romeo and Juliet" at the opera house, Friday evening, Oct. 15. This troupe and play should attract a large house, such as it deserves.

ASA STEVENS JR., formerly of Tecumseh has a good position in the dry goods store of Field, Leiter & Co., Chicago. He likes his position very much, having been promoted three times during the past year.

No person can go through more noisy and neck-break motions, throw more stones, knock over more people, and kick more holes in pumpkins and green squashes in front of stores than the average school boy just released from school.

THE streets of Tecumseh are now in prime condition, but just wait until the mud and slush of winter holds its almost ceaseless flow through the business portion of the town, and then don t say anything about the solidity of a graveled street.

ZEBINA S. TAYLOR has left at our office an egg which weighs 4 ounces and measures 8 inches around one way and 6¾ inches around the other way. Mr. Taylor, however, did not lay the egg; not much. A white cochin hen belonging to Mr. Taylor laid the egg.

DR. E. HAUSE had a very pleasant party at Jehiel's last Monday evening. He bethought himself to give his friends, who assisted him during his sickness last winter, a formal recognition for their kindness, and so invited them all to Jehiel's to partake of an oyster supper. The company numbered about twenty, and they passed an hour very pleasantly. The supper was an excellent one and well served.

DR. HOUSE is renovating and making sundry improvements in the appearance of his office. The walls are covered with a rich paper which harmonizes with his elegant and convenient office furniture. He has procured a new desk of L. A. Van Tyne that is a novelty. It contains nine different draws which all can by a certain combination be locked or unlocked by the locking or unlocking of a large middle drawer. It will make a sick man well to look at his office when he has it finished.

MR. JOHN HIALEY, while exercising one of his fine horses on the race course at the county fair last Friday, met with a serious smash up. Jno. Anderson, of Macon, with no right to the track, was out with his horse at the same time as Mr. Hialey, and was driving in an opposite direction. As a natural consequence Anderson ran into Mr. Hialey's skeleton, breaking it and throwing Mr. Hialey to the ground, injuring his chest and bruising his hand somewhat. The horse was uninjured.

STEVENSON'S comedy company did not meet with very flattering success in Tecumseh last Saturday and Monday evenings. The company undoubtedly possesses talent for certain lines of plays, but the comedy "Our Girls" is one that requires more than uncommon dramatic ability to counter-balance the inferiority of the play. We are confident that if the company had opened with their emotional drama "Lost in London," they would have been greeted with a full house on Monday evening.

THE Era Archery Club of East Tecumseh met at the residence of Wm. H. Aten on Saturday afternoon, Oct., 2, to shoot at a mark with their bows and arrows, and so skillful are some of the members in the use of the bow that William Tell the renowned archer of old, were he alive and a witness of their skill would throw away his bow in despair, and acknowledge himself defeated. An unusually large number were present, and all considered the meeting the very best of the season. The next meeting will be held at the residence of B. F. De Puy, on Saturday Oct. 9, at 2 o'clock P. M. sharp.

GO AND hear the gallant Col. Wilkins next Monday evening.

Remember the Farmers' Club meeting, next Saturday afternoon.

THEY do say that Gabriel is just the man to shoot a rabbit on the fly.

J. H. SHERRARD has a new "ad" on the first page of the HERALD.

WM. HAYDEN furnishes Adrian with the greater part of her mill feed.

MRS. B. G. BACON, of Toledo, is spending a week with her parents on Ottawa street.

JIM MCCOWEN started this morning for Chicago, where he will remain for a number of weeks.

THE Universalist social will meet at Mrs. Milan Wheeler's to-morrow afternoon and evening.

WM. HAYDEN, and brother from New York, are spending a day or two in Mt. Vernon, Ohio, this week.

MANY a Brownvillian walked on tip-toes this morning as he passed over the numerous 329's that covered their walks.

JANE COOMBS as Juliet at the opera house, Friday, Oct. 15. She has well earned a world wide reputation in this role.

THE first meeting of the fall season of the S. P. S. Society, will be held at Mrs. Parkhurst's on Wednesday, Oct. 13th. All are invited.

DR. R. B. HOUSE had the misfortune yesterday, to fall from a desk upon the sharp end of a chisel, which chisled his knee so that he can not mount his office stairs.

A. J. PALMER has enlarged his ware rooms and will hereafter keep a first class supply of tables, bedsteads, bureaus, stands, etc., in connection with his chair business, on Railroad street, Tecumseh.

AT the regular election of officers of Co. C, last night, the old incumbents were re-elected: Captain, R. B. House; 1st Lieutenant, A. D. Lawrence; 2d Lieutenant, T. C. Cummins; Orderly Sargent, S. A. James.

THE fall trade is just opening up now, and Tecumseh merchants are letting their wares be known through the HERALD. We have several new advertisements this week and expect another installment next week.

MR. VANANTWERP, of Hornelsville, N. Y., a brother of A. VanAntwerp, of this village, is making a short visit in Tecumseh, this week. He says the political campaign is beginning to warm up considerably in New York.

MISS IDA DAVIS in company with Mrs. Salmon Crane started for the west last Monday. Mrs. Crane's destination is St Louis, and Miss Davis goes on to Pueblo, Colo., to visit friends and will remain through the winter.

FRED. BURLINGAME attained his majority to-day, and will cast his first vote next month. He says that it will be a straight out and out democratic vote from coroner to president. In consequence of which he was chained up with an elegant gold chain.

Evening News: Modest Tom Hunter, of Adrian, the republican nominee for clerk of Lenawee Co., is in a bad fix. Here he is on the eve of election, with a dozen appointments to speak unfilled—and some one has broken into his house and stolen his breeches.

REV. C. C. SINK of Marshall was the guest of his brother, W. H. Sink of this place last Thursday and Friday. The Reverend was on his way to the seat of his conference to deliver the annual address to the clergy of his church, who hold their meeting in Paulding county, Ohio.

MRS. DANIEL QUACKENBOSS and daughter have taken up their residence in Tecumseh and will make our village their permanent home hereafter. They have rented rooms in the Terry house, west of the East Branch school and are engaged in "settling" this week. Mrs. Quackenboss has many old friends here who will be glad to welcome her back to her old home.

YESTERDAY the Heck Bros.' were somewhat surprised to have the mill suddenly stop and refuse to grind. They set about investigating the matter and when they looked over the water wheel they found that a large eel had wended its way into the race and rather injudiciously became entangled in the wheel, and stopped the working of the whole mill. They pulled the eel out and it measured 2¼ feet in length. It is probably one of the eels that were placed in the pond about five years ago. This is no fish story, we never did believe an eel was a fish.

JEHIEL DAVIDSON has now got fairly settled in his new quarters, and is abundantly prepared to accommodate all his friends. He will continue to deal in fresh and canned fruits, confectionery and cigars the same as heretofore, and will also serve oysters and warm meals at all hours of the day. He will keep none but the best brands of oysters, and will serve them raw or cooked in any style. Jehiel has already established a reputation for having the best fruit and confectionery, and the addition of an eating room to his business will very materially increase his trade. May he live long and prosper.

THE following pupils of school district No. 5, of Raisin, have neither been absent nor tardy during the month ending Oct. 1st, 1880: Artie Bangs, Frank Sutton, Wina Hanford, Lena Titus, Ella Morris, Freddie Chaubarty, Bertha Bryan, Georgie Church.

COL. WM. D. WILKINS, of Detroit, will address the Tecumseh Hancock Club, at the Opera House, on Monday evening next, Oct. 11th. Col. Wilkins is a veteran of the Mexican war and also of the rebellion, is an accomplished scholar and forcible speaker. He lived in Tecumseh a few months many years ago, and has many personal acquaintances here. Give him a full house.

THE sudden demise of John Hill, of Weston, led the people of that vicinity to the belief that his death was the result of poison administered by some person with murderous intentions.—Consequently his grave was visited by a corps of surgeons, and the body exhumed. An autopsy was held and the stomach was sealed up in a glass jar and sent to the pharmacy department of the University for analysis by the professors, but no traces of poison were found. Now the people of that place are undoubtedly satisfied, but the omnipresent and invincible county coroner Ludlow will hold an inquest Oct. 11.

BUSINESS FOR WINTER MEETINGS.

The Common Council seems to be divided as regards the matter of using the old cemetery grounds as a place of recreation.

Sept. 6th a complaint was made to the Council about the grounds being so used and it was referred to the com. on public grounds which was ordered to report at the next meeting.

The next meeting came but the com. had not yet been able to come to any definite conclusion and they were again ordered to report at the next meeting. At the last meeting the report of the com. was called for, as seen in our Council proceedings, and two reports were handed in, the majority and the minority report. The majority report recommending that the parties be allowed to transform the grounds into a park fitted up for public amusement, but the minority thought otherwise and strongly objected to the grounds, once the receptacle of the remains of Tecumseh's settlers, being thus molested. The Council not caring to take any action at the time, laid both reports upon the table until the next meeting.

By that time the weather will probably not admit croquet players to visit the park to play, and the Council can keep the matter for consideration on the winter evenings when there is no business of great importance to come up, and by spring time give a candid and long considered answer to the complainants.

TRIP TO CHICAGO.

Last week Wednesday we started for the wicked city with the intention of staying a few days, making a short visit and buying a little stock for the printing business. Right here it might be well to state that in order to save some hours time in going to Chicago from Tecumseh it is much better to take the night train here and go via. the M. C. R. R. than to take the old line via. Adrian and the L. S. & M. S. The Central road is in fine condition, has all the accomodations a railroad can have, and under ordinary circumstances the trains make good connections and are on time, and is certainly the best route for Tecumseh people to take in going to Chicago.

Arriving in the city Thursday evening we went down the first thing to see S. P. Rounds, the "father" of all western printers. S. P. treated us as he always does every one, with a hearty welcome and although he does more work every day than any other two men in his mammoth establishment, seems as healthy, hearty and happy as ever.

Next came Culver, Page, Hoyne & Co's., Stationery and Book-Binding house, which is probably the largest one of the kind west of N. Y. city. Their business is simply immense and is growing every day, and this house has the name of being one of the squarest dealing houses in the west. We called on many paper houses, but the one most notable for their rush of business and largest stock was the J. W. Butler Paper Co., Monroe st. They have a very large city and country trade and which with their square and gentlemanly way of doing business is sure to increase.

After our business matters were completed we called on W. D. Meeker who now holds the position of book-keeper for the North Side Street Car Co., and is doing well in Chicago. We also found Asa Stevens behind the velvet and plush counters in Field, Leiter, & Co's. retail dry goods store and is doing well. Frank Bowlsby is canvassing for a large book firm and has a lucrative position. In fact all the Tecumseh boys who have gone to Chicago have done well and are destined all to become good business men.

Monday found us again behind the desk all tired out after a first rate visit to the New York City of the west.

A BALLOON.

Yesterday afternoon the people about Newburg saw a large balloon sailing over their heads with a man quietly sitting upon a trapeze bar, and when it was about four miles from Tecumseh it went down. The balloonist quickly picked up his balloon and procured a conveyance to transport him to Tecumseh.

We, upon inquiry, found out that the man made an ascension at Jackson, yesterday afternoon, at the fair, and intended not to go any great distance. When he had gone as far as he wanted to, he tried to pull open the valve and descend, but to his surprise and discomfiture, as he was rather meagerly dressed in tights, the valve refused to work and the balloon took its own course. The wind kept carrying it southwest, and the balloonist after he had traveled about twenty-five miles, began to grow sore and become weary of sitting on an iron bar, and concluding it would not make a very soft bed for the night, he decided to get to the ground in some way. So he pulled out his jack knife and climbed up the rope and cut a hole in the balloon so that the gas would escape. The balloon commenced to descend and he landed on terra firma all safe. He took the night train home where he could obtain another suit more adapted to Indian summer than the gauzy tights.

Adrian Times: Speaking of Adrian enterprise, it is in order to remark that Fred. Bowerfind recently took a short trip out through Tecumseh and Hudson, and in two days sold 185 barrels of crackers. This speaks well for his qualities as a salesman, and the reputation of the house he represents.

AFRAID OF THEIR RECORDS.

A sad-nosed, red-eyed man stuck his head into the Petroleum World office and said:

"There are only two public characters in all this country that are not afraid of their records."

"Hancock and English, I suppose," suggested a reporter."

"Naw, sir."

"Garfield and Arthur?"

"Naw, sir."

"Weaver and Chambers?"

"Naw, sir."

The reporter knew from the appearance of the stranger that it would be useless to suggest the Prohibition candidates, and so gave it up, remarking that if there were two public characters in this country who were not ashamed of their records he would be glad to know it.

The stranger backed over the threshold, pulled the door almost to, and remarked in a stage whisper:

"Maud S. and St. Julien!"

ESTATE OF JACOB L. VAN WINKLE.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, s.s.

At a session of the Probate Court for the county of Lenawee, holden at the Probate Office in the city of Adrian, on Tuesday, the 24th day of August, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty.

Present, Norman Geddes, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Jacob L. Van Winkle, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition, of Edwin B. Wood, administrator, with the will annexed of said deceased, alleging that he has said the debts of said deceased, the expenses of administration thereof incurred, and all legacies bequeathed in and by said will except residuary legacies, and is ready to file his final account in this court, and praying for the allowance of said account, for an assignment and distribution of the residue of said estate to the persons entitled thereto and for his discharge.

Thereupon it is ordered, That Monday, the 18th day of September next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs at law of said deceased, and all other persons, interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court then to be holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, and show cause if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said County of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing. Cathartic Pills

Combine the choicest cathartic principles in medicine, in proportions accurately adjusted to secure activity, certainty, and uniformity of effect. They are the result of years of careful study and practical experiment, and are the most effectual remedy yet discovered for diseases caused by derangement of the stomach, liver, and bowels, which require prompt and effectual treatment. AYER'S PILLS are specially applicable to this class of diseases. They act directly on the digestive and assimilative processes, and restore regular healthy action. Their extensive use by physicians in their practice, and by all civilized nations, is one of the many proofs of their value as a safe, sure, and perfectly reliable purgative medicine. Being compounded of the concentrated virtues of purely vegetable substances, they are positively free from calomel or any injurious properties, and can be administered to children with perfect safety.

AYER'S PILLS are an effectual cure for Constipation or Costiveness, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Loss of Appetite, Foul Stomach and Breath, Dizziness, Headache, Loss of Memory, Numbness, Biliousness, Jaundice, Rheumatism, Eruptions and Skin Diseases, Dropsy, Tumors, Worms, Neuralgia, Colic, Gripes, Diarrhoea, Dysentery, Gout, Piles, Disorders of the Liver, and all other diseases resulting from a disordered state of the digestive apparatus.

As a Dinner Pill they have no equal.

While gentle in their action, these PILLS are the most thorough and searching cathartic that can be employed, and never give pain unless the bowels are inflamed, and then their influence is healing. They stimulate the appetite and digestive organs; they operate to purify and enrich the blood, and impart renewed health and vigor to the whole system.

THE FARMERS' PAGE.

USES OF LIME IN FARMING.

The uses of lime are in part mechanical and par chemical.

1. Upon deep alluvial and clay soil it increases the crop of potatoes and renders them less waxy; sprinkled over potatoes in a stone heap, when both the potatoes and lime is in dry state it preserves them, and when riddled over the cut sets at planting time it wonderfully increases their fertility.

2. Lime eradicates the finger and toe disease in turnips, and helps to give greater firmness to the bulbs.

3. It gives when applied to meadow land a larger produce by producing more nutritious grasses, also helping to exterminate the seeds of mosses and aquatic plants.

4. Upon arable land it destroys weeds of various kinds.

5. It rapidly decomposes vegetable matter, producing a larger amount of food for plants in the form of carbonized elements.

6. It destroys and neutralizes the acid in the soil, hence its adaptability to some lands.

7. It acts powerfully upon some of the organic parts of the soil, especially upon sulphate of magnesia and alumia.

8. It proves fatal to worms and slugs and in the larvæ of insects, though favorable to the growth of sheel bearers.

9. Slacked lime added to vegetable matter causes it to give off its nitrogen in the form of ammonia, upon soils in which ammonia is combined with acids, it sets free the ammonia which is seized upon by the growing plants.

10. Its solubility in the water causes it to sink into and ameliorates the subsoil, when the coil contains fragments of granite or trap rock lime hastens their decomposition and liberates their constituents.

11. Its combination with the acids in the soil produces some compounds such as soda which immediately enter into plant growth.

12. Strewed over plants it destroys or renders uncomfortable the location of numerous species of insects, which prey on the surface—notably the turnip fly.

14. Worked in with grass seeds the beneficial effect of lime, chalk, marl, and shell sand—into the composition of all of which lime largely enters—it has been known to produce visible effects for upwards of 30 years.

15. Applied to the manure, lime effects to destroy the seed of various weeds, the larvæ of insects, and otherwise exercises a very beautiful effect in the liberation of organic constituents, and then assists in their combination with other and more useful forms of plant food.

How to Get Rich.

The great secret of obtaining riches, is first to practice economy, and as good old "Deacon Snyder," says, "It used to worry the life out of me to pay enormous doctor's bills, but now I have "struck it rich." Health and happiness reign supreme in our little household, and all simply because we use no other medicine but Electric Bitters and only costs fifty cents a bottle. Sold by C. A Wright & Co., Tecumseh.

WHAT AN OLD FARMER SAYS.

This is the advice of an old man who has tilled the soil for forty years:

I am an old man, upwards of three score years, during two scores, of which I have been a tiller of the soil. I cannot say that I am now, but I have been rich and have all I need, do not owe a dollar, have given my children a good education, and when I am called away will leave them enough to keep the wolf from the door. My experience has taught me that.

1. One acre of land well prepared well cultivated, produced more than two which received only the same amount of labor used on one.

2. One cow, horse, mule, sheep or hog well fed, is more profitable than two kept on the same amount necessary to keep one well.

3. One acre of clover or grass is worth more than two of cotton where no grass or clover is raised.

4. No farmer who buys oats, corn or wheat, fodder and hay, as a rule, for ten years, can keep the sheriff away from the door in the end.

5. The farmer who never reads the papers, sneers at book farming and improvements, always has a leaky roof, poor stock, broken down fences, and complains of bad "seasons."

6. The farmer who is above his business and entrusts it to another to manage, soon has no business to attend to.

7. The farmer whose habitual beverage is cold water, is healthier, wealthier and wiser than he who does not refuse to drink.

Better Times.

The Democrat, New Orleans, La., says: "Suffering among such as have been troubled with diseases of kidneys and liver, has been perceptibly better since the introduction among us of Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure.

Dead issues—old newspapers.

HINTS FOR OCTOBER.

Weeds in Grass Lands may be very easily seen and destroyed this month by the use of the "spud," a broad chisel blade attached to a handle like that of a spade or long-handled shovel, having a spur upon it for the foot to aid in thrusting it into the ground. A boy with an instrument of this kind can rapidly clear grass land of butter cups, daisies, and a multitude of other biennial and perennial weeds.

POTATOES.—The sooner they are dug now the better. It is best to keep them a while either in protected heaps in the field, or on some unused floor. They throw off much moisture within a few days, and will heat if in large heaps or too deep in the bins. When thoroughly dry, they may be placed in secure bins or in the cellar. Potatoes are injured at once by frost, and gradually by sunlight, or even by diffused light. They should, therefore, be kept from the light as much as possible, and decayed ones carefully culled out before they are put away.

Roots are now making their best growth. Moderately warm days and cold nights seem to have a great effect upon them. As the time for heavy frosts approaches, secure the mangels and sugar beets. Top by rubbing the leaves off, not by cutting, as the wound often starts decay, which spoils the beets. Carrots secure attention next after the beets, and turnips next, leaving the Sweedish turnips longest. Always protect piles of roots ag'nst frost by some covering. Turnips will survive severe freezing, but they are never so good for feeding.

WATER.—If pure water does not flow at the barn, look into means for securing it. Barn-yard wells are convenient, but often dangerous to the health, if not of animals, certainly of men, who may drink at them. If the water from some spring can be led to the house and barn, by all means, bring it down—use plain iron pipes or enamelled ones—not "galvanized" pipes.—Zinc is a slow poison, but not quite so bad as lead. A well on higher ground will often furnish flowing water, conducted by a siphon, at the level of the buildings. No well should be dug at a less distance than 800 feet from a barn-yard, cesspool or privy vault.

LIVE STOCK.—A little extra feed brings cattle and horses to the beginning of winter in good order. The tops of carrots, beets, and turnips may be fed to good advantage, and there is a great deal of sweetness in the October pasturage. Where much corn is planted, there will always be soft ears and "nubbins" which are best fed to horses and pigs.

SWINE.—Pigs will fatten nearly as fast on potatoes this month as on corn next. They do best on cooked feed, and the grain ought to be ground.

SHEEP.—This month we speak for March lambs. Half-fed sheep are often run into market from sections where food is scarce, and it pays well to secure such to feed for the winter, turning them off fat in spring. The feeder should be satisfied if by so doing he works up his wheat straw and corn into manure, getting pay for his grain and cash outlay, and that only.

APPLES.—The practice of picking the fruit and putting it in heaps for a few days until the skin toughens, before barreling, is a good one. Put the fruit into the barrel with care, shaking it down when half full, and again when full, so that the apples will fit closely when the head is pressed in by means of the barreling press. The opposite head should be marked as the one to be opened. This season of abundant apples it will not pay to market any but the best fruit, and that in fine shape. Dry second rate fruit or make it into CIDER.—The best cider is made from late ripening, sound fruit, and in cool weather when the fermentation is gradual. Many early apples may be worked up into sweet cider and sold as such or made into vinegar. This is one of the best methods of turning to account fruit that would otherwise be lost.

FRUIT CELLARS should be in readiness, but the fruit should be kept under sheds, etc., until cold weather comes, being careful to remove it to the cellar before being exposed to severe cold. The fruit cellars should be provided with ventilators so arranged that they can be readily thrown open.

Astonishing the World.

For a perfect renovation of exhausted and enfeebled constitutions, female weakness and decline, nothing so surely and speedily produces a permanent cure as does Electric Bitters. Their wonderful cures are astonishing the world. For Kidney or Urinary complaints they are a perfect specific. Do not give up in dispair, for Electric Bitters will positively cure, and that where everything else fails. Sold by C. A. Wright & Co., at 50 cents a bottle.

It is reported that the British steamer Thanemore, Captain Sibthrop, which sailed from Baltimore, August 29, for Liverpool, lost 225 head of fine fat cattle on the passage.

TESTIMONY

Of the Hon. Jos. E. Gray, Judge of the Superior Court, Chicago, Ill.

CHICAGO, Dec. 14, 1876.

DR. S. D. HOWE,

DEAR SIR:—Permit me to add my grateful testimony to the army of witnesses to the virtue of your justly celebrated Arabian remedies. For a long time my wife was seriously afflicted with hacking cough, oppressed breathing, soreness of the chest, and constant acute pain in the lower portion of the right lung and under the shoulder blade. Her sufferings were intense, and she became extremely nervous and prostrated. Her disease was pronounced consumption by the physicians of Chicago and other cities, whose prescriptions had been taken without benefit. When you visited Chicago in June, 1873, we called on you, having very little hope of deriving help from your treatment. We were inspired with hope by the skillful manner in which your thorough examination was conducted, and the satisfactory explanation with which you closed your diagnosis. My wife determined to take your medicines in accordance with your plan and practical directions. She began to use the Arabian Milk Cure and Arabian Tonic; their beneficial effects soon became manifest—the cough loosened and soon ceased, respiration became easy, the soreness of the chest was relieved and all pain removed, she began to gain in flesh and improve in strength and appearance. I fully believe that your medicines and skillful advice have saved the life of my wife. She unites with me in this grateful tribute to the merit of your remedies.

Very respectfully yours,
JOSEPH E. GRAY.

SOME EXHIBITS AT THE FAIR.

MISS COOMBS' "JULIET."

The Cincinnati Enquirer has this notice of Miss Coombs' acting in the great play of "Romeo and Juliet:"

Robinson's Opera House was packed from pit to dome last night by an audience whose quality was equal to its quantity. The elite of the city completely filled the parquette, parquette circle, balcony and proscenium boxes. The occasion was the appearance of Miss Jane Coombs, America's greatest artiste, as the heorine of Shakespeare's immortal love poem, "Romeo and Juliet." The play had been produced during the earlier part of the week at a rival theater with a "Juliet" who had achieved wide fame in the role, and the interest manifested to see Miss Coombs in the same character was so intense that hundreds were turned away from the door even of that vast theater.

The general expectation was more than fulfilled. In the balcony scene, the nurse scene; and, in fact, in all the earlier scenes of the play, the rich musical reading of Miss Coombs reached not only every ear, but every heart in the immense audience. But it was when the strongest passages of the tragedy were on that Miss Coombs rose peer of the actresses whose names have become traditional among play-goers—Siddons, Kemble, Cushman. In the scene where the news of Romeo's supposed death is received, the depiction of the grief and passion of "Juliet" is wonderful. It is a fitting introduction to that parting scene, whose pathos none who have ever witnessed Miss Coombs' rendition will ever forget; the moment when the banished Romeo takes his last leave of his new made bride. The agony which has been infused into the word 'banished' until it sends a thrill of sympathy with the stricken girl through the rapt house in the preceding scenes is forgotten in the tenderness of the broken-hearted adieu.

In the last act the auditors were wrought up to the highest pitch of enthusiasm. Indeed the American stage at least has witnessed few such scenes as that between the dying lover and the awakening "Juliet." Such is a brief outline of a performance with which our citizens have been before electrified, but which they cannot enjoy too often. It was worthy alike of the beautiful star, of the great love poem and the greastest "Lady Teazle" of the age. The support as a whole was excellent.

A Wonderful Discovery.

For the speedy cure of Consumption and all diseases that lead to it, such as stubborn Coughs, neglected Colds Bronchitis, Hay Fever, Asthma, pain in the side and chest, dry hacking cough, tickling in the throat, Hoarseness, Sore Throat, and all chronic or lingering diseases of the throat and lungs. Dr. King's New Discovery has no equal and has established for itself a world-wide reputation. Many leading physicians recommend and use it in their practice. The formula from which it is prepared is highly recommended by all medical journals. The clergy and the press have complimented it in the most glowing terms. Go to your druggist and get a trial bottle free of cost, or regular size for $1.00. For sale by M. Wright & Son, Tecumseh, Mich.

BOTH parties claim that they have made gains in the recent state election of Connecticut and Delaware, but the Republicans have to keep quiet about Georgia as both candidates for governor were Democrats and without doubt the Democratic candidate was elected.

THE Lansing Journal, one of the most enterprising state papers, came out during the fair at that place with a daily issue, and a neat one too.

ESTATE OF JAMES LOWRY.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee—ss.

At a session of the Probate Court for the county of Lenawee, holden at the Probate office in the city of Adrian, on Tuesday the 5th day of October, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty.

Present, Norman Geddes, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of James Lowry, deceased.

Lucy Lowry, widow of said deceased, having on the 13th day of September, A.D. 1880, filed her petition in this court, praying that letters of administration on the estate of said deceased be granted to Charles Burridge, or some other suitable person, and the order of hearing made thereon by this court on that day not having been properly published as in said order directed.

Thereupon it is ordered, That Monday, the 8th day of November next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court then to be holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, and show cause if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered. That said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing. (A True Copy.)

THE READY FAMILY SOAP MAKER:

LEWIS' LYE

98 PER CENT. PURE.

(Patented.)

FINELY POWDERED.

HIGHLY PERFUMED.

The strongest and purest Lye made. Will make 12 pounds of the best Perfumed Hard Soap in 20 minutes without boiling.

The best water-softener made.

The best disinfectant.

The following are some of the advantages obtained by using Lewis' 98 Per Cent. Powdered Lye:

First. It is packed in an iron can with a slip or removable lid, easily taken off and leaving the contents exposed, thereby saving the trouble, annoyance, and danger (from flying particles), as with other Lyes, which, being sold in the cans, must be broken with a hammer to get the Lye out.

Second. It being a fine powder, you can remove the lid and pour out all the contents, being always ready for use.

Third. A teaspoonful or more can be used, as in water-softening, scrubbing, etc., and the lid returned to the can, and thereby save the balance of contents.—With other Lyes all must be dissolved at once and used in a short time, or the strength is gone.

Fourth. Absolute purity. Free from all adulterations.

Fifth. The best Soap can be made in from ten to twenty minutes with this Lye.

Sixth. No failure is possible in making Soap with this Lye when the simple directions given are followed.

Seventh. One can of this Powdered Lye is equal to twenty pounds of Sal Soda or Washing Soda.

Eighth. One can of this Lye will saponify one pound more of grease than any other Concentrated Lye, Ball Potash, or Saponifier.

Ninth. This Lye is 98 per cent. stronger than any other Lye or Potash.

Tenth. One to two teaspoonfuls will soften a tub of the hardest water.

Eleventh. One teaspoonful will thoroughly cleanse Sinks, Drains, or Closets.

Invaluable for killing Roaches, Mice, Rats, etc.

The best article for washing Trees.

AROUND THE COUNTY.

FRANKLIN.

We failed to come to time last week in consequence of two shakes of the ague that threatened serious results for the time being, but may recover.

Rev. James Vincent preached his farewell sermon last Sabbath to a large audience, and it was, as might have been expected, appropriate to the occasion, and he retires from this field of labor with the best wishes of the entire community for his future success. He has purchased a residence in Tecumseh, and its citizens are to be congratulated upon obtaining so valuable a family. It is expected that Rev. Hughs, of Fruitport, will preach at the Congregational church next Sunday, with a view of locating here should such an arrangement seem mutually desirable.

The democrats held a meeting at Tuttle's Hall on Thursday evening last that was largely attended by all parties. Considerable disappointment was manifested in regard to the speakers that had been advertised (Bean and Stacy, of Adrian,) not being present. Messrs. Eldridge and Phillips appearing in their stead. But so far as we could judge their speeches were sufficiently orthodox to satisfy any reasonable mind, and were it not for the fact as has been claimed for a very aged being "that he is not as black as some people paint him," the republicans would have found but little to admire, to say the least, as both speeches were designed to extinguish both the party and its candidate.

Mr. and Mrs. Burt Tuttle gave a social party to their young friends in this community on Wednesday evening of last week, that proved a very enjoyable affair.

The greenbackers open the campaign here this week Wednesday evening, with a speech by Dr. Baker, of Hudson, and they propose to send a delegation to Tecumseh on Friday.

There is considerable interest manifested here as to the result of the State elections in Ohio and Indiana as foreshadowing the general result. May the best party win.

RIDGEWAY.

C. A. Sharp says he expects to open a news office at an early date.

More railroads—Vanderbilt's new survey from Adrian to Detroit is expected to strike this village.

The new Times' cor. may be seen almost any time with a bundle of paper, a half dozen Faber's No. 2, enquiring the latest news from Indiana. He has got his rooster muzzled.

Dr. Loree has shown us a head of wheat or rather a head of chess, with several very well developed grains of wheat in it. The specimen grew upon his prairie farm.

The chap that helped to run George Wilkins' buggy over to DeWitt Talburt's last Saturday night, can have his brown mottled vest button by calling upon Mr. T. What'll you tell your girl when she misses that button young man?

The long expected contest between the Raisin and Ridgeway B. B. clubs came off on the grounds of the latter club on Saturday, 9th, and resulted in a walk-away for the home nine.—We would like to call that umpire's attention to "case 7 of rule 44, of Spaulding's Guide, 1880." The score stood 11 to 27. We would advise Raisin to content herself with "Ring around a Rosa" and other light amusements, and leave base ball to men of larger muscle, at least until you can take a defeat without letting your angry passions rise. The game with the Mooreville club resulted in a score of 15 to 1 in Ridgeway's favor. The boys have concluded to lay down the bat for this year.

Adrian Times: About 4 p. m., yesterday, William Geddes, an old and respected resident of the town of Cambridge, and brother of Hon. Norman Geddes, of this city, rode out in a buggy on his farm. Night came on, and he not returning, the family became alarmed and began a search for him. The horse and buggy were found near the barn, and the buggy tracks were traced back to a field on the farm, where was found the body of Mr. Geddes, which had apparently been dead for some hours. It was about 8 p. m. when the body was found. It is thought heart disease was the cause of death, but this will be determined by the post mortem examination which will be had. Mr. Geddes was 63 years old, moved to Cambridge in 1835, and has ever since lived there. He was the oldest brother of Judge Geddes.

SOUTH MACON.

The game of base ball between the Lake Ridge and Grange Hall Clubs did not come off, as the Lake Ridge club failed to connect.

Richard Cadmus has gone on a visit to Kalamazoo.

Mrs. Scofield is visiting friends in this vicinity.

The Red Ribbon club gave a good long program to those who came out last Saturday night. Below is the program in full:

Music by the choir.
Song—Libbie Hunter.
Recitation—Nettie Ambrose.
Declamation—Charley Allen.
Reading—Ella Clarkson.
Song—Hattie Osgood.

Song by the club.

A short speech by J. W. Baker, followed by Charles Skinner and Asael Russell.

Lewis Miller is making a short visit to Lansing.

EAST RAISIN.

The grading is completed on the Detroit & Butler R. R., in this part of the town. The $2,500 bonus has been secured and we are assured of a good depot and freight house, to be located on the farm of Warren Holdridge or Butler Holloway.

Mr. Rufus Kelley is visiting at his father's, and with his many friends here.

Dr. Uriah Billmyer visited home for a few days before taking his position at Ann Arbor.

The young men will raise a hickory pole on their B. B. grounds, on the farm of Horace Holdridge this week Friday, the 15th. Good speakers will be present and a good time is expected. All are invited.

The East Raisin Literary Society will meet Saturday evening, the 16th, the time adjourned too, during the summer, and will meet each week, as usual, during the winter.

Greatest Remedy Known.

Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumptive is certainly the greatest medical remedy ever placed within the reach of suffering humanity.—Thousands of once hopeless sufferers, now loudly proclaim their praise of this Discovery to which they owe their lives. Not only does it positively cure Consumption, but Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, Hay Fever, Hoarseness and all affections of the Throat, Chest and Lungs yield at once to its wonderful curative powers as if by magic. We do not ask you to buy a large bottle until you know what you are getting. We therefore earnestly request you to call on your druggists, M. Wright & Son, and get a trial bottle free of cost which will convince the most skeptical of its wonderful merits, and show you what a regular one dollar size bottle will do. For sale by M. Wright & Son, Tecumseh.

Envied Beauty.

What is more handsome than a nice bright, clear complexion, showing the beauties of perfect health? All can enjoy these advantages by using Electric Bitters. Impure blood, and all diseases of the Stomach, Liver, Kidneys and Urinary Organs are speedily cured. For nervousness and attendant ailments, they are a never failing remedy, and positively cure where all others fail. Try the Electric Bitters and be convinced of their wonderful merits. For sale by C. A. Wright & Co. at fifty cents a bottle.

Feels Young Again.

"My mother was afflicted a long time with Neuralgia and a dull, heavy, inactive condition of the whole system, headache, nervous prostration, and was almost helpless. No physicians or medicines did her any good. Three months ago she began to use Hop Bitters, with such good effect that she seems and feels young again, although over 70 years old.—We think there is no other medicine fit to use in the family."—A lady, Providence, R. I.

HYGIENIC.

The Express, Chicago, says of Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure: "It is, in the highest sense, hygienic, and can be used by young and old with equal advantage. It gives the only relief yet attained, that can be termed permanent, in Brights Disease and this alone should rank it higher in the lists of medical triumphs."

THE postoffice at Ypsilanti was relieved of $1200 in stamps and money last week by burglars.

LETTER FROM CHICAGO.

CHICAGO, Oct. 7, 1880.

EDITOR HERALD:

Now is the summer of Chicago's prosperity. The city is full of visitors attracted by the exposition, and all is bustle and activity. The streets are crowded with sight-seekers and every train brings more. The Exposition building, the main object of attraction at present, contains enough to keep one busy looking for some time. The display this year is considered above the average, that of the art department alone being worth visiting Chicago to see. During the past week the three great exponents of tragedy, John McCulloch, at Hawley's, Thos. Kune, at the Grand Opera House, and Lawrence Barrett at Hooley's, have been playing to crowded houses, in fact turning away hundreds nightly; and Denman Thompson has been playing to the same kind of houses at McVicker's. We had the pleasure of seeing McCulloch play "Virginians," and shall never forget his grand acting. We also saw Den Thompson in "Uncle Josh Whitcomb," and Kune in the tragedy "Richard III." Kune has made one of the greatest hits ever known on the Chicago stage, and has "salted a good many shekels" thereby.

Although so late in the season, the pleasant weather attracted throngs of people to the parks last Sunday. Both Lincoln and Union parks are beautiful places, and when filled with a gay and active multitude of pleasure seekers, affords hours of amusement and study to the student of human nature.

We have had the pleasure of a short visit with Miss Eva Hause, who is in Chicago for the winter. We also called on Mr. J. B. Kerr, but as he was across the river at the time, did not see him. Mr. Kerr is running a drug store, corner of Jackson and Desplains streets—has a fine little establishment and seems to be prospering.

Any of my Tecumseh friends visiting Chicago will find me at 170 East Madison street, with A. & G. Taylor, or at 300 West Washington street. Postoffice address at the latter place.

L. F. WHEELER.

THE GREATEST MEDICAL DISCOVERY OF THE AGE.

Kellogg's Columbian Oil is a powerful remedy, which can be taken internally as well as externally by the tenderest infant. It cures almost instantly, is pleasant, acting directly upon the nervous system, causing sudden buoyancy of the mind. In short the wonderful effects of this most wonderful remedy cannot be explained in written language. A single dose inhaled and taken according to directions will convince any one that it is all that is claimed for it. Warranted to cure the following diseases: Rheumatism or Kidney Disease in any form, Headache, Toothache, Neuralgia, Sprains, Bruises, Flesh Wounds, Bunions, Burns, Corns, Spinal Affection, Colic, Cramping Pains, Cholera Morbus, Flux, Diarrhoea, Coughs, Colds, Bronchial affection, Catarrh, and all aches and pains, external and internal. Full directions with each bottle. For sale by C. A. Wright & Co., Tecumseh.

A Wonderful Discovery.

For the speedy cure of Consumption and all diseases that lead to it, such as stubborn Coughs, neglected Colds Bronchitis, Hay Fever, Asthma, pain in the side and chest, dry hacking cough, tickling in the throat, Hoarseness, Sore Throat, and all chronic or lingering diseases of the throat and lungs. Dr. King's New Discovery has no equal and has established for itself a world-wide reputation. Many leading physicians recommend and use it in their practice. The formula from which it is prepared is highly recommended by all medical journals. The clergy and the press have complimented it in the most glowing terms. Go to your druggist and get a trial bottle free of cost, or regular size for $1.00. For sale by M. Wright & Son, Tecumseh, Mich.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

The Best Salve in the world for Cuts, Bruises, Sores, Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Fever Sores, Tetter, Chapped Hands, Chilblains, Corns, and all kinds of Skin Eruptions. AN ITEM OF APPROPRIATION.

In telling of Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure, the Republican, Hudson, N. Y., says in its Washington Items: "It seems to be generally understood that an especial appropriation will be made for the purchase, for the use of the members of Senate and House, of Warner's Safe Pills and Warner's Safe Bitters."

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

From our Regular Correspondent.

POLITICS ALL THE RAGE.

Washington, Oct. 9, 1880.

To see the political activity in Washington during a presidential campaign one would hardly think that a large majority of our citizens are not voters. We have at this time over fifty political organizations in this city, many of them meeting nightly, and all devoting efforts to the contest waging so hot in the states. Meeting are held nightly and work continues night and day in some of the clubs, yet only those—comparatively few—who have maintained a residence in the states from which they came can cast a vote. Residents of the District of Columbia, even though born under the Stars and Stripes, are not in the full sense citizens of the United States. It seems to me that this is not right. There should be no spot within the limits of this free land where the citizen has not a voice in the affairs of government. Thousands of residents here might justly renew the old revolutionary cry of "no taxation without representation."—But speaking of the political activity here I may add that the greatest is among organizations composed of government employees, who are, of course Republicans. The Democrats, however, are not idle. There are a great many among them who hope to be government employees after the election. Taken as a whole, and including our colored population, the political sentiment of this city is about evenly divided between the two parties, though probably a majority of native residents and business men are Democrats. All these classes are anxious to exert some influence upon the result of the present struggle, for different reasons; but chiefly because everyyody in Washington necessarily takes a deep interest in politics.

The board of architects appointed to consider the practicability of erecting a new Congressional library, or, whether it would be advisable to extend the quarters now occupied in the Capitol, have reported in favor of constructing a separate building. The result was anticipated by all disinterested persons having any knowledge of the facts. There is no practicable way of providing for the inevitable growth of this vast collection of books without erecting a new structure for its accommodation. The plan of piecing out the Capitol might answer as a temporary expedient, but not as a permanency. The annex would be filled in a few years, and the same question would arise that now demands disposal. We take it for granted that a new building is to be erected, and this being the case the work should be commenced at the earliest possible date, for the emergency is pressing.—At present there is not room on the shelves of the library for any more books, while many thousands of volumes are packed away in boxes.

Adjutant General Drum, who is acting Chief of the Signal Bureau, has just begun a special weather report for the sugar growing interests of Louisiana by which the probable appearance of frost in that locality will be fully anticipated. These reports are to be continued until January 1.—Governor Viltz, in a letter thanking him for this service, says that it will prove of great value to the sugar planters and will save them many thousands of dollars every fall. General Drum has also commenced a plan which will be more fully developed next year, of special reports on rain for the cotton belt of the South, the general dissemination of which information will be left to the planters and factors. A further increase in the efficiency and usefulness of this Weather Bureau for the shipping ports of the Atlantic is now under consideration.

DOM PEDRO.

North Action, Me., March 5, '79.

Messrs. Wells, Richardson & Co.,

Dear Sirs—We have used Kidney-Wort in our family with very satisfactory results. I have taken it myself for gravel and find that it has benefited me more than anything I have ever taken. I recommend it to all. James F. Reed.

Salem, N. R., Sept. 26, '79.

Wells, Richardson, & Co.,

Your "Kidney-Wort" acts like a charm. Please send me two packages on receipt of this and oblige. Yours Truly, L. Fraser.

Clinton News: The woolen mill is being put through a renovating process. The windows have been nicely cleaned, all the wood work newly painted, new gas machinery put in and various other improvements made on and about the premises, which denote prosperity and enterprise.

THE FAMILY CIRCLE.

POETRY OF A ROOT CROP.

Underneath their elder robe
Russet swede and golden globe,
Feathered carrot, barrowing deep,
Steadfast wait in charmed sleep;
Treasure-houses wherein lie
Locked by angel's alchemy,
Milk and hair and blood and bone
Children of the larger zone,
Children of the flaming air,
With his kingly eyes keen and bare
Spirit-peopled, smiling down
On frozen field and hailing town,
Rolling town that will not heed
God His voice, for rage and greed;
Frozen fields that surplice-like,
Gazing patient at the sky;
Like some marble carven nun,
With folded hands when work is done,
Who meek upon her tomb doth pray,
Till the resurrection day.

FOR THE HERALD.

HOW HE WAS CAUGHT.

BY A NEW YORK DETECTIVE.

I was sent for, one day, some time since, by a firm of "glove dealers," who stated that they had been missing goods for the past six months or more, and although they had set the strictest watch upon all of their clerks and the two porters, they were unable to either discover the thief or prevent further loss.

I detailed a man opposite the store, and to avoid suspicion, stocked him with a lot of fruit, and having gained permission from the occupants of the building, set him up in business as an ordinary apple vender, after giving him instructions to watch the place closely, to see who, of the employees left the store with bundles, or other evidences of having goods about their persons.

This went on for about a week, without affording us the slightest cause upon which to base a suspicion. During this time, the thefts were as frequent as they had been, since the firm first discovered their losses. Seeking the senior member of the firm, I told him it would be necessary for me to place a man inside, and for that purpose he would have to make room for him, as an employee. He, thereupon, discharged one of the porters and my man took his place.

We first watched one and then another for the next week, without any result, when I began to grow impatient, for I knew the man, whom I had placed in the store, to be sharp and quick, but in spite of his vigilance, the losses continued, not in large quantities, but in valuable goods, such as the best kid gloves, which were worth from eighteen to twenty-four dollars per dozen. I knew, whoever the thief was, that he was above suspicion, and I therefore determined to look after the two book-keepers, who had no occasion to visit the stock. They scouted the idea, but to my statement that we had watched the clerks closely without discovering anything, it must be some one, having extraordinary facilities for stealing, without much possibility of being detected, and therefore, it would be worse than useless for us to continue watching the clerks any longer. They said the chief book-keeper had been with them for the past five years, and they knew him to be honest and very attentive to business, so much so, in fact, that he frequently returned to the store, after supper and wrote up his books.

As the firm closed the store at six o'clock, every evening, and all hands departed, what would give one a finer opportunity to steal unobserved, than this. I felt satisfied now that I had struck the right party, and told them so, when they said, all right go ahead, we wish you every success, but don't believe you are on the right track.

I at once decided to shadow the young man. He was about twenty-five years of age, single, good looking, and stylish, and I thought it would be strange, if such a young man did not have a sweet-heart, and to that end gave my man particular instructions, to note who his lady-love was, should he visit one.

That night, nor the next, did he visit the store to write up his books, but took a little walk about town, no doubt to stretch himself a little, but on the third night he went to the store, went in, and locked the door from the the inside, and in about a minute lit the gas. He came out in less than five minutes, walked to the The street cars and boarding one rode uptown. Alighting, he crossed towards Sixth avenue, and when mid-way ran up a high, brown stone stoop, rang the bell and was admitted into a first-class boarding house, where he remained for fifteen minutes, and coming out he was accompanied by a young lady, about nineteen years of age and well-dressed in black.

They returned to Broadway, entered a car and proceeded to a theater.

She was observed to put on a pair of white gloves, while on the way to the cars, and my assistant decided to secure one of them, if possible.

After the performance was over, the couple entered an ice cream saloon and took seats at one of the many tables, and in a short time they were served with cream and cakes. Now was the opportunity for gaining possession of one of the gloves, so carelessly sauntering in, my assistant took a seat immediately behind them, and at the same time the young lady took off her right glove, and laid it down beside her. She had no sooner done this, than it was in the grasp of my assistant, and having eaten his cream hurriedly, he left the saloon unobserved and took up a position where he could await results. When they were through, the lady missed her glove and at once began a search for it, and aided by shaking her clothing vigorously and then gave it up. Coming out of the saloon they took a car and returned to the house.

The next morning the glove was given to me along with the above circumstances, and I at once called upon the firm, and showing them the glove asked them if it was their make, and they at once said it was and wanted to know, of course, where I had got it. I told them not to be in a hurry, but to examine the stock and see if any of that class of goods had been taken, and they reported that the stock was short just one dozen pairs, and furthermore, they had been taken within twenty-four hours. I said, that in that case, I had discovered the thief. I then told them what we had done and seen, and arranged to have my shadow in the store that afternoon, when we would tax the young man with the thefts.

When we called him into the private office, the moment he saw us he changed color, and I could see that he felt there was trouble brewing for him. I said to him: "Mr. Preston you are aware that the firm has been losing goods for sometime, and we have caught the thief." This seemed to startle him for an instant, but recovering his self-composure, he said, "Well, I am glad of that; who is he?" "You, Mr. Preston, are the one, and we have the proof." He flew into a rage at once, and said: "How dare you accuse me of such a thing?" I replied: "Now, Mr. Preston, don't get excited, for if I am mistaken I will as freely admit as I have freely charged the crime upon you. Please answer me, sir, did you return to the store last night?" "No, sir; I did not." "Did you escort a young lady to a theater last night?" "No, sir; I did not. I was home the whole evening." I turned to the members of the firm and said: "That settles it." I then produced the glove, and asking him if he had ever seen it before. I told him to weigh his answer carefully. He stammered, "Yes, sir; my lady friend lost it last night, and I hereby confess that I am the thief." At this he completely broke down, and wept like a child. I asked him to state the value of the goods he had taken, and he said that he did not know the exact amount, but thought it would be about three thousand dollars, in all. I said, "Well, you certainly did not give all the goods to the young lady you was with last night?" He said "No; I sold most of them to a retail dealer up-town." When pressed for his motive for stealing, he said that he wanted to keep up appearances with the young lady, and in order to do so he had to steal. He felt his disgrace keenly, and asked us to allow him to see his father before being locked up. I consented to this, and we sent for his father, who responded at once, and he and the firm held a long consultation, when the senior member said to me, "Mr. Detective, we have concluded not to prosecute, and therefore, will not need your services any further in the matter." He thanked me very warmly for having brought the matter to a successful issue, when I took my departure.

I called upon him the next day, when he informed me that owing to young Preston's high connections and inasmuch as the father had drawn a check for the amount, they decided to drop the matter. This, no doubt, was the wisest course under the circumstances. The firm discharged the young man and I have lost all trace of him, he no doubt, having left the city, to engage in business where he is not known.

Before leaving, he admitted that his returning to the store at night, was only for the purpose of stealing the goods, and that accounted for our failure to fasten the crime on any one sooner.

The day following, the porter, who had been discharged to make room for my assistant, was reinstated, and full pay allowed him. The firm has not been troubled since.

How to Get Rich.

The great secret of obtaining riches, is first to practice economy, and as good old "Deacon Snyder," says, "It used to worry the life out of me to pay enormous doctor's bills, but now I have "struck it rich." Health and happiness reign supreme in our little household, and all simply because we use no other medicine but Electric Bitters and only costs fifty cents a bottle. Sold by C. A Wright & Co., Tecumseh.

No, son, no; you needn't be afraid of it. Just drink a tubful of it, if you wish. No man ever got drunk or learned to be a drunkard, drinking Sunday School lemonade. You might get the dropsy, or you might drown yourself with it, but it will never make you drunk.

OLD MEN IN POLITICS.

Grandfather Lickshingle and Deacon Radspinner, two patriarchs of Titusville, Pa., were walking down street together. It was remarked that two such venerable men were not often seen together, and people raised their hats to them as they passed along and spoke to them reverently.

"There's entirely too much bitterness in this campaign, deacon," said Mr. Lickshingle, "and I regret it exceedingly. Now, when we was young men and took an interest in politics, we had none of this 'ere everlastin' cat hauling."

"Indeed we hadn't," acquiesced Deacon Radspinner. "Take Jackson's campaign, for instance. There wuz a lively interest taken by both parties, but there wuz none of yer bully ragin' like we see nowadays."

"That's a fact, deacon," said old Lickshingle, "but between you and me, I never thought very much of Jackson."

"He was a mighty good man, Lickshingle."

"He was small potatoes compared to some men we have now, deacon."

"Who'd ye mean?" demanded the deacon.

"Well, there is Garfield," said Lickshingle.

"Garfield be danged! You know mighty well, Lickshingle, he couldn't have been 'lected hog-rive in a hill town in Jackson's day."

"He's a darn sight better [illegible] Hancock,"

"Go slow, Lickshingle, [illegible]!" said the deacon, somewhat agitated.

"Oh, I know what I'm talkin' about," retorted Lickshingle, as he stabbed the pavement spitefully with his hickory cane." Hancock's a stoughton bottle, that's what he is."

"An' what's Garfield? Great guns! what's Garfield? Didn't he lay a cheap John sort of a pavement around the Capitol, and charge the Government $1,000,000 for it?" and the deacon's eyes blazed with indignation.

"See here, deacon, look at your man Hancock's letter to Sherman. Didn't he try to blow up Washington with glycerine? Say, didn't he? Oh, I read the papers, old man, an' know what's goin' on."

"Hancock's a good and pure man.—Didn't he fight like a bull in the war of the Rebellion? Where was Garfield skulkin' in the time of disaster? In Canady, by thunder! in Canady!"

"What wuz Hancock doin' with a stilletto in his boot the night Lincoln was murdered? Answer me that! If Wilkes Booth had failed, this Hancock was ready to finish the job. Don't talk to me! Don't talk to me!"

"It's a lie," howled the deacon, as he whirled around and faced Lickshingle on the street.

"It's as true as holy writ, an' any man's a liar that says so," retorted Lickshingle, too much wrought up to be particular as to his phraseology.

"You're a bald-headed old scoundrel!" yelled the deacon.

"You're an old leper, an' I can wipe the ground with you," howled Lickshingle, gripping his cane and advancing.

Friends jumped in, and the two furious old men were dragged away in opposite directions. The deacon squirmed around in the arms of his captors, shook his cane at Lickshingle and hissed:

"Your man Garfield would never have gone into the army if he hadn't been drafted, and he wouldn't went then only he thought he would be able to desert—the onery old son-of-a-gun!"

Free of Cost.

DR. KING'S NEW DISCOVERY for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, etc., is given away in trial bottles free of cost to the afflicted. If you have a severe cough, cold, difficulty of breathing, hoarseness or any affection of the throat or lungs by all means give this wonderful remedy a trial. As you value your existence you cannot afford to let this opportunity pass. We cannot afford, and would not give the remedy away unless we knew it would accomplish what we claim for it. Thousands of hopeless cases have already been completely cured by it. There is no medicine in the world that will cure one-half the cases that Dr. King's New Discovery will cure. For sale by C. A. Wright & Co., Tecumseh.

Love, faith, patience—the three essentials to a happy life.

Pride hath two seasons—a forward spring and an early fall.

Favors of every kind are doubled when they are speedily conferred.

No denunciation is so eloquent as the final influence of a good example.

A man's character is like a fence—it cannot be strengthened by whitewash.

A noble part of every true life is to learn how to undo what has been wrongly done.

The Great Healer of all Inflamed Injuries and Disorders.

It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the unparalleled demand with which it meets, stamps it at once as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.

The most incredulous are convinced, and the most skeptical are compelled to believe in the power of this great remedy.

WHAT IT CURES.

All SORES, CUTS, BRUISES, SPRAINS, BURNS, SORE THROAT, LAMENESS, RHEUMATISM, PILES, INFLAMMATION of LUNGS and BOWELS, BRONCHITIS, CROUP, SALT RHEUM, CHILBLAINS, AFFECTIONS of the SPINE, ERYSIPELAS, NERVOUS IRRITATION, and all disorders attendant with INFLAMMATION.

It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is gained over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame; every bone, muscle, vein, nerve, and ligament is searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it copes readily with internal as well as external diseases.

Over 40 Years

This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such that as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates of cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should feel perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.

Price 25 and 40 cents per bottle. Sold by all dealers in medicine.

Feels Young Again.

"My mother was afflicted a long time with Neuralgia and a dull, heavy, inactive condition of the whole system, headache, nervous prostration, and was almost helpless. No physicians or medicines did her any good. Three months ago she began to use Hop Bitters, with such good effect that she seems and feels young again, although over 70 years old.—We think there is no other medicine fit to use in the family."—A lady, Providence, R. A NEW PAYING OCCUPATION FOR LADIES AND GENTLEMEN.

The handsome Nickel Plated New Home Lamp being introduced to the public this season, is the most meritorious article ever offered Agents to make money with, is safer, and more convenient than the Student Lamp, which has heretofore had the reputation of being the Safest Lamp made, it has a clamp to firmly attach it to the Sewing Machine, Piano, Organ, Desk, etc. The fear of the ordinary lamp being accidentally upset or thrown from the table, is entirely relieved by this simple contrivance. It can be adjusted to throw the light just where it is wanted to suit the eyes, and can be converted into a handsome wall lamp. It has the best argand burner, a filling indicator, and convenient match box, and its price is within the reach of everyone. It has been fully tested and editorially endorsed by the "Western Christian Advocate," "Am. Christian Review," "Herald and Presbyter," "Journal and Messenger," and "Christian Standard," the leading Religious papers of Cincinnati, and is endorsed by the Mayor and Post-Master of Cincinnati, the Agent of the American Express Companies, as being the Safest, Most Convenient and best Lamp made.

There are three reasons why Agents should seek such an article to canvass for—first for its absolute safety and great convenience, it is needed in every home—second its low price makes its sale immense—third it will be a credit to handle such an article. One southern Agent writes, it sells faster than Gen. Lee's portrait sold right after the war, another writes it beats the palmy days of the Sewing Machine, its rapid sale, low price, and liberal terms surprise old Agents.—Address Home Lamp Co., Cincinnati, O. Mentioning our paper and they will give you full particulars and exclusive territory to canvass in.

TO THE AFFLICTED.

Since the introduction of Kellogg's Columbian Oil it has made more permanent cures and given better satisfaction on Kidney complaints and Rheumatism than any know remedy. Its continued series of wonderful cures in all climates has made it known as a safe and reliable agent to employ against all aches and pains, which are the forerunners of more serious disorders. It acts speedily and surely, always relieving suffering and often saving life. The protection it affords by its timely use on Rheumatism, kidney affection, and all aches and pains, wounds, cramping pains, cholera morbus, diarrhœa, coughs, colds, catarrh, and disorders among children, makes it an invaluable remedy to be kept always on hand in every home. No person can afford to be without it, and those who have once used it never will. It is absolutely certain in its remedial effects and will always cure when cures are possible. Call at C.A. Wright & Co's. and get a memorandum book giving more full details of the curative properties of this wonderful medicine.

A Wonderful Discovery.

For the speedy cure of Consumption and all diseases that lead to it, such as stubborn Coughs, neglected Colds Bronchitis, Hay Fever, Asthma, pain in the side and chest, dry hacking cough, tickling in the throat, Hoarseness, Sore Throat, and all chronic or lingering diseases of the throat and lungs. Dr. King's New Discovery has no equal and has established for itself a world-wide reputation. Many leading physicians recommend and use it in their practice. The formula from which it is prepared is highly recommended by all medical journals. The clergy and the press have complimented it in the most glowing terms. Go to your druggist and get a trial bottle free of cost, or regular size for $1.00. For sale by M. Wright & Son, Tecumseh, Mich.

Poverty and Suffering.

"I was dragged down with debt, poverty and suffering for years, caused by a sick family and large bills for doctoring, which did them no good.—I was completely discouraged, until one year ago, by the advice of my pastor, I procured Hop Bitters and commenced their use, and in one month we were all well and none of us have seen a sick day since, and I want to say to all poor men, you can keep your families well a year with Hop Bitters for less than one doctor's visit will cost—I know it.

A WORKINGMAN."

Astonishing the World.

For a perfect renovation of exhausted and enfeebled constitutions, female weakness and decline, nothing so surely and speedily produces a permanent cure as does Electric Bitters. Their wonderful cures are astonishing the world. For Kidney or Urinary complaints they are a perfect specific. Do not give up in dispair, for Electric Bitters will positively cure, and that where everything else fails. Sold by C. A. Wright & Co., at 50 cents a bottle.

"More food and less medicine, more of nourishment and strength, less of the debilitating influence of drugs is what our feeble and exhausted constitutions require," said Baron Liebig, when he perfected the composition of the "Malt Bitters."

BEST IS CHEAPEST!

LEWIS' CONDENSED BAKING POWDER

STRICTLY PURE!

We will give $1000.00 for any Alum or other adulteration found in this POWDER.

Indorsed by the Brooklyn Board of Health, and by the best chemists in the United States.

It is STRONGER than any Yeast Powder in the world.

It NEVER FAILS to make light bread when used as directed.

It is COMMENDED by every housekeeper who has given it a fair trial.

It is an entirely NEW INVENTION, without any of the bad qualities of soda or saleratus, yeast or other baking powders.

It has in itself a tendency to sustain and nourish the system.

Good food makes good health; and health is improved or impaired in proportion as the food we eat is nutritious or otherwise.

LEWIS' BAKING POWDER always makes good food.

One can of this is worth two of any other baking compound.

It makes bread whiter and richer.

More than half the complaints of bad flour arise from the use of common baking powders, which often make the best of flour turn out dark bread.

The most delicate persons can eat food prepared with it without injury.

Nearly every other baking powder is adulterated and is absolutely injurious.

This is made from Refined Grape Cream of Tartar, and is PERFECTLY PURE.

It makes the BEST, lightest, and most nutritious

BREAD, BISCUIT, CAKE, CRULLERS, BUCKWHEAT, INDIAN, AND FLANNEL CAKES.

A single trial will prove the superiority of this Powder.

Chambers' Encyclopædia.

15 Vols. Over 13,000 Pages. Price During July, $6.25.

Among the wonderful things which have been accomplished for lovers of good books by the "Literary Revolution," perhaps the most wonderful is the reproduction of this great Encyclopædia at a merely nominal cost.

It is a verbatim reprint of the last English edition, in 15 beautiful volumes, clear nonpareil type, handsomely bound in cloth, for $7.50; the same printed on finer, heavier paper, wide margins, and bound in half Russia, gilt top, price $15.00. The first ten volumes are ready for delivery. Vol. 11 will be ready July 10. The remaining volumes will be completed by October next.

$6.25. An Amazing Offer. $6,25.

The more widely and rapidly these volumes are scattered, the greater is their influence in inducing other purchasers of this and our many standard publications. Accordingly we give special terms to early subscribers.

To all, whose orders and money are received during the month of July, we will supply the 15 volumes in cloth, for $6.25, and in half Russia, gilt top, for $12.50. To any one sending from any place where we have no special agent (usually the leading bookseller of the town), a club of five orders, we will allow a commission of 10 per cent. The volumes issued will be sent at once by express, and the remaining volumes when completed.

A specimen volume in cloth will be sent, postpaid, for 50 cents, or in half Russia, gilt top, for $1.00, and may be returned at once, if not satisfactory.

The "CHAMBERS'S ENCYCLOPÆDIA" comprises the first 15 volumes of our "Library of Universal Knowledge," and the remaining volumes, complete in themselves, will be sold separately when published.

THE OCTOBER ELECTIONS.

The returns thus far received from Indiana, Ohio and West Virginia all point in one direction. Ohio has been carried by the Republicans by a majority of at least 20,000, and they have chosen 15 out of 20 Congressmen. Indiana elects the Republican State ticket by a plurality of probably 5,000 and the Congressmen stand the same as before. The Legislature is in doubt, both parties claiming it. West Virginia elects the Democratic State ticket, but the fusion opposition, composed of Republicans and Greenbackers, have made large gains. Congressmen are not chosen in that State until November. The returns are still far from complete, but the final result will probably settle down about as above stated. The Republicans naturally feel very much elated over the result, and as they have gained a strong advantage in the preliminary skirmish, it will give them renewed hope of success in the great battle to be fought three weeks hence. So far as the electoral votes are concerned, Gen. Hancock does not need either Ohio or Indiana, if all the States which are naturally Democratic stand firm, but the result in Indiana may swing New York from her moorings and thus elect Garfield. That is the great danger which menaces Hancock to-day.

REPUBLICAN RALLY.

Hon. George Willard Points Out the Dangers in Free Trade and States Rights in a Forcible Manner.

The opera house last Thursday evening was filled with a select audience of ladies and gentlemen to hear the address of Hon. Geo. Willard, of Battle Creek.

Mr. Willard, unlike the average political speaker, took high and worthy grounds for his address, not consuming time in taking up the minor issues of the campaign but at once assailed the foundation principles of democracy, State Rights and Free Trade.

The Adrian G. & A. glee club was in attendance, composed of Messrs. Johnson, Bliss, and Rice. They sang some exciting campaign songs and drew forth considerable applause from the audience. Chairman W. F. Baxter introduced Mr. Willard with a few complimentary words and Mr. Willard came forward and delivered the best republican speech that has ever been heard in this town during the campaign. We give a few points in his speech:

Whatever I may discuss this evening I do not expect to be new, nor do I think that I may be able to instruct such an intelligent audience. At this stage of the campaign the great body of voters have come to their conclusions, so that I can not hope to affect many persons' views. But on an occasion of the changing of the chief magistrate of this great republic, it is well that all should understand the issues of the campaign.

I say one of the leading issues is nationalism. When a man tells us that they have not abandoned the principles that they fought for in the rebellion, when we look south of the Ohio river, and find no man who says that he was wrong in the war, when Horatio Seymour devotes his entire address to the subject of nationalism, and when Doolittle says the same, we have a right to say that this is the real issue. If we look at the platform of both parties we find the republican party realizing the real issue and have made it more distinct than ever before in the platform.

No two presidential campaigns are fought upon the same issues. In 1860 we fought on the slavery question, in 1864 whether the war was a failure or not, in 1868 on the constitutional amendments, in 1872 to maintain the republican principles, in the present year declare its doctrine in its platform at Chicago. "The constitution of the United States is a supreme law, and not a mere contract; out of confederate states it made a sovereign nation. Some powers are denied to the nation, while others are denied to the states, but the boundary between the powers delegated and those reserved is to be determined by the national, and not by the state tribunals." I say there is no time in the history of the republican party when I did not affirm this. I say the democratic party joined issue at the Cincinnati convention in regard to this vital issue. They declare, "1st. We pledge ourselves anew to the constitutional doctrines and traditions of the democratic party as illustrated by the teachings and examples of a long line of democratic statesmen and patriots, etc."

Now, fellow citizens what are these traditions, it is this one vital question.

Speakers have never pointed out that the democratic party is unsettled on free rights, and inconsistent for they are not. In 1856 they boldly proclaimed this principle of state rights, and to day, Hampton, Seymour, Doolittle and Trumbull are declaring the same as the long line of statesmen. Why, men talked it right out in the democratic convention of 1868, and said that the amendments of the general government become unconstitutional, revolutionary and void when the general government assumes unrelegated power. The republican platform declares that the general government is the final judge. These two ideas have created the parties in this country.

The North, before the South seceded gave to it the majority of federal officers. Alexander Stephens said the South had had two thirds of the subordinates of the government, that the smaller faction had had the largest share of the Supreme Court judges, the Att'y Gen., most of the time and those officers which exert the greatest political influence. When this influence was taken out of their hands they appealed to arms; so the question is to-day, which shall rule this country? The South does not mean the whole South, but a few landed proprietors, forming an aristocracy, holding slaves and living upon the unpaid labor of their fellow men. No man can point out a more dangerous monopoly, one that disturbs this country more than the landed monopoly of the South, and if it is not broken up we will always have trouble with the South.

Take the currency question and if there is any one in the North that believes the supremacy of the landed aristocracy of the South would give us a solid currency, I am greatly mistaken. Upon the ascendency of the South to power we should have State Banks, as they believe in them just as they do in State Rights. When Gen. Weaver visited the South he was opposed just as much as the republican speakers; they want no inculcations of a standard currency.

There is another question, that of tariff. I used to be like all students a firm believer in the doctrines laid down by Adam Smith. But when I came to travel and to notice the great manufactories that are springing up in the United States I began to think that Adam Smith was wrong in his free trade doctrines. I soon became convinced that our manufactories in order that they might exist and compete with the cheap labor and production of European countries should receive the protection of the government by the tariff laws.

The democrats always arraign the republican party for centralization. They should go South and there you will not find the people enjoying their municipal rights as in the Northern states, but you will find that the municipal officers there, from the highest to the lowest, are appointed by the courts. So I say that these free rights of the democratic party are a mere sham. The democratic oligarchies of the South perpetuate themselves in power, thus destroying the franchise of both white and black, and in order for a person to have any political influence he must be with this oligarchy.

TECUMSEH'S WELCOME TO COL. W. D. WILKINS.

His Address, in Which He Gives Some Interesting Pioneer Sketches of Tecumseh, and a Sound Speech.

The announcement that Col. Wilkins, of Detroit, a former resident of Tecumseh, in his boyhood days, would address the H. & E. club, at the Opera House, drew out a fine audience last Monday evening. Many of the Colonel's old schoolmates were present and listened attentively to his admirable address.

The Tecumseh cornet band furnished the music for the occasion, and considering that they have been organized only a short time, they did credit to themselves by their fine playing.

The ladies, as usual, formed a conspicuous part of the audience, and seemed to enjoy the speech as much as if they were the possessors of the right of franchise. Along with the speaker, chairman Hayden, Hon. J. J. Adam, Judge Stacy, E. B. Wood and an old friend of Col. Wilkins' father, occupied the stage.

We give a few extracts of the speech:

Some forty odd years ago, then a mere boy, I came with my father from Detroit to Tecumseh, through Saline, across the Lodi plains. When we arrived at Tecumseh we went to the house of Musgrove Evans, the largest in the village, now owned by P. R. Adams. I visited it to-day, and as I walked about it many pictures of my boyhood scenes came back to me. I think Tecumseh is the most beautiful village of the peninsular state.

Musgrove Evans brought a Quaker colony with him to settle in Tecumseh. Mr. Safterthwaite was one of the members of this colony; he bro't with him a lot of turkey eggs, and I remember him as being famous for his fine flock of turkeys.

Gen. Brown, whom I visited this afternoon, and found in such a low state of health that I fear he will never be able to leave his bed, was then the most conspicuous citizen in this part of the state. He told me that he desired to live until next November so that he could cast his vote for Hancock and English.

Among the other citizens was Sheriff Patchin; he had a family of buxom boys and girls. His deputy, Wm. McNair, I remember for one of his successful episodes, the capturing of two Ohio scouts.

The old hotel-keeper, Mr. Snell, was among other citizens. Great deeds were performed in that hotel; it was the scene of many a jolly time. Among the merchants were Pittman, Fargo, Geo. Spafford, and Blanchard. Dr. Patterson was then the most eminent of his profession in the settlement.—The lawyers were Stacy and Adams. Jesse Button was the leader of the band; Stacy Goheen the jack of all trades of the village, and among the widows were Sisson, Zibble and Simpson. The man in all Tecumseh who made the most forcible impression upon my mind was the old school teacher, Mr. LeBaron. I called upon him to-day and he did not recognize me until I told him I used to fear him more than any other living man. He, as Oakes Ames applied the bribe, applied the rod where it did the most good.

Let me ask this question, Is this a union of states, if not, why not? Did those noble boys who went to fight your battles fight in vain? For if the Southern States have not come back into the union then our sufferings and lives did not avail anything, and we must forfeit our title to a republican form of government. When we were at school we obtained this idea of a union, that the states were "distinct like the billows, but one like the sea." The republicans have the idea that the states are like a devil-fish, which lurks in the caverns and then rushes out upon its prey, to seize it and crush out its life-blood from the veins of local control where our ancestors set it coursing until the vital organism are crushed into a pulpy mass. Our idea of state rights is that when there can be states without united states there cannot be united states without states.

They say the South is solid; if so, what made it so? The continued series of hard names, the denial of equal rights of citizens, the unlimited abuse has made the South solid against the republican party. The republican idea of the proper treatment of the South is like the man who broke the motto "God bless our happy home" over his wife's head.

The South accepts of the constitutional amendments, admits that it is far more prosperous without than with the slaves. Hampton and Hill say give us a trial and if we are wrong at the end of four years kick us out.—If these are not sufficient reasons let me give you the evidence of General Grant, who, at Galena, said that he had been in every Southern state, except Florida, and that he had no reason to doubt that the men who wore the grey are sincere in their protestations to the union.

The republican have not made this a campaign of reason and of argument but one of bugbears and bugaboos.

They say there is a reign of terror in the South, that the niggers cannot vote. The republican test is that they shall vote the republican ticket.

The business depression dodge is another bug-bear. It is about as new as the bloody shirt. It arose when Greeley run against Grant; we were told then that if Greeley was elected it would throw the country into bankruptcy. Well Greeley wasn't elected in '72 and Grant was. And in 1873 the nation was plunged into such a business depression as it never before experienced, and all because we took the word of the republicans.

When did these bad times begin to lighten? When the Democratic congress came in the clouds began to clear away, and when we elected Tilden president prosperity began to come back and it looks as if it had come to stay.

Business prosperity and depression is independent of political questions. President Garfield or President Hancock will have very little to do with the crops. But the seasons are the beneficers which fill the farmers' barns, and produce a famine on the other side of the ocean. It is the internal revenue tax that has aided us so in resumption, and not the business capacity of Jno. Sherman.

A small article of great efficiency is American Ball-Blue. A favorite in every laundry. Unsurpassed for purity and brilliant effect. All grocers have it.

The Great Healer of all Inflamed Injuries and Disorders.

It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the unparalleled demand with which it meets, stamps it at once as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.

The most incredulous are convinced, and the most skeptical are compelled to believe in the power of this great remedy.

WHAT IT CURES.

All SORES, CUTS, BRUISES, SPRAINS, BURNS, SORE THROAT, LAMENESS, RHEUMATISM, PILES, INFLAMMATION of LUNGS and BOWELS, BRONCHITIS, CROUP, SALT RHEUM, CHILBLAINS, AFFECTIONS of the SPINE, ERYSIPELAS, NERVOUS IRRITATION, and all disorders attendant with INFLAMMATION.

It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is gained over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame; every bone, muscle, vein, nerve, and ligament is searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it copes readily with internal as well as external diseases.

Over 40 Years

This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such that as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates of cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should feel perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.

Price 25 and 40 cents per bottle. Sold by all dealers in medicine.

Frank Leslie's Sunday Magazine

For November is the most interesting yet issued, the combination in its pages of entertainment, edification and instruction is something rare, and, withal, there is a prevading religious and moral sentiment, so that the publication especially commends itself to the family circle. The miscellany is unusually abundant, and embraces a vast variety of subjects replete with interest amusement and information. The 128 quarto pages are crowded with delightful reading matter, and the illustrations which number over 100, are finely executed. The price of a single copy of the "Sunday Magazine" is only 25 cents. Subscription per year, $3; 6 months, $150, 4 months, $1. Address Frank Leslie's Publishing House, 53, 55 and 57 Park Place, N. Y.

WE regret to say that Gen. Brown is now confined to his bed almost wholly on account of his great infirmity. But yesterday morning about 1:30, when the persons below in the office of Sink's Hotel were giving vent to their good feelings over the returns, the office door opened and the General clad in nothing but a night shirt made his appearance, and said that he had come down to find out who was elected. The general was immediately conducted back to his room, and every one was surprised that he ever came safely down the stairs alone, as it was all that he could do to go up with the assistance of a number of persons.

THE republicans had a big bon-fire on the street last night, and aired their lungs on various tin horns while they marched around the town.

LEROY BLOOD's genial countenance greeted many of his Tecumseh friends the first of the week. Leroy is still engaged in his old business at Lansing.

THE G. & A. club of Tecumseh, will be addressed Tuesday evening, Oct. 19th, by Gen. Geo. Spaulding, of Monroe, and Monday evening, Nov. 1st, by Hon. J. K. Boies, of Hudson.

COL. I. E. MESSMORE, of Grand Rapids, will address the Hancock & English club, of Clinton, on Saturday evening, the 23d inst. A hickory pole will be raised in the afternoon.

IF there is anything more unpleasant than another it is to sit up until four o'clock in the morning for the purpose of hearing other persons yell and clap their hands over election returns.

HON. PERLEY BILLS is still confined to his bed by illness. His daughter Miss Hattie V. Bills, is now at home, and under her professional care it is hoped that he may soon be about again.

W. R. WOODEN addressed a large democratic meeting in Ridgeway, at the place of Mr. Witts, last Saturday afternoon. They tested the capacity of their muscle in raising a 95-foot hickory.

THE Tecumseh cornet band made its first appearance on the street last Monday evening. It is made up of nine horns and the two drums. They surprised the citizens with their playing, as no one had any idea there was such a band within miles of Tecumseh.

A NUMBER of the young ladies of Tecumseh in proper accordance with the custom of the year, decided to have a social hop on last Monday evening, and engaged the young men for the occasion. The dance was informal and a success. The boys all had a good time and were highly delighted with the change.

LAST Saturday night Will Grey hitched his horse on Chicago street and went up to see Dr. Peters. While he was there the horse got loose and turned his nose toward home at rather a lively gait; but when he got up on Union street the buggy upset and brought the horse to the ground, and when found the buggy was on top of the horse, with several parts of it and the harness broken.

THE Matilda Scott Paine company came very nearly coming to Tecumseh last Tuesday, so near to it that the troupe had purchased their railroad tickets from Adrian to Tecumseh, paid the charges for extra baggage, and were on the point of boarding the train, when a gentleman who had come from Tecumseh on the morning train informed them that they had not been billed at Tecumseh. They immediately began to inquire into the matter and found that their advance agent had made a big blunder and failed to bill Tecumseh.

RICE A. BEALE of Ann Arbor, the champion of Dr. Rose an incumbent of the pharmacy department of the University, formerly discharged for alledged crookedness in his financial accounts, has written an open letter to Thomas M. Cooley questioning his integrity as a citizen and lawyer.

TECUMSEH was favored with two very fine political meetings during the past week. Hon. Geo. Willard, of Battle Creek, gave the Republicans a sound gentlemanly speech last Thursday evening, and Col. Wilkins, of Detroit, favored the Democrats with a splendid address on Monday evening. Both meetings were well attended and the speeches were well received.

Evening News: Mr. Butler poisoned a horse and Mr. Aiken shot a brave and faithful officer dead in his tracks, bringing want, sorrow and widowhood to a happy home. Mr. Butler gets three years in State prison and Mr. Aiken gets eight years. Ergo, a man's life is worth only about twice that of a horse. At least, it seems so in Lenawee county. A Lenawee county man is still in State prison for life for pushing his mother-in-law down stairs.

SABBATH and Monday, October 17 and 18, are the days set apart by the International Sunday School committee as days of prayer for Sunday Schools throughout the world. Pastor Pardington of the M. E. Church announces the following program: Sabbath evening, a sermon will be preached on "Religion and the Young."—Monday at 3 P. M. a female Sunday School teachers' prayer meeting; 7:30 P. M. a Sunday School workers experience meeting in the lecture room, to which all workers are invited.

Adrian Times: Prosecuting Attorney Underwood went to Hudson Thursday, for the purpose of attending the examination of a woman charged with, considering her sex, a singular crime. For the past year, the citizens of Hudson have been scandalized by frequent writing of obscene language on the sidewalks. The matter ran along so far that it was deemed advisable to stop it at any cost. A watch consisting of twenty men was therefore placed at points where the writing was most frequent, and recently D. J. Beachboard succeeded in catching Mrs. Ruth Sawdy in the act of consigning to the walk near Mr. Boies' residence, one of her choicest productions. When arrested the woman was attired in male attire. What motive actuated her, or what excuse she gives, we do not know. She was arrested on Saturday of last week, and the trial was fixed for Thursday of this week, before Justice Hiller, in Hudson.

Hudson Gazette: There was a meeting of the Lenawee County Liquor-Dealers' Association in this village on Tuesday. The attendance was quite full. The afternoon was devoted to business. In the evening Mr. T. Faulks, of East Saginaw, addressed the association and others who chose to attend, stating the greviances of the trade, and explaining the objects of the association, the principal of which seems to be to secure the election of men to the legislature who will act in a greater spirit of liberality or fairness toward the liquor interest. It appears they do not object to paying a reasonable license, or to any just regulations respecting their business. They do object, as sellers, to being made liable for the acts of those who may drink to excess, and who may and generally do deceive and impose upon the dealers themselves; also to paying heavy revenues to the State, and having an embargo placed upon their business exclusively on the numerous holidays of the year; further, to being liable to imprisonment for delinquencies in their trade, which are not punished in other departments of business. In short, while they are willing to pay a liberal license, and favor all regulations guarding the young and restraining the intemperate, they do not want to be hampered beyond reason, or have the scales of justice adjusted in one way for them and in another way for another class. They ask to be treated with some degree of fairness and equality. Such was the gist of Mr. F.'s remarks.

THE Baptist social and supper for the benefit of the poor of the church was well attended.

TOM COWLEY, of Dundee, is in town a day or two, circulating around among his old acquaintances.

THE Governor and wife passed through Tecumseh last Friday morning on their way home from Cal.

REV. H. SHEPARD will address the citizens at Reform Club Hall on Sunday, Oct. 17, at 3 o'clock P. M. The committee desire a full attendance.

THE Tecumseh boys were fortunate in receiving their pay for camp services so soon. A number of companions throughout the State have not been paid yet.

A. A. KENNEDY has gone South to look up a market for his apples. He has heretofore sold his apples in Nashville and it is quite likely he will make arrangements there for the stock now on hand.

Farmers' Club.

The annual meeting of the Manchester and Franklin Farmers' Club, was held at the Dorr school house, on Wednesday evening last. The following are the officers elected for the ensuing year:

Peter Kishpaugh, President.
Charles Davis, Vice President.
S. H. Hartwell, Secretary and Treasurer.

This club hold its meetings every two weeks and discuss such subjects as pertain to the work farmers have in hand at this particular season. We desire additions to our club and cordially invite all farmers, conveniently situated to become members and take an active part in our discussion.

A NARROW ESCAPE.

During the summer, Steve Whittier has been superintending the building of the church of the Christian society of Ridgeway, and last Friday went down to remove the scaffolding. He was standing on a plank at the top of the scaffolding about the steeple which is sixty feet in hight, and in order to reach up a little higher he took a ladder, placing the foot upon the plank. But as soon as he had ascended a step or two on the ladder, it commenced to slip, and Steve in a moment realized that he was falling, and just as he was slipping over the plank he made the most fortunate move of his life, by grasping hold of the scaffolding and dextrously swinging himself underneath to the scaffold below where he stopped.

This was a narrow escape from almost instant death, as he was at least sixty feet from the ground, and it was only mere chance that he swung himself underneath so that he caught on the next scaffold beneath. He received a few bruises and scratches, but was not seriously hurt.

A NEW DEPARTURE.

When Jehiel Davidson left his rooms in the HERALD building the idea suggested itself that perhaps we could use the room ourselves to good advantage. After nursing the idea for a few days, it assumed definite shape, and the result is a new departure in our business, which will be a great improvement. The partition which separated Davidson's room from the HERALD Counting room has been taken down, which makes the room just twice its former size. The shelves on the East side of the room are left where they are and will be filled with a stock of wrapping paper, bags, stationery, etc. We have sold considerable wrapping paper during the past year, but our sales can be largely increased by a little systematic effort. We have completed arrangements by which we can sell wrapping paper to the merchants of Tecumseh and contiguous towns as cheaply as they can buy it of the Detroit and Toledo paper houses. Besides they can purchase it of us in small quantities and save all freight charges. We can therefore make it an object for our business men to deal directly with the HERALD establishment and buy all their wrapping paper at home. This department of our business will be placed on a jobbing basis entirely. We do not intend to do a retail trade; first because it is too much bother, and secondly because we do not wish to compete with the retail stores of the village.

In the newspaper branch of our business we have also taken another step in advance. Will D. Robbins has been engaged as one of the fixtures in the HERALD office and he will have general charge of the local department of the paper, working in the office during the middle of each week, and doing such outside work at other times as may seem necessary. We feel confident that our new departure will not only please our numerous patrons, but will result in the increased prosperity of the HERALD itself.

EPHRAIM ARMSTRONG CAPTURED.

Last year, when the coroner's jury impaneled upon the occasion of the grand stand disaster at Adrian, rendered a verdict implicating the contractors and builders, Messrs. Lawrence, Sizer, H. H. and E. B. Armstrong with the death of Mathias Johnson, who was killed by the falling of the stand, Prosecuting Attorney Underwood preferred charges before Justice Robbins against the parties for manslaughter.

All except E. B. Armstrong were arrested, but Ephraim had greater confidence in his own limbs than in a limb of the law, so he gave the officers a chance to make a "still hunt" for him. But no traces could be found of him until last Sunday Deputy Sheriff Crandall was informed that he was at his home in Adrian. Armstrong's house was visited. Mrs. Armstrong received the officers, but firmly denied that her husband was at home, and objected to their searching the house. The officers began to search the house, nevertheless, and in a bed room off from the kitchen found Armstrong. He submitted quietly to the officers and was conveyed to the county jail. Upon being questioned as to his whereabouts during the past year he had nothing to say except that he was away on business, and was not aware that there was a warrant out for his arrest.

A NEW FIRM.

S. H. Merritt and Robert Stretch have bought the D. R. Raymond & Co. furnace property and took possession last Saturday. They design to do a retail lumber business and also run in connection therewith a planing and matching mill. A bran new boiler and a forty-horse engine will be placed in the shop, which will furnish all the power they need for their own use and give them an abundance of steam power also to rent. The firm will use most of the ground floor for their own purposes, and will rent the entire second and third floors with steam power. The large yard and shed in the rear of the shop will furnish plenty of storage for lumber.—They are now engaged in cleaning out the building and expect their new boiler and engine to arrive in a few days. They hope to be ready to commence active operations in about sixty days. The name of the new firm will be Merritt & Stretch.

THE Board of Supervisors, now in session have made up their committees. We see that Supervisor McKinnon is a member of the committee on printing, and apportionment and assessment rolls.

OBITUARY.

John Wait Deming, who died at his home in Lenawee county, Michigan, October 1, 1880, and was buried in the cemetery at Franklin Center, Oct. 2d, was born in Ulster, New York, in the year 1807, and came to this State in 1849. After residing a short time in Centerville, St. Joseph county, he settled in Franklin, where he resided until his death. Possessed of a mind of more than ordinary intellectual strength, he had in early life taken a prominent part in the reforms of the day, especially in that of temperance, at one time delivering a course of lectures on that subject before the court of sessions in his native State. For more than twenty-four years he had been a member of the Methodist Episcopal church in Franklin, but for several years past a chronic ailment deprived him of the benefits of society and the church, which disease finally terminated his earthly existence. He passed away as sweetly and calmly as the setting sun, leaving an aged companion, sons and daughters, who will miss him at the old home, but feel to say, what is their loss is his infinite gain. E. P. PEIRCE.

Will S. Hobart, the Cass county boy murderer, has been sentenced to state prison for life.

John D. Lavin, late of Flint, is now clerk and register of deeds in Brown county, Dakota.

Forty folks are studying the bible on the Chautauqua plan at Eaton Rapids.

Even an archery club may have its uses. At Nashville, in Barry county, the bowmen shoot cats.

Geo. J. Humphrey, of Cheboygan, has been appointed keeper of the Cheboygan harbor range lights.

Judge Dyckman, of Kalamazoo, sold 1000 barrels of apples from four acres of orchard.

The Reading Telephone will hereafter be run by a man named Marvin, late of Angola, Ind.

Gilbert Gillett, a 10-year old lad, son of Nelson Gillett, of Marine City, was drowned at that place last week by falling into the St. Clair river.

A maiden lady of Sunfield has ruined her hopes of ever getting a husband by making a quilt with 4,000 pieces therein.

The contract for erecting the new iron bridge over Battle Creek, at Charlotte, has been let to the Canton, Ohio, bridge company.

Not less than 8,000 barrels of apples have already been shipped from Quincy station, besides an untold quantity of cider apples.

During the Marshall fair, an old lady named E. L. Rogers was struck by a buggy, knocked down, and had her hip broken.

Elmer Mowery, a baker of Three Rivers, accidentally shot himself while hunting, a few days ago. One arm is seriously maimed.

Herbert Pollock, 14-years old son of Samuel Pollock, of Charlotte, was seriously injured by being run over by a wagon, last week.

George Thompson, better known as "Jack," was sent from Muir to the Kalamazoo asylum about a year ago, and recently escaped. He was arrested at Muir again on the 8th, and will be cared for.

During the month of July certain orchards, vineyards, etc., near Monroe were stripped of fruit by a severe hail storm, since which nature has been trying to make up for the loss, and twigs loaded with half grown, second crop apples from the trees above alluded to are shown.

R. H. Morrison, once a respected king bee in the Odd fellows' grand lodge, but who got into serious difficulty by not properly caring for the funds of that respectable order, is now accused of being crooked in the matter of two checks on an Iowa bank, one for $325 and the other for $150.

Edward Crawford, aged about 20 years, has been employed by his uncle, G. G. Lomason, a hotelkeeper of Rochester. Last Friday the young man developed rare and by no means commendable enterprise, and suddenly disappeared, taking with him about $1,000 that was in the house. Mr. Lomason was absent, and Mrs. Lomason started men in pursuit of Crawford, but as he and a young man who is supposed to be with him had several hours the start of the officers, they made good their escape, though there are hopes of getting Crawford and the money back.

A Great Chicago Enterprise.

The Laboratory for the manufacture of Electric Bitters is one of Chicago's greatest enterprises, giving employment to a large number of hands. The extensive sale already attained for this wonderful remedy is astonishing.—Wherever once introduced and becomes known, it is almost impossible to supply the demand, because of their true merit—curing where all others fail—and at a reasonable price (fifty cents). Sold by C. A. Wright & Co.

INCIDENT OF THE SEVEN DAYS.

A battery of the First artillery halted that night in a little clearing. The men lay down, unhitching their horses, but leaving them in harness.—The first sergeant, now an honored officer of the Third artillery, told me he got up and walked toward one side of the clearing. He was halted and turned back by a sentinel. Going toward the other side, he was again challenged:

"Who comes that?"

The voice struck him. He replied, "Friend," and said: "What regiment is that?"

The answer came back, "Seventh Alabama."

"What regiment is that on the other side?"

"Fifth Georgia," replied the sentinel. "What battery is that?"

Here was a situation. The sergeant naturally didn't know the name of a battery in the rebel army. Hesitation would have been fatal. By a lucky inspiration he replied, "One of Stuart's batteries, knowing that Job Stuart commanded their cavalry.

"Oh," said the other, "then you's a hoss battery?"

"Yes," said C——. "Good night."

He immediately awoke the captain, who rather angrily said, "What the deuce is the matter now?"

"Excuse me, captain," said the sergeant, "but we're camped between a Georgia and an Alabama regiment."

It is needless to say the captain got up. Horses were hitched in quietly, and the battery withdrew from between the sleeping regiments, who never knew of the prize that was within their grasp.

THE GREATEST MEDICAL DISCOVERY OF THE AGE.

Kellogg's Columbian Oil is a powerful remedy, which can be taken internally as well as externally by the tenderest infant. It cures almost instantly, is pleasant, acting directly upon the nervous system, causing a sudden buoyancy of the mind. In short the wonderful effects of this most wonderful remedy cannot be explained in written language. A single dose inhaled and taken according to directions will convince any one that it is all that is claimed for it. Warranted to cure the following diseases: Rheumatism or Kidney Disease in any form, Headache, Toothache, Neuralgia, Sprains, Bruises, Flesh Wounds, Bunions, Burns, Corns, Spinal Affection, Colic, Cramping Pains, Cholera Morbus, Flux, Diarrhoea, Coughs, Colds, Bronchial affection, Catarrh, and all aches and pains, external and internal. Full directions with each bottle. For sale by C. A. Wright & Co., Tecumseh.

A GIRL'S POSTCRIPT.

There is nothing fresher and more dewy and more delightfully emphatic than a young girl's letter to her—well her brother. Every third word is underscored, and then there's the postscript. The postscript to a girl's letter is as indispensable as a tail to a dog. The letter is nothing—the postscript everything. Persons experienced in receiving girl's letters have informed us that when they are particularly anxious to know something the letter contains they always skip the letter and read the postscript first. It is like the peroration of the orator. It is a great misfortune for a young man not to receive letters from his fair young nieces and cousins. If he is not blessed with such relatives let him go down into the old trunk and dig up letters written by his wife when she was his sweetheart. He will get more sweetness and light out of them then he would out of Arnold or Tennyson.

Greatest Remedy Known.

Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumptive is certainly the greatest medical remedy ever placed within the reach of suffering humanity.—Thousands of once hopeless sufferers, now loudly proclaim their praise for this Discovery to which they owe their lives. Not only does it positively cure Consumption, but Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, Hay Fever, Hoarseness and all affections of the Throat, Chest and Lungs yield at once to its wonderful curative powers as if by magic. We do not ask you to buy a large bottle until you know what you are getting. We therefore earnestly request you to call on your druggists, M. Wright & Son, and get a trial bottle free of cost which will convince the most skeptical of its wonderful merits, and show you what a regular one dollar size bottle will do. For sale by M. Wright & Son, Tecumseh.

Given Up by the Doctors.

Where doctors have failed to cure, and have given their patients up to die, Electric Bitters have often been used, and a cure effected, greatly to the astonishment of all. Diseases of the Stomach, Liver, Kidneys and Urinary Organs are positively cured by Electric Bitters. They invariably cure Constipation, Headache and all Bilious Attacks. Try them and be convinced that they are the best medicine ever used. Sold by C. A. Wright & Co. at fifty cents a bottle.

LEGAL NOTICES.

ESTATE OF JACOB L. VAN WINKLE.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, ss.

At a session of the Probate Court for the county of Lenawee, holden at the Probate Office in the city of Adrian, on Tuesday, the 24th day of August, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty.

Present, Norman Geddes, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Jacob L. Van Winkle, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition, of Edwin B. Wood, administrator, with the will annexed of said deceased, alleging that he has paid the debts of deceased, the expenses of administration, thus far incurred, and all legacies bequeathed in and by said will except residuary legacies, and is ready to file his final account in this court, and praying for the allowance of said account, for an assignment and distribution of the residue of said estate to the persons entitled thereto and for his discharge.

Thereupon it is ordered, That Monday, the 13th day of September next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs at law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court then to be holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, and show cause if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said County of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing. (A True Copy.)

NORMAN GEDDES, Judge of Probate.

Ague Cure

Is a purely vegetable bitter and powerful tonic, and is warranted a speedy and certain cure for Fever and Ague, Chills and Fever, Intermittent or Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical or Bilious Fever, and all malarial disorders. In miasmatic districts, the rapid pulse, coated tongue, thirst, lassitude, loss of appetite, pain in the back and loins, and coldness of the spine and extremities, are only premonitions of severer symptoms, which terminate in the ague paroxysm, succeeded by high fever and profuse perspiration.

It is a startling fact, that quinine, arsenic and other poisonous minerals, form the basis of most of the "Fever and Ague Preparations," "Specifics," "Syrups," and "Tonics," in the market. The preparations made from these mineral poisons, although they are palatable, and may break the chill, do not cure, but leave the malarial and their own drug poison in the system, producing quinism, dizziness, ringing in the ears, headache, vertigo, and other disorders more formidable than the disease they were intended to cure. AYER'S AGUE CURE thoroughly eradicates these noxious poisons from the system, and always cures the severest cases. It contains no quinine, mineral, or any thing that could injure the most delicate patient; and its crowning excellence, above its certainty to cure, is that it leaves the system as free from disease as before the attack.

For Liver Complaints, AYER'S AGUE CURE, by direct action on the liver and biliary apparatus, drives out the poisons which produce these complaints, and stimulates the system to a vigorous, healthy condition.

We warrant it when taken according to directions.

ESTATE OF JAMES LOWRY.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, ss.

At a session of the Probate Court for the county of Lenawee, holden at the Probate office in the city of Adrian, on Tuesday the 5th day of October, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty.

Present, Norman Geddes, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of James Lowry, deceased.

Lucy Lowry, widow of said deceased, having on the 18th day of September, A. D. 1880, filed her petition in this court, praying that letters of administration on the estate of said deceased be granted to Charles Burridge, or some other suitable person, and one week of hearing made thereon by this court on that day, and having been properly published in the Tecumseh Herald.

Thereupon it is ordered, That Monday, the 8th day of November next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court then to be holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, and show cause if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing. (A True Copy.)

THE FARMERS' PAGE.

NORTHERN LENAWEE FARMERS' CLUB

(This Club will hold its meetings regularly on each alternate Saturday of each month, at the Reform Club Hall in Tecumseh, at 2 o'clock P. M. until further notice. All are heartily welcomed and cordially invited to attend. Communications thankfully received. Correspondence solicited from other clubs, especially where co-operative action can accomplish desirable results. All letters should be addressed to E. L. RUSSELL, Sec., Tecumseh, Mich.)

SATURDAY, Oct. 9, 1880.

A few farmers and their wives convened at Dr. House's club room over Mr. Heesen's store; they found a pleasant room beautifully fitted up and furnished, where they are in hopes to establish their headquarters in the future. On account of the change in rooms, the club was late in getting organized and the life and spirit of the meeting was somewhat deadened thereby.

Preliminary business occupied some time, after which miscellaneous questions and answers were taken up and the question, "Can the manufacture of good merchantable sugar from sorghum or Chinese sugar cane or cornstalks be made a successful and profitable branch of industry at the north?" being brought up and urged upon the attention of members as a means of encouraging home industry and protecting foreign exchange, received considerable time. No one present seemed to be sufficiently posted to state positively whether a first class article of sugar had ever been manufactured from sorghum or not. Some believed that it was impossible to ever make a really desirable article of sugar from sorghum on account of the vegetable matter and other ingredients which it contained. It was stated however that parties near by had taken considerable pains to collect all the information they could upon the subject and were now experimenting. It would be pleasing if we could hear a report of favorable results.

If space permits, let me repeat what the Grange Visitor says upon the subject:

"The entire products of gold and silver mines for the nation for the past 30 years would not pay the imports of sugar into $50,000,000. Yet during all this time we might have grown all our own sugar, and had some to export, had our government fostered agriculture, and aided the farmer in developing the material wealth of our soil."

The next question was "butter making." This would seem to be a simple process, but the discussion was entered into by every one, not only by farmers' wives, but by farmers themselves. There seems to be many perquisites to good butter making, and some difference of opinion in regard to these. Of course members could not agree upon the kind of churn to use, nor the exact temperature that the cream should be to churn, neither what caused the difference in milk, and why some milk would not make butter at all, whether the fault was with the cow, the feed, or the care of the milk. Some washed the butter to free it from butter milk, while others never used any water. There were some main points upon which all agreed, such as a good cow, sweet wholesome nutricious food, clean careful handling, and a good cool, sweet, and wholesome place to set the milk, with plenty of good judgment. The time was so far occupied that it was voted to lay over for the next meeting the subject of "commercial fertilizers." Program for next meeting, Music, short address by some member of the club, miscellaneous questions, and discussion upon the "value of fertilizers."

On motion the meeting adjourned for two weeks.

WHITE AND YELLOW CORN.

There has been a greater proportion of yellow corn raised the past few years than formerly. It is claimed that it is more prolific and sweeter than white. This, however is yet a disputed question, some contending as much white corn per acre can be raised as yellow. But the establishment of so many glucose factories makes a heavy demand for white corn, which they contend makes a lighter and better glucose than yellow. If this demand continues, and it is probable it will be largely increased, it might be well for farmers who expect to sell corn to select white seed corn this fall. At the state fair just closed, we saw several specimens of very choice white corn, and by a little inquiry, just at this time, any one can obtain desirable seed. White corn will sell at this time from three to five cents per bushel more than mixed or yellow corn.

And we would recommend persons in gathering their corn this fall to keep their white and yellow corn separate if they intend selling to the mills or glucose factories. If, however, it is intended only for feeding at home, it is a matter of indifference how it is mixed. But for sale in the market, it will richly pay to keep the white separate from all other shades.—Iowa Register.

A small article of great efficiency is American Ball-Blue. A favorite in every laundry. Unsurpassed for purity and brilliant effect. All grocers have it.

APPLE POMACE.

The editor of the Massachusetts Plowman in answer to the question of a subscriber, says the pomace of ripe apples, after the cider is extracted, is valuable for almost any kind of jam. It is not as desirable for milch cows as for other kinds of stock, as it tends to make fat rather than milk. After cattle become accustomed to it, two pecks a day to each animal should be given; the same amount given to a horse, if he is not worked too hard, will fatten him. Pigs will readily eat it, and it appears to do them good. It is also good for poultry; if boiled and mixed with meal, it is readily eaten, and is quite as good, if not better than potatoes. If spread in the hen-yard, the hens will pick out all of the seeds, which are really the most valuable portion of it. Sheep are very fond of it. In commencing to feed to any animal, only small quantities should be given at first, gradually increasing to the amount believed to be sufficient.

Pomace spread several inches deep on a poor gravelly hill will bring in a good crop of clover the second year. And finally when dried it makes a hot fire. It is often used in steam cider mills, for fuel under the boiler. Whatever is intended for feeding purposes, should not be left out in the sun and rain, to sour and decay, but should be housed and kept as sweet as possible. In hot weather it is very difficult to keep it, but when cool weather comes it can be kept for some weeks without fermenting enough to injure it. During warm weather it should be fed out directly from the press, unless it is spread and dried.

Every farmer who carries his apples to mill to grind for cider, should secure the privilege of carrying home, as wanted, as much pomace as his apples make, or as much as he has stock to consume, for the real value of the pomace is much more than the cider, if the apples are ripe.

EXPERIMENTS WITH SEED POTATOES.

The New York Tribune remarks: From the time of Arthur Young, who issued an agricultural gazette when George Washington was a farmer, until now that such publications are numerous, it is almost exceptional to take up one without seeing reports of experiments made afresh, and ever being repeated, on such questions as large and small seed for potatoes, whole seed or cut, etc., etc. It was high time some conclusion was arrived at and posted up. Mr. Henry Ives, who knows potatoes—growing an average of twenty-five acres per annum for twenty-five years, and closely observant of all that concerns their yield—shows in a few lines in the Practical Farmer how vain are isolated experiments upon single points of potato behavior. There are many influences combining in the getting up of any plant, and if we look at one only, and attribute all the results to it, it is plain to see how grossly we may be mistaken. As to using whole seed, sets, or single eyes, Mr. Ives justly shows how all or any of these succeed well with other conditions favoring, and that even pieces cast aside as having no eyes, if planted, throw out shoots with a failure of only, say one in five. Good potatoes have been grown from parings, and even from the mere eyes scooped out, and from a still smaller portion, namely, one of the several sprouts produced by an eye. We should look over the field, in length and breadth, again and again before pronouncing upon potatoe growing.

CABBAGES.

Leave out until heavy frosts and the ground is about to freeze, then pull and place heads down in rows and cover the heads with a few inches of earth. Where there are many a plow may be used in covering them. Two furrows turned upon the heads will do the bulk of the work and the spade and hoe will finish the covering. A common method in family gardens is to dig a trench where water will not stand, a little deeper than the height of the cabbages, set the cabbages in the trench close together, with what earth that adheres to the roots. As the weather gets cold put on a little straw, and when the Winter fairly sets in complete the covering to several inches of straw and put boards over the whole. Soft heads thus stored will become hard and excellent by Spring.

Stop That Cough.

If you are suffering with a Cough, Cold, Asthma, Bronchitis, Hay Fever, Consumption, loss of voice, tickling in the throat, or any affection of the Throat or lungs, use Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. This is the great remedy that is causing so much excitement by its wonderful cures, curing thousands of hopeless cases. Over one million bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery have been used within the last year, and have given perfect satisfaction in every instance. We can unhesitatingly say that this is really the only sure cure for throat and lung affections, and can cheerfully recommend it to all. Ayer's
Hair Vigor,
FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR TO ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR.
It is a most agreeable dressing, which is at once harmless and effectual, for preserving the hair. It restores, with the glossy freshness of youth, faded or gray, light, and red hair, to a rich brown, or deep black, as may be desired. By its use thin hair is thickened, and baldness often though not always cured. It checks falling of the hair immediately, and causes a new growth in all cases where the glands are not decayed; while to brashy, weak, or otherwise diseased hair, it imparts vitality and strength, and renders it pliable.
The VIGOR cleanses the scalp, cures and prevents the formation of dandruff; and, by its cooling, stimulating, and soothing properties, it heals most if not all of the humors and diseases peculiar to the scalp, keeping it cool, clean, and soft, under which conditions diseases of the scalp and hair are impossible.
As a Dressing for Ladies' Hair
The VIGOR is incomparable. It is colorless, contains neither oil nor dye, and will not soil white cambric. It imparts an agreeable and lasting perfume, and as an article for the toilet it is economical and unsurpassed in its excellence.

TESTIMONY
Of the Hon. Jos. E. Gray, Judge of the Superior Court, Chicago, Ill.
CHICAGO, Dec. 14, 1878.
DR. S. D. HOWE,
DEAR SIR:—Permit me to add my grateful testimony to the army of witnesses to the virtue of your justly celebrated Arabian remedies. For a long time my wife was seriously afflicted with hacking cough, oppressed breathing, soreness of the chest, and constant acute pain in the lower portion of the right lung and under the shoulder blade. Her sufferings were intense, and she became extremely nervous and prostrated. Her disease was pronounced consumption by the physicians of Chicago and other cities, whose prescriptions had been taken without benefit. When you visited Chicago in June, 1873, we called on you, having very little hope of deriving help from your treatment. We were inspired with hope by the skillful manner in which your thorough examination was conducted, and the satisfactory explanation with which you closed your diagnosis. My wife determined to take your medicines in accordance with your plan and practical directions. She began to use the Arabian Milk Cure and Arabian Tonic; their beneficial effect at once became manifest—the cough loosened and soon ceased, respiration became easy, the soreness of the chest was relieved and all pain removed, she began to gain in flesh and improve in strength and appearance. I fully believe that your medicines and skillful advice have saved the life of my wife. She unites with me in this grateful tribute to the merit of your remedies.
Very respectfully yours,
JOSEPH E. GRAY.

A BAD NAME.

MRS. BRIGGS.—"Sakes alive, I wouldn't no more name a child Elias than nothing in the world! they're always cutting up some caper. Here's Elias Thompson, Elias Williams, Elias the Night Hawk, all have been took up for stealin'. Mary Jane, don't you never name none of your children Elias."

A NEW PAYING OCCUPATION FOR LADIES AND GENTLEMEN.

The handsome Nickel Plated New Home Lamp being introduced to the public this season, is the most meritorious article ever offered Agents to make money with, is safer, and more convenient than the Student Lamp, which has heretofore had the reputation of being the Safest Lamp made, it has a clamp to firmly attach it to the Sewing Machine, Piano, Organ, Desk, etc. The fear of the ordinary lamp being accidentally upset or thrown from the table, is entirely relieved by this simple contrivance. It can be adjusted to throw the light just where it is wanted to suit the eyes, and can be converted into a handsome wall lamp. It has the best argand burner, a filling indicator, and convenient match box, and its price is within the reach of everyone. It has been fully tested and editorially endorsed by the "Western Christian Advocate," "Am. Christian Review," "Herald and Presbyter," "Journal and Messenger," and "Christian Standard," the leading Religious papers of Cincinnati, and is endorsed by the Mayor and Post-Master of Cincinnati, the Agent of the American Express Companies, as being the Safest, Most Convenient and best Lamp made.

There are three reasons why Agents should seek such an article to canvass for—first for its absolute safety and great convenience, it is needed in every home—second its low price makes its sale immense—third it will be a credit to handle such as article. One southern Agent writes, it sells faster than Gen. Lee's portrait sold right after the war, another writes it beats the palmy days of the Sewing Machine, its rapid sale, low price, and liberal terms surprise old Agents.—Address Home Lamp Co., Cincinnati, O. Mentioning our paper and they will give you full particulars and exclusive territory to canvass in.

TO THE AFFLICTED.

Since the introduction of Kellogg's Columbian Oil it has made more permanent cures and given better satisfaction on Kidney complaints and Rheumatism than any know remedy. Its continued series of wonderful cures in all climates has made it known as a safe and reliable agent to employ against all aches and pains, which are the forerunners of more serious disorders. It acts speedily and surely, always relieving suffering and often saving life. The protection it affords by its timely use on Rheumatism, kidney affection, and all aches and pains, wounds, cramping pains, cholera morbus, diarrhœa, coughs, colds, catarrh, and disorders among children, makes it an invaluable remedy to be kept always on hand in every home. No person can afford to be without it, and those who have once used it never will. It is absolutely certain in its remedial effects and will always cure when cures are possible. Call at C.A. Wright & Co's. and get a memorandum book giving more full details of the curative properties of this wonderful medicine.

Poverty and Suffering.

"I was dragged down with debt, poverty and suffering for years, caused by a sick family and large bills for doctoring, which did them no good.—I was completely discouraged, until one year ago, by the advice of my pastor, I procured Hop Bitters and commenced their use, and in one month we were all well and none of us have seen a sick day since, and I want to say to all poor men, you can keep your families well a year with Hop Bitters for less than one doctor's visit will cost—I know it.

THE READY FAMILY SOAP MAKER:

LEWIS' LYE

98 PER CENT. PURE.
(Patented.)

FINELY POWDERED.
HIGHLY PERFUMED.

The strongest and purest Lye made. Will make 13 pounds of the best Perfumed Hard Soap in 20 minutes without boiling.
The best water-softener made.
The best disinfectant.
The following are some of the advantages obtained by using Lewis' 98 Per Cent. Powdered Lye:

First. It is packed in an iron can with a slip or removable lid, easily taken off and leaving the contents exposed, thereby saving the trouble, annoyance, and danger (from flying particles), as with other Lyes, which, being sealed in the cans, must be broken with a hammer to get the Lye out.

Second. It being a fine powder, you can remove the lid and pour out all the contents, being always ready for use.

Third. A teaspoonful or more can be used, as in water-softening, scrubbing, etc., and the lid returned to the can, and thereby save the balance of contents. With other Lyes all must be dissolved at once and used in a short time, or the strength is gone.

Fourth. Absolute purity. Free from all adulterations.

Fifth. The best Soap can be made in from ten to twenty minutes with this Lye.

Sixth. No failure is possible in making Soap with this Lye when the simple directions given are followed.

Seventh. One can of this Powdered Lye is equal to twenty pounds of Sal Soda or Washing Soda.

Eighth. One can of this Lye will saponify one pound more of grease than any other Concentrated Lye, Ball Potash, or Saponifier.

Ninth. This Lye is 98 per cent. stronger than any other Lye or Potash.

Tenth. One to two teaspoonfuls will soften a tub of the hardest water.

Eleventh. One teaspoonful will thoroughly cleanse Sinks, Drains, or Closets.

Invaluable for killing Roaches, Mice, Rats, etc.

The best article for washing Trees.

AROUND THE COUNTY.

RAISIN.

RAISIN, Oct. 19, 1880.

EDITOR HERALD:

I noticed in the last HERALD, under the head of Ridgeway Items, a sly thrust at the Raisin B. B. club. The Ridgeway boys seem to feel very much elated over their victory and are rather inclined to be hard on the vanquished. The Raisin B. B. club, it is true, made very poor playing and acknowledge that they were fairly beaten, and while they give the Ridgeway B. B. club all due credit for muscle, they are obliged at the same time to score them high in what is called "lip." Muscle is a good thing and every one admires a well formed and well developed physique, but other things are necessary in the make up of a true man, and not the least of these are good manners and gentlemanly conduct. The Raisin B. B. club has always played with gentlemen, and not being accustomed to play with roughs they probably showed more resentment than they should have done to the foul-mouth effusions of the Ridgeway B. B. club. Raisin is going to seek some light amusement during the winter months. Raisin thanks Ridgeway for her suggestion, and begs leave to say that she must decline "Ring around a Rosy," having previously decided the play "Pizen." The arrangements for the game are all completed except the center piece. The biggest man in the Ridgeway B. B. club, the man with the most muscle in the Ridgeway B. B. club, the man with the terrible lip would make a good one. Pass him along if he can be spared and the game will be lively with him in that position.

AN EYE WITNESS.

EASY RIDGEWAY.

We have had some snow squalls down here during the last few days. It makes farmers shiver as they think of the cold fingers husking corn.

The masons will finish plastering the new Christian church this week, and the committee have let the contract to seat it to a firm at Northville, and will have the church all completed by the 9th of November, in time for the State conference which meets here at that time.

They have finally located the depot at Britton's, and the committee to raise money for the same had $1,250 at last accounts. It will give us webfeet a better chance to get out to Adrian and Detroit than having to go to Tecumseh to take the train.

Uncle Asel Covell died Sept. 18th. He was 72 years of age and a pioneer of this county. Thus another old pioneer has gone. NIX.

Morenci Observer: Our readers may recollect that our well-remembered ex-townsman, James P. Cawley, was ejected from the cars of the Michigan Central railway, by one of those obstreperous, high-toned conductors who still find a place on the trains of the large corporations, for some red-tape defect in his ticket, and that Mr. Cawley brought suit against the company for damages in the superior court of Detroit. Last week the case was brought to trial, and resulted in a judgment of $5,000 in favor of Mr. Cawley. The traveling public will not be sorry for this result, for if railway companies will still continue to employ, as conductors, those brainless dandies whose mission seems to be to magnify their own importance and insult and abuse every passenger who does not at once come up to the scratch of their royal highness, let them pay for it by such judgments as was awarded to Mr. Cawley last Saturday. We suspect, moreover, that $5,000 will be a good thing for Mr. C. about these days, and will go far to assuage his grief in being thrown from the train into the dark, dark world, several miles from a station on a starless night.

WHAT THE CANDIDATES SAY.

EDITOR HERALD:

On the 9th of September I sent the following letter of inquiry to Hon. Brackley Shaw of Dover, republican candidate for senator from Lenawee county:

TECUMSEH, Sept. 9th, 1880.

DEAR SIR: The voters of Lenawee county desire to know if you favor the submission to the people of this state of a constitutional amendment prohibiting the manufacture and sale of spiritous, malt, and vinous liquors, and whether, if elected senator, you will give your influence and vote for the same. An early reply will greatly oblige. Respectfully,

J. H. OSBORN,
Chairman of Lenawee county Constitutional Committee.

The following is Mr. Shaw's reply:

MR. J. H. OSBORN, Tecumseh, Mich.

DEAR SIR: Yours of the 9th inst. just received, my principles as regards temperance is generally known through the county. If the people desire to vote on the constitutional amendment mentioned in your letter, I see no reason why they should not have an opportunity. Respectfully,

B. SHAW.

I then sent Mr. Shaw the following letter:

TECUMSEH, Sept. 17th, 1880.

DEAR SIR: Your favor of the 16th is at hand, and contents noted. You do not answer the questions in my letter of the 9th inst. You say, "If the people desire to vote upon the constitutional amendment you see no reason why they should not have the opportunity." There is this reason if no other, viz: The Legislature may not see fit to give them the opportunity.

Please give me a direct yes or no to the following questions:

1st. Are you in favor of the submission of the constitutional amendment to a vote of the people of this state?

2d. If elected senator will you give your influence and vote for it?

The people of Southern Lenawee may be acquainted with your sentiments on the subject of temperance, but they certainly are not in this part of the county. Let me assure you that in asking you for direct answers to my questions I am actuated only by a desire to further the cause of humanity. An early reply will greatly oblige. Respectfully,

J. H. OSBORN,
Chairman Lenawee county Constitutional Committee.

The following is Mr. Shaw's reply:

MR. J. H. OSBORN, Tecumseh, Mich.

DEAR SIR: Yours of the 17th was received last eve. In reply I would say that I am an out and out temperance man and have been the last 40 years. Have advocated the cause of temperance since I was of sufficient age to see and realize the evils growing out of intemperance. Am a member of the red ribbon club, and have been from its first organization. I endorse the temperance platform and am in favor of submitting to the people the constitutional amendment prohibiting the manufacture or sale of spiritous, malt and vinous liquors except for medicinal, mechanical and sacramental purposes. Should I be elected to the senate I expect to advocate and vote for the measure and yet, should I become a member of the senate I wish to go there untrammelled by pledges in order that after looking over the grounds I may act in accordance with my convictions of what is right and for the best interest of the people. Respectfully,

B. SHAW.

On the 21st of September a meeting of the Lenawee county committee was held in Adrian, when it was resolved that the chairman be requested to write to each Legislative candidate of the republican, democratic, and greenback parties and get from them if possible an expression of their views upon the constitutional amendment question. Accordingly on the 22d of September, I sent the following letter enclosing return postage, to G. P. Waring, republican representative from 1st district; Henry C. Pratt republican representative from 2d district; Manson Carpenter republican representative from 3d district; C. H. Dewey, greenback representative from 3d district; W. M. Corbet, democratic representative from 1st district; Wm. Corbin, democratic representative from 2d district; E. M. Brown, democratic representative from 3d district; Rollin Robinson, democratic senator; H. C. Hall, greenback senator.

DEAR SIR: The people of your district or county wish to know how you stand on the constitutional amendment question. Will you please answer the following questions:

1st. Are you in favor of the submission of a constitutional amendment to the people of this state prohibiting the manufacture and sale of spiritous, malt and vinous liquors within the bounds of this state?

2d: Will you if elected give your influence and vote for it? I will add, that in asking these questions I am prompted only by a desire to advance the cause of humanity. An early reply will oblige me. Respectfully,

J. H. OSBORN,
Chairman Lenawee county Constitutional Committee.

I have received the following reply from Mr. Waring:

RIDGEWAY, Sept. 25th, 1880.

J. H. OSBORN:

DEAR SIR: As I understand your questions do not ask any opinion or position in regard to prohibition, the only question involved being the right of the people to have the whole question submitted to them for decision. Being confident that at least 100,000 lawful votem of the state will ask for the submission of this question, and believing that a respectable minority are entitled to a hearing, no matter what the question may be, I have no hesitancy in saying that should I be a member of the next Legislature the submission of said amendment or its equivalent will be favored by my vote and influence. Very Truly Yours. G. P. WARING.

I have also received a letter from C. H. Dewey declaring himself in favor of the amendment, but as he has since withdrawn as I understand from the canvass, I forbear to give his letter to the public. None of the other gentlemen have answered my inquiries.

J. H. OSBORN,
Chairman Lenawee county Constitutional Committee.

THE Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Michigan will bring their influence into play this year at the polls. The following pronunciamento has been sent out:

To the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Michigan:

The issue before the people at the next state election is one of vital importance to our cause. The only alternative is to yield our most precious interests to the control of those engaged in the liquor traffic or to elect such a Legislature as will listen to the demand of the people and give them an opportunity to say whether they will "free themselves from this terrible curse," and such local officers as will secure an "honest vote and fair count" when the question is presented. We appeal to you, both in your organized and individual capacity, to use your entire influence for the success of the right. Your husband and sons will speak for you at the polls. See that they do not belie your principles. Give time and care to distributing documents and ballots approved by the red ribbon state central committee. We think the importance of the issue will justify you in using your personal influence at the polls. We are sure your presence there will not only promote the cause of temperance, but also of order and morality.

MRS. B. B. HUDSON,
Pres. S. W. C. T. U.
Mary T. Lathrop, Sec.

TREMPELEAU, WIS., May 1, 1880.

I am taking Kidney-Wort and find it to be all that it is recommended.

REV. N. COOK.

TEMPLE MILL, VA., March 24, 1880.

I am employed in getting out timber, and my work is very hard, chopping, lifting and wading in the water a good deal. It brought on Kidney complaint and rheumatism, for which I have been taking Kidney-Wort with great benefit. It is the only patent medicine I have ever taken which I can recommend, which I have done to many here and to the druggist in town. A. B. BURR.

BOARD OF SUPERVISORS.

Monday, Oct. 11.—The Board met and elected J. H. Shepherd, chairman.

Tuesday, Oct. 12.—The chairman announced the following committees:

THE FAMILY CIRCLE.

SUBMISSION.

The sparrow sits and sings, and sings;
Softly the sunset's lingering light
Lies rosy over rock and turf,
And reddens where the restless surf
Tosses on high its plumes of white.

Gently and clear the sparrow sings,
While twilight steals across the sea,
And still and bright the evening star
Twinkles above the golden bar
That in the West lies quietly.

How is it that the birds can sing?
Life is so full of bitter pain;
Hearts are so crying with hopeless grief,
Woe is so long and joy so brief;
Nor shall the lost return again.

Yet still the sparrow sits and sings,
Till longing, mourning, sorrowing love,
Groping to find what hope may be
Within death's awful mystery,
Reaches its empty arms above.

And listening, while the sparrow sings,
And soft the evening shadows fall,
Sees, through the crowding tears that blind,
A little light, and seems to find
And clasp God's hand, who wrought it all.

IMPRISONED IN THE FOREST.

The sprightly little antelopes had led me a long chase, and when I started out for the camp I was not certain of the direction. For the first few miles my mind was occupied more with the thoughts of my recent narrow escape than with the way that I was taking; but as the night grew darker, and I became fatigued, I began to think of my whereabouts.

I had no difficulty in keeping up a brisk pace, for on those almost boundless plains, with no vegetation but the short buffalo grass, it is almost as easy travelling by night as by day.

I continued my walk until I thought it must be near morning; but no signs of camp yet. I was weary and foot-sore, hungry, and so thirsty!

Just as the thirst became almost intolerable I espied the dim outlines of a tree, but a short distance ahead. How my drooping spirits revived, for in that region a tree is almost a sure indication of a water-course.

Forgetting my fatigue, I quickened my steps, and was soon drinking my fill from the little creek.

Feeling much refreshed, I sat down for a moment to "compare notes." I had traveled far enough, I was sure, to have reached camp. If such was the case, I was certainly out of the way, and perhaps going further and further all the time.

It could not be long till morning, and feeling sure that I was "off the track," I thought it best to remain where I was until daylight. Seating myself by an old sycamore, I leaned back against its smooth body. I did not intend to sleep, but my eyes closed in spite of me, and when I awoke the night had passed.

The gentle breeze that was blowing when I fell asleep had increased to a gale, heavy black clouds were rolling up from the south, and big drops of rain were already falling. I cast my eye about for a shelter, but saw nothing that offered greater inducements than the old tree by which I had been sitting. Hugging close to its trunk, I awaited the coming tempest.

The wind rose higher and higher. The great white limbs of the sycamores which lined the banks of the creek on either side were twisted to and fro, and now and then a crash told plainly that some one of them had yielded to the fury of the storm.

Suddenly the tree against which I was leaning trembled and crackled, and the ground began to heave under my feet. I jumped for my life and escaped that peril; but another waited me. The huge tree in its descent struck a little sapling that stood near, partially uprooting it, and bending it to the earth.

Before I was aware I was caught, thrown to the ground, and pinioned there as in a vice.

The pressure did not seem heavy, at least, not painfully so; but it was sufficient to hold me firmly down upon my back.

The tree seemed hardly larger than my wrist, and I thought of my knife to cut it. It was in the sheath at the back of my belt, and consequently under me. I reached first one side, then the other; but I was held too close to the ground to get it without digging away the soil. I commenced with my hands, and after an hour's work I got my hand upon the sheath. It was empty. In my fall the knife had been brushed out. Instinctively I turned my head, and there it was, not six feet from me, but beyond my reach.

I puzzled my brain to devise some means to get it within my grasp, but all my Yankee ingenuity could not surmount the difficulty. There was no other way but to dig myself out, and I went at it with a will.

I worked away until the flesh of my fingers' ends was nearly worn off; yet it seemed that I was making little progress.

And then my time was limited to a few hours. The storm had ceased, and the sun, which was shining brightly, had passed the meridian. Full well I knew my peril if I should be forced to spend the night in that helpless condition, and I resumed my digging, though with but little hopes of being able to free myself before the darkness [illegible]. Then I was so nearly exhausted, and my hands were so sore, that I was obliged to rest every few moments.

During one of these intervals I heard a slight rustling among the leaves, and, looking up, saw a most welcome sight. It was the professor's faithful dog Jack. He bounded toward me, licked my face and hands, and jumped about me with every demonstration of joy at finding me.

I had supposed, when I first saw the dog, that some of my companions were with him; but this proved not to be the case. Then, of what use is he, only as a companion and sentinel. He could not release me.

Ah! couldn't he? He could bring me the knife. I had often seen him, at his master's command, carry different objects and lay them at his feet. Would he not do the same for me? It was worth a trial.

"Jack, go bring it?" said I, patting him on the head, and pointing to the knife.

Away he bounded and brought a stick. Again and again I sent him, but with the same results. Once more I made the trial.

"Go get it Jack. Get the knife."

Away he went again. Another stick—no, it's the knife. Ah! he drops it and again takes—the—stick, no, thank God! the knife is firmly between his teeth, and he laid it in my hand.

If there was not some "tall" whittling within the next half hour, and a fervent "Thank God," as the little sapling parted, then my name is not Max Munson.

Once more upon my feet, I found that I had received more serious injuries than I had supposed, but I managed to reach camp, which was not more than a mile distant, just as my companions came in from their search for me.

A NEEDED REFORM.

EDITOR HERALD:

Dear Sir—As your kindness in giving place in your columns to the complaints of aggrieved and distressed citizens is well known, I venture to avail myself of the privilege, and here state that I, an old citizen, have grievance; and one too in which I am sure I shall find many sympathizers. Each year, for many, I have spent what I could afford for plants and seeds, hoping thus to secure early vegetables and the bright fragrant flowers I love so well; but the soft mellow earth so necessary for the growth of these seems equally so for my neighbors' chickens. I never keep any. It is of no use to drive them home, to plant more seeds, to warn said neighbor, who in every other respect is a model. He will not shut up his chickens, they will not stay at home, and so my garden, instead of being a source of pleasure and profit as it should be, my flower beds neatly kept, a blaze of beauty enjoyed by every passer by, bring nothing but annoyance and vexation of spirit. I plant a choice rose, one I have longed for years, next time I see it 'tis lying on its side half uprooted. I watch my grape vines, expecting a fine crop, (some new varieties that have never borne before among them) they are pecked nearly to pieces. My tomatoes are ruined by having a hole dug in the side of each. I hill up my celery from time to time with the greatest care; the fresh moist earth is too great a temptation, the celery comes to light again. I plant my fall bulbs, tulips, hyacinths, etc., I find them drying up on the top ground, the sand in which is carefully placed each bulb, mixed with the other earth again. And so it goes from the time the mother leads out her brood triumphantly until Thanksgiving, then comes worst of all. My neighbor, instead of saying "You have fattened my fowls handsomely for me, they do credit to your garden, please accept a pair with many thanks," coolly sits down to a splendid dinner of roast chicken and says: "It don't cost but very little to keep fowls and yet how much good we do get out of them." Now, if this was the experience of only one year, you would not have heard a word; but it is of many, and "forbearance has ceased to be a virtue." We have so many market gardeners who can raise vegetables so much cheaper and better than we, and our markets are so numerous and well supplied that it is not necessary, I grant, to keep up our private gardens as in earlier times, let the chickens have them. But must we give up our flowers too? When the beds and borders of flowers of all the rainbow tints, if they could be neatly kept, would add so much to the beauty of the town we all take a pride in. We see them around the lowliest home as well as the more pretentious mansion. We all love them. Why can't our City Fathers have the authority to shut up fowls as they have cattle? Can't something be done? I really have this very much at heart. At any rate there must be some cheaper way of fattening our neighbors' fowls than at such a sacrifice.

MUCHLY TRIED CITIZEN.

"I am very much afraid of lightning," said a pretty lady. "And well she may be," said her lover, "as your heart is made of steel."

BILL NYE.

He Goes Butter-nutting.

It was a lovely autumn day, and after the thick nutricious air of the car, it was paradise to get out into the forest, where the fresh, sweet odor of the falling leaves was everywhere, and the hush of nature's annual funeral checked the thoughtless word and noisy laughter of the invader.

I wandered on, thinking of the brevity and comparative unimportance of our human life. How short the race we run, and how unsatisfactory our achievements at last. How like the leaves of the forest we spring forth in the early summer of our existence, nod pleasantly to our fellows a few brief mornings, and then die.

Thoughtlessly and aimlessly I had wandered on until I came to a large butter-nut, which I climbed with the old and almost forgotten enthusiasm of boyhood. At the top I tried some of my old and difficult tricks, and just as the train moved silently away I was going through the difficult and dangerous act of hanging to the upper limb of a butter-nut tree by the seat of the pants and waiting patiently for the bow or the cassimere to yield and let the artist down into the arena by force of gravitation.

Dear reader, did you ever go through this thrilling experience? Did you ever feel the utter insincerity and maddening uncertainty which it yields? If not, then these lines are not to you?

Gently the tree swayed to and fro with the motion of the autumn breezes. Sadly the pines were sighing like souls, and the dead leaves fell softly to the ground, like the footfalls of departed spirits. I began to wish that I could fall softly to the ground like the footfalls of departed spirits too.

I began to get bored and unhappy after awhile. My feet and hands hung in a cluster, and the position seemed strained and unnatural. I began to yearn for society and the comforts of a home. I mentally calculated the distance I would have to fall, and wondered which of my bones I would shatter the most, and what the doctor's bill would be.

All at once I heard what seemed like a sound of smothered laughter. It was no doubt nothing but a sound which my fevered imagination had conjured up, aided by the torrent of blood which rushed to my ears, but it maddened me and I summoned all my strength in the mighty struggle to free myself. Finally, there was a short, sharp crash, and I felt myself rapidly descending through space. I fancied that I was an acrobat, and had fallen from the center-pole that holds up the sky. I thought that I lay in the dust and sawdust of the ring in a shapeless mass, and over all and above all was the maddening sensation that my wardrobe was not complete. In my tortured imagination I could hear demonic laughter and occasional words of derision. They became more pronounced and distinct at last, and I fancied I heard one of these grinning imps saying:

"How peaceful he looks, and how young and fair. See how carelessly he has inserted his nose in the moist earth. He must have suffered a good deal through life, and yet his face is calm and happy in its expression. His general appearance is that of perfect rest and the glad fruition of every hope.

"Let us go up into the tree and get the rest of his remains and send them all home together.

The last speaker reminded me of the conductor, and the similarity struck me even in my trance. Slowly I opened my eyes. It was he. I almost wished that the fall had killed me. I did not fall from the tree to be humorous, but if I had I should have considered it the crowning triumph of an eventful career.

Most every one from the train was there and several from the nearest towns along the line. I bowed my thanks in silence, and backed over to the track. I got aboard and sat down. I found that I attracted less attention when I was sitting down, and never cared so little for public notice in my life as I did that day.

It seems that the train had gone away some distance, but when it got by itself it remembered that I was not on board, and the peanut boy remembered seeing me get off at this point. So as the train was already two weeks and four days behind, the conductor decided to go back. He says now that he does not regret it. He says that the life of a conductor at best has but few bright spots in it, and the oasis along the desert which he treads are widely separated, but he told me with tears in his eyes that Providence had made me the humble instrument for great good and he felt grateful to me.

When he breaks out into a glad ripple of childish laughter now without any apparent cause, he takes a piece of checked cassimere out of his pocket and explains how he got it, and tells the whole story to his friends, so there are a great many people along that line of travel who know me by reputation although they have never seen me.—Denver Tribune.

WHY HE WAS IN PRISON.

An important case was tried before the criminal court of the district of Columbia. An old colored man was on the witness stand. The district attorney interrogated the witness:

"What is your name?"

"John Williams, sah."

"Are you the John Williams who was sent to the Albany state penitentiary for larceny?"

"No, sah—got this John."

"Are you the John Williams who was convicted of arson, and sent to the Baltimore penitentiary?"

"No, sah."

Tired of asking fruitless questions, the district attorney suddenly put a leading one.

"Have you ever been in the penitentiary?"

"Yes, sah."

All eyes were now turned upon the witness. The district attorney smiled complacently and resumed:

"How many times have you been in the penitentiary?"

"Twice, sah."

"Where?"

"In Baltimore, sah."

"How long were you there the first time?"

"About two hours, sah."

"How long the second time?" asked the attorney, rather crestfallen.

"An hour, sah. I went there to white-wash a cell for a lawyer who had robbed his client."

The attorney sat down amid the laughter of the spectators.

AN ITEM OF APPROPRIATION.

In telling of Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure, the Republican, Hudson, N. Y., says in its Washington Items: "It seems to be generally understood that an especial appropriation will be made for the purchase, for the use of the members of Senate and House, of Warner's Safe Pills and Warner's Safe Bitters."

A NEW PAYING OCCUPATION FOR LADIES AND GENTLEMEN.

The handsome Nickel Plated New Home Lamp being introduced to the public this season, is the most meritorious article ever offered Agents to make money with, is safer, and more convenient than the Student Lamp, which has heretofore had the reputation of being the Safest Lamp made, it has a clamp to firmly attach it to the Sewing Machine, Piano, Organ, Desk, etc. The fear of the ordinary lamp being accidentally upset or thrown from the table, is entirely relieved by this simple contrivance. It can be adjusted to throw the light just where it is wanted to suit the eyes, and can be converted into a handsome wall lamp. It has the best argand burner, a filling indicator, and convenient match box, and its price is within the reach of everyone. It has been fully tested and editorially endorsed by the "Western Christian Advocate," "Am. Christian Review," "Herald and Presbyter," "Journal and Messenger," and "Christian Standard," the leading Religious papers of Cincinnati, and is endorsed by the Mayor and Post-Master of Cincinnati, the Agent of the American Express Companies, as being the Safest, Most Convenient and best Lamp made.

There are three reasons why Agents should seek such an article to canvass for—first for its absolute safety and great convenience, it is needed in every home—second its low price makes its sale immense—third it will be a credit to handle such an article. One southern Agent writes, it sells faster than Gen. Lee's portrait sold right after the war, another writes it beats the palmy days of the Sewing Machine, its rapid sale, low price, and liberal terms surprise old Agents.—Address Home Lamp Co., Cincinnati, O. Mentioning our paper and they will give you full particulars and exclusive territory to canvass in.

TO THE AFFLICTED.

Since the introduction of Kellogg's Columbian Oil it has made more permanent cures and given better satisfaction on Kidney complaints and Rheumatism than any know remedy. Its continued series of wonderful cures in all climates has made it known as a safe and reliable agent to employ against all aches and pains, which are the forerunners of more serious disorders. It acts speedily and surely, always relieving suffering and often saving life. The protection it affords by its timely use on Rheumatism, kidney affection, and all aches and pains, wounds, cramping pains, cholera morbus, diarrhœa, coughs, colds, catarrh, and disorders among children, makes it an invaluable remedy to be kept always on hand in every home. No person can afford to be without it, and those who have once used it never will. It is absolutely certain in its remedial effects and will always cure when cures are possible. Call at C.A. Wright & Co's. and get a memorandum book giving more full details of the curative properties of this wonderful medicine.

Greatest Remedy Known.

Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumptive is certainly the greatest medical remedy ever placed within the reach of suffering humanity.—Thousands of once hopeless sufferers, now loudly proclaim their praise for this Discovery to which they owe their lives. Not only does it positively cure Consumption, but Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, Hay Fever, Hoarseness and all affections of the Throat, Chest and Lungs yield at once to its wonderful curative powers as if by magic. We do not ask you to buy a large bottle until you know what you are getting. We therefore earnestly request you to call on your druggists, M. Wright & Son, and get a trial bottle free of cost which will convince the most skeptical of its wonderful merits, and show you what a regular one dollar size bottle will do. For sale by M. Wright & Son, Tecumseh.

THE October number of the Counterfeit Bank Note Detector calls attention, among the new and dangerous counterfeits, to a $1 U. S. treasury note, legal tender, series of 1875. General appearance of note good; imitation of the fibre paper is attempted by printing. Probably an attempt will be made to pass these in large quantities, and the people will do well to examine all $1 notes. It also reports a dangerous counterfeit $4 note on the Ontario bank of Canada.

HYGIENIC.

The Express, Chicago, says of Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure: "It is, in the highest sense, hygienic, and can be used by young and old with equal advantage. It gives the only relief yet attained, that can be termed permanent, in Brights Disease and this alone should rank it higher in the lists of medical triumphs."

A small article of great efficiency is American Ball-Blue. A favorite in every laundry. Unsurpassed for purity and brilliant effect. All grocers have it.

BEST IS CHEAPEST!

LEWIS' CONDENSED BAKING POWDER

STRICTLY PURE!

We will give $1000.00 for any Alum or other adulteration found in this POWDER.

Indorsed by the Brooklyn Board of Health, and by the best chemists in the United States.

It is STRONGER than any Yeast Powder in the world.

It NEVER FAILS to make light bread when used as directed.

It is COMMENDED by every housekeeper who has given it a fair trial.

It is an entirely NEW INVENTION, without any of the bad qualities of soda or saleratus, yeast or other baking powders.

It has in itself a tendency to sustain and nourish the system.

Good food makes good health; and health is improved or impaired in proportion as the food we eat is nutritious or otherwise.

LEWIS' BAKING POWDER always makes good food.

One can of this is worth two of any other baking compound.

It makes bread whiter and richer.

More than half the complaints of bad flour arise from the use of common baking powders, which often make the best of flour turn out dark bread.

The most delicate persons can eat food prepared with it without injury.

Nearly every other baking powder is adulterated and is absolutely injurious.

This is made from Refined Grape Cream of Tartar, and is PERFECTLY PURE.

It makes the BEST, lightest, and most nutritious

BREAD, BISCUIT, CAKE, CRULLERS, BUCKWHEAT, INDIAN, AND FLANNEL CAKES.

A single trial will prove the superiority of this Powder.

MANUFACTURED ONLY BY GEO. T. LEWIS & MENZIES CO. PHILADELPHIA.

Chambers' Encyclopædia.

15 Vols. Over 13,000 Pages. Price During July, $6.25.

Among the wonderful things which have been accomplished for lovers of good books by the "Literary Revolution," perhaps the most wonderful is the reproduction of this great Encyclopædia at a merely nominal cost.

It is a verbatim reprint of the last English edition, in 15 beautiful volumes, clear nonpareil type, handsomely bound in cloth, for $37.50; the same printed on finer, heavier paper, wide margins, and bound in half Russia, gilt top, price $15.00. The first ten volumes are ready for delivery. Vol. 11 will be ready July 10. The remaining volumes will be completed by October next.

$6.25. An Amazing Offer. $6,25.

The more widely and rapidly these volumes are scattered, the greater is their influence in inducing other purchasers of this and our many standard publications. Accordingly we give special terms to early subscribers.

To all, whose orders and money are received during the month of July, we will supply the 15 volumes in cloth, for $6.25, and in half Russia, gilt top, for $12.50. To any one sending from any place where we have no special agent (usually the leading bookseller of the town), a club of five orders, we will allow a commission of 10 per cent. The volumes issued will be sent at once by express, and the remaining volumes when completed.

A specimen volume in cloth will be sent, postpaid, for 50 cents, or in half Russia, gilt top, for $1.00, and may be returned at once, if not satisfactory.

The "CHAMBERS'S ENCYCLOPÆDIA" comprises the first 15 volumes of our "Library of Universal Knowledge," and the remaining volumes, complete in themselves, will be sold separately when published.

THE POLITICAL OUTLOOK.

The result of the October elections finally settled down substantially as stated in the HERALD of last week. Ohio has elected the republican state ticket by an average majority of about 19,000, and Indiana has chosen a republican governor by a plurality of 5,300. In West Virginia the democrats have gained quite largely and their majority will reach about 15,000. The result then in the three states shows that in West Virginia the democracy have made gains, in Ohio the parties stand almost exactly as they did last year, while in Indiana the republicans have scored a very decided victory. Although their majority is small on the state ticket it is sufficient to gain two congressmen and carry the Legislature which will secure them a U. S. Senator. Both parties have now recovered their equilibrium, and gone to work again with renewed zeal which will make the contest for the next two weeks a very hot one. The democracy have healed all their differences in New York city and chosen a union city ticket, and a general advance has been ordered along the whole Hancock line. Wm. H. English feels the utmost confidence in his ability to carry Indiana for Hancock, and even the Ohio democrats are preparing to make a fight for that state. As the smoke clears away from the battle field and the means by which Ohio and Indiana were won become fully known, the democrats are inspired with fresh hope in their ability to redeem Indiana at least and possibly Ohio in November. On the other hand the republicans do not admit of any doubt as regards Ohio and Indiana, while they claim New York with great confidence. Neither party is disposed to yield an inch of ground. Political prophets have not been very successful this year. This has been a campaign of surprises from the outset and perhaps the biggest surprise of all is in store for the people on the first Tuesday of November next.

MICHIGAN TO THE FRONT AGAIN.

Prof. Langley, of the University, Invents an Electric Light.

Prof. Jno. W. Langley, of the University, has been working over the problem of producing an electric light for years past. Four years ago he constructed a machine of this nature for the purpose of illustration and experimenting with before his classes in the University. But a year ago he secured the interest of some Toledo capitalists, and commenced to devise and study out a machine that would afford a cheap, merchantable electric light. Last week he was able to announce his success to the public. The machine is constructed differently from the Edison apparatus; but of course embodies the underlying electrical principles of all the electric machines. The general principles are as follows:

(1.) When an electric current flows along a wire, coiled along a piece of iron or steel, the latter becomes a magnet. If soft iron is used it becomes an electro-magnet; that is, it is magnetic only while the electric current is flowing. (2.) If a wire is moved through the air in the vicinity of a magnet, an electric current tends to traverse the wire, and if the wire is moved in a certain direction and is properly connected with other wires a strong current will be produced so long as the wire is kept in motion. (3.) If an electric current is sent through any solid conductor it will warm it, and if that conductor consists of two pieces of carbon the greatest heat will be generated at the point where they touch. In the case of a powerful current the carbon sticks become white hot at their ends, and if they are now drawn a little distance apart a flame of dazzling brilliancy will spring across the interval, and the so-called "electric arc" will be formed. (4.) If a strong current is sent through a continuous piece of metal, or especially of carbon, no arc is produced and no flame, but the whole of the carbon stick, if it is not too large, becomes white hot, and if the stick is enclosed from the air, so that it will not undergo ordinary combustion, it will last a long time. This is known as the method by "incandescence," and is that by which Edison and inventors long before him have tried to utilize electricity for lighting purposes.

POLITICAL.

The Republicans' Parade—L. E. Crandall's Speech.

Gen. Geo. Spaulding, of Monroe, was advertised to address the Garfield and Arthur club on Tuesday evening, but he was compelled to break the engagement on account of the sickness of a member of his family. In his stead L. E. Crandall, the temperance orator of Dundee was engaged.

About 7 o'clock the Knight's Templar band of Adrian arrived and a torchlight procession was formed in front of the council building, numbering about fifty torches. The "newly converted" formed a conspicuous part of it. The procession then moved down toward the Globe Mills where a Raisin delegation, neatly uniformed, was awaiting. The line of march took them up Pottawattamie, and down Chicago street. While the procession moved down, the flaming torches, contrasting with the darkness presented a beautiful appearance. Sky rockets and Roman candles cleaved the air in all directions, adding beauty the scene. They disbanded at the opera house, where the crowd concentrated to hear the speaking.

When the speaker arrived the house was full and as he stepped upon the stage a round of applause welcomed him. Upon the stage were seated beside Chairman Lilley and Mr. Crandall a row of white locks, whose bearers have witnessed the scenes of many a campaign. Among them were Messrs. Morse, Blood, Hamilton, Tilton, and Conkling.

Mr. Crandall's speech was not so argumentative and convincing as it was smooth and entertaining. It was more of a speech of congratulation over the recent republican success than a discussion. He was felicitous and inclined to be turgid, yet relieved by a pleasant manner. We append a few synoptical extracts of his address.

Twenty years ago the democratic party turned this government over to the republican party. What did they give us? They transmitted to us not a nation united, but a nation divided, torn asunder. Why, the republican party was born almost under the billows of war. They transmitted to us a nation with its treasury depleted yet we accepted it and said we would do the best we could. When we, the incoming party, took the reins of the government into our hands, in consequence of the robbed and plundered treasury, we found it necessary for us to make a loan. We with difficulty made a loan of $12,000,000 at 12 per cent., and it was difficult because the men had no confidence in the government. To-day our bonds are worth more than their face value in gold in any nation. Now democrats say give us a change. I tell you my friends we will give you a change on the 2nd of Nov,—a change from R. B. Hayes, to Jas. A. Garfield.

Now about those "traditions" of the democratic party. What are they? One of them, we find in the democratic platform of '64, that no state can be coerced into the union. We find no such principle in the republican platforms. There are two things, which if the democratic party could wipe out they would be happy. The resolutions of the convention that nominated Geo. B. McClellan, the great unready, and the recent elections in Indiana and Ohio. We beat the great unready; we beat Horatio Seymour in '68. The democrats have always been changing. And in 1872 they met in convention and searched the democratic party from begining to end, and couldn't find a man, who, they thought, could win. So they stepped into the "holy of holies," into the sanctuary of the republican party and stole from us Horace Greeley and made him their candidate. They put a white hat and a white coat on the old man and stood him up before the nation as their candidate. Why did the democrats do this? I will tell, it was because the old man had been such a truthful fellow throughout his life; probably Horace Greely told more truths about the democratic party than any other man. Well we beat him, and now the poor old man is dead, and the democrats ought to place this inscription upon his head-stone.—"Died from over confidence in the democratic party."

THE long and honorable business record of Mr. Horace Waters, of New York City, is sufficient guarantee of the integrity of the firm of which he is the head, and, while competition has brought down the prices of Pianos and Organs very low,—within the means of everybody—purchasers may be certain of being fairly dealt with by this house. Their advertisement may be found in another column.

Inventors and Patentees should send for instructions, terms, references, &c., to Edson Brothers, Solicitors of Patents, Washington, D. C., who furnish the same without charge. Edson Brothers is a well-known and successful firm of large experience, having been established in 1866.

THE State tax for this county, this year, demands nearly as much money for the support of the State troops as for the University.

D. LOTHROP & CO'S PUBLICATIONS.

The list of publications which D. Lothrop & Co. has prepared for the fall and holiday season is longer and more attractive than ever before, and will appeal strongly to that class of buyers who demand good insides as well as beautiful outsides to the books which lie upon their tables or fill their shelves. No publishers in the country pay stricter attention to the character of the works they issue than the Messrs. Lothrop, and the result is that in their entire catalogue of one thousand different titles, there is not a stupid book, an uninteresting book, or a book which does not serve some useful purpose. The parent or teacher can select from it in perfect confidence, and we commend the catalogue to the attention of all who are buying for home or school libraries.

Besides the entirely new books, new editions have been made of some of the more important of those of last year's list. Those who purchase for general reading will find a rich field from which to choose. In standard stories there is nothing better than the books of Ella Farman, Pansy, and Julia A. Eastman—all bright, full of life, and entertaining. Then there are the almost countless "Series" and "Libraries." Of the latter the most important is the new Fireside Library, consisting of 100 volumes carefully selected from the entire list, and intended to form a perfect home library. The selections are graduated to suit the tastes and needs of the entire family, from the oldest readers down to the little tot who is just beginning to pick out her letters. The price of the library puts it within the reach of most people, and even when one does not feel like bearing the whole expense, half a dozen families can easily club together for its purchase. Of the lesser libraries there are the The Pussy Willow, the Spare Minute, the George MacDonald, and a multitude of others whose names can be learned from the catalogue.

One of the most charming holiday volumes of the year will be Mrs. Amanda B. Harris's How We Went Bird's-Nesting, elegantly printed on heavy paper, with wide margins, and illustrated by twelve superb full page drawings by G. F. Barnes. The binding will be in harmony with the contents, and altogether it promises to be the book of the season. Another beautiful volume will be the second in the American Artists Series, brought out in the same style as the first. It will contain forty illustrations. Still another is The New England StoryBook made up of representative stories by popular New England authors, richly illustrated and bound.

Clara Doty Bates, an indefatigable worker for the children, presents a charmingly written story, Heart's Content; Mrs. A. M. Diaz a little book crammed with short stories and illustrations, called Christmas Morning, and there is a new Art in the Nursery, with thirty more pictures than in the first edition. George F. Barnes has a series of Nursery Tiles consisting of 24 original drawings, bound in oblong quarto form with directions for coloring, and there is a new volume of Babyland, in bright and attractive covers.

A new edition of Pansy's Picture Book is brought out in boards, and a new volume is added to the Wide Awake Pleasure Book series, a collection which now numbers eight in all. There is also a new issue of that delightful volume, Poems for Our Darlings, and the Children's Funny Book takes a fresh lease of life in revised form. Large Print for Little Readers is just what the three-year-olds will delight in, and the same little ones will find in On the Tree Top and Stories for Language Lessons untold pleasure.

For those a little older are Don Quixote, jr., The Dogberry Bunch—one of the most delightful stories published for a long time; The Children's Isle—a new story by the popular English writer, Eliza Meteyard; The Sisters of Glencoe, a remarkable powerful story; a fresh Pansy book, A New Graft on the Family Tree, and other works from favorite pens, richly and beautifully illustrated.

Fannie Roper Feudge's India, the initial volume in Lothrop's Library of Entertaining History, claims attention, and so, too, in a marked degree, does True Manliness, the fourth volume in the Spare Minute Series.

Of the books which boys and girls never tire of reading are Johnny's Discoveries, by Adam Stwin, and Four Feet, Wings, and Fins, by Mrs. Anderson-Maskell. Each of these may be had in three volumes or one.

The gift books issued by this house are perennially popular, and in steady demand. The well-known Golden Treasury series in six volumes, red line and full gilt, quarto form, form a decided feature of the list. They include The Golden Treasury, by Francis Turner Palgrave; The Book of Praise, by Lord Selborne; Garland from the Poets, by Coventry Patmore; The Ballad Book, by William Allingham, He Leadeth Me. The entire large edition of Snow Flakes was exhausted early last season, and a new one is now in press. Child Lore will renew its popularity.

The Great Healer of all Inflamed Injuries and Disorders.

It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the unparalleled demand with which it meets, stamps it at once as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.

The most incredulous are convinced, and the most skeptical are compelled to believe in the power of this great remedy.

WHAT IT CURES.

ALL SORES, CUTS, BRUISES, SPRAINS, BURNS, SORE THROAT, LAMENESS, RHEUMATISM, PILES, INFLAMMATION of LUNGS and BOWELS, BRONCHITIS, CROUP, SALT RHEUM, CHILBLAINS, AFFECTIONS of the SPINE, ERYSIPELAS, NERVOUS IRRITATION, and all disorders attendant with INFLAMMATION.

It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is gained over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame; every bone, muscle, vein, nerve, and ligament is searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it cures readily with internal as well as external diseases.

Over 40 Years

This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such that as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates of cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should feel perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.

Price 25 and 40 cents per bottle. Sold by all dealers in medicine.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

NOTICE.

Whereas, certain young men (and many of them are known) have been in the habit of congregating in the vestibule and around the Methodist Episcopal Church of Tecumseh, smoking and talking to the disturbance of the people who worship therein. Therefore we respectfully and heartily request all such young men to desist from such conduct, and come inside the Church of God and worship. If not, we hereby give notice that, the rights of this church must be respected, or such persons will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law. (Signed:)

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS.

We desire to tender our heartfelt acknowledgements to the Garfield Glee Club for their very kind serenade on Wednesday evening of last week. We were both surprised and gratified to learn that the leading political party of Tecumseh has so much musical ability in its ranks. Unfortunately their call was made at a late hour, after our place of business was closed, and hence their heavenly harmony was wasted on the desert air. Had the young gentlemen informed us beforehand of their intention to call, it would have given us much pleasure to have lighted up the HERALD building and received them with becoming hospitality. Wouldn't it be a good plan for the commanding officers of the club to furnish a roster of the membership to the HERALD for publication? We are always glad to aid laudable enterprises of this kind, and if a list of its members is furnished, we shall be happy to publish the same gratuitously.

A GRAVE MISTAKE.

Carelessness in the proper labeling of medicine, or non-labeling, is the cause of many fatal cases of poisoning, a serious case of which has just come to our notice.

Last Sunday Mrs. S. D. Conger, living a short distance out on the Newberg road, was suffering from a severe cold and was taking a cough preparation for it, which was in the place where she usually kept her drugs.—About one o'clock she thought she would take a dose of the cough preparation, and went to the "medicine case" and picked up a glass containing corrosive sublimate, for bed bugs. The poison was not labeled and she unconsciously took three swallows of it. The poison soon took effect, and Mrs. Conger then became aware of her mistake. Dr. House was immediately sent for, who, upon arriving administered coffee, eggs, and other antidotes to neutralize the poison.

Mrs. Conger was in a critical condition all through the night, but thro' the agency of the antidotes given her so soon after taking the poison, her life was saved, but she is still suffering from the effects.

After this she will undoubtedly see that all poisonous drugs in the house are properly labeled.

MR. L. HALL, agent for the Syracuse Nursery, who has been canvassing this section of the country, is in Tecumseh this week making his delivery. We saw his trees and shrubs, and can say that we never saw a finer and healthier lot of looking trees brought to this place from any nursery. They give general satisfaction to the buyers, and Mr. Hall, if he had them with him, could sell hundreds of dollars' worth more of his trees and shrubs at this delivery.

C. R. MILLER, ESQ., of Adrian, don't seem to have very much affiance toward the Roman Catholics and Democratic party. In his speech at at Clinton before the G. and A. club he said: "The republican party contained the most of the intelligence, education and patriotism of the nation, while the democratic party contained all the rebels of the solid south, all the copperheads of the north, the mass of the foreign born citizens, and the Irish Roman Catholics."

LAST Monday a son of Mr. Shurtz was chopping wood, and when raising the axe it caught in the limb of a tree above his head so that the direction of the blow was thrown off from the piece of wood upon his foot. The ax cut through his boot and nearly severed his little toe from his foot. Dr. Grey was soon on hand and found it necessary to amputate the toe. Schurtz sat upright and quiet while the foot was being dressed, never uttering a wail or shedding a tear for the departed toe.

SIMMONS CAPTURED.

He Comes Home to See His Wife and is Captured by Wm. Jordan and Chas. Smith—An Interview.

On the night of the 20th of July last Charles Simmons, it will be remembered, assaulted his wife in the most murderous manner, and was compelled to leave his willful and unhallowed designs unfinished by the intimation of the approach of interference.

Immediately the officers and citizens were aroused, but no traces of the brutal husband could be found. A reward of $100 was offered by the county for the bringing of the criminal, dead or alive, to the county jail; this reward was supplemented by an additional one of $100 by the Common Council of Tecumseh. These failed to secure him, until last Friday night, he was handed over to Deputy Sheriff Merritt by Wm. Jordan and Charles Smith.

It was about five o'clock in the evening that Simmons was seen by Mrs. Smith and her daughter to enter the house of Amos Stocking, where Mrs. Simmons has rooms. Mrs. Smith immediately sent her daughter down the street to notify Mr. S. W. Jordan was then seated at the tea table, and heard the young lady crying out with a full voice that Simmons was at home. Upon hearing it he ran out and started up the street for the house. On his way he met Mr. Smith and passed him and hurried into the room. Here he found Simmons in one corner of the room, and Dr. Peters, who had just entered. Mr. Jordan went up to the villain and told him that he must go with him. Smith who had arrived, with Jordan, took hold of him and led him away. Simmons did not offer any resistance, but walked along between the two to the jail. Simmons was placed in one of the cells until quite late in the evening when he was taken out and conveyed to Adrian.

About half past six in the evening, in company with Marshal Moyer, we visited the lock-up and found Simmons seated on a bench of one of the cells eating his supper. We immediately proceeded to interview the prisoner, as follows:

Question—Where have you been since you left Tecumseh?

Ans.—I have been a short distance from the city limits of Lansing.

Q.—What have you been doing?

A.—I have been working in a brick-yard.

Q.—What direction did you go in the last night you were in Tecumseh?

A.—South.

Q.—Was that the night you assaulted your wife?

A.— ——

Q.—Have you been in Tecumseh since that night you assaulted your wife?

A.— ——

Q.—What made you come back?

A.—I wouldn't have come back if I hadn't wanted to see my wife.

Q.—Did you know that a reward was offered for your arrest?

A.—No, sir.

(Here Simmons stopped eating for a time, and appeared somewhat agitated.)

Q.—Did you know how badly you hurt your wife?

A.— ——

Q.—What time did you leave Lansing?

A.—This morning.

Q.—What made you assault your wife?

A.—I have been a man that has been taken the advantage of to a great extent. Give me a trial and I will procure witnesses that will help me.

From the interview it may be seen that he was quite reticent and refused to answer some questions. He was neatly dressed and did not appear as if he had been lying out of doors nights during his absence. He was very confident that he was an abused man and could procure evidence to that effect if he had a trial.

There is something very peculiar and beyond our understanding about this affair. There is no doubt but that Simmons has been in Tecumseh and visited his wife at least once before this last time. A few weeks ago one Sunday night, Wm. Jordan is positive that he met Simmons upon the streets, and would have arrested him then if he supposed he had proper authority. Other persons have also seen him. But still his wife, who was thrown out of a home and left to procure sustenance the best way she could for herself and babe by this man, and who was afterwards beaten in the most brutal and malicious manner, hardly escaping a terrible death at the hands of this man, yet allowed him, after all this, to visit her in peace.—The connubial ties between the two must be unusually strong, that such inhuman treatment should not break them. Mrs. Simmons must have unlimited affection or fear for this sacrilegious husband not to assist the officers in his arrest, and help to place him where he deserves to live for the rest of his life.

This is not the first time that Simmons has been under the charge of the county officers for villany, but heretofore he has escaped the just consequences altogether or partially. This time the public sentiment and human justice demands that the law, bearing upon his case, should be exercised to the fullest extent.

Semi-Centennial Sabbath School Anniversary Services.

On next Sunday, Oct. 24, the Presbyterian church of this village celebrate the 50th anniversary of the organization of their Sabbath School. Not many Sabbath Schools in Michigan, or indeed the West, can show an earlier date; and this is found to be, upon examination of the earliest records, actually the fifty-first anniversary of this Sunday School. Arrangements are being made for a full celebration; the church will be decorated. Rev. Samuel E. Wishard, a former pastor, now of Chicago, will be present and on Friday night a reception will be tendered him with address of welcome and response, music, etc., in the auditorium, followed by refreshments and social reunion in the chapel.

On Saturday, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday nights the church will be opened for Evangelistic services, conducted by Mr. Wishard. The following is the Sunday program:

Morning—Sermon on the Conversion of Children and Youth, by Mr. Wishard.

Evening—Music and singing by choir and Sabbath School. Communications read by the Superintendent, C. A. Slayton. Addresses on Sabbath School work:

The Past—Mrs. E. B. Wood.
The Present—Rev. Wm. Grandy.
The Future—Rev. S. E. Wishard.

By request, J. S. Strong, Esq., for years superintendent, will preside.

In order that business men may have better opportunity of attending these meetings, all the evening services, except Sunday, will open at 7:30 o'clock. The public are cordially invited to attend.

MISS JANE COOMBS.

The appearance of Jane Coombs as Juliet, at the Opera House, last Friday evening, drew a large and select audience. The play, as every one knows, is the most fatal and baleful of tragedies, so much so that it seems unnatural and forced to many, and affords an opportunity for the best emotional acting. Miss Coombs acting in the balcony scene, and throughout the third and fourth acts showed that she had a fine conception of the role of Juliet. Merited applause was frequent, and at the close of the fourth act the audience was only quieted by the appearance of Miss Coombs before the curtain. The other title part was well played, in fact, the whole support, with the exception of one or two, was good.

The audience was well pleased and Miss Coombs will always be greeted with a good house in Tecumseh. Manager Stevenson controls the troupe on this circuit.

THE leading article in the North American Review for November is by the Hon. William Beach Lawrence, and is devoted to an exposition of the monarchical principle in the United States Constitution. It is shown that under our Constitution the Executive is vested with powers far greater than those possessed by the king in a limited monarchy. The amplitude of the President's constitutional powers is best seen from the history of the war of secession, as when Mr. Lincoln, without waiting for the assembling of Congress, declared the blockade of the Southern ports, and called into service for three years a volunteer army of upward of 42,000 men. The author foresees danger to the premanence of our republican institutions, resulting both from the vastness of these powers and from the existing methods of choosing Presidents, and thinks that a radical change in the Constitution is imperatively demanded.

LAST Tuesday night the democracy and republicans of Macon held a joint discussion on the question, Resolved: That the republicans should be retained in power. The speakers on the affirmative were Jno. Boyd, H. Gray, A. Eastlick, and Dr. Geo. Howell. Negative, N. Coleman, M. J. Martin, Frank DePuy, and I. C. Mills. The discussion was friendly throughout and worked up considerable interest, so that it was decided to have a debate on the same question next Monday evening at Grange hall.

A HORSE, belonging to Lant Bangs, with blanket on and no one in the buggy, flew up Chicago street last Tuesday afternoon. As soon as the horse reached the residence of Mr. Knapp it undertook to jump the fence, and in so doing left the buggy on top of the fence. The horse then turned around and jumped back and pursued his course toward home with the blanket and pieces of the harness flopping in the breeze.

OBITUARY.

JACKSON—Died in Tecumseh, Oct. 18, James Jackson, Jun., aged 27 years, 8 months and 4 days.

He suffered acute pain for the whole period of his sickness—four weeks, but was patient. He was a gentleman well known in this community, of good moral character, pure habits, and genial disposition. This is the first break by death in the family of his parents, who were united in wedlock more than fifty years ago, and of nine children. His funeral, conducted by Rev. H. Shepard, was largely attended. Sincere mourners followed him to the grave, and a large company of friends mingled their tears with those of the bereaved family. May heavenly comfort be ministered to the hearts of the sorrowing ones. COM.

COCOLIES AND COCOANUTS IN FIJI.

How the Nuts are Picked, Packed and Exported, and the Uses to Which They are Put.

Our sojourn on the island for the next ten days, however, far more than compensated for the trouble. The house is finely situated on a spur overlooking the bold hills of Nanua Levu. The long Undu Point closes in the view toward the north, making the part of the sea visible appear one great lake, and all around us and up the slopes of the hills and at our feet in the plain the young cocoanuts are waving. Let us go down to the beach to visit the machinery houses, and thus get an idea of the work upon an estate of this description. The vast heaps of cocoanuts are gathered from all parts of the island, which has a circumference of about thirty miles, and, after the kernel has been extracted and dried on the long vatas or tables or in the steam drying houses, which is the more improved method, it is packed in bags for transport by the inter-island steamers to Levuka or by some of the small craft which the merchants employ to collect their cargoes. The price in the island is about £14 per ton. But after the kernel has been disposed of the husk is attached, and by means of various machines, properly called "devils," it is torn into the fiber of which it is composed, and cleaned of its dust (which is a valuable compost), and turned into br[illegible] brushes or treated as fiber [illegible] d into bales for export. All [illegible] who attend to these ma[illegible] are Polynesians, many of them on the Rambi being the wild looking Tokalaus, from the Gilbert and Marshall group. Let us watch for a moment the two (who are from the New Hebrides) turning the screw-press by which the fiber is compressed into bales. One of them is a survivor of the Carl massacre, who refused to go home when one of Her Majesty's ships came to repatriate the remnant who escaped. Three of them felt they had had enough of the sea and its incidents, and preferred to remain where they were. They are naked black giants, and as they throw their force to the handle of the screw, capstan-fashion, their muscles stand out, and the whole frame is a model of Herculean power. The storehouse is full of bales ready for the steamer by which we expect to leave, and these find a market in Sydney, while the bristles go to England. We pass along by the laborers' houses, and there we find the familiar coolies, and hear again the "Salaam, Sahib," often heard when I sojourned in Mauritius. Mr. Hill is the only proprietor as yet who has had the good sense to take up about one hundred of the first shipload of Indian immigrants. They live quite friendly side by side with the Polynesians, whom they term "Tunglis." A curious traffic has arisen between them, the Polynesians going out to the woods to hunt the wild pigs, which they sell to the Indians, who get much better wages than themselves, for a dollar a pig; and on the bread-fruit, which grows in profusion, and other extras, the coolies are becoming fat and sleek. Passing on, we get into a cocoanut grove, which stretches a long distance along the coast, the lap of the full tide coming up to the very roots of the first line of trees. On some of the trees the nuts are so thick as to defy computation, being indeed too crowded for growth. As many as three hundred have been counted on one tree, but this is only when they are as small as apples, for they fall abundantly in the struggle of the fittest to survive. Still further along the coast we come to some flats and valleys, which are also cleared out for planting with cocoanuts or cotton, and it is easy to perceive that the exports from this one island alone will, in not many years, equal the exports from the whole colony when I arrived. On one occasion, when the ladies went by boat on a picnic to a place called Georgia, where the proprietor had another house, I walked with Mr. Hunter, the Chief Police Magistrate of Levuka, along the coast a distance which was stated to be six miles, but which in the heat of the day, without a breath of wind in the woods, I took to be double the distance. The immense vatu trees were shedding their long tassels of pink and white flowers, which filled the whole air with a delicate perfume. The path passed through timber which from its majestic growth showed the richness of the soil, and on our return in the evening by sea we had a good opportunity of viewing the finely wooded hills, which even in the days when Commodore Wilkes made his survey of the group, caused Rambi to be distinguished among the islands. The Tinonee, the successor of the Pretty Jane, and a steamer more worthy of the colony, arrived all too soon to cut short our expeditions in search of wood pigeons and wild pigs, and our struggles at lawn-tennis when the sun was dipping behind the mountains of Vanua Lavu. She was filled up with cotton and copra from the Windward, with bales of fiber from Undu Point, and, when she had taken in the Rampi bales, with some hundreds of bags of copra, she sailed for Levuka.

LEGAL NOTICES.

ESTATE OF JACOB L. VAN WINKLE.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, ss.

At a session of the Probate Court for the county of Lenawee, holden at the Probate Office in the city of Adrian, on Tuesday, the 24th day of August, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty.

Present, Norman Geddes, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Jacob L. Van Winkle, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of Edwin R. Wood, administrator, with the will annexed of said deceased, alleging that he has paid the debts of deceased, the expenses of administration thus far incurred, and all legacies bequeathed in and by said will except residuary legacies, and is ready to render his final account in the premises and praying for the allowance of said account, for an assignment and distribution of the residue of said estate to the persons entitled thereto and for his discharge.

Thereupon it is ordered, That Monday, the 13th day of September next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court then to be holden at the Probate Office, in the City of Adrian, and show cause if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said County of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing. Ague Cure

Is a purely vegetable bitter and powerful tonic, and is warranted a speedy and certain cure for Fever and Ague, Chills and Fever, Intermittent or Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical or Bilious Fever, and all malarial disorders. In miasmatic districts, the rapid pulse, coated tongue, thirst, lassitude, loss of appetite, pain in the back and loins, and coldness of the spine and extremities, are only premonitions of severer symptoms, which terminate in the ague paroxysm, succeeded by high fever and profuse perspiration.

It is a startling fact, that quinine, arsenic and other poisonous minerals, form the basis of most of the "Fever and Ague Preparations," "Specifics," "Syrups," and "Tonics," in the market. The preparations made from these mineral poisons, although they are palatable, and may break the chill, do not cure, but leave the malarial and their own drug poison in the system, producing quinism, dizziness, ringing in the ears, headache, vertigo, and other disorders more formidable than the disease they were intended to cure. AYER'S AGUE CURE thoroughly eradicates these noxious poisons from the system, and always cures the severest cases. It contains no quinine, mineral, or any thing that could injure the most delicate patient; and its crowning excellence, above its certainty to cure, is that it leaves the system as free from disease as before the attack.

For Liver Complaints, AYER'S AGUE CURE, by direct action on the liver and biliary apparatus, drives out the poisons which produce these complaints, and stimulates the system to a vigorous, healthy condition.

We warrant it when taken according to directions.

ESTATE OF JAMES LOWRY.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, ss.

At a session of the Probate Court for the county of Lenawee, holden at the Probate office in the city of Adrian, on Tuesday the 5th day of October, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty.

Present, Norman Geddes, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of James Lowry, deceased.

Lucy Lowry, widow of said deceased, having on the 15th day of September, A.D. 1880, filed her petition in this court, praying that letters of administration on the estate of said deceased be granted to Charles Burridge, or to some other suitable person, and the order of hearing made thereon by this court on that day not having been properly published as by said order directed.

Thereupon it is ordered, That Monday, the 8th day of November next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court then to be holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, and show cause if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

CHANCERY NOTICE.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, First Judicial Circuit, in Chancery. Suit pending in the Circuit Court for the County of Lenawee, in Chancery.

John S. Peck, Complainant, vs.
Adelaide Peck, Defendant.

Before Charles L. Hall, one of the Circuit Court Commissioners for said county, at the city of Adrian, this 14th day of September, A.D. 1880.

It satisfactorily appearing by affidavit on file that the defendant Adelaide Peck is not a resident of the State of Michigan, but that she is a resident of the State of Nebraska. On motion of C. A. & J. A. Stacy, complainant's solicitors, It is ordered that said defendant appear in this cause within three months from the date of this order, or in default thereof, that the bill of complaint in this cause be taken as confessed by said defendant. It is further ordered that within twenty days from the date hereof, said complainant cause a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper published in the village of Tecumseh, in said county of Lenawee, for six successive weeks, once in each week, or that a copy of this order be personally served on said defendant, at least twenty days before the time herein fixed for her appearance.

THE FARMERS' PAGE.

FARM RAKINGS.

It pays to sow salt and lime on ground which is wormy, especially the strawberry bed.

There are nearly 4,000 species of weevil, and yet entomologists give a distinct name for each.

Every advance of 1 cent per pound in the sale of butter adds nearly $10,000,000 to the total receipts.

The peach orchard of John Parnell, in Troup county, Ga., is the largest in the world. It covers 250 acres of land, and will probably yield $70,000 this year.

In watering plants use tepid water and learn the requirements of each, so as to adapt the amount to their need. An Ethiopian lily will rejoice in watering that will kill a cactus.

In order to raise roses in perfection, it is needful to feed them well and place them in the full sunlight, and not where they will be shaded by trees and shrubs. After they have bloomed prune them closely, also when they commence to leaf out in the early spring.

Plants vary greatly with respect to their demands for food, their capabilities of gathering the ingredients from the soil and air, and the effects of different fertilizers upon their growth; hence the proper fertilizer in a given case depends upon the crop as well as upon the soil.

New England farmers are turning attention to wheat culture. For some years wheat has been considered one of the crops that New England agriculture had outgrown; but of late, notwithstanding that lands there are much more broken than at the West, it appears, from the experience of the past six years, as large crops can be raised in each of the New England States as can be or is grown at the West, and it is probable that quite a revival of the wheat industry will be witnessed there another year.

Mr. James Vick thinks, and we fully agree with him, that fine specimens of vegetables or fruit grown in any way that is impracticable for a general crop ought not to be allowed in competition at our fairs and shows. The great value of a fine exhibition of garden or field products depends upon its demonstration of the worth of the method, or methods, employed in producing it. This fact should always be kept in mind by examining committees, and when any entries are made of articles grown under conditions not available in general cultivation, they should be ruled out of competition.—Rural New Yorker.

A writer in the Ohio Farmer says that he is not an old wheat raiser, but has not lived these last few years to no purpose, and thinks he has struck the key note of success in raising wheat, in a thorough fitting of the soil before sowing the seed, and he is convinced that a poor piece of land, dragged, rolled and then refitted until the ground is as mellow as an "ash heap," will produce a better yield of wheat than a rich piece of land poorly plowed, half dragged, and the seed scattered among the lumps and clods, and a portion of it without covering or any chance to germinate and obtain a hold.

Paralysis of the hindquarters of pigs is sometimes caused by inflammation of, and consequent effusion upon, the spinal marrow, causing pressure and loss of nerve power. Sensation and power of motion may often be restored by the application of a mild irritant to the loins. Turpentine or a thin paste of mustard rubbed upon the loins over the spine generally leads to a cure. It is brought on by cold and damp quarters or exposure to cold rains, and is more frequent in young pigs than in older ones. Lambs are subject to a similar complaint, arising from the same causes. A chill will sometimes produce it very suddenly.—Stockman.

The sheep business in the West is literally "booming." At a recent sale in Kentucky sheep that were offered at $10 a head without being sold brought $46; which shows that they were not without honor except among their neighbors. It further shows that if a public sale may be a good place to purchase it is a good place often to sell. But when unwashed wool in Kentucky realizes 35 to 36 cents a pound it is only right that a sheep should be thought to be something. For its value there is no farm product that can be carried one or two thousand miles so cheaply and so safely as wool. A ton of wool is worth $750 at 35 cents a pound, or $500 at 25 cents. A ton of wheat is worth about $33 and of corn about $16. The freight is about the same for each, and is thus twenty-five times more for wheat and nearly fifty times for corn than for wool. This is worth considering, and shows how much better it is to turn corn into wool than to sell it.—Rural New Yorker.

"Silence is golden." Aunt—"Has any one been at these preserves?" (Dead silence.) "Have you touched them, Jemmy?" Jemmy—"Pa never lows me to talk at dinner."

THE VILLAGER'S PIG—HOW TO KEEP IT.

A large number of our village subscribers keep a cow, and one or more pigs, just to save the waste from the table, and to help in the support of the family. Both are important sources of income when properly managed. The inevitable waste from the kitchen in an ordinary American family amounts to a good deal in the course of a year. It may as well be turned into pork, sausages, head-cheese, spare ribs, and lard, as to be thrown away. A neighbor, who has a vegetable garden, and studies thrift, has just slaughtered two pigs, weighing 598 pounds, and worth $35.88 at the market price. The manure made from them is worth ten dollars at least. Two small pigs were put into the pen, April 6th, and came out well fatened November 21st, about seven months and a half. The food consumed consisted mainly of sour, and butter-milk, kitchen waste, small potatoes, cabbage, turnips, sweet corn, wind-fall apples, and other wastes from the garden. To this was added enough Indian meal to keep them constantly full fed from spring to fall. A good pen is an important item in feeding pigs. The sleeping apartment should be dry, and be kept well littered with straw, leaves, or sea-weed. From one-half to two-thirds of a pig's life is to be spent in sleep, if it is well treated. Give the pig the materials, and he will make a nice bed and keep it clean. The remainder of the sty is of less importance. There should be room enough to compost the manure, liquid and solid, with garden soil, cornstalks, weeds, and other refuse matter. The pig is unrivalled as a manufacturer of compost. Its good effects will be seen in all parts of the garden, where it is spread the following season. Regularity of feeding, three times a day, is one of the secrets of success. This may be at your own meal times, if your wife is a good house-keeper and keeps a clock in the kitchen. Good digestion depends upon regular meal hours for man and beast. There is then very little temptation to over eating, no cloying, and no spells of refusing food. A pig should never lose a meal after he is put into the pen, and should never be hungry enough to squeal. It requires some judgment in equalizing the rations, as well as in regulating their time. Much less of Indian meal is required for a ration, than of cooked potatoes, and less of potatoes than of kitchen waste. If anything is left in the feed trough, the ration has been a little too large, or not quite good enough. A pig should have all he can eat up and digest. A variety of food should also receive attention. The raw vegetables and fruits from the garden are excellent appetizers, and enables the pig to consume more meal. The meal may be mixed with cold or boiling water, with milk, or boiled fruits and vegetables, as suits convenience. It may be varied with unground corn, buckwheat, or a mixture of ground grains. The time spent in caring for a pig usually comes at meal hours, and may be balanced by what we learn in the school of economy. There is perhaps no animal that will exhibit more satisfaction, and give greater returns for good care and feeding, than a pig; and on the other hand a hungry one without a warm home—one that has not had a proper bringing up—can make itself exceedingly disagreeable, both as to general appearance and the noise that it will produce; besides, such an animal is without profit. As a rule, it pays the villager to raise his own pork, and it pays him the greatest profit when he takes the best care of his pig.—American Agriculturist.

TO TELL THE AGE OF COWS.

The ages of horned cattle may generally be known by the rings on the horns till their tenth year, but after that time they give no indication of age further than that the animal has passed its tenth year. The first ring appears on the horn after the animal is two years old—soon after, as a general rule, though sometimes before that age. During the third year the ring gradually increases, and at three years of age it is completely formed. The second ring appears during the fourth year, and at the end of the fifth year it is complete. After that period an additional ring is formed each year. This rule is sufficiently plain, and even a young farmer needs but little practice to enable him to read a cow's age on her horns. A cow with three rings is six years old; with four rings she is seven years old. No new rings are formed after the tenth year; the deeper rings, however, and the worn appearance of the horns are pretty sure indications of old age.

How to Get Rich.

The great secret of obtaining riches, is first to practice economy, and as good old "Deacon Snyder," says, "It used to worry the life out of me to pay enormous doctor's bills, but now I have "struck it rich." Health and happiness reign supreme in our little household, and all simply because we use no other medicine but Electric Bitters and only costs fifty cents a bottle. Sold by C. Ayer's Hair Vigor,

FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR TO ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR.

It is a most agreeable dressing, which is at once harmless and effectual, for preserving the hair. It restores, with the gloss and freshness of youth, faded or gray, light, and red hair, to a rich brown, or deep black, as may be desired. By its use thin hair is thickened, and baldness often though not always cured. It checks falling of the hair immediately, and causes a new growth in all cases where the glands are not decayed; while to brashy, weak, or otherwise diseased hair, it imparts vitality and strength, and renders it pliable.

The VIGOR cleanses the scalp, cures and prevents the formation of dandruff; and, by its cooling, stimulating, and soothing properties, it heals most if not all of the humors and diseases peculiar to the scalp, keeping it cool, clean, and soft, under which conditions diseases of the scalp and hair are impossible.

As a Dressing for Ladies' Hair

The VIGOR is incomparable. It is colorless, contains neither oil nor dye, and will not soil white cambric. It imparts an agreeable and lasting perfume, and as an article for the toilet it is economical and unsurpassed in its excellence.

TESTIMONY

Of the Hon. Jos. E. Gray, Judge of the Superior Court, Chicago, Ill.

CHICAGO, Dec. 14, 1876.

DR. S. D. HOWE,

DEAR SIR:—Permit me to add my grateful testimony to the army of witnesses to the virtue of your justly celebrated Arabian remedies. For a long time my wife was seriously afflicted with hacking cough, oppressed breathing, soreness of the chest, and constant acute pain in the lower portion of the right lung and under the shoulder blade. Her sufferings were intense, and she became extremely nervous and prostrated. Her disease was pronounced consumption by the physicians of Chicago and other cities, whose prescriptions had been taken without benefit. When you visited Chicago in June, 1873, we called on you, having very little hope of deriving help from your treatment. We were inspired with hope by the skillful manner in which some thorough examination was conducted, and the satisfactory explanation with which you closed your diagnosis. My wife determined to take your medicines in accordance with your plan and practical directions. She began to use the Arabian Milk Cure and Arabian Tonic; their beneficial effect at once became manifest—the cough loosened and soon ceased, respiration became easy, the soreness of the chest was relieved and all pain removed, she began to gain in flesh and improve in strength and appearance. I fully believe that your medicines and skillful advice have saved the life of my wife. She unites with me in this grateful tribute to the merit of your remedies.

Very respectfully yours, JOSEPH E. GRAY.

HARPER'S YOUNG PEOPLE.

AN ILLUSTRATED WEEKLY—16 PAGES.

Suited to Boys and Girls of from Six to Sixteen Years of Age.

Volume II, commences Nov. 2, 1880.

NOW IS THE TIME TO SUBSCRIBE.

Within a year of its first appearance, HARPER'S YOUNG PEOPLE has secured a leading place among the periodicals designed for juvenile readers. The object of those who have the paper in charge is to provide for boys and girls from the age of six to sixteen a weekly treat in the way of entertaining stories, poems, historical sketches, and other attractive reading matter, the profuse and beautiful illustrations, and at the same time to make its spirit and influence harmonize with the moral atmosphere which pervades every cultivated Christian household. This important design they endeavor to carry out by combining the best literary and artistic talent so that fiction shall appear in bright and innocent colors, sober facts assume such a holiday dress as to be no longer dry or dull, and mental exercise, in the solution of puzzles, problems, and other devices, become a delight.

AROUND THE COUNTY.

FRANKLIN.

Our community was saddened on Friday last by the death of Mrs. Harvey Doty, after a long and very painful illness that baffled the skill of several physicians. An autopsy by Drs. North and Jenkins, of Tecumseh, and Jenkins of this town, revealed an organic affection of the brain, occasioned doubtless by a reverse curvature of the spine. Her sufferings were intense throughout. The funeral services were held at their residence Sunday morning, and her remains deposited in our cemetery. The family and relatives of deceased have the sympathy of a large circle of friends.

There will be an examination of teachers held at the Center school house on Saturday next, commencing at 8:30 A. M., and conducted by E. T. DeLapp, superintendent of schools.

The ladies of the Congregational society have decided to furnish a chicken-pie dinner at the church on election day for the accommodation of those attending the election and the benefit of the society. Price of meals 25 cents. We bespeak for them a liberal patronage.

The Democrats will hold their last meeting of the campaign at Tuttle's Hall, on Friday evening. Mayor Stacy, of Adrian, and others are expected to address them.

The Greenbackers are determined (like a certain sex of our race) to have the last word, and have appointed a meeting on Monday night, to be addressed by Dr. Baker, who spoke here a short time since and gave general satisfaction to all parties.

We understand our esteemed townsman, B. F. Reynolds, has decided to remove to Tecumseh. If so, we lose a valuable citizen, and Tecumseh is to be congratulated upon the addition to her numerous sterling business men.

Rev. Hughes, of Fruitport, preached in the Congregational church last Sabbath morning, and at the Methodist church in the evening, to large congregations, and is a man of more than ordinary ability.

Quarterly meeting service was held at the M. E. church last Sunday morning, conducted by Presiding Elder Shier.

SOUTH MACON.

The Red Ribbon club met last Saturday night with a good attendance, at half past 8 o'clock the meeting was called to order by the Vice President and the following program carried out.

BROOKLYN.

We have had an exodus of lawyers and ministers, consequently most kinds of law are administered mildly. They are astonishing owls at Rosscommon, and laying up bad colds as autumn treasures, both of which they denominate "Taking a rest."

We have had the usual number of political addresses, but there has been so little banner waving that the ladies have failed to catch much enthusiasm. Neither Democrats or Republicans have suffered much in the contest. Friend Hodge got up a spasm or two over the national banks, but I hear that New York still pays gold to her neighbors, and receives her dues in like coin, so I don't worry much about Uncle Sam's coffers getting quashed.

The past week left an ineffaceable shadow. Death claimed Homer Woodward. He was a young man of fine mental culture, and in his heart was charity for all human frailty.

BOARD OF SUPERVISORS.

Monday, Oct. 18.—Mr. Warren introduced the following resolution:

Resolved, That a special committee of three be appointed by this board to investigate the matter and consider the propriety of renting rooms near by and adjacent to the court house for clerks and treasurers office, thereby giving the old county buildings to the probate register, office entire.

Resolution adopted.

The committee consists of Supervisors Warren, Bradner and Gates.

By Mr. Harrington:

Resolved, That on and after January 1st, 1880, townships and wards of the county, each support their own poor according to the statutes of this State.

On motion of Mr. Bradner the resolution was laid on the table and made the special order for Wednesday at 9 o'clock.

The report of the county superintendent of the poor for the fiscal year ending Sept. 30, 1880. Following is a recapitulation of expenditures as shown by the report:

Transportation of paupers, office acc't, &c.	$ 487 58
Temporary relief, city	5,379 79
Temporary relief, township	4,309 63
Expenses at county house	4,661 02
Total	$14,829 02

The superintendents recommended that the sum of $10,000 be raised for the support of the poor for the ensuing year.

On motion of Mr. Cosgrove, the report was referred to committee on county poor.

The chairman of the committee on claims reported back claims to the amount of $948, which were allowed, accepted and adopted. The claim of Geo. A. Potts was reported back without recommendation.

Mr. Lowe moved that the claim of Mr. Potts (which is for board of prisoners) be laid on the table. Carried.

Mr. Bradner moved that the board proceed to the county poor house on Wednesday at 2 o'clock P. M., and that the clerk provide conveyances. Carried.

Mr. Knapp moved that the election of a superintendent of the poor to succeed H. P. Coombs be made the special order for Tuesday at 9 o'clock.

Adjourned.

Following is a list of accounts of $50 or over, allowed thus far by the board of supervisors in the Obtober session:

Wm. Jibb	$66 81	J. R. Cairns	$105 60
Geo. A. Potts	70 76	H. P. Coombs	76 25
Peter Miller	50 95	H. S. Russell	251 25
W. A. Underwood	75 00	Geo. F. Payne	202 50
Peter Miller	80 30	E. H. Hyde	50 20

O. Lamb	87 80	J. K. Johnson	130 99
B. H. Wheeler	84 70	W. G. Smith	185 47

Tuesday, Oct. 19.—Sup. Wagener, from the committee on claims, reported back a claim of Dr. Morden, without recommendation. The claim was referred to the superintendents of the poor, with instructions to pay the same.

Sup. Cogswell, from the committee on equalization, reported the assessments of the various townships and wards. The aggregate of real and personal property for the city, as equalized, is as follows: 1st ward, $745,579; 2d ward, $927,252; 3d ward, $797,815; 4th ward, $976,917. The report was made the special order for Thursday morning.

The board then proceeded to ballot for a superintendent of the poor in place of H. P. Coombs, whose term had expired, with the following result: Whole number of votes, 25, of which H. P. Coombs received 24 and J. W. Bradner 1.

Sup. Coombs was declared elected.

Sup. Holdridge, from the committee on claims, reported back a large number which were allowed. The claim of the city of Adrian for assessment rolls was laid on the table. A claim of Dr. D. Todd, for services as witness on a post mortem at Blissfield, was referred to the judiciary committee.

On motion of Sup. Bradner, the committee on printing was instructed to let the county printing to the lowest responsible bidder.

Adjourned till Wednesday morning.

Wednesday, Oct. 20.—On motion of Sup. Reynolds, the report of the committee on equalization was referred back to the committee to correct a clerical error.

Sup. Wagener reported back the claim of John Crandall for a reward for capturing E. R. Armstrong, without recommendation, and on motion of Sup. Knapp, it was referred to the judiciary committee.

The bills of T. J. Ludlow for viewing dead bodies at the grand stand, and for viewing the body of Edwin Graham were tabled, on motion of Sup. Wagener. The latter bill has been presented twice before.

At nine o'clock the special order in regard to the support of the county poor was taken up, and after considerable discussion and several amendments, the original motion, that each town should support its own poor was lost, and the board adjourned to seven o'clock P. M.

Thursday, Oct. 21—Sup. Swaney offered a resolution authorizing the county treasurer to pay from the contingent fund of the county the remainder, if any, due the circuit court stenographer for the current year, as the same may become due. Adopted.

Sup. Cogswell, from the committee on equalization, reported making certain corrections in the equalization.

Sup. Harkness, from the committee on printing, reported back a number of bills, which were allowed.

Sup. Swaney, from the committee on claims, reported back certain claims in the matter of the jail breakers, with the recommendation that they be referred to a special committee to investigate. So ordered, and Sups. Reynolds, Gates and Mann were appointed such committee.

Sup. Knapp, from the committee on ways and means, reported in favor of raising the sum of $73,741.24 by taxation for the year 1880. Report adopted.

Sup. Bradner, from the committee on county poor, reported that the administration of the superintendents of the poor had been found satisfactory and their books correct.

On motion of Sup. Bradner, the several assessment rolls were referred to the committee on apportionment.

Adjourned till Friday.

Friday, Oct. 22.—On motion of Sup. Loomis, the clerk and treasurer were instructed to employ a suitable night watch at the county buildings at a sum not to exceed $400.

On motion of the same, the sheriff was authorized to constract for medical services at the jail for the years 1880-81 at a sum not to exceed $75, and the superintendents of the poor to contract for services at the county house on the conditions of last year's contract—$150.

A resolution of Sup. Mann to appropriate $1,000 for the construction of a bridge at Palmyra was lost.

The accounts of drain commissioner Westerman were reported correct.

Sup. Warren, from the committee on public buildings, recommended that a number of repairs be made at the jail.

The special committee to whom was referred the matter of securing more commodious quarters for the county officers, reported adversely, on account of the expense involved.

Coroner Ludlow made a statement relative to his claim for services at the inquest on the body of John Hill, and the claim was referred to a special committee.

Sup. Mann moved that the legislature be petitioned to make the building of bridges exceeding in length of span thirty feet, a county instead of a township tax. Lost.

On motion of Sup. Knapp, the superintendents of the poor were authorized to make certain repairs at the county house.

The special committee to whom was referred the claim of certain officers to the reward offered for the jail-breakers, reported adversely.

On motion of Sup. Knapp, it was resolved that when the board adjourn, it be to meet Dec. 27th.

Adjourned till Saturday.

Saturday, Oct. 23.—Sup. Harkness, from the committee on printing, reported that the contract for county printing for the coming year had been let to Applegate & Fee. Report adopted.

Sup. Bradish, from the committee on claims, reported back a large number, which were allowed.

On motion of Sup. Swaney, the sum of ten dollars each was deducted from the claims of Dr. Todd and Dr. Morden.

On motion of Sup. Wagener, A. Stephenson & Son were permitted to withdraw their claim for furnishing coal, for correction.

Adjourned till Dec. 27th.

AN engraving equally appropriate and beautiful has been issued by Peterson's Magazine" for 1881, to reward persons for getting up clubs. The plate is quite large, 24 inches by 20, and would ornament even the most refined parlor; for it is executed in the highest style of art; and is such a mezzotint as is sold, at retail, for five dollars. It is entitled, "Gran'father Tells of Yorktown." It represents a veteran of '76, in his old age, with his little grand-daughter between his knees, to whom he is rehearsing the story of the surrender of Cornwallis. The room is an old-fashioned one, such as elderly people remember fifty years ago, and in the embrasure of the window sits the mother of the little girl, also listening. As 1881 will witness the celebration of the surrender of Yorktown, the premium, as we have already said, is particularly appropriate. You can get it, gratis, by getting up a club for Peterson. Only the enormous circulation of the magazine can explain why the proprietors can afford to give such premiums. Peterson is the best and cheapest of the lady's books, the price being two dollars a year, with great deductions to clubs. Specimens of the Magazine, to assist in getting up clubs, are sent, gratis, if written for. Now is the time to get up clubs for 1881. Address, Charles J. Peterson, 306 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Wide Awake for November.

"Connor Magan's Luck," which opens the November Wide Awake, is a veritable story of one of the late Ohio freshets. It has four good pen-and-ink drawings. In the illustrated paper, "Buy a Broom," Miss Harris gives an account of a visit in the work shop of a blind broom maker from the Perkins Institute for the Blind, and in a graphic way tells how she saw a broom made from beginning to end. Eight excellent pictures accompany the description. The old Nursery Classic, "Goody Two Shoes," versified by Mrs. Clara Doty Bates, also has a wealth of illustrations, comprising seventeen pictures, very faithful to old English ways and customs, by G. F. Barnes. Only $2 a year. Ella Farman, Editor. D. Lothrop & Co., Publishers, Boston, Mass.

THE campaign is drawing to a focus and every one is tightening his belt for the last round.

GLEANINGS FROM THE COUNTY PRESS.

W. W. Remington, who formerly taught in the Clinton schools has lately been appointed to the chair of English literature in the Agricultural college.

Last Thursday the residence of A.C. Young, at Morenci, was partially consumed by fire. The principal loss, however, was occasioned by the sudden removal of the goods and furniture of the family into the yard and street.

Morenci Observer: Last week circulars were received by the section bosses and station agents along the line of the Fayette Branch of the L. S. railway, to have everything about the road and depots in the best possibl condition by the first of November; which is interpreted by some as an indication of an approaching change of some kind.

Clinton News: On Thursday of last week, while a number of school children were at play, Eli McConnell, met with an accident which broke his left arm and dislocated his elbow. He was taken to Dr. Alvord's office, where the bones were set, and at last reports was doing as well as could be expected, considering the serious nature of his injuries.

Blissfield Advance: The first society event of the season was the marriage of Miss Mary Hobart, daughter of Mrs. C. C. Goodrich, to Mr. C. E. Freese, of Clinton. The affair had been anticipated for some time, and when a few days ago cards of invitation found their way into the hands of a large number of our people, it became the absorbing theme in social circles. The marriage ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Arney, and was witnessed by a large number of friends. The couple left on the 9:10 train for their future home in Clinton.

Hudson Post: The trial of Mrs. Sawdy, of whom mention was made last week, lasted two days after a jury was empaneled, and resulted in a verdict of guilty, at the same time recommending the prisoner to the mercy of the court. She was fined $25 and costs, the latter amounting to over $100, or in default 90 days imprisonment in the Detroit House of Correction. She has appealed to the circuit. She was defended by L. R. Pierson, of this village, and Mr. Knickerbocker, of Hillsdale. It is to be hoped that this will end the disgraceful sidewalk writing.

Adrian Times: It was earnestly hoped that all feelings of hostility among the officers of fractional school district No. 9, Cambridge and Rome, had ceased, and the olive branch had become fairly rooted. But alas! the hatchet has been exhumed, and further trouble seems inevitable. Various charges have been preferred against one of the officers, his removal from office demanded, and the matter laid before the township board. Mr. Westerman appeared as counsel for the plaintiff, and prosecuting attorney Underwood for the defendant. The examination commenced Saturday noon, and continued until eight o'clock in the evening. The board asks time for deliberation, and will render their verdict on Friday, Oct. 29.

Adrian Press: Mrs. Billman, wife of Rev. I. C. Billman has returned to this city, and taken up her residence having secured the house on Butler street owned by Capt. M. P. Long.—We learn that the suit for divorce begun by Mr. Billman, has been withdrawn and a settlement effected, by which Mrs. B. retains the two younger children and Mr. Billman the two eldest. We are informed that an arrangement covering the next two years has been effected whereby Mrs. Billman will receive from her husband $50 per month. Public opinion is divided in this case. Those who favor Mrs. Billman cordially welcome her return.

Deerfield Record: Wm. Rusling, who lives one mile west of this village found a young man, apparently 20 years of age, about seven o'clock, Monday evening, wandering around in his corn-field. Upon being questioned it was found that he could not speak and give an account of himself. Mr. Rusling brought him to the village hotel, where he was examined. Letters were found in his coat pocket addressed to Cdarles Simpson, of Penn., which name was also written on the inside of his collar, but nothing further could be discovered. Dr. Yale was called, who gave it as his opinion that the young man was harmoniously insane or idiotic. He was kept at the hotel over night and Tuesday morning the landlord, E. H. Plunkett, took him to Adrian and delivered him over to the county poor commissioners.

THE FAMILY CIRCLE.

MY HEART CAN NE'ER GROW OLD.

BY MRS. NANNIE STEELE MOORE.

There is a beauty in all nature,
That it lives and glows for me
A ray of Heaven's own colors,
In everything I see;
A sketch of heavenly grandeur,
Touched by a hand divine,
That sheds its holiest radiance
Upon this heart of mine.

Each loved flower that sheds its fragrance
In garden, field or grove—
The grand old trees that spread their boughs
To shade the path I rove;
Song-birds that merrily carol
A happy gladsome strain,
Awaken in this heart of mine
The joys of youth again.

The mirthful gleams of youth's bright eyes
That sparkle with delight,
Illuminate its hidden depths
With their reflecting light,
And the silvery peals of laughter
That ring upon the air
Vibrate along its corridors,
To find an echo there.

When the sounds of music over
My soul in rapture pour,
And I hear my gay heart dancing,
As in the days of yore,
Keeping time with the glad measure
Of each enlivening strain—
They tell me—joyfully tell me
My heart is young again.

But there's a power unseen, unheard,
That reigns o'er all supreme—
That sweeps each cloud of care away,
And bids hope's sunlight gleam—
A joyous King that smiling rules
Within this glad domain—
'Tis love that sits enthroned therein
And sings the gladdest strain.

Years, of joy and sadness mingling,
This form with age may bow—
And Old Father Time's great plowshare
Leave furrows on my brow—
Threads of silver may be woven
With these bright locks of gold,
But while love sings his song to me
My heart can ne'er grow old.

SAVED BY A WHISTLE.

The afternoon was drawing to a close. Huge clouds loomed threateningly in the west, and the wind swept about the old inn with fitful wails. It would evidently prove to be a wild, stormy night; already the waves of the little cove that made in form the bay had put on their white caps in anticipation of a frolic.

The inn had formerly been used for the accommodation of travelers; but, at the time our story opens, it had been gradually falling to ruin, and people seldom or never stopped there.

The inmates were an old woman, known as Granny Crane, a colored man who attended to the chores, and a young orphan girl of 18 whom granny had taken from the poorhouse years before.

This girl, Elfie Darke, was standing on the porch, shading her face with one hand and looking anxiously over the water. Her eyes were large and absolutely startling in their wild, dark beauty, with long curling lashes, and delicately-arched brows. The scornful curving mouth was red like Southern wine. The head was daintily poised; the nose small and straight; the foot slender and arched like an Arab's. Far below her waist swept the jetty hair in a silken waving mass. She was a most exquisite creature, notwithstanding the rough caress of the salt breeze had browned her cheek and the small hand that shaded those wonderful eyes. A brown skirt of some woolen material fell to her ankles. She wore a short jacket of scarlet flannel, and a scarf of the same color was thrown over her head.

Suddenly a harsh, croaking noise sounded from the house—

"Come in, gal! What are ye standing there for, and the cold wind blowing over one?"

Elfie uttered an impatient exclamation, but did not move, and the wrinkled old crone crept to the door and looked over the girl's shoulder.

"Ah, ha! That's what troubles is it? No wonder—and yer lover the only smuggler of 'em at home. I suppose they'd give a good round sum to get him—eh, gal?"

"Hush!" said Elfie, imperiously, as she turned on Granny Crane. "Don't you dare to betray him!"

The old woman chuckled, and, shaking her head, hobbled back to the house without speaking. Elfie looked after her with a troubled expression on her beautiful face, and then turned her gaze seaward once more.

A vessel lay at anchor just outside the cove. Elfie knew it well enough; it was the Government cutter in pursuit of smugglers. Elfie was thinking of her bold, handsome lover, and her heart beat strong and feverishly while she considered the chance of his escape.

He was coming to see her that night. She would wait; nothing could be done at present, for she knew not where to find him. The night closed blackly; the rain came down in drenching floods, when Granny Crane, wrapped in a long cloak, sallied forth, passing just outside the door a stalwart figure that approached the house from the crazy old barn where he had fastened his horse.

"Going ter stay the evening with the gal?" she called after him.

"Yes," came back to her in a bold, free voice, and they passed on, he to the house, and she into the night, which grew blacker and wilder.

"Ye are a fine lad, Rolf Stuart, but ye'll not spend the evening with Elfie. The Government hounds'll track ye ere long."

The old woman pulled her hood over her wrinkled face and hurried on. Straight to the beach she went, and arrived there just in time to see a number of dark figures leaping from a boat. The men regarded curiously the weird figure that quickly approached them.

"Mayhap the gentlemen would be glad to know the whereabouts of a smuggler?"

"Yes, my good woman. That is what brings us here," said one, who appeared to be the leader. "Have you any information to give us?"

She hesitated a moment, and looked at them craftily from under her heavy brows.

"I am a poor old woman—" she began.

"Here;" the man drew a roll of bills from his breast, and counted a part of them into her eager fingers. "Now, then, tell us all you know."

"You must follow the beach up until you reach the road," she said; "then cross the grove of pines at the right, and you will see the inn. In the front room you will find the Captain of the band, with his sweetheart."

A murmur of satisfaction arose from the men, and the leader, compelling granny to follow, strode on across the beach.

Inside the old inn, Elfie and her lover were talking earnestly.

"You must go at once, Rolf. The cutter lays just outside the cove," the girl said, nervously. "I thought you would see her."

"I have been out of town all day; and it's too dark to-night to see anything. Come, lassie, fly with me. We will never return. This is no life for you. When you are my wife, sweetheart, silks and jewels'll be none to fine for you. Come away, and we'll have a home of our own that is grand and beautiful, with no granny to grumble and find fault."

She loved this daring fellow, in spite of his lawless deeds. Indeed, she knew no better class of men, for most of her life had been spent among the smugglers on the coast. She laid her cheek on his arm, while he bent to receive her answer.

Before she could speak, the heavy oaken door was thrown open, and the men from the cutter filed swiftly into the room.

"You may as well surrender, my man," said the leader, throwing open his cloak and revealing the navy blue, with its glittering buttons.

The young outlaw stood like a stag at bay. In the confusion Elfie had slipped from his arms, and out of the door. He was very glad of that—she was out of danger.

For an instant there was a dead silence, and then, as the leader took one step forward, Rolf drew a pair of revolvers from his pockets, leveled them at the men, and shouted with a reckless ring in his voice, while his face gleamed whitely from its frame of careless waving hair:

"Come on—all of ye! Only give me a fair chance, and come one at a time!"

His tall, magnificently-built figure towered a full half a head above the others, and his gleaming eyes were full of desperate resolve; but he looked into the barrels of six loaded pistols, and the men were determined to capture their prize.

"Surrender, or we will fire!"

At that moment a clear, sweet whistle rang above the wailing of the storm and tumult in the small room.

Rolf's quick ear recognized it. Elfie had learned it from his own lips, and had often helped him from danger by that call. While the men hesitated, and involuntarily glanced over their shoulders to ascertain if possible from whence the sound came, the young smuggler, with a wild hurrah, and a blessing in his heart for Elfie, leaped upon the first of the bluecoats, and, knocking the pistol from his hand, made another spring for the door. But a sharp report rang out, and he felt a stinging sensation in his right arm; another bullet severed a lock of his hair. Turning, he took aim with the revolver in his left hand and fired; one of the cutter's men uttered a sharp cry, and throwing up his arms fell to the floor. Another pistol met the bold fellow at the door, but he struck it up with his weapon and rushed out into the night, with two or three bullets whistling about his ears.

Again that clear whistle came to him, and, following the sound, he reached the corner of the inn, where he found Elfie waiting with his horse.

"Bless you, my girl!" he murmured.

With one leap he was upon the animal's back. He bent from the saddle and held out one hand.

"Will you come, sweetheart?"

Without a pause she caught his hand and swung herself up before him.

There was a word to the horse, a reckless, defiant shout sent back at their pursuers, and they were gone in the deep blackness of the night.

A pugilistic Irishman being bound over to keep the peace to all British subjects, exclaimed, "Heaven help the first foreigner I meet!"

THE SPHINCTER OPERATION.

Miss Mary Flynn was studying medicine and being courted at the same time. Mr. William Budd was attending to the latter part of the business.—One evening, while they were sitting together in the parlor, Mr. Budd was thinking how he should manage to propose. Miss Flynn was explaining certain physiological facts for him.

"Do you know," she said, "that thousands of persons are actually ignorant that they smell with their olfactory peduncle?"

"Millions of 'em," replied Budd.

"And Aunt Mary wouldn't believe me when I told her she couldn't wink without a sphincter muscle!"

"How unreasonable!"

"Why, a person cannot kiss without a sphincter!"

"Indeed!"

"I know it is so!"

"May I try if I can?"

"Oh, Mr. Budd, it is too bad for you to make light of such a subject."

Then he tried it, and, while he held her hand, she explained to him about the muscles of that portion of the human body.

"It is remarkable how much you know about those things," said Mr. Budd, "really wonderful. Now, for example, what is the bone at the back of the head called?"

"Why, the occipital bone, of course."

"And what are the names of the muscles of the arm?"

"The spiralis and the infra-spiralis, among others."

"Well, now, let me show you what I mean. When I put my infra-spiralis around your waist, so, is it your occipital bone that rests upon my shoulder-blade in this way?"

"My back hair, primarily, but the occipital bone, of course, afterward.—But, oh, Mr. Budd, suppose pa should come in and see?"

"Let him come! Who cares?" said Mr. Budd, boldly. "I think I'll exercise a sphincter and take a kiss."

"Mr. Budd! how can you?" said Miss Flynn, after he had performed the feat.

"Don't call me Mr. Budd; call me Willie," he said, drawing her closer. "You accept me, don't you? I know you do, darling."

"Willie," whispered Miss Flynn, very faintly.

"What, darling?"

"I can hear your heart beat."

"It beats only for you my darling."

"And it sounds out of order. The ventricular contraction is not uniform."

"Small wonder for that when it's bursting for joy."

"You must put yourself under treatment for it. I will give you some medicine."

"It's your own property, darling; do what you please with it. But somehow the sphincter operation is the one that strikes me most favorably. Let us again see how it works."

But why proceed? The old, old story!

Chicago Ahead.

All the world now looks up to Chicago as the great western metropolis of America, being far ahead of all competing cities; but none the less so, in its line, is Electric Bitters. From their real intrinsic value they have advanced to the front, and are now far ahead of all other remedies, positively curing where everything else fails. To try them is to be convinced. For sale by C. A. Wright & Co. at fifty cents per bottle.

The growth of London in all directions continues marvelous. A number of new towns have sprung up in the last three or four years. Not long ago North End Fulham was a rural district of fields and market gardens. The Underground railway opened a new line to Hammersmith, with a station at the north end, which changed its name to Kensington, and to-day the surrounding area is covered with streets of well-built houses at high rents. Similarly, at the other end of London, increased facilities of locomotion by railway and tram-car have led to the erection of many hundreds of small houses in South Barmondsey or Rotterhithe. The same process goes on steadily at Edmonton, on the north, and at Sydenham, on the south of London.

HYGIENIC.

The Express, Chicago, says of Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure: "It is, in the highest sense, hygienic, and can be used by young and old with equal advantage. It gives the only relief yet attained, that can be termed permanent, in Brights Disease and this alone should rank it higher in the lists of medical triumphs."

AN ITEM OF APPROPRIATION.

In telling of Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure, the Republican, Hudson, N. Y., says in its Washington Items: "It seems to be generally understood that an especial appropriation will be made for the purchase, for the use of the members of Senate and House, of Warner's Safe Pills and Warner's Safe Bitters."

The Nycum Advertiser says the new play of the future will not be divided into acts, but into dresses.

POVERTY'S GRIP.

The annoyance to which a man without money can be subjected are almost without number, but it is seldom that two acquaintances are in the same box at once. On Congress street yesterday one man said to another as they met:

"Ah! you miserable liar, I'd break your nose for a dollar!"

The person thus addressed opened his wallet, but it was empty. He wanted his nose broken ever so much, but he couldn't raise the cash. Then he remarked:

"You gray-headed poltroon, I'd lick you for fifty cents!"

The gray-head felt in all his pockets, but he found no half-dollar. He was cast down over the condition of his finances; but managed to say:

"I'll give you a boss licking for just five cents!"

The other went down into all his pockets, but no nickel could be discovered. Disappointment sat enthroned on his face as he replied:

"Give me two cents and I'll roll you in the gutter!"

The other couldn't raise it. Even when they offered to lick each other for a cent the money could not be produced, and both went their ways realizing how keen the grip of poverty can be tightened.—Detroit Free Press.

ROOM FOR THE MOURNERS.

Some years ago among the Berkshire Hills, Massachusetts, there was a funeral. The woman who mingles curiosity with pity was there with the mourners. To the afflicted widow, in a melancholy voice, she said:

"When did you get your new eight day clock?"

"I ain't got no new eight day clock," responded the bereaved woman.

"Why, what is that in the corner? Ain't that an eight day clock?" persisted the curious visitor.

"No; that ain't a clock—that's the deceased. We stood it on end in the corner to make room for the mourners."

Greatest Remedy Known.

Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumptive is certainly the greatest medical remedy ever placed within the reach of suffering humanity.—Thousands of once hopeless sufferers, now loudly proclaim their praise for this Discovery to which they owe their lives. Not only does it positively cure Consumption, but Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, Hay Fever, Hoarseness and all affections of the Throat, Chest and Lungs yield at once to its wonderful curative powers as if by magic. We do not ask you to buy a large bottle until you know what you are getting. We therefore earnestly request you to call on your druggists, M. Wright & Son, and get a trial bottle free of cost which will convince the most skeptical of its wonderful merits, and show you what a regular one dollar size bottle will do. For sale by M. Wright & Son, Tecumseh.

When a Boston girl is presented with a bouquet, she says, "Oh, how deliciously sweet; its fragrance impregnates the entire atmosphere of the room." A down-east girl simply says, "It smells scrumptious; thanks, Reuben."

Given Up by the Doctors.

Where doctors have failed to cure, and have given their patients up to die, Electric Bitters have often been used, and a cure effected, greatly to the astonishment of all. Diseases of the Stomach, Liver, Kidneys and Urinary Organs are positively cured by Electric Bitters. They invariably cure Constipation, Headache and all Bilious Attacks. Try them and be convinced that they are the best medicine ever used. Sold by C. A. Wright & Co. at fifty cents a bottle.

Poverty and Suffering.

"I was dragged down with debt, poverty and suffering for years, caused by a sick family and large bills for doctoring, which did them no good.—I was completely discouraged, until one year ago, by the advice of my pastor, I procured Hop Bitters and commenced their use, and in one month we were all well, and none of us have seen a sick day since, and I want to say to all poor men, you can keep your families well a year with Hop Bitters for less than one doctor's visit will cost—I know it.

A WORKINGMAN."

A NEW PAYING OCCUPATION FOR LADIES AND GENTLEMEN.

The handsome Nickel Plated New Home Lamp being introduced to the public this season, is the most meritorious article ever offered Agents to make money with, is safer, and more convenient than the Student Lamp, which has heretofore had the reputation of being the Safest Lamp made, it has a clamp to firmly attach it to the Sewing Machine, Piano, Organ, Desk, etc. The fear of the ordinary lamp being accidentally upset or thrown from the table, is entirely relieved by this simple contrivance. It can be adjusted to throw the light just where it is wanted to suit the eyes, and can be converted into a handsome wall lamp. It has the best argand burner, a filling indicator, and convenient match box, and its price is within the reach of everyone. It has been fully tested and editorially endorsed by the "Western Christian Advocate," "Am. Christian Review," "Herald and Presbyter," "Journal and Messenger," and "Christian Standard," the leading Religious papers of Cincinnati, and is endorsed by the Mayor and Post-Master of Cincinnati, the Agent of the American Express Companies, as being the Safest, Most Convenient and best Lamp made.

There are three reasons why Agents should seek such an article to canvass for—first for its absolute safety and great convenience, it is needed in every home—second its low price makes its sale immense—third it will be a credit to handle such an article. One southern Agent writes, it sells faster than Gen. Lee's portrait sold right after the war, another writes it beats the palmy days of the Sewing Machine, its rapid sale, low price, and liberal terms surprise old Agents.—Address Home Lamp Co., Cincinnati, O. Mentioning our paper and they will give you full particulars and exclusive territory to canvass in.

TO THE AFFLICTED.

Since the introduction of Kellogg's Columbian Oil it has made more permanent cures and given better satisfaction on Kidney complaints and Rheumatism than any know remedy. Its continued series of wonderful cures in all climates has made it known as a safe and reliable agent to employ against all aches and pains, which are the forerunners of more serious disorders. It acts speedily and surely, always relieving suffering and often saving life. The protection it affords by its timely use on Rheumatism, kidney affection, and all aches and pains, wounds, cramping pains, cholera morbus, diarrhœa, coughs, colds, catarrh, and disorders among children, makes it an invaluable remedy to be kept always on hand in every home. No person can afford to be without it, and those who have once used it never will. It is absolutely certain in its remedial effects and will always cure when cures are possible. Call at C. A. Wright & Co's. and get a memorandum book giving more full details of the curative properties of this wonderful medicine.

A Wonderful Discovery.

For the speedy cure of Consumption and all diseases that lead to it, such as stubborn Coughs, neglected Colds Bronchitis, Hay Fever, Asthma, pain in the side and chest, dry hacking cough, tickling in the throat, Hoarseness, Sore Throat, and all chronic or lingering diseases of the throat and lungs. Dr. King's New Discovery has no equal and has established for itself a world-wide reputation. Many leading physicians recommend and use it in their practice. The formula from which it is prepared is highly recommended by all medical journals. The clergy and the press have complimented it in the most glowing terms. Go to your druggist and get a trial bottle free of cost, or regular size for $1.00. For sale by M. Wright & Son, Tecumseh, Mich.

Blissfield Advance: On the 30th of August, Mr. Oliver Sprague, of Riga, was arrested by Officer Sharkey, of the Toledo Police, on suspicion of having stolen a harness. He was arraigned before the Police court the next day, but was remanded to jail for the purpose of giving the prosecution an opportunity to obtain evidence, and after lying there for fourteen days was discharged, no trial being had. He has brought suit against the City of Toledo, through his attorney, Wm. E. Bartlett, for $10,000 damages for false imprisonment.

Feels Young Again.

"My mother was afflicted a long time with Neuralgia and a dull, heavy, inactive condition of the whole system, headache, nervous prostration, and was almost helpless. No physicians or medicines did her any good. Three months ago she began to use Hop Bitters, with such good effect that she seems and feels young again, although over 70 years old.—We think there is no other medicine fit to use in the family."—A lady, Providence, R. THE READY FAMILY SOAP MAKER:

LEWIS' LYE

98 PER CENT. PURE. (Patented.)

FINELY POWDERED. HIGHLY PERFUMED.

The strongest and purest Lye made. Will make 12 pounds of the best Portland Hard Soap in 20 minutes without boiling. The best water-softener made. The best disinfectant. The following are some of the advantages obtained by using Lewis' 98 Per Cent. Powdered Lye:

First. It is packed in an iron can with a slip or removable lid, easily taken off and leaving the contents exposed, thereby saving the trouble, annoyance, and danger (from flying particles), so with other Lyes, which, being solid in the cans, must be broken with a hammer to get the Lye out.

Second. It being a fine powder, you can remove the lid and pour out all the contents, being always ready for use.

Third. A teaspoonful or more can be used, as in water-softening, scrubbing, etc., and the lid returned to the can, and thereby save the balance of contents. With other Lyes all must be dissolved at once and used in a short time, or the strength is gone.

Fourth. Absolute purity. Free from all adulterations.

Fifth. The best Soap can be made in from ten to twenty minutes with this Lye.

Sixth. No failure is possible in making Soap with this Lye when the simple directions given are followed.

Seventh. One can of this Powdered Lye is equal to twenty pounds of Sal Soda or Washing Soda.

Eighth. One can of this Lye will saponify one pound more of grease than any other Concentrated Lye, Ball Potash, or Saponifier.

Ninth. This Lye is 98 per cent. stronger than any other Lye or Potash.

Tenth. One to two teaspoonfuls will soften a tub of the hardest water.

Eleventh. One teaspoonful will thoroughly cleanse Sinks, Drains, or Closets.

Invaluable for killing Roaches, Mice, Rats, etc. The best article for washing Trees.

Chambers' Encyclopædia.

15 Vols. Over 13,000 Pages. Price During July, $6.25.

Among the wonderful things which have been accomplished for lovers of good books by the "Literary Revolution," perhaps the most wonderful is the reproduction of this great Encyclopædia at a merely nominal cost.

It is a verbatim reprint of the last English edition, in 15 beautiful volumes, clear nonpareil type, handsomely bound in cloth, for $7.50; the same printed on finer, heavier paper, wide margins, and bound in half Russia, gilt top, price $15.00. The first ten volumes are ready for delivery. Vol. 11 will be ready July 10. The remaining volumes will be completed by October next.

$6.25. An Amazing Offer. $6.25.

The more widely and rapidly these volumes are scattered, the greater is their influence in inducing other purchasers of this and our many standard publications. Accordingly we give special terms to early subscribers.

To all, whose orders and money are received during the month of July, we will supply the 15 volumes in cloth, for $6.25, and in half Russia, gilt top, for $12.50. To any one sending from any place where we have no special agent (usually the leading bookseller of the town), a club of five orders, we will allow a commission of 10 per cent. The volumes issued will be sent at once by express, and the remaining volumes when completed.

A specimen volume in cloth will be sent, postpaid, for 50 cents, or in half Russia, gilt top, for $1.00, and may be returned at once, if not satisfactory.

The "CHAMBERS'S ENCYCLOPÆDIA" comprises the first 15 volumes of our "Library of Universal Knowledge," and the remaining volumes, complete in themselves, will be sold separately when published.

Reception to Rev. S. E. Wishard—Sunday School Anniversary—Interesting Exercises—Mrs. E. B. Wood's Address.

Last Sunday the Presbyterian Sunday school attained its fifty-first anniversary, and in commemoration thereof it was decided to hold becoming exercises. To make the event more marked Rev. S. E. Wishard, a former pastor of this parish, was invited to attend. Mr. Wishard kindly accepted and the church last Friday evening gave him a cordial reception. The auditorium and lecture room had been nicely trimmed, so that the church presented a beautiful appearance. A large number of friends greeted Mr. Wishard, and the hand-shaking had a zest in it that bespoke unusual gladness. The exercises consisted of music, an address of welcome by Rev. W. Grandy, the present pastor, and a response by Mr. Wishard. The response was interesting, and the reminiscences of the departed members of the church touched the hearts of all present. After the exercises the audience repaired to the lecture room where a sumptuous board was spread.

Mr. Wishard began his labors in Tecumseh in '61. He remained here until '67, when he went to Battle Creek; from there he went to Franklin, Ind., and after closing his work in Franklin he spent his time and ability in evangelistic labors. In this field he was remarkably successful, and continued in this work until last May he received a call from the 5th Presbyterian church of Chicago, which he accepted.

Sunday evening the Sunday school held their fifty-first anniversary exercises. J. S. Strong, the superintendent for many years presided; remarks were made by both pastors present, and an excellent history of the school was read by Mrs. E. B. Wood. A letter of congratulation from Cyrus Wells, a former superintendent, was also read. The Sunday school, it might be interesting to know, was organized in the old court house that now stands at the top of the Globe mill hill.

MRS. E. B. WOOD'S ADDRESS.

We have come to-night to open the pages and reveal the history written by the swift-flying years so long ago. In this, the anniversary year of all Sunday School work, we learn that Robert Raikes' claim to be the founder of Sunday Schools is being warmly disputed, and it is well known that others were earlier in the field than he. But the one who gives an idea a practical form, demonstrates its power for good, and compels the world to use it, is the one to whom honor is due; the world knows this, and rarely errs in its award of gratitude and fame.

Robert Raikes brought into permanent harmony the results of the labor of those who had gone before him.—He first made national and world-wide the sunday school, which until his time had been in the narrowest sense local and sectional; and he lived to see the tiny mustard seed, planted by his hand, growing great and strong, and thank God it has grown so strong; that under its shadow the children of the Christian world are gathered, pagan nations feel that its power is one of the great living forces of society, and within the brief space of one hundred years it has become an important factor in the world's civilization.

If we should look upon a Sunday in England one hundred years ago, we would be constrained, as we turned back to the present, to say with grateful hearts, "What hath God wrought," sin, in every form, at that time openly abounded,—there was scanty reverence for the sabbath,—the public press was not the guardian of morality or the public welfare,—bribery was a common vice of government officials, highway robberies were more common than they are to-day in Mexico; the prisons were filled to overflowing with criminals, among whom were many young boys, who, committed for the smallest offenses, were thrown into intimate association with the most hardened sinners; while the streets were swarming with children who were hurrying on to crime thro' poverty and neglect.

Robert Raikes' heart was stirred within him with a grievous pity at these things. Through his paper "The Gloucester Journal," he called the attention of christians to these unfortunate youth. With strong faith in the power of God's word to renew and transform, he provided, at his own expense, religious instruction for those who were in prison in his own city; he also hired, at his own expense four persons to teach each Sabbath as many children as could be gathered in. They were to be taught reading and the catechism, two hours in the forenoon and two in the afternoon, taken to church, and taught to reverence the Sabbath. Thus was the first Sunday School established, in that far-off summer time of June, 1780 in old Gloucester. Its power for good was immediately manifested. The little street Arabs were civilized, and in many cases Christianized.

A manufacturer of that time testified in a striking manner to God's blessing on the work by saying that the change could not have been greater had they been transformed from the shape of tigers and wolves to that of men. Schools spread throughout England and Wales. Robert Raikes' newspaper commended the island everywhere, and within ten years 300,000 children were enrolled in Great Britain alone. The work spread to other lands as well as to America. In 1787 Bishop Asbury started the first Sabbath school in Virginia. In 1790 Bishop White, with twelve distinguished men of Philadelphia, formed "A First Day" or Sunday school society. They opened two schools, one for boys and one for girls, giving two teachers $80 each a year. Schools slowly increased until at one time Philadelphia was paying $2000 per year for Sunday school work. In 1793 Katy Ferguson, a colored woman, knowing nothing of Robert Raikes, opened the first Sunday school in New York city; gathering in and teaching the destitute children of the quarter where she lived. It must be remembered that the city was small then as compared with to-day.

In 1804 Mrs. Isabella Graham and her daughter, Mrs. Bethune, familiar with Sunday schools in England established three similar schools, at their own expense, in the city. From this time schools slowly spread thro'out the States, but the first in connection with a church was at Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, in 1809. The Sunday schools of that time were taught by hired teachers; the pupils were from among the most vicious and degraded. The library as an adjunct to religious instruction was not yet introduced.—Very few could read, and the spelling and hymn books were the principal text books. The change from paid to voluntary teachers, from secular to religious instruction, was simultaneous with the transfer of the control of the schools from individuals to churches, which took place in the year 1816.

In 1824 the American Sunday School Union was established, having the two-fold object of organizing schools in recently settled and destitute regions of our land and the supplying of suitable books for Sunday School libraries. About this time several denominational unions were organized, many of them publishing books as extensively as the American Sunday School Union. We care nothing about statistics. We cannot in any way have a distinct idea of a million, but if we possibly could have brought within our vision the vast number of Sunday School books circulated by all these agencies, that have worked so untiringly through so many years, we might realize how wonderfully the Christian instruction of youth has become the special branch of church work as the legitimate fruit of Robert Raikes' idea. The civilizing, uplifting and saving influence of this vast array of books thus read in unnumbered households, cannot be computed by any human calculation. Only when the books of Divine Record are opened can the vast aggregate of good they have done be revealed. And now we have come with these rapid steps down the corridor of years until we reach 1829, the date of the forming of our own Sabbath School. At this time our beloved and beautiful State was a great wilderness territory, only a short time freed from Indian warfare and Indian titles. Detroit was then an unimportant French town of 1,222 inhabitants. It is now the proud and beautiful metropolis of our State, numbering, without its suburbs, a population of 127,000. Ann Arbor, Adrian and Ypsilanti were the merest hamlets. Ypsilanti did not have a Sunday School until one year later than ours. Chicago, great and wonderful as it now is, was a little fort among savage tribes of Indians, not incorporated even as a town until two years later, when it contained a dozen families. The first Presbyterian church in St. Louis, Mo., was established in 1817, only eleven years earlier than ours, and was the first Protestant church in the solitary west. How little did the pioneers of that early time know of the wonderful future. The great west, with its teeming millions and unmeasurable forces for good or evil now open before us and known to be like the garden of the Lord for fertility, was to them a sealed book, written on all their maps as the Great American Desert. The mountain trapper and the roving Indian were the only inhabitants of more than half the continent, over which vast herds of bison roamed northward and southward in inconceivable numbers. These facts of early history seem very strange to us, but they were very real to those pioneers in their poverty and loneliness in 1829.

The First Presbyterian church of Tecumseh was organized in April, 1828, by the Rev. Mr. Darwin, and consisted of ten members, eight of whom were women. The pastor organized our Sunday School in the autumn of 1829, just 51 years ago. The superintendent's name that first year is not on record, but we know that the next year Mr. Thompson Finch was serving, and in the absence of records we might easily infer that he had been for months before. Mr. Finch was succeeded by Mr. David Smith, who was superintendent when I entered the school 36 years ago. He was of Scotch descent—tall, quaint, genial and kindly. Strong love for Christ fairly illuminated his rugged features, and his earnest tones striving to lead us heavenward seem sounding yet across all the intervening years.

About this time the Rev. Mr. Cheever became our pastor, and his name is too deeply enshrined in many loving hearts to need any eulogy of mine. In that school all but the adult classes were imperatively required to memorize the Scriptures. The younger classes committed several verses or several chapters in any part of the Bible that the teacher happened to select. The older classes had uniform question books, but lessons were in different places according to the ability of the pupils to advance. It may be well for us to consider whether the memorizing of the Scriptures might not have been better retained as a feature in our present methods. After Mr. Smith, Mr. Baxter was superintendent two years. For some years before and after this he taught a Bible class of young ladies, and, with his noted cheerfulness, he is still among us. Succeeding him came Mr. Bills, who served steadily through a long series of years both as superintendent and as teacher in a Bible class. When this anniversary was first planned we expected to have him here with us to-night; but instead, he has gone with weary feet far into the border-land and is close beside that line to which each of us must come, the line that divides the unseen from the seen. May God grant to him and to us in that solemn time the strengthening presence of our Lord and Master. Next after Mr. Bills came Mr. J. S. Strong, who served us several years, combining in his earnest work for Jesus his musical talent and his versatile genius. Not less consecrated in talent and zeal were Mr. McKinnon and Mr. Cyrus Wells, his successor for several years, down to Mr. Charles Slayton, on whom, though younger, their mantle has fallen, and whose work is promising of success for the Master.

Of all the pastors over our church whose memories are cherished among us, the two who pre-eminently loved the Sunday School and are laboring for its interests are with us to-night—Mr. Wm. Grandy and Mr. S. E. Wishard. Time fails me to give the names of all the faithful and devoted and self-denying teachers, a full corps of whom are yet in active service, but we must mention Mr. Nichols and Judge LeBaron, who taught faithfully for 21 years. They yet linger among us, realizing, in their weakness, the blessedness of the promise that "at eventide there shall be light." Mr. Ashael Taylor was a teacher; Mr. Miles, whom all remember for his gentle and peaceful character; Mrs. Griffith, Deacon Tallman, Deacon Ketcham and Minda Conkling Ketcham, were in various classes. Miss Mary Spofford, among the most earnest and conscientious Christians I ever knew, taught my class. It seemed as if her motto must be "work while the day lasts for the night is coming." All these, with many and many another whom we well remember, have had their names withdrawn from our church rolls, because, unto them has been given the white stone with the new name in heaven. We are sure that the labors of the faithful dead and the earnest living, have gone far in raising our school to its present usefulness. We also recognize to the full, the value of the scholarship who have sustained and appreciated the devotion of our superintendents and teachers. But while we are here to-night to celebrate our own anniversary, we do not forget the faithful labors of superintendents and teachers and pupils in all the other schools in this community. With zeal and love equal to our own they have been helping on our Lord's work.

The Sabbath School everywhere is an uplifting and mighty power whose grandeur and dignity we can hardly, by any array of facts, bring ourselves to understand. But when in London last summer, devout men from every nation under heaven came together to tell of progress, all were profoundly impressed by this essential and inherent part of the church work. Not from England and America alone, came the rejoicing voices, but from every division of continental Europe. The faithful and beloved missionaries alone have in all heathen nations established 12,000 Protestant schools, which by showing the glory that streams from the cross of Christ, are slowly dispelling the long night of heathen darkness. And now we learn from actual reports that 12,000,000 throughout the world are in organized Sunday Schools studying God's word. But what are all these, but the leaven that shall in some glad time leaven the whole lump. In the adaptation of the Sunday School to all mankind we see that "a great door and effectual has been opened," and there should be a more perfect preparation for the work and a more heartfelt consecration to it. Remember that we are co-workers together with Christ. Let each covet earnestly the best gifts and also strive to impress upon the pupils a sense of their awful responsibility to God for the manner in which they use their great and precious privileges.

Mr. Wishard left yesterday morning for his home, and his many friends wish that his Tecumseh visits may be more frequent than the anniversary exercises.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

KEY FOUND.

A peculiar shaped key was found on the street last Tuesday. The owner will find it at the HERALD OFFICE.

NOTICE.

Whereas, certain young men (and many of them are known) have been in the habit of congregating in the vestibule and around the Methodist Episcopal Church of Tecumseh, smoking and talking to the disturbance of the people who worship therein. Therefore we respectfully and kindly request all such young men to desist from such conduct, and come inside the Church of God and worship. If not, we hereby give notice that the rights of this church must be respected, or such persons will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law. (Signed)

MANY loads of cider apples are being hauled to the mills.

O. W. BEAN has partitioned off a neat office in his meat market.

THE returns from the election will be received at Tecumseh Tuesday night.

COL. MESSMORE, of Grand Rapids, made a splendid effort at Clinton last Saturday evening.

COL. W. C. FITZSIMMONS addressed a large republican meeting at Springville last Monday night.

A POOL of $500 has been made up in Tecumseh to wager on the election of Garfield and awaits a taker.

MRS. ED. SNEDECOR, who has been making a long visit to friends in Ohio is expected home this week.

G. W. ZEIGLER has removed his family from Clinton, and will hereafter make Tecumseh his home.

REV. S. E. WISHARD delivered a temperance address at the Reform Club rooms last Sunday afternoon.

MILAN WHEELER has left a few samples of his last crop of peach-blows at the HERALD office for exhibition.

NEXT Saturday is registration day, and if a man values his vote he had better register; for no register, no vote.

MRS. WM. STARR, left Tecumseh on Thursday last, for a three(?) months' visit to her old home in the Buckeye state.

LANDGRAF and Lee's blocks make a decided improvement to the appearance of the business portion of the town.

COL. D. S. CURTIS, of Washington, arrived last Tuesday and will remain with his friends in this vicinity until after the election.

IF the epizootic does not stricken some of the horses in this vicinity there won't be any fences in Tecumseh in a short time.

THERE are sixty-three young men in Tecumseh who have never voted a presidential ticket who will vote for Hancock next week.

THE clerks are happy now, and at the tap of the Council bell at half past seven o'clock they jump as if struck by a current of electricity.

WE see that John R. Clark had a fine reception at Albany, N. Y., last Sunday. The Argus speaks in very flattering terms of his lecture.

SOME boy whose moral training must have been sadly neglected, bedaubed the new and fresh lettering in Dr. House's stairway last Monday night.

TUESDAY evening a team of Art. Rice's became frightened and stopped only after knocking down a couple of rods of fence about the residence of J. J. Adam.

THE valuation of the real and personal estate of Lenawee county, as equalized by the state board, is $27,000,600. Wayne, Kent and Washtenaw excel it.

C. H. ADAM, who is now running the Sand Lake Hotel will begin a series of club dances to-morrow (Friday) evening. Music will be furnished by Baker & Smith.

THE grocers and druggists have followed the excellent example of our other merchants and after Monday next will close their places of business at 8 o'clock, P. M.

THE Universalist Sunday School will hold a concert and autumn piece next Sunday evening. The church will be appropriately trimmed with autumn leaves, flowers, etc.

MISS EVA HAUSE, who has been engaged in a large neck-tie factory for some months past in Chicago, returned home last Saturday upon hearing of her father's misfortune.

PROF. E. EGGERS, formerly preceptor in the Tecumseh schools, now of Grand Rapids, has been appointed a member of the board of State visitors to the Detroit German-American Seminary.

DR. BAKER, of Pentwater, will address a Greenback meeting at Armory hall tomorrow evening. Let the republicans and democrats turn out and hear the political issues of the day discussed from a greenback standpoint.

THE annual meeting of the Farmers' Mutual Fire Insurance Company of Lenawee county, will be held on Monday, Nov. 8th, commencing at ten o'clock, A. M. at Light Guard hall, (formerly Odd Fellows' hall,) in the city of Adrian. As business of importance is to be brought before the meeting a general attendance is desired.

Z. COOK, President.

SQUIRE MARVIN and wife, of Shaloraville, Ohio, have been visiting their friends in this place during the past week.

LAST Monday a wounded hawk fell in the yard of Chas. Teft, living a few miles south of here. It measured three feet from tip of one wing to the other.

MRS. SIMMONS says that not until Chas. Simmons arrest has she enjoyed one moment's peace, for fear he might again visit her and do more serious violence to her than before.

JOHN Q. OSBORN, of Franklin, has very wisely concluded that "it is not meet for man to live alone," and so he has chosen a wife. Success to the new couple and a long and prosperous life.

OUR genial and handsome friend, C. E. Freeze, of Clinton, has surrendered unconditionally, and cupid has gathered another victim in his quiver. Congratulations are in order, of which Charley will receive his full share. We regret our inability to attend the reception last evening.

THE Democrats will hold a meeting at the Opera House next Saturday evening. Speaking by Levant Brown and Maj. E. S. Dodd, of Toledo. There will be a torchlight procession, fire works, etc., before the speaking begins. Ladies are invited to attend the Opera House meeting.

FROM the dispatches we thought that C. T. Hamblin, formerly of the Blissfield Advance was one of the lost passengers of the Alpena; but we were agreably surprised to learn that it was a mistake and that he is trying to make arrangements to embark in the newspaper business again.

WE have just arrived here with 9 rams, all registered in the New York American Merino Register, for sale. Will not be here only this week.—Please call and see us at Sink's Hotel.

HATCH & BRO.,
Breeders of American Merino sheep,
Warsaw, N. Y.

R. F. JOHNSTONE, the oldest editor in Detroit and manager of the Michigan Farmer, died very suddenly last Sunday night of heart disease, at the age of 65. Mr. Johnstone was well known in this vicinity, and he will be greatly missed in the farmers' gatherings as well as in the journalistic field.

THE one thing that broke the harmony of the republican meeting last night was the constant running in and out of the torchbearers. They seemed to think that by reason of their oilcloth capes and hats they had license to interrupt the meeting at any time by an incessant walking up and down the aisles.

MR. S. P. SMITH, of Ridgeway, will soon open a new business at Thompson's old stand in the village. He will keep a cigar and confectionery store and will also keep an eating house where warm meals can be procured at all hours. We believe Ridgeway will afford a good field for a nice little business in that line.

"OUR GIRLS" have been left without a father. The assistant manager of the company playing the above comedy slipped out last week with a good share of a former night's proceeds. Manager Stevenson then paid up the debts and sent the members of the company to their respective homes. The majority of them came from Chicago.

THE Board of Supervisors during the last session declined to pay Sheriff Crandall, who arrested E. R. Armstrong, the offered reward. They claim that an officer is bound by his oath to perform his duty, and that it is their duty to apprehend any criminal of the county, for which they receive full compensation in their regular fees.

THE young democrats of Tecumseh met at Bidwell's Hall last evening and organized a Hancock Guard. They got a fine start and took over fifty members last evening. They will take entire charge of the torchlight parade next Saturday evening, which is a sufficient guarantee that that portion of the meeting will be a grand success.

LAST Thursday afternoon Dr. S. Catlin was united in marriage to Mrs. Hattie C. Eastwood, of Raisin. The ceremony was performed at the Episcopal rectory of Adrian. The doctor is well known for his ability and success as a physician, and the bride, formerly Miss Hattie Ash, is the daughter of the late Wm. Ash, one of the most respected farmers of Raisin. We extend our congratulation to the couple and wish for them a happy life's journey.

CHARLES RYND, the father of Dr. Rynd, of Adrian, died at the home of his son William Rynd, Royalton, Fulton county, Ohio, last Tuesday morning. He was a native of Ireland, removing to this country thirteen years ago. On Saturday he appeared in perfect health but Monday his failing condition alarmed the family, and the doctor, of Adrian, was telegraphed for. He reached his father's bedside in the evening but the old gentleman was unconscious, and died unaware of his son's presence. He was a member of the Episcopal church, and a man possessed of a superior intellect.

REPUBLICAN DEMONSTRATION.

Last night the Republicans indulged in their culminating demonstration of the campaign. Delegations from Deerfield & Raisin arrv'd early in the evening, and a torch-light procession was soon formed. The torches numbered about two hundred and fifty, and along the line, headed by the Franklin band, a number of transparencies were borne on high. Among the inscriptions were "Bidwell, Our Next Sheriff," "Watts our Congressman," and along with these the Garfield loan, "329." The procession presented a good appearance and took their line of march on Chicago, Pottawatamie and Logan streets. Along the route the houses of all the republicans were illuminated. Some of them were unusually brilliant and drew forth redoubled cheers from the paraders. Red fire and sky rockets lighted up the streets, and all together made a pretty sight.

After the parade the procession broke up and adjourned to the Opera House. Here a large audience had assembled, filling up the whole space. The speaker, Hon. Jasper Packard, ex-congressman for the Laporte district, Indiana, was by far the best speaker the Republicans have had. He made a rather extended speech, but held his audience during the evening. He is one of the "Indiana stalwarts," a strong Grant man and a warm Republican. His speech was argumentative and convincing, being free from the common political balderdash.—Although he presented that phase of the political issues that are favorable to the Republican party, he held the attention of persons of all political propensities.

Owing to the crowded state of our columns with matter already in type before this morning, we are obliged to omit a synopsis of his speech.

THE PROBATE JUDGESHIP.

The extract below is taken from the Adrian Times of last Monday:

Judge Geddes, ever since his appointment to the probate judgeship, has been gaining golden opinions from everybody having business to transact there. He is thoroughly capable, honest, and exceedingly courteous. The people don't like experiments in this important office.

The complimentary remarks towards Judge Geddes in this notice, are not overdrawn. Judge Geddes is a capable lawyer and a gentleman. But the puerile slur of the last sentence against Mr. E. B. Wood is entirely uncalled for and we do not believe that Judge Geddes, himself, approves of such petty warfare against so honorable an opponent as Edwin B. Wood. Mr. Wood is considered by those who know him personally and professionally to be peculiarly fitted for this position. He has enjoyed an extensive practice in the Probate Court during the past ten years, and during that period he has transacted more legal business, connected with the settlement of estates, than any other attorney in Lenawee county. The Times's ungentlemanly slur upon Mr. Wood as an "experiment" will give him a good many votes from fair-minded republicans all over the county.

POLITICAL MEETINGS.

The following political meetings have been announced in this section of the county by the different parties.

Democratic.

MACON.

Grange Hall, Thursday evening, Oct. 28,—Lieut. L. H. Salsbury, of Hudson, and W. R. Wooden, of Tecumseh.

At Swaab school house, Saturday, Oct. 30, evening. A. W. Smith and B. Turner.

CLINTON.

At the village, Saturday, October 30, evening—Hon. Edwin Willits.

A the village, Monday, November 1, evening—Capt. J. D. Ronan.

National.

TECUMSEH.

At Armory Hall, Friday evening, Oct. 29th,—Dr. Baker, of Pentwater.

IF intemperance has a foot-hold upon any family, it certainly has extended its vicious and degrading effects to the household of the Brodwick family, living a few miles east of Tecumseh. For several Saturdays past, along late in the afternoon, the mother of the above household could be seen reeling down our streets attended by her husband as a guide and pilot. Brodwick has always been seemingly sober allowing his wife to make the outside demonstrations. But last Saturday Brodwick himself became unusually noisy and disorderly, and was taken in charge by officers Merritt and Moir and lodged in the "cooler," where he might recover from the effects of the fiery element. Monday he was brought before Justice Burridge and fined $5 and costs.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT.

The most unfortunate of unfortunates, and at the same time luckiest of lucky persons is Dr. Hause. It seems as if the railway was determined to do him fatal injury, but for three times he has survived by mere chance, accidents befalling him through the cars inside of a years time. The first and last times it seems impossible for a person to undergo what he did and not lose his life. The circumstances attending the last mishap are as follows:

Last Friday night the doctor was in Hillsdale on business and went down to the night train to see a friend that he expected would be upon the train. He entered the car, and not finding the person he was looking for, he turned to get off while the train was still waiting at the depot. As he went to step off he felt a dizzy spell, that he is accustomed to having, coming over him. He stepped down on to the depot platform and clung hold of the iron railing of the car. While thus standing the train moved out and knocked him down and dragged him along the side of the track. When found he was in an unconscious condition, his shoulder being broken and skull fractured. He was taken to a relative's house in the city and his family telegraphed for, as he was not expected to live through the night. But at one o'clock that night he became conscious and has been, as his Tecumseh friends will be glad to learn, steadily improving ever since. He will probably be in a condition so that he can be brought home to-morrow. The doctor has the sympathy of many for his misfortunes and all are glad to learn that he is beyond danger, and fast recovering.

Garfield's Chinese Letter.

The disputed Chinese letter of Gen. Garfield is the principal topic of discussion now. It is claimed that the post mark on the envelope in the facsimile letter which has been published is different from the one in use at the Washington postoffice. We have in our possession two letters lately received from Washington which will throw some light upon this controversy. One is from the pension office, mailed Oct. 25th. On this envelope the "D. C." follows "Washington" in a continuous line over the top of the stamp. The other is a letter to Will D. Robbins, of our office, mailed Oct. 19th. The post-mark on this envelope has the "D. C." separated from the word "Washington," the letters "D. C." being on the bottom side of the stamp. Here are two letters sent from Washington only six days apart, having upon their envelopes post-marks of a different face, one of which is exactly like the post-mark on the envelope of the disputed letter.

"I have been troubled with Kidney Complaint (Diabetes) for six years, and without relief until I commenced taking Kidney-Wort. I have taken four boxes, and now consider myself entirely cured. I would recommend it for all such cases.

W. H. THOMPSON,
Engineer C. M. & St. P. R. R.

Mrs. J. B. Clark, Amite, La., writes: 'I have used Kidney-Wort, and I wish I could see you to tell you of the benefit it has been to me. It has relieved me of pain in the side, constipation, piles, and some other complaints. My sleep is now very refreshing, and I am quite well. It is a sure cure."

DIED.

SERVICE—In Clinton, Oct., 13th, of Typhoid Fever, Martha McKinney, wife of Robert Service, aged 26 yrs., 11 months and 22 days.

HEWITT—In St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 19, 1880, Louis Pierson, only child of Richard M. and Jessie D. Hewitt, aged 1 year and 13 days. The remains were brought to Tecumseh for interment.

JACKSON—In Tecumseh, Oct. 18th, James Jackson, Jun., aged 27 years, 8 months and 4 days.

He suffered acute pain for the whole period of his sickness—four weeks, but was patient. He was a gentleman well known in this community, of good moral character, pure habits, and genial disposition. This is the first break by death in the family of his parents, who were united in wedlock more than forty years ago, and of nine children. His funeral, conducted by Rev. H. Shepard, was largely attended. Sincere mourners followed him to the grave, and a large company of friends mingled their tears with those of the bereaved family. May heavenly comfort be ministered to the hearts of the sorrowing ones. COR.

LOVELY MAIDENS.

Wholesome Reading for Pale-Faced School Girls.

The fall has opened, and the schools have opened too. The lovely maidens, who have spent the summer in pleasurable rest and travel, have resumed their books. Some of them are fond of books and some are not. Those who like study find their scholastic duties comparatively easy, while the others take no more kindly to acquisition of knowledge than a cat does to having its back stroked the wrong way. Some of the girls are as rugged and hearty as pine knots and some are not. In fact, there are but few of the daughters of the land who are not afflicted with some ailment or other. Happily a majority of these ailments are slight and can be cured. Our girls are not a race of hopeless invalids, nor yet of feeble creatures, who need to be taken care of as if they were babies. On the contrary, they can stand a great deal. No sisterhood of woman since the days of Eve have had to carry heavier loads than the overloaded victims of a desire to acquire the knowledge of a great many branches of education. Factory life has its hardships; but the girls who tend looms and run sewing machines and mind spindles are less burdened than those who brave the dangers of the life which is a combination of fashionable school and fashionable society. This is the season of the year for girls to make up their mind as to the winter's occupations and amusements, and therefore it is seasonable to drop a word of counsel into the ears of those who are contemplating too much. Many a girl's health will be wrecked during the coming winter. The too frequent cause of this disaster will be that the girl will undertake too heavy a contract. The requirements of the fashionable school are great. In the first place the girl must be fashionably dressed, which sometimes involves much discomfort. Some of the mothers of these girls used to go to school in very plain clothes and were tolerably comfortable, as well as reasonably good looking. The girls of to-day have no school clothes. They dress in apparel corresponding to what their mothers wore on Sundays. Perhaps the dress is a light thing, but there are circumstances under which it may be made a heavy evil. In the second place, the girl must have many studies assigned her. In the multitude of these her mind is diverted from one to the other and her nerves and muscles are over-taxed. She studies trigonometry before she knows how to spell with unerring accuracy, and is tolerably proficient in painting in water colors before she can express herself well in fifty consecutive sentences that any publisher would care to print. By overloading with a great variety she obtains a smattering of many things without a perfect knowledge of any.

But the girl's chief danger is in that with which she overloads herself outside of her schooling. She is fashionable and has fashionable friends. They move in what is called society. Society gives parties and keeps late hours and dresses in unwholesome ways and eats undigestible messes, some of which would give dyspepsia to an ostrich. To these parties the girl must and will go. The absurd dresses she will and must wear if the other girls wear them. The indigestible provisions she must devour if the rest of the fashionables swallow them.—She "won't go home till morning," if the rest insist on thus prolonging the festivity. No girl can do all this and go to school also. The inevitable consequences are the languid eye, the pale cheek, the disordered stomach and the aching head. A few seasons of this sort of life are enough to break any girl down. The sooner a girl selects which course she will take the better it will be for her. She may go to school and learn, or she may take an exclusive course of party and grow up a beautiful dunce. The season advances, and the girl should make her choice early.—Phila. Times.

DIAMOND CUTTING.

Among the curious and interesting facts brought to light by the census is the fact that the art of diamond-cutting has so developed in New York City that diamonds cut in Amsterdam are now sent here for recutting. Hitherto Amsterdam has monopolized the work, and the aim has been to remove, in cutting, the least possible weight of the gem. The American plan is to cut mathematically, according to recognized laws of light, so as to secure the most brilliancy for the finished stone. The greater loss in weight as compared with the Amsterdam cutting is thus more than made good by the superior brilliancy of the product. The average increase of value given to diamonds by the New York cutting is $5,000 for each person employed for twelve months; also, that our dealers are receiving the best Amsterdam cut gems from abroad to be recut and returned.—Scientific American.

We should do many more things if we believed less in impossibilities.

Lizzie Kuhn, of Jackson, has died from the effects of poison, self-administered.

Beware of the washtub. Mrs. R. Randall, of Greenville, fell across one and broke two of her ribs.

In Shiawassee county Jack Frost has got the start of a good many farmers and gathered their apple crop for them.

Mrs. Welch, the Charlotte woman who became insane over religious affairs, has been taken to the asylum at Kalamazoo.

The supervisors of Calhoun county have reduced the salary of the county clerk $100, and raised that of the county lawyer $100.

George Carpenter, of Tompkins, Jackson county, has six dozen live raccoons, and is "ketchin more of 'em right-along," he says.

Edward Hadsell, an old resident of Pontiac, returned from California a few days ago, and has since died at his old home in that city.

Seventy-five head of fine cattle were shipped from Galesburg to Missouri, last week, to stock the farm of a well-known Kalamazooian.

Montgomery Crossman, one of the victims of the Alpena disaster, was for many years a resident of Marshall, and had hosts of friends there.

If the citizens of Medina will raise the wherewithal with which to build a depot, the Detroit & Butler railroad company will build one at that place.

The job of ditching the Columbia swamp, in Tuscola county, has been let to Messrs. West & Peck of Port Huron.

At Freelands, Saginaw county, on the night of the 20th, burglars entered J. A. Munger's store and robbed it of $300.

Wm. Deyoe, of Kalamazoo, fell from a horizontal bar in a gymnasium, at that place, Thursday, breaking both arms near the wrists.

At East Saginaw a substantial brick building will be erected on the site of Mitts & Merrill's foundry and machine shops, recently burned.

Kendrick Weatherby was found dead in a barn at Kalamazoo last week. He was about 45 years old, a shoemaker by trade, and a little unsteady in his habits.

Mr. Wyman, of Grand Rapids, has sued that city for $10,000 damages.—His horse fell into an open sewer hole, throwing Mr. Wyman and breaking his hip.

Clyde Soules, of Evarts, a lad nine years of age, has been sent to the reform school. They must have an infant class at that institution if such babes are admitted.

Mr. J. Frink, of Brighton, is up north hunting. He went cooning one night and his dog treed something.—Frink went up the tree—and came right down again. It was a bear, and it isn't wise to disturb bears under such circumstances.

A man named Dunning, who was a passenger on the F. & P. M. R. R. between East Saginaw and Midland, was too drunk to be civil, pay his fare or show his ticket, and therefore the conductor put him off the train. He lingered about until another train came along, and tried to board it as it whirled past him. Result, both legs cut off and faint hopes of his recovery.

The Muskegon Chronicle says that a few days ago a little child of a Mrs. Healy, of that city, fell head foremost out of a window, near which it was playing, and struck the stick which was holding the window up, letting it down, and causing her foot to catch under the sash, thus hanging the child out of a second story window. So anxious was the mother to rescue her darling that she dashed both hands through the glass and held the child till help came.

VALUE OF SALT AND PLASTER AS FERTILIZERS.

SATURDAY, Oct. 23, 1880.

At the last meeting of the farmers, the attendance was not as good as desired, but many were detained on their farms husking corn and could not attend.

It was noticeable that those present were successful farmers; hence, it may be inferred that farmers owe their success the information that they obtain from meetings of this nature and from the study of books and periodicals treating upon farming matters. And if this is true, it is a matter of business that every farmer in this community should avail himself of the opportunity of attending these meetings and profiting from the valuable experience of others. The benefit that a farmer may derive from these meetings is of far greater pecuniary, if nothing more, value than the time spent in labor upon the farm.

Mr. Benedict called the meeting to order, whereupon it was decided to devote the time in discussing the value of fertilizers.

Mr. Russell stated the different mineral substances that form the common fertilizing plaster, and thought that it would tend to form a crust, but did not know that it did. Plants will grow and thrive in clear water for a time, hence some say that soil is not strictly necessary for plants. But he thought anything as clover, straw or manure, that will loosen the soil and allow the air to circulate through it furnished nourishment to vegetable life. As experiments prove that the atmosphere is a great resource for plant food. For instance, a small willow sprout was placed in a jar well supplied with water, it remained in this same earth for five years and when it was taken out it weighed 146 pounds, and the earth had lost only 2 ounces, hence plant food is nearly altogether derived from gaseous matter. Curtiss's "Wheat Culture" recommends a free use of plaster. Mr. Osborn had never used any plaster in this country and thought it was only in places where labor was cheap that the plaster used would increase the size of the crop enough to counterbalance the trouble. This year he had bought a number of barrels of salt which he intended to use on his wheat. As it makes the wheat harder, and if a farmer sows soft wheat he can profit by the superior prolific qualities of the soft wheats over hard and at the same time harden the soft wheat by the use of salt. As regards fertilizers, he thought the refuse matter of barn yards and pig pens furnished enough if properly taken care of. In his opinion clover was the best and cheapest fertilizer.

Mr. Baxter rather jocosely remarked here, that rainwater had been used on his land to a great extent, but that the results didn't sanction him in recommending its general use.

Mr. Alex. Richard said he used foreign fertilizers for twenty-five years, but for the last four or five years had not used any and had just as good crops now as when he used them. He thought barn yard manure was the best fertilizer for our land, which contained, as yet, considerable lime; and as the principal part of plaster is lime our land is not yet exhausted enough for the use of plaster.

Mr. Baxter thought that manure showed the greatest and quickest results on low marshy land.

Mr. Russell claimed that the soil in his section of the country was the best, consisting of sand, gravel and clay, and that it wanted only some light vegetable matter, as straw.

Mr. Mather always plowed under straw in his corn fields, and it was beneficial except in a dry season, taking year in and year out the benefit was greater than the damage. Should plow the light vegetable stuff under before harvest for wheat.

Mr. Osborn said that for an experiment he burnt straw on a portion of his field, plowed straw under in another part, some part none, another portion manured and the balance top dressed with fine manure. The results showed that where he burnt the straw the ground was more mellow, the wheat better and ripened earlier, hence he thought the burning of the straw was the best way.

Mr. Baxter thought that burning makes the soil richer for only a short time.

Mr. Benedict said that he intended after this to burn his stubble.

Mr. Russell said that one acre of ground plowed about the last of June was worth an acre and a half plowed late in the season.

Mr. Benedict said that if he summer-fallowed land in July it would produce three or four bushels more than ground plowed late in the season.

The meeting then adjourned for two weeks. The program for the next meeting consists of music, preliminary business, address by some member of the club upon the importance of the organization, and a discussion of the subject of canned fruit.

APPLES FOR TRANSPORTATION.

The N. Y. Times advises editorially with reference to fruit wintered for shipment: For the export trade, and for the first-class home trade as well, apples should be hand-picked and only perfect fruit selected. This work should be done in the orchard; the barrels taken in a wagon among the trees, the fruit picked into baskets and transferred immediately into the barrels. Some selected specimens are first placed in the barrel, which is set head downward in the wagon, the fruit being packed with the twig end to the head of the barrel, and so closely that they cannot move. The barrel is then filled very carefully, so that the fruit is not bruised, and is occasionally shaken to settle the contents until the last layer is reached. This is placed as carefully as the first layer, and in the same way, with selected fruit chosen to fit the barrel closely, but about half an inch above the grove which receives the bottom. The lower hoops are also loosened a little, so that the bottom can be pressed in easily. When thus filled the barrel is loosely covered with the bottom, and when all are filled the load is taken to the barn or store-house, where it remains a few days for the apples to sweat, and after this to dry. It is important that this should be done, else the apples are covered with moisture when the barrel is closed. After the sweating is over and the fruit dry, which will be in three or four days, if the barn is well aired, the loose heads are placed in position and a lever made for the purpose presses them down firmly into the groove; the hoops are then driven down and tacked, and the heads are secured with usual strips, nailed with tacks. The heads are branded with the name of the apple, and the grower's name and residence should also be plainly marked. By this method of packing the fruit is held firmly in the barrel, and cannot be damaged by shaking in transit to market, where, coming in prime order, it secures the highest prices. Second class fruit should be packed by itself, for if mixed with the first-class it is not raised in value, but on the other hand, it reduces the value of the better kind to its own. The second-class fruit, however, deserves as careful packing as the best; then it will always be more attractive, and will bring as much when sold as the best fruit that is badly packed. Good packing, and skillful, careful handling will generally add 25 to 50 cents to the market value of a barrel of fruit of any kind. The above remarks apply to pears and quinces, as well as apples, except that those are usually packed in half barrels. Winter and Fall varieties should be picked and packed before they are ripe, and if kept cool and dry will not fully ripen for two or three months, or, if kept cold, not so soon as that. It is not necessary, therefore, to rush the crop to market until the price suits, as fine apples are in the most profitable demand about the holidays or as Spring approaches.

Astonishing the World.

For a perfect renovation of exhausted and enfeebled constitutions, female weakness and decline, nothing so surely and speedily produces a permanent cure as does Electric Bitters. Their wonderful cures are astonishing the world. For Kidney or Urinary complaints they are a perfect specific. Do not give up in despair, for Electric Bitters will positively cure, and that where everything else fails. Sold by C. A. Wright & Co., at 50 cents a bottle.

The potato show at Crystal Palace, London, is pronounced the best ever held in England. The object of the exhibition is the encouragement of potato culture and the introduction and dissemination of new varieties. The great contest this year was between the Magnum Bonum potato and the Scotch Champion, both of which are claimed to be disease proof. As we understand our English exchanges, the Magnum Bonum won. The prize was the gift of the Lord Mayor.

A syndicate of cattle dealers of Toronto has contracted with the Allan and Dominion lines of steamships for space for 20,000 head of cattle for the ports of Liverpool, London, Bristol and Glasgow. From this it would seem that, notwithstanding great losses at sea, the traffic in live stock between this country and Europe is to continue to be lively.

A company has been formed in Spain for the rearing of the silk worm fed on oak. They will collect, this year, some three millions of cocoons. A special machine for weaving this new kind of silk was worked at the late entomological show at Paris.

The movement of cheese to foreign markets continues large. The exports from New York for the week ending October 16, aggregated 39,019 boxes. The cable dispatch from Liverpool, today, quotes the market firm at 67 shillings per 100 pounds.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

From our Regular Correspondent.

THE POLITICAL SITUATION—THE INDIAN QUESTION.

Washington, Oct. 24, 1880.

Since the October elections there has been a marked change in the feelings of a good many residents of the Capitol. It must be admitted that for a month or so previous to that, there was a good deal of doubt and despondency among the government employees here, partly caused by the result of the Maine vote, but now there is plenty of buoyancy and hopefulness, while the Democrats who have been blithsome and gay all the summer are now serious and thoughtful. But such is life: and especially such is politics. Those of us whose business it is to look on and study the currents of events, one year with another, cannot but remark upon the uncertainty of human calculations in politics as well as in all other things. There is no concealing the fact that the Democrats confidently expected to hold Indiana, and its loss is a great disappointment, even greater than that of the Republicans over the result in Maine a month previous.

The supporters of General Garfield have certainly good reason for their elation, yet it is safe to remember that the game of politics like all other games is never out until played out, and there might be other surprises in store for the present campaign. Of course I am not going to predict any surprises and, least of all, will not try to indicate what party is most likely to be surprised, but just throw out the hint as a safe one from my point of observation. It would surprise the Democrats if the now sanguine Republicans should carry three or four southern states, with a solid north, quite as much as it would surprise the Republicans if the Democrats should carry Pennsylvania or Illinois, or some other unexpected state. Yet this is a year of surprises. Let's not bet. By the way the Republicans had a rousing jollification here the other night, and on Monday evening last turned out again in large numbers to serenade Secretary Sherman, who is given credit for much good service in the campaign so far. The speeches on both occasions were very happy. And while all this is going on the Congressional Committees of both parties, located here, are making renewed efforts and raising additional funds. The Republican Committee is said to be casting an eagle eye across the river into Virginia.

The little affair with the Indians out in Colorado has excited a good deal of interest here, and as nearly as I can determine the general feeling is that the government agents there went a little to far. It seems that the Indians being somewhat out of humor fell in with a party of freighters and attacked them. In the row a young chief was killed, whereupon the whole tribe demanded vengeance upon the unfortunate man who fired the fatal shot. In their zeal for peace and for a successful settlement of the negotiations now going on, Agent Berry and Commissioner Meacham took measures which resulted in young Jackson falling into the hands of the Red Skins by whom he was murdered. They are therefore charged with the crime by the state authorities and warrants for their arrest were issued, which, after some attempts to shield themselves behind government interference, have been served. Reports received here indicate great excitement among the white citizens of Colorado. A letter from Commissioner Meacham has been published in which his version of the affairs is given. Meacham, however, is an enthusiast—a zealot as it were, in his friendly efforts in behalf of the Indians and does not occupy a position to be quite fair between them and the whites. It is to be hoped that justice will be done and that we shall some day have an end of these troubles. Undoubtedly wrongs have been perpetrated on both sides, but I am not one of those who believe in the goodness and innocent simplicity of the noble red man.

Five anxious looking elderly maidens and fifteen investigating, austere men were attracted to one of our city halls the other evening by an announcement that an expose of the secrets of Free Masonry would take place. At the hour announced for the show to begin, a melancholy visaged, cross-eyed individual, wearing a pair of goggles, invited the assembly to prayer, after which he stated that his name was Michael, that he belonged to Philadelphia, was a free methodist, and proposed to expose Masonry, because it imposed upon the people. He announced further that he would give no experiments, but would content himself with preaching a short sermon. This talk did not suit the audience, and they one by one slipped out, leaving the m. v. i. monarch of all he surveyed.

The National Citizen Soldier, of this city, heretofore published as a monthly, has just appeared in enlarged form and issued as a weekly. It was established five years ago by Col. N. W. Fitzgerald.

THE BEST REMEDY FOR Diseases of the Throat and Lungs.

In diseases of the pulmonary organs a safe and reliable remedy is invaluable. AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL is such a remedy, and no other so eminently merits the confidence of the public. It is a scientific combination of the medicinal principles and curative virtues of the finest drugs chemically united, of such power as to insure the greatest possible efficiency and uniformity of results. It strikes at the foundation of all pulmonary diseases, affording prompt relief and rapid cures, and is adopted to patients of any age or either sex. Being very palatable, the youngest children take it readily. In ordinary Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, Bronchitis, Influenza, Clergyman's Sore Throat, Asthma, Croup, and Catarrh, the effects of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL are magical, and multitudes are annually preserved from serious illness by its timely and faithful use. It should be kept at hand in every household for the protection it affords in sudden attacks. In Whooping-cough and Consumption there is no other remedy so efficacious, soothing, and helpful.

Low prices are inducements to try some of the many mixtures, or syrups, made of cheap and ineffective ingredients, now offered which, as they contain no curative qualities, can afford only temporary relief, and are sure to deceive and disappoint the patient. Diseases of the throat and lungs demand active and effective treatment; and it is dangerous experimenting with unknown and cheap medicines, from the great liability that these diseases may, while so trifled with, become deeply seated or incurable. Use AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, and you may confidently expect the best results. It is a standard medical preparation, of known and acknowledged curative power, and is as cheap as its careful preparation and fine ingredients will allow. Eminent physicians, knowing its composition, prescribe it in their practice. The test of half a century has proven its absolute certainty to cure all pulmonary complaints not already beyond the reach of human aid.

HARPER'S YOUNG PEOPLE

AN ILLUSTRATED WEEKLY—16 PAGES.

Suited to Boys and Girls of from Six to Sixteen Years of Age.

Volume II. commences Nov. 2, 1880.

NOW IS THE TIME TO SUBSCRIBE.

Within a year of its first appearance, HARPER'S YOUNG PEOPLE has secured a leading place among the periodicals designed for juvenile readers. The object of those who have the paper in charge is to provide for boys and girls from the age of six to sixteen a weekly treat in the way of entertaining stories, poems, historical sketches, and other attractive reading matter, the profuse and beautiful illustrations, and at the same time to make its spirit and influence harmonize with the moral atmosphere which pervades every cultivated Christian household. This important design they endeavor to carry out by combining the best literary and artistic talent, so that fiction shall appear in bright and innocent colors, sober facts assume such a holiday dress as to be no longer dry or dull, and mental exercise, in the solution of puzzles, problems, and other devices, become a delight.

TERMS.

AROUND THE COUNTY.

SPRINGVILLE.

The election on Tuesday was the quietest election ever held in this town. The day being pleasant enabled every voter to be present. Two hundred and ninety-four votes were cast, being probably the largest vote ever cast in the township. There were four tickets in the field and below is the number of votes each received:

Democratic	122
Republican	100
Greenback	67
Prohibition	4

The last two weeks previous to the election in this place has been very remarkable for pole raising. There has been a democratic pole, republican pole, greenback pole and a prohibition pole, all being over 100 feet above the ground. Saturday it was proposed to raise a liberty pole on election day. A pole was secured, about 150 feet long and prepared for raising. About 2 o'clock P. M., with all hands at the pole the word was given and the pole was raised about quarter way up when it broke in two below the first splice, falling to the ground. Thus ended the pole raising in this place for this campaign. Music was furnished by the Springville band.

LOST—At the greenback pole raising and mass meeting held at this place on Tuesday, Oct. 26, a gold chain and charm, belonging to Miss Winnie Rogers. Any person finding the same and returning it to the owner will be liberally rewarded.

CLINTON.

As the citizens of Tecumseh are mostly people of culture, and noted for their interest in literary matters, perhaps they would be pleased to hear that many of our Clinton people have greatly enjoyed a quite nnusual treat. Mrs. A. A. Estabrook spent the greater part of last year in Europe, and since her return has given us some parlor readings, or talks, which have been not only very entertaining but instructive as well. She tells us many things we do not find in books of travel, and tells them in a charming manner.

Listening to her is like taking a flight across the Atlantic and seeing for oneself, or at least, it is the next thing to doing so. Her descriptions of noted buildings, places and people are so vivid that it is delightful to listen to her.

Let me urge all who wish to visit Europe, and do not see the way to do so at present, to take first opportunity to attend one of Mrs. Estabrook's readings, and go with her to London, or Edinburg, or Paris, and visit famous localities, buildings, picture galleries, museums, etc.; I am sure they will feel that they have enjoyed a good treat.

RIDGEWAY.

Will Hopkins and family of St. John, are visiting in the village.

R. H. Nelson has his new house raised and expects to have it enclosed within a few days.

The Christian church is finished and will be dedicated on the 12th inst. Services at 10:20 A. M.

Quite an accident occured at Jonathan Hall's last Friday. A new corn house and hog pen combined being filled with corn, when the floor suddenly gave way, killing two fat hogs. Mr. Jones had been inspecting it and had but just left the building when the crash came.

The election passed off very quietly here, no disturbance of any consequence occuring. A little loud talk by some Raisin parties who had got themselves out side of a gallon of 40 rod and came over here to blow, but finding themselves without an audience they sneaked off, and haven't been heard of since.

G. P. Waring's friends are very much elated over the result of his race. The majority with which he greets his supporters, in spite of the whisky issue which was forced upon him, and in spite of the dirty work done by a few to lessen his popularity, shows that he has developed a strength beyond their most sanguine expectations.

Baxter's gift baby shoe business is attracting much interest. Perhaps no one is more elated over the advertisement than the Times correspondent. The prospect for a baby show at Baxter's is undoubtedly good.

THE commissioners on the Butler and Lake Shore crossings at Adrian and Chase's decided that the Butler road should pay the Lake Shore $175 for damages at Adrian, and $75 for damages at Chase's.

THE RESULT IN THE COUNTY.

The tables below give the result in each township and ward of the county on the electoral ticket, congressman, representative in this district, judge of probate and sheriff. The average republican majority in the county is about 1000. The total greenback vote was about 350:

How often are we reminded of the uncertainties of life.

MEN AND THINGS.

EDITOR OF THE HERALD:

Micawber like, waiting for things to turn up, I have ventured to give you the result of my observations and ramifications for these last few days since I left the much admired village of Tecumseh. The iron steam horse dashed away through a blinding snow storm from Buffalo to Syracuse.

About midnight we arrived at the old Knickerbocker city of Albany, the capitol city of the old Empire State.—The chief attraction in the city is the magnificent capitol building. Already twelve years have been spent upon its erection. It stands on three acres; its dome will be 365 feet high; fourteen millions spent upon it already. This wonderful building has the second largest arch in the world, and perhaps the finest stone stairway. In looking over it I was induced to exclaim, "Wonderful." When the country girl went to the centennial, in 1876, she tried to describe it, but she failed. She was very conventional in her manner, for in her letter she said:—"My dear mother, I sit me down and take up my pen to let you know I am here; I saw the centennial, and oh! mother, on! ——" and there she rested her case. So of Albany's capital, wonderful is all I can say.

But what of Boston, busy Boston, the grand "hub" of culture, progress and moral light? Boston is a perfect labyrinth of winding streets and twisted alleys, nooks, crannies and lanes. I can state I have seen Bunker Hill, I have not seen the sword of Bunker Hill, but around the base of the monument I have seen the rural sward of Bunker Hill, and a notice warned me not to step thereon.

Boston has fine buildings, some are hoary and beautiful. Numerous statues here remind the passer-by that the commonwealth of Massachusetts has become the vantage ground of great developments in human character and greatness. Here we have Josiah Quincy, the upright; Winthrop, the patriotic; Franklin, the philosophical typo, who captured the very lightning and made it an errand boy, for religion, commerce and science. Among the attractions in Boston to-day the convention of the National W. C. T. U. of America, absorbs considerable attention.

Having closed my labors at Albany I was very anxious, for the first time in my life, to attend a convention, to witness the workings of a large body conducted by women entirely; and being intensely interested in the advancement of the W. C. T. U., being blessed by its strong instrumentality some years ago, I feel I am not merely an observer but a stockholder in this movement.

Among the noble sisterhood who have wrought well for the uplifting of humanity and the moral advancement of this Republic, can be seen in this convention the intellectual queen of the American platform, Mary E. Livermore, of Massachusetts; and the Florence Nightingale of the Christian commission during the war.

Annie Wittenmyre, of Philadelphia, is here; and the newly re-elected president of the W. C. T.U. whose wonderful eloquence and power on the temperance rostrum is the talk of the nation, Frances E. Willard, of Illinois, and the old heroic quaker whose voice went to God in prayer for the suppression of rum, right where its iniquitous fountains were flowing, Mother Stewart, of Ohio, and the cultured lady who crossed the sea to carry the genius and the unisonte eloquence and power of the American crusade into the affluent drawing-rooms of Great Britain, Mary Johnson, of Brooklyn, N. Y.; also the Portia of the woman's temperance movement of America is here from the great west, the lawyer lady who is a member of a legal firm of Foster & Foster, her husband being the partner, and of course the sienor. This remarkable woman combines the eloquence of a Phillips with the legal accumen of a Cushing. We must admit that the most wonderful delegate here is I. Ellen Foster, of Iowa.

Many, very many, might be noted, in this great convention, and when one sees with what dispatch and parliamentary skill the work is carried on we are inclined to the belief that women have an undoubted right to labor in any capacity for God and country and native land.

Women are here who have exhibited the noblest characteristics, that have become a part of common history in the moral conquests wrought by them. Women combining the impetuous daring of a Joan of Arc with the goodness of an angel, the royal chivalrous patriotism of a Barbara Fritchie, with the gentleness of a Madonna; the tireless beneficence of an Elizabeth Fry with the maternal solicitude of the fondest mother.

But I must close this letter, and with its conclusion say adieu to Bustling, Busy, Beauty Boston, and feel glad, as I steam away to the oil regions of Philadelphia, that I have done Boston. As a city, she is full of historic beauty; she is an Omer ornament to the State and an honor to the Republic; she has been very prolific in the production of grand men and systems, educational, political and moral for the development of this nation; and we gladly take the inscription of her escutcheon and say of her and the State, "God bless the Commonwealth of Massachusetts."

Yours cordially,

JOHN R. CLARK.

S. W. Berdine	$18.62
Samuel Kniffin	78.30
George Cadwell	7.50
Mt. Vernon Lantern Works	34.24
Elijah Wilson	5.00

On motion:

The report was adopted and orders directed to be drawn for the several amounts.

On motion an order was directed to be drawn in favor of George Heesen for $12, express charge on fire engine pump, paid by him.

On motion, council then adjourned until the 8th day of November, 1880, at 7½ o'clock P. M.

P. S. McKINNON, Recorder.

AN engraving equally appropriate and beautiful has been issued by Peterson's Magazine" for 1881, to reward persons for getting up clubs. The plate is quite large, 24 inches by 20, and would ornament even the most refined parlor; for it is executed in the highest style of art; and is such a mezzotint as is sold, at retail, for five dollars. It is entitled, "Gran'father Tells of Yorktown." It represents a veteran of '76, in his old age, with his little grand-daughter between his knees, to whom he is rehearsing the story of the surrender of Cornwallis. The room is an old-fashioned one, such as elderly people remember fifty years ago, and in the embrasure of the window sits the mother of the little girl, also listening. As 1881 will witness the celebration of the surrender of Yorktown, the premium, as we have already said, is particularly appropriate. You can get it, gratis, by getting up a club for Peterson. Only the enormous circulation of the magazine can explain why the proprietors can afford to give such premiums. Peterson is the best and cheapest of the lady's books, the price being two dollars a year, with great deductions to clubs. Specimens of the Magazine, to assist in getting up clubs, are sent, gratis, if written for. Now is the time to get up clubs for 1881. Address, Charles J. Peterson, 306 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, Pa.

WOODEN WEDDING.

The following is clipped from the Jackson Patriot:

Tecumseh, Mich., Oct. 29, 1880.

The wooden wedding of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Minor, of Tecumseh, Mich was held at their residence here yesterday and was a very enjoyable affair. Twenty-five relatives were present and letters were received and read from Mr. Minor's brothers, aunts and cousins in Cleveland, where he has lived most of his life. Persons and presents were presented as follows:—Capt. H. E. Case and wife of Cambridge, Ira Ladd of Adrian, bed-room furniture; Mrs. Ladd, a dress; Masters Guy and Hugh Ladd, a nest of spice boxes; C. R. Taylor of Jackson, a cane bottom raised back arm chair; E. Collins of Raisin, a cord and a half of wood; Mrs. Morse of Tecumseh, pictures of George and Martha Washington; Wm. Raven and wife of Columbia; Frank Gray and wife of Franklin, pictures, etc., and the little cousins and grandchildren and all made a miniature world of old age, middle age, youth and infants that was pleasing to behold and that will not be forgotten.

Things Funny to See.

THE FAMILY CIRCLE.

KATHRYN.

AT SUNSHINE.

They told me your name was Kathryn
A name I love so well,
That ever to sift and hear it
The vision invokes a spell.
A girl in her Southern beauty—
A girl with her bright brown hair
A face that envelops my soul
A Peri, perpetually fair.
Oh! Kathryn, my heart, my life, my Sweet, and true, and high, and good
Like the lamp, the lamp, the lamp, forever
That lives in your Southern blood.
Yes, love will kill me or worse,
Thy name is in my heart,
And when you are by my side, darling,
Forever far apart!

THE SCARLET FLOWER.

At Sisson the world was waking to springtime life and beauty. The snow had melted on the hills, and was running and leaping down the valley in sunny brooks and widened cascades, and on all the bridges, laughing children stood, tossing buds and blossoms down into the water, shouting to each other in glee, as the foaming things were carried out of sight.

On the hillsides, and along the valley, the violets were coming into bloom, and young lilies were showing their fair faces among the tender, green blades of grass. New-born and glitter, and beautiful, the world seemed at Sisson.

Over one of the half-dozen bridges that crossed the widest stream, Janet Brockie walked—a slender figure, wrapped in russet gray—the hood of her cloak falling back on her shoulders, disclosing a pale, olive face, framed in by brown, wavy hair, that crept, in little curling tendrils, against the colorless cheeks, and seemed to caress their loveliness.

As she reached the middle of the bridge, she loitered to look down to the rippling water, and watch the flowers sweep by on the laughing wavelets.

The dawn that had brightened hours before to such a golden noon, was dying away in twilight as she stood there—a silent, meek figure, with no least trace of pain or passion in her face.

Faultlessly beautiful, you might have said, had your own endowments [illegible] eyes would have discovered something wanting there.

Sisson was awake and the pulse of summer was beating in her veins, but Janet Brockie's soul was sleeping.

She was quite content to wander idly through the fields; to do her share of the house work; to eat her simple food, and rest at night on the little bed under the garret roof, without care or anticipation beyond each day's simple duties and enjoyments.

But, like a ghost through the shadowy twilight, a new day was approaching.

Through the half light, through the clouds of perfume that rose from nameless blossoms, 'mid the blowing to and fro of the low willow trees, 'mid the soft sobbing of the pines, that stood further back, with a light, laughing scrap of rhymed melody on his lips, came Jack Doran. And, meeting in the middle of the bridge, he was fascinated and straightway captivated by Janet's pale, sweet face.

He had been a whole year abroad, without seeing a face to move him from his repose; but suddenly, in this out-of-the-way little town of Sisson, his fate found him.

Janet, too, who a moment before had the heart of a child in her bosom, felt herself waking to womanhood, and the strangely opened door of her heart closing again over the music of his voice.

"Pardon me," the voice was saying, "but I am a stranger in Sisson and would be directed to old Hugh Brockie's house."

She looked at him curiously, noting each feature as he stood before her with his head uncovered—rings of black hair against a bronze-brown face, each shadow of which had been that of some strange sun and atmosphere; yes of the brightest blue; a firm, straight mouth under the black moustache—and Janet's heart was won.

"Hugh Brockie is my father," she began in a clear, sweet voice, that somewhat faltered a little. "You are a stranger, and I will show you the way."

"I mean to stay at Sisson a month, if your father can take me in," he said following her up the broken path, just touching her hand now and then, as some great stone stood in the way, or a fallen tree obstructed their path, "and you must let me introduce myself. I am Jack Doran, artist and soldier, and you are—Janet."

"How did you know?" she asked, the faintest hue of pink stealing to her cheeks at his look and tone.

"The children told me so," he replied, laughing. "I heard a dozen of them say, as I came down the bank of that brawling little stream, 'There's Janet—pretty Janet that goes fishing for butterflies!' Pretty Janet!" he added, in a different tone.

"They call me that because they love me," she said, softly.

"And about the butterflies?"

"Oh, I catch them in my net, and they call it fishing," she replied, smiling as she met his glance again. "I can show you some rare kinds, if you care for them."

"I delight in butterflies," he said, smiling back into her uplifted face. "They make me think of the dancing flames of a wood-fire," he continued, pointing to half a dozen poised among the flowers at the roadside. "They are pure red and gold; and those are flaming fairies, that fled away the light shining through colored windows."

And so, with merry talk, they came at length to the cottage door, and, lifting the latch, Janet went in to find her father, and Jack, leaned against the porch of the house, and looked at the mountain, dark with leaking trees, and at the brook that ran down to the lovely meadow-land, swept by the winds, and the bees, and the butterflies and marveled at the wonderful beauty of Sisson and the fair flower that bloomed there.

"If only it might bloom for me," he sighed; and then, swift upon this happy thought, rose the merry face of Marie Duvalle, his promised wife; and he had had resolved to go down to the path again, and pass union between himself and Sisson, when the door opened, and Janet came out with her father.

"I would not intrude upon your hospitality," he began, at sight of the gentle old man, "but a friend who spent a month with you last summer, sent me here to make some sketches for her of your wild, mountain scenery. She sends you this letter."

And he drew from his pocket the letter of introduction Marie had given him, and put it in the old man's hands.

"Ah, yes," it is from Mademoiselle Duvalle. Any friend of hers is quite welcome! You shall stay as long as you like, and little Janet shall show you the bonniest spots. She knows all the places Mademoiselle liked best."

Jack turned once more to read his welcome in Janet's brown eyes; but she had vanished, and he saw no more of her that night.

In the morning, however, she came to his side bravely, and offered to show him the way up the mountain.

"I have often been there with mademoiselle," she said, gently. "I can guess which pictures she would like the best."

"Thank! But what of the fishing-net? Are we not to catch butterflies, too?"

"There are but few out yet. Another month, and we should find them in every path."

But she went for the gauzy net, and, throwing the light pole over her shoulder, went on before.

The day had wings! The flowers seemed to bloom more sweetly in the expectant air, the sunshine to be brighter than gold against the crag on which Jack sat, with his sketch-book before him.

He did not sketch all the time.—Once or twice he stopped to help her catch a butterfly, and to fasten it in the quaint cedar box. More than once he threw aside his pencil, to tell her a story of other lands and sunny homes.

And so the day fled away and was only a memory in both their hearts. But other days came, and the weeks lengthened into months, and then suddenly Jack awoke to the knowledge that he must leave Sisson.

And Janet—the little fair mountain-flower—would bloom for him never more!

It was the last day of his stay; to-morrow they would be far apart.

"Tell me of what you are thinking, Janet."

Jack had neglected his drawing for the last half hour, to watch her down dropped face.

She looked up startled to sudden consciousness by his words; but, when she would have spoken, tears filled her eyes, and she turned away, silent.

"Shall I tell you, then, of what I was thinking, little Janet? You will not understand what I mean, perhaps; but I was thinking what the loss of you will be to me, dear."

He gazed at her with firm set lips and sad eyes, but his hand trembled as he took in his own the little hand lying in her lap.

"I know you look on me but as the chance friend of an hour; but, oh, darling, if I had been free to win and wear you, no one else should have gathered you. You are the flower of the world to me, little Janet!"

Such a sad, pathetic face she turned to him, that he could scarce restrain himself from snatching the slight form to his breast.

"You have been kind to me—you are sorry now for my sorrow!"

"Sorry!"

It was the only word she could say, but in it Jack Doran felt that a world of love lay hidden.

"If—"

The word came involuntarily from Jack's lips; then he paused, in sudden consciousness of what he owed two women.

"Marie Duvalle is my promised wife, Janet," he said, gravely, "yet it is due to you to say that we both entered into the engagement without a pretense of love. I shall tell her the truth, and if she release me, then—and then, and then—shall I come back to Sisson."

"And what are you two plotting about?" rang out a merry voice near them. And they turned to see mademoiselle herself, standing on a rock just above them. "Come and help me down, Jack, and then I will tell you some good news. You didn't expect to see me here, eh, Janet? Did you about be sorry, for I mean to be your [illegible] godmother."

Janet's cheeks were white as snow, and Jack looked miserably down, but Marie gave no heed to either, only sat down on the bank, pulling Janet down beside her.

"Janet," Marie said, her eyes full of mirth, "I want to tell you a story and ask your advice. Listen carefully, because I shall surely be guided by what you say."

"But,—"

"Don't say a word until you hear my story, then your turn will come. You can stay, too, Jack, though I shall not ask your opinion."

And Jack, with a tender, remorseful glance at Janet's white face, sat down.

"You must know, little Janet, that years and years ago, when I was even so young and foolish, I had a lover. Not Jack," she said, laughing at his sudden start, "no, indeed, though Jack has been a good friend of mine. But cousin Gerardin loved me from the time I was ten years old; and when I was sixteen he told me of his love. I loved him too—ah, very, very much—but I was a vain, childish creature, and I sent him away, telling him he should sail round the world and bring me back a beautiful necklace of pearls, and then, it might be, I would listen to him. And I gave him a scarlet flower for remembrance."

Here Marie paused a moment, while a thoughtful smile flitted across her red lips.

"I did not hear from him for many a long year, but last summer, when I was staying with you, a letter came. Gerardin wrote it. He was sick, and poor, and could only send me back my flower, and beg me to forget him, if indeed I had not done so long ago. And, here was Jack, to whom I had somehow promised myself, because I did not suppose poor Gerardin would ever come back. What should I do with him? A happy thought struck me! I would send Jack to you; and if you could rouse him from the apathy he always showed to me, all would be well. I could go to my lover!"

"Ah, Marie, you are an angel—" Jack began.

"It is not your opinion I want, but Janet's," Marie said, with sparkling eyes. "But Gerardin is up among the trees there, and if Janet says 'Call him,' why I will do it."

Marie turned and kissed Janet, and Janet whispered, softly:

"Don't make him wait!"

In another moment, the gay, happy sailor was among them, holding Marie in his arms as if he never intended to let her go.

And it seemed he, too, had a story to tell.

"I wanted to try my girl," he said, fondly, "and I said I was sick and poor, and had not the pearls. But it was sick for the sight of her sweet face I was, and a beggar without her bright smiles; but now that I have her, I have all else. Not pearls, but diamonds for my dark-eyed darling!" he said, clasping a necklace of dazzling brilliancy around the proud little throat. "There are pearls, too, I think, in the strong box, but we shall send them for a wedding present to little Janet. Is that right?"

But Marie laughed as she kissed Janet once more, and went down the mountain with her lover.

And when, an hour later, Jack and his little Janet followed them down, behold! a scarlet flower had surely blossomed in either fair cheek; and it seemed to gather brightness and sweetness itself, as, standin in the open doorway, gazing at the lovers who sat within, Jack said, holding Janet's hand fast in his:

"See, what Sisson has given me!"

POETRY OF THE TABLE.

More appetizing than all toning is a perfectly arranged table, sparkling with cleanliness. So let us be a little extravagant in our fresh tablecloths when soap, water, and a little labor are all we have to pay. And now we must decide, shall we have the best china, and do with some stoneware for every day? Or shall we pay ourselves the respect usually reserved for company? Clearly, we are the persons to whom it is of the most importance. Shall we sit down to odd plates and cracked saucers six days that we may enjoy gilded china the seventh? By no means. We will have plain white French china, which can always be matched when broken, and we will sit down to it every day. In the same way we will bring out the plated knives and silver forks, and partake of our food with a sense of our own esteem. We shall feel increased respect for ourselves, also, with napkins and butter plates; so those we will have.

Chicago Ahead.

All the world now looks up to Chicago as the great western metropolis of America, being far ahead of all competing cities; but none the less so, in its line, is Electric Bitters. From their real intrinsic value they have advanced to the front, and are now far ahead of all other remedies, positively curing where everything else fails. To try them is to be convinced. For sale by C. A. Wright & Co. at fifty cents per bottle.

TO THE AFFLICTED.

Since the introduction of Kellogg's Columbian Oil it has made more permanent cures and given better satisfaction on Kidney complaints and Rheumatism than any know remedy. Its continued series of wonderful cures in all climates has made it known as a safe and reliable agent to employ against all aches and pains, which are the forerunners of more serious disorders. It acts speedily and surely, always relieving suffering and often saving life. The protection it affords by its timely use on Rheumatism, kidney affection, and all aches and pains, wounds, cramping pains, cholera morbus, diarrhœa, coughs, colds, catarrh, and disorders among children, makes it an invaluable remedy to be kept always on hand in every home. No person can afford to be without it, and those who have once used it never will. It is absolutely certain in its remedial effects and will always cure when cures are possible. Call at C. A. Wright & Co's. and get a memorandum book giving more full details of the curative properties of this wonderful medicine.

Greatest Remedy Known.

Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumptive is certainly the greatest medical remedy ever placed within the reach of suffering humanity.—Thousands of once hopeless sufferers, now loudly proclaim their praise for this Discovery to which they owe their lives. Not only does it positively cure Consumption, but Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, Hay Fever, Hoarseness and all affections of the Throat, Chest and Lungs yield at once to its wonderful curative powers as if by magic. We do not ask you to buy a large bottle until you know what you are getting. We therefore earnestly request you to call on your druggists, M. Wright & Son, and get a trial bottle free of cost which will convince the most skeptical of its wonderful merits, and show you what a regular one dollar size bottle will do. For sale by M. Wright & Son, Tecumseh.

Astonishing the World.

For a perfect renovation of exhausted and enfeebled constitutions, female weakness and decline, nothing so surely and speedily produces a permanent cure as does Electric Bitters. Their wonderful cures are astonishing the world. For Kidney or Urinary complaints they are a perfect specific. Do not give up in despair, for Electric Bitters will positively cure, and that where everything else fails. Sold by C. A. Wright & Co., at 50 cents a bottle.

Feels Young Again.

"My mother was afflicted a long time with Neuralgia and a dull, heavy, inactive condition of the whole system, headache, nervous prostration, and was almost helpless. No physicians or medicines did her any good. Three months ago she began to use Hop Bitters, with such good effect that she seems and feels young again, although over 70 years old.—We think there is no other medicine fit to use in the family."—A lady, Providence, R. I.

HYGIENIC.

The Express, Chicago, says of Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure: "It is, in the highest sense, hygienic, and can be used by young and old with equal advantage. It gives the only relief yet attained, that can be termed permanent, in Brights Disease and this alone should rank it higher in the lists of medical triumphs."

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

The Best Salve in the world for Cuts, Bruises, Sores, Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Fever Sores, Tetter, Chapped Hands, Chilblains, Corns, and all kinds of Skin Eruptions. This Salve is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction in every case or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by C. A. Wright & Co., Tecumseh.

AN ITEM OF APPROPRIATION.

In telling of Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure, the Republican, Hudson, N. Y., says in its Washington Items: It seems to be generally understood that an especial appropriation will be made for the purchase, for the use of the members of Senate and House, of Warner's Safe Pills and Warner's Safe Bitters."

If you Live in a Malarial District

Wear the Lion Malarial and Liver Pad, and body and Foot Plasters. It is a certain prevalent against Chills or Malarial Fever of any kind, and if there is any trace of it in the system it will thoroughly eradicate it. The whole treatment for one dollar. For sale by druggists.

"Malt Bitters" are a Brain, Nerve, and Blood food, peculiarly adapted to, and warmly recommended by, our druggists and physicians for General Debility, Mental and Physical Exhaustion, Hysteria, Nervousness, Sleeplessness, Emaciation, and Dropsy.

THE READY FAMILY SOAP MAKER:

LEWIS' LYE

98 PER CENT. PURE. (Patented.) FINELY POWDERED. HIGHLY PERFUMED.

The strongest and purest Lye made. Will make 12 pounds of the best Perfumed Hard Soap in 20 minutes without boiling. The best water-softener made. The best disinfectant. The following are some of the advantages obtained by using Lewis' 98 Per Cent. Powdered Lye:

First. Its packed in an iron can with a slip or removable lid, easily taken off and leaving the contents exposed, thereby saving the trouble, annoyance, and danger (from flying particles) so with other Lyes, which, being sold in the can, must be broken with a hammer to get the Lye out.

Second. It being a fine powder, you can remove the lid and pour out all the contents, being always ready for use.

Third. A teaspoonful or more can be used, as in water-softening, scrubbing, etc., and the lid returned to the can, and thereby save the balance of contents. With other Lyes all must be dissolved at once and used in a short time, or the strength is gone.

Fourth. Absolute purity. Free from all adulterations.

Fifth. The best Soap can be made in from ten to twenty minutes with this Lye.

Sixth. No failure is possible in making Soap with this Lye when the simple directions given are followed.

Seventh. One can of this Powdered Lye is equal to twenty pounds of Sal Soda or Washing Soda.

Eighth. One can of this Lye will saponify one pound more of grease than any other Concentrated Lye, Ball Potash, or Saponifier.

Ninth. This Lye is 98 per cent. stronger than any other Lye or Potash.

Tenth. One to two teaspoonfuls will soften a tub of the hardest water.

Eleventh. One teaspoonful will thoroughly cleanse Sinks, Drains, or Closets.

Invaluable for killing Roaches, Mice, Rats, etc. The best article for washing Trees.

DR. R. N. CLARK, South Hero, Vt., says, "In cases of KIDNEY TROUBLES it has acted like a charm. It has cured many very bad cases of PILES, and has never failed to act efficiently."

NELSON FAIRCHILD, of St. Albans, Vt., says, "It is of priceless value. After sixteen years of great suffering from Piles and Costiveness it completely cured me."

C. S. HOGABON, of Berkshire, says, "one package has done wonders for me in completely curing a severe Liver and Kidney Complaint."

IT HAS WONDERFUL POWER. WHY?

BECAUSE IT ACTS ON THE LIVER, THE BOWELS AND KIDNEYS AT THE SAME TIME.

Because it cleanses the system of the poisonous humors that develope in Kidney and Urinary Diseases, Biliousness, Jaundice, Constipation, Piles, or in Rheumatism, Neuralgia and Female disorders.

KIDNEY-WORT is a dry vegetable compound and can be sent by mail prepaid.

One package will make six qts of medicine.

Chambers' Encyclopædia.

15 Vols. Over 13,000 Pages. Price During July, $6.25.

Among the wonderful things which have been accomplished for lovers of good books by the "Literary Revolution," perhaps the most wonderful is the reproduction of this great Encyclopædia at a merely nominal cost.

It is a verbatim reprint of the last English edition, in 15 beautiful volumes, clear nonpareil type, handsomely bound in cloth, for $7.50; the same printed on finer, heavier paper, wide margins, and bound in half Russia, gilt top, price $15.00. The first ten volumes are ready for delivery. Vol. 11 will be ready July 10. The remaining volumes will be completed by October next.

$6.25. An Amazing Offer. $6.25.

The more widely and rapidly these volumes are scattered, the greater is their influence in inducing other purchasers of this and our many standard publications. Accordingly we give special terms to early subscribers.

To all, whose orders and money are received during the month of July, we will supply the 15 volumes in cloth, for $6.25, and in half Russia, gilt top, for $12.50. To any one sending from any place where we have no special agent (usually the leading bookseller of the town), a club of five orders, we will allow a commission of 10 per cent. The volumes issued will be sent at once by express, and the remaining volumes when completed.

A specimen volume in cloth will be sent, postpaid, for 50 cents, or in half Russia, gilt top, for $1.00, and may be returned at once, if not satisfactory.

The "CHAMBERS'S ENCYCLOPÆDIA" comprises the first 15 volumes of our "Library of Universal Knowledge," and the remaining volumes, complete in themselves, will be sold separately when published.

THE ELECTIONS.

The returns are still very far from complete at this writing, but enough is known to insure the election of Garfield and Arthur by a decided majority. Hancock and English will secure the electoral vote of every Southern State, but a Republican Governor is undoubtedly chosen in Tennessee.—The Hancock electoral ticket is chosen in New Jersey, Nevada and California. Hence, as was generally expected the result is hinged upon New York, and that State has gone for Garfield by a majority of about 25,000. It will be two or three days yet before the exact figures can be given. It is impossible yet to tell the complexion of the next Congress, although the present indications are that the Democrats will control the Senate and the Republicans will have a small majority in the House.

Alabama has gone Democratic by 40,000 majority; all the Democratic Congressmen elected.

Arkansas gave 60,000 for Hancock.

California is still claimed for both parties, but is probably Democratic by a small majority.

Colorado is undoubtedly Republican by 4,000 majority.

Connecticut.—The State Senate stands 16 Republicans, 5 Democrats. Republican majority in State about 3,000.

Delaware.—Bayard's re-election to the Senate is assured. The State is Democratic by about 1,100.

Florida.—The Democrats make a clean sweep, electing National and State tickets.

Georgia.—The Democrats carry the State over the Independents by a small majority. There was no Republican opposition.

Illinois.—Garfield's plurality is about 44,000. Chicago in 1876 gave Tilden a majority, this year gives Garfield 5,000 majority.

Indiana.—The result nearly the same as in the October elections. English concedes the State by 6,000 Republican.

Iowa.—The banner Republican State gives Garfield, from the indications, a plurality of 80,600 over Hancock.

Kentucky.—The State elects Democratic Congressmen with increased majorities. Election was quiet thro'out.

Kansas.—The Republican ticket elected by the usual majority.

Louisiana.—The returns indicate the election of the Democratic Congressmen entire.

Maine.—The Nationals generally voted their straight ticket, thus giving the State to the Republicans by 4,000 majority.

Maryland.—State is Democratic; the Republicans made gains in the cities.

Massachusetts.—Boston gave Democratic majority of 3,000; the State is Republican by 45,000.

Michigan.—Every Republican Congressman elected. The State solidly Republican by 40,000. In the gubernatorial contest Jerome ran behind his ticket.

Minnesota.—The returns so far indicate a Republican majority of 25,000.

Mississippi.—The Democrats have their usual majority.

Missouri.—The entire state and national ticket was carried by the Democrats by 40,000 majority.

Nebraska.—From the returns thus far received it is probable that Garfield has carried the state by 25,000.

Nevada.—This state comes as a crumb of comfort to the Democrats. Hancock has probably received 500 majority. The election of Fair being insured.

New Hampshire.—The gubernatorial vote shows that Bell, Republican governor is elected. The presidential ticket has an increased Republican majority.

New Jersey.—Hancock's majority is about 2,000. The Republicans concede the election of the Democratic governor, Ludlow, by 800 majority.

New York.—The state is conceded by 20,000 to Garfield. Grace has obtained the mayoralty of New York city by a small majority. The Sun says the Democratic party deserves its defeat for abandoning Sam. Tilden. The World says the election of Garfield is the election of Grant. The tariff question lost New York to the Democracy.

North Carolina.—Although the first returns predicted a Republican victory, it is undoubtedly Democratic by a decreased majority.

Ohio.—The State gives a Republican majority slightly increased over the October majority.

Oregon.—The State is still doubtful, but the Republicans are confident of success. The Chinese letter had considerable effect in the cities.

Pennsylvania.—The Republicans made heavy gains in Philadelphia, insuring Garfield a majority in the State of not less than 50,000. The Legislature is probably Republican on a joint ballot.

Rhode Island.—Garfield carried the State by about 6,500 majority.

South Carolina.—The election passed off quietly. The Democrats carry the State. The negroes all voted for Garfield.

Tennessee.—The Republicans will probably control the next state legislature. Hancock received the electoral vote of the State.

Texas.—The returns indicate the usual Democratic majority.

Vermont.—The state gives the usual Republican majority.

Virginia.—The State is carried by the regular Democrats, the Funders, against the Readjusters and Republicans. The Republicans gain one Congressman.

West Virginia.—The vote will not be materially changed from that in October. Hancock's plurality over Garfield is about 12,000, while his real majority will not be over 6,000.

Wisconsin.—The Republicans have a majority of 24,000.

DEATH OF R. F. JOHNSTONE.

The death of R. F. Johnstone the late veteran editor of the Michigan Farmer will not only be a serious loss to that paper, but to the farmers of Michigan as well. No man in this state has done more for the agricultural interests of Michigan during the past ten years than Mr. Johnstone. The following biographical sketch is taken from the Evening News, which was written by a personal friend of the deceased.

Mr. Johnstone was born in 1818, in the Barony of The Ards, County Down, Ireland, and arrived in this country in 1833. He at once entered upon an apprenticeship at the Cambridge University press, where he secured a thorough knowledge of the printing business. Subsequently he removed to Albany N. Y., where he was employed in the Legislative printing office after it passed into the hands of Thurlow Weed. He took an active part in the election of Harrison and Tyler in 1840, and in the campaign of 1844, when Henry Clay was defeated for the Presidency. He also took a prominent part in Albany County politics in subsequent campaigns, and in 1851 was elected clerk of the New York House of Representatives. While serving in this capacity he did some writing for the New York Tribune and made the acquaintance of Horace Greeley, who recommended him to come to Detroit; and through Mr. Greeley's influence he secured the position of commercial editor of the Detroit Advertiser. He subsequently formed a partnership with Warren Isham and purchased the Michigan Farmer, and ran it in connection with his Advertiser work, afterwards buying Mr. Isham's interest in the paper. In 1854 Mr. Johnstone was enlisted by Silas M. Holmes, who had been elected State Treasurer on the Republican ticket, in the proprietorship of the Free Democrat, which had fallen into Holmes' hands for advances he had made it. The firm name was Johnstone & Conover, the junior member being the present Rev. James F. Conover, of Kalamazoo. Two years later Johnstone purchased the Enquirer, a whig paper established a few years before by Theodore Williams and Rufus Hosmer, and of which Mr. Frederick Morley was manager. His new purchase he consolidated with the Free Democrat, calling it the Democrat & Enquirer. Still later he bought the Daily Advertiser, then in a crippled financial condition, and into it merged the Democrat & Enquirer, the firm now being R. F. Johnstone & Co. The consolidated paper became the organ of the Republican party of the state. It was unsuccessful financially, and about 1856 Johnstone abandoned it to his partner Holmes.

When Mr. Johnstone abandoned the field of daily journalism he fell back upon the Michigan Farmer, which was now published weekly, the office being in the Cooper block, now occupied by A. C. McGraw & Co. Capital was furnished by a Mrs. Adams, a lady of considerable literary ability, who also assisted for several years in editing the paper. Upon its suspension she went to Washington and procured a position in the agricultural department, where she remained till her death, which took place some years later.

The Farmer was no doubt far from profitable. In 1860 he was appointed Superintendent of the Agricultural College Farm, at Lansing, then just being laid out. His labors being more those of a pioneer in clearing and draining wild land than in managing a model farm, they brought him but little reputation, and, taking his time from his paper, the editing of which devolved in the main on Mrs. Adams alone, the appointment was probably a pecuniary loss to him. With the outbreak of the war the interest in agricultural papers declined to so low an ebb that the time was soon reached when the suspension of the Farmer became a necessity.

After a short interval the paper was revived, by Wm. S. Bond and George Snyder, but as a monthly publication. It was even more unsuccessful than before, and in 1861 was sold for a song to H. N. F. Lewis, who changed the name to the Western Rural converted it into a weekly issue, and achieved very soon a notable success. The Western Rural was in the course of a year or two removed to Chicago where it is still published.

Mr. Johnstone then devoted himself to his duties as Secretary of the State Agricultural Society, filling in the portion of the year when there was nothing doing in the Secretary's office with proof-reading on the daily papers and serving for a term as commercial editor of the Free Press, and also for a year as manager of the Kalamazoo Telegraph. In May 1869, he formed a business connection with Mr. Robert Gibbons, and again the Michigan Farmer was revived. Mr. Johnstone contributed the editorial strength and ability and his partner the business skill so necessary to make a newspaper successful, and the Michigan Farmer, for the first time in its history, soon became a decided success. It has since gone on in the even tenor of its way, yearly increasing its subscription list and earnings, until it ranks to-day as one of the soldest pieces of property in the west.

After being out of office as Secretary of the State Society for several years, Mr. Johnstone was re-elected last year, and the fair of the past month was held under his auspices.

A NEW PAYING OCCUPATION FOR LADIES AND GENTLEMEN.

The handsome Nickel Plated New Home Lamp being introduced to the public this season, is the most meritorious article ever offered Agents to make money with, is safer, and more convenient than the Student Lamp, which has heretofore had the reputation of being the Safest Lamp made, it has a clamp to firmly attach it to the Sewing Machine, Piano, Organ, Desk, etc. The leaf of the ordinary lamp being accidentally upset or thrown from the table, is entirely relieved by this simple contrivance. It can be adjusted to throw the light just where it is wanted to suit the eyes, and can be converted into a handsome wall lamp. It has the best argand burner, a filling indicator, and convenient match box, and its price is within the reach of everyone. It has been fully tested and editorially endorsed by the "Western Christian Advocate," "Am. Christian Review," "Herald and Presbyter," "Journal and Messenger," and "Christian Standard," the leading Religious papers of Cincinnati, and is endorsed by the Mayor and Post-Master of Cincinnati, the Agent of the American Express Companies, as being the Safest, Most Convenient and best Lamp made.

There are three reasons why Agents should seek such an article to canvass for—first for its absolute safety and great convenience, it is needed in every home—second its low price makes its sale immense—third it will be a credit to handle such an article. One southern Agent writes, it sells faster than Gen. Lee's portrait sold right after the war, another writes it beats the palmy days of the Sewing Machine, its rapid sale, low price, and liberal terms surprise old Agents.—Address Home Lamp Co., Cincinnati, O. Mentioning our paper and they will give you full particulars and exclusive territory to canvass in.

New York, Nov. 1.—This afternoon Miss Fannie J. Chaffee, only child of Ex-Senator Jerome B. Chaffee, of Colorado, was married to Ulysses S. Grant, Jr., second son of Ex-President Grant. The wedding was private, there being present only Ex-president and Mrs. Grant, Col. Fred Grant and wife, Jesse Grant and wife, the Hon. S. B. Elkins and wife and J. F. Seymour and wife of Michigan, Mrs. Seymour being an aunt of the bride, and D. H. Moffat, Jr., of Denver.

Miss Chaffee, when a child, lived at Adrian where her father was a dry goods marchant, Lys. Jr., and Fan have the kindest wishes of the printers for favors received in the way of cake and cigars, and Lys Sr., has our congratulations for thus curtailing his family expenses.

Poverty and Suffering.

"I was dragged down with debt, poverty and suffering for years, caused by a sick family and large bills for doctoring, which did them no good.—I was completely discouraged, until one year ago, by the advice of my pastor, I procured Hop Bitters and commenced their use, and in one month we were all well and none of us have seen a sick day since, and I want to say to all poor men, you can keep your families well a year with Hop Bitters for less than one doctor's visit will cost—I know it.

The Great Healer of all Inflamed Injuries and Disorders.

It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the unparalleled demand with which it meets, stamps it at once as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.

The most incredulous are convinced, and the most skeptical are compelled to believe in the power of this great remedy.

WHAT IT CURES.

ALL SORES, CUTS, BRUISES, SPRAINS, BURNS, SORE THROAT, LAMENESS, RHEUMATISM, PILES, INFLAMMATION of LUNGS and BOWELS, BRONCHITIS, CROUP, SALT RHEUM, CHILBLAINS, AFFECTIONS of the SPINE, ERYSIPELAS, NERVOUS IRRITATION, and all disorders attendant with INFLAMMATION.

It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is gained over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame; every bone, muscle, vein, nerve, and ligament is searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it copes readily with internal as well as external diseases.

Over 40 Years

This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such that as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates of cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should feel perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.

Price 25 and 50 cents per bottle. Sold by all dealers in medicine.

NOTICE.

Whereas, certain young men (and many of them are known) have been in the habit of congregating in the vestibule and around the Methodist Episcopal Church of Tecumseh, smoking and talking to the disturbance of the people who worship therein. Therefore we respectfully and heartily request all such young men to desist from such conduct, and come inside the Church of God and worship. If not, we hereby give notice that the rights of this church must be respected, or such persons will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law. (Signed:)

Morenci Observer: Fred Curtis, who has made things lively on all great occasions hereabouts, lo! these many years, with the shrill notes of his merry fife, has concluded to go east and spend the remainder of his days amid the scenes and friends of his earlier years. Aside of one sad foible Fred was a worthy citizen and may his setting sun go down in peaceful skies.

Hudson Post: A barn belonging to John M. Silvernail, in Wright, was burned last Sunday night about twelve o'clock. There were five horses in the barn at the time of the fire, and one was so badly injured by the fire that it has since died. One hundred bushels of wheat, about ten or twelve tons of hay, two hundred bushels of oats, a quantity of corn stalks, three sets of double harness, a two seated buggy, platform spring buggy, and other articles were destroyed. The barn was a good 30x40 foot building. The cause of the fire is supposed to be incendiary. The barn was partially insured.

Card.

We desire to tender our sincere and heartfelt thanks to the friends and neighbors who so kindly assisted and sympathized with us in our late affliction.

JANE JACKSON.

DAVY CROCKETT.

Frank Tannehill supported by a good company will appear in the play of Davy Crockett written by Murdock. The play is of a peculiar nature, its scenes are those of the backwoods and are of a thrilling nature. It has met with the greatest success in the cities. Mayo placed the play in Tannehill's hands with the privilege of playing it and assures the public that he has placed it in competent hands.

Newly painted scenery expressly for this play, includes the following scenes: Act I, Saddle mending; Act II, Wolves at the door; Act III, A living barrier; Act IV, Lochinvar's ride; Act V, Quickest marriage on record. Reserved seats at Adamson's.

THERE were more split tickets in Tecumseh than in any other town in the county.

THE Presbyterian mission band cleared $42 by their supper and sale last Friday evening.

WILLIAMS, CLEMENT & Co., of Blissfield, took in four thousand bushels of wheat in one week.

THOMAS LOVETT, of Oak Grove, Illinois, arrived here last Tuesday on a visit among his old friends.

REV. THEO. D. MARSH, synodical missionary, will preach on home missions in the Presbyterian church next Sabbath.

THE ladies of the Tecumseh M. E. church will give an oyster supper and social on Wednesday afternoon and evening.

REV. R. S. PARDINGTON of the M. E. church of this place will preach a sermon to young men on Sabbath evening next.

B. L. BAXTER, ESQ., delivered an address before the Monroe county sunday school convention at Dundee last week.

TECUMSEH is the only town in the County where the Republicans did'nt make a gain, they sustain a loss of eleven votes here since 1876.

THE ladies social of the Universalist society will meet at Elias Brown's, Raisin, Friday afternoon and evening, 5th. All are cordially invited.

O. B. DEWOEF, who has been out on the road most of the time since he went out of the retail trade, came home last Saturday, as he says, to save the country.

THE few Republicans who made a special effort last Tuesday to injure Mr. Wood must feel rather proud of their success after reading the election returns of this township.

THE meetings of both parties last week were well attended. The young Democratic voters deserve credit for the manner in which the affairs under their charge were conducted.

SPECIAL services at the Presbyterian church this Thursday, evening and to-morrow night. Rev. Mr. Hill will preach Thursday night and give bible readings Friday, 2:30 P. M.

THE young Democrats of Tecumseh are under obligations to Supt. Blodgett of Detroit for substantial favors received at his hands last Friday. They appreciate his kindness and will remember it too.

THE ladies of the W. C. T. U. of Macon, will give a New England supper at the house of Israel Pennington, Wednesday evening, Nov. 10. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

BY ORDER OF COM.

BEFORE the elections Lester Tribou agreed to wheel Wm. Wooden from Pearl street to Buman's corner in a wheel barrow if Hancock was elected, and in case Garfield was elected Will was to do the wheeling; and now gentleman name your time.

THE school board of Hudson have made arrangements so that two daily newspapers will be taken by the school, and scholars will be appointed to prepare and read the current news of the day before the school. In this way the scholars will be kept informed concerning national affairs.

Hudson Post: The team of Cornelius Clement, of Pittsford, took fright last Sunday while going to church, and ran away, upsetting the wagon and throwing Mr. Clement, his wife and two daughters to the ground. Mrs. Clement's wrist was dislocated, and one of the young ladies had a shoulder hurt. The horses took fright from a boy who slid down a straw stack.

MISS HELEN HARTWELL, whose readings in this place last spring were so well received, is forming a class in elocution here. Among her endorsers as a teacher, are Prof. Payne, of Ann Arbor University; Prof. Walker, of Adrian college; Prof. Wendell, of Hudson; Prof. Fairfield, of our own schools, and others. Any wishing to see her can do so by addressing a postal to Helen Hartwell, Tecumseh, Michigan.

New York state has lost many of its charms for a democrat.

WM. LOCKWOOD, of Manchester, favored us with a call yesterday.

J. M. FULLER dropped in on his Tecumseh friends on election day.

THERE were more votes challenged Tuesday in Tecumseh than ever before.

ELECTION is now over and people can have a chance to attend to their business once more.

THE saddle story didn't seem to hurt Charley Bidwell much here in Tecumseh, where he is best known.

THE highest vote that was ever polled in Tecumseh was polled last Tuesday; 734 was the number.

WM. DOWD, the republican nominee for the mayoralty of New York city was once a poor Ann Arbor boy.

HENRY STRICKLAND has made Tecumseh his home. He is travelling upon the road and spends his Sundays here.

WHICH one of our business men will be the first to violate his obligation by not closing his store as agreed upon?

THE democrats of this county can have the satisfaction of electing one man, Corbin of the 1st district, for the state legislature. He is the black sheep.

ARCHIE SHERRARD has gone east for holiday goods. He intends to bring home a fine and large assortment, to add to their present large stock of jewelry and plated ware.

EDWIN B. WOOD made a gallant run in this township and he deserved every vote he got. Had he run as well in other sections of the county his election would have been assured.

IN the democratic illumination last Saturday night one very pretty feature was the little daughter of Vet Erskine dressed as the goddess of liberty, standing upon the porch amid the profuse decorations and the blaze of red light.

THE final rallies here in Tecumseh were all a success. The greenbackers had a good meeting at Armory Hall on Friday evening, the democrats had a large demonstration on Saturday evening, and Dr. Rynd spoke to an Opera House full of republicans on Monday evening.

AFFAIRS will now move on in the even tenor of their ways and people will relapse into their normal state. No longer will the anxious and attenuated gaze of the nominee meet you upon the street; no longer will the harangue of the wild politician sound fourth from the street corner no longer will the blaze of torches and red fire and the unnatural yells of the frantic voters disturb the un-enthusiastic.

THE Opera House was crowded last Tuesday night with persons anxious to hear the election returns. At first a dispatch favorable to either party was the signal for the wildest kind of cheering from the favored; but along in the morning the democrats having regard for their health by not keeping late hours, went home to their beds.—The republicans then held full sway, and some way or other every dispatch sent them off the tangent and kept them up until nearly day-break, when they went home to sleep a sleep that is most dear to a patriotic citizen.

LAST Tuesday as the election was in progress it was a novel sight to see the extreme joy that lighted up the faces of the old and infirm voters as they cast their ballots for president, probably for the last time. Especially so was it in the case of Gen. Brown, who for many months past has entertained the only hope that he might survive election day. He walked with aid from his room at the hotel to the foot of the stairway of the Council room. He was unable to climb the stairs and his ballot was taken up and cast for him. Uncle John Schreder, another old voter, who has lived under every administration of this government voted Tuesday.

A closely contested election develops many strange things, and one of them is the case of John Britton, of Ridgeway. John is a foreigner, and has during his residence in Ridgeway held the various offices of supervisor, drain commissioner, and other township offices, and he figured as the Ridgeway aspirant for sheriff this summer. But Tuesday as John came up to the polls, with a good republican ticket in his hand, some wicked democrat had the audacity to question John's right to suffrage, and to the utter amazement of the voters about the polls challenged him, on the ground that he had never been naturalized. John was as much astonished as if he had heard that Michigan had gone fifty thousand democratic, but he had to finally submit and publicly affirm that he had never been naturalized, and consequently was guilty of voting illegally for a great many years and of holding several offices of trust without being a lawful participator in the rights of a citizen. John has been the back-bone of the Republican party of Ridgeway for years, but as it seems he has been suddenly and unexpectedly displaced through criminal carelessness on his part.

THE ELECTION IN TECUMSEH.

The election here passed very quietly last Tuesday, although both parties were out in force and much hard work was done. The total vote was 734, the largest vote ever cast in this township. The greenbackers and prohibitionists showed less strength than had been generally anticipated. The republican plurality on the electoral ticket was 61. Republican majority over all, 28. There was but little splitting except on Sheriff and Judge of Probate. The figures on these two candidates show that their friends on the opposite side gave them both a handsome complimentary vote. Below we present the result in detail as copied from the tally sheet of the township clerk.

THE TECUMSEH LYCEUM.

On Monday evening, Nov. 1st, the Lyceum held its second meeting. Prof. Fairfield, the principal of the schools, was present and elected a member of the association. A new constitution and by-laws was adopted, which allows the admission to membership of all persons whom the association shall see fit to elect.

Mr. Chas. Patterson, the critic for the evening being absent, Mr. Frank Potter was appointed to fill vacancy.

The song by Miss Elsie Fowler was a very good selection, well rendered and highly appreciated by all present.

The debate, on which some very good points were made, was decided in the affirmative as is generally the case with this question.

The programmes for the 8th and 15th are as follows:

Monday evening, Nov. 8.—Instrumental music by Misses Alma Robbins and Mary Wood.
Select Reading—Miss H. McClue.
Song—Miss Lila Doty.
Recitation—Miss Mary Wood.
Declamation—Mr. Chas. Patterson.
Debate, Question—"Resolved that inventions are a benefit to the working classes." Affirmative—Messrs A. R. Pardington and F. Potter and Miss Franc Richart. Negative—Messrs. H. Dewey, W. Peters and E. Hendershot. Critic, Miss A. Robbins.

Monday evening, Nov. 15.—Instrumental music—Mr. H. Dunn.
Select Reading—Miss H. Church.
Song—Miss J. Anthony.
Recitation—Miss L. Hailey.
Declamation—Mr. E. Walker.
Debate, Question—"Resolved that the signs of the times indicate the downfall of the nation." Affirmative, Messrs. M. Wilson and W. Harding and Miss E. Miller. Negative—Messrs. E. Fairfield and C. Bramble, and Miss Sarah Toland.
Critic—Elmer Hendershot.

LAST week the body of Nathan Marlett, of Adrian township, was exhumed from its resting place by ghouls. As soon as the officers were acquainted with the fact, officer Miller and deputy Merritt started for Ann Arbor. Here they were assisted by the authorities in every possible way and gained admission to the horror of horrors, the room where the bodies received by the University are pickled. The body in question was soon recognized among a number in the vat and the officers conveyed the body home to the friends. Circumstantial evidence led to the arrest of Emory Watts and Frank Watts, of Adrian, as the doers of the ghastly act.

TO YOUNG READERS.

Form home libraries. No matter how few or small the books are to commence with, they will make a beginning, and that once made, you will wonder at its growth. Don't let your books be scattered through every room in the house. If you haven't shelves, make them. They need not be of black walnut, and they will hold books if they are not polished. It's a poor sort of boy that cannot knock together half a dozen boards that will answer such a purpose.

And now suppose that you have made your shelves, or bought them, or have them already at hand, and have brought together all the books which you can lay claim to, big and little, important and unimportant, school books and all, how shall the yet vacant space be filled?

Make it a rule, in the first place, to put nothing in but what is good—no dime novels, pirate stories, or milk-and-water trash by popular "series" authors. One genuine good book is worth a solid cord of such. Get something that lasts; something that you can take up again and again with pleasure; something that teaches while it amuses.

Let us make a few suggestions. Of all the books published, we know of nothing better to base a home library upon than the several volumes of the Wide Awake Pleasure Book. Its contents cover a wider range of subjects than any other publication of the kind we know of, and are made up of contributions from the very highest literary talent in England and America, all written expressly for its pages and lavishly illustrated by the best artists. Each number is a perfect treasure house. The stories are bright, breezy and healthy, and the poetry is of the same character. The presence of this set of books in a family would exert an influence for good not to be lightly estimated. They are clearly printed and beautifully bound.

Then add the two volumes of Poets' Homes, and the two companion volumes of Our American Artists, four books without which no household library is possibly complete.

Find a place then for the issues in the Spare Minute Series—Thoughts that Breathe, Might of Right, Cheerful Words and True Manliness, with the volumes that are to come. In the line of history there are the six volumes by Miss Yonge, and the new series just begun of Lothrop's Library of Entertaining History. Add to these Eyes Right and Four Feet, Wings, and Fins for lovers of natural history; Mrs. Lillie's Story of English Literature; Mrs. Pearson's Gutenberg, or the Art of Printing, and Hopkins's Waifs and Their Authors. Let the girls, if there are any in the family, add, as they can, the "Pansy" books, Ella Farman's Cooking Club, A White Hand and Anna Maylie, and Julia A. Eastman's series of girls' stories, while the boys should not forget Good-for-Nothing Polly, the Out-of-School Series, and Mr. Rand's Pushing Ahead and Bark Cabin on Kearsarge. And then for filling out the shelves for the little ones, no library would be complete without Clara Doty Bates' Classics of Babyland, Pansy's Our Darlings and Little People in Picture and Story; Baby Bunting, the King of Picture Books, Pictures for Our Darlings, and Baby's Portfolio. A new idea is set forth in Pictures for Language Lessons, a collection of beautiful pictures, to be used as subjects for stories in homes and schools. Each of the twenty-four pictures in printed on heavy cardboard, 6x7½ inches, and contains in itself the material for a story, to be told by the little pupil. Many of these pictures are handsome enough to frame. Besides these there is an immense variety of picture and story books, ranging in price from ten cents to a dollar.

We might go on almost without limit, but with these suggestions for a beginning, we leave the subject to the consideration of the great army of young readers for whom they are intended. All these volumes will be found included in the single list of D. Lothrop & Co.

Wide Awake is winning golden opinions in England, a large and special edition of the magazine being now published in London for the benefit of our young cousins over the sea. The London Literary World, a high critical authority, has this to say of it:

"This is a very sumptuous monthly full of such reading as may gratify the varied tastes which children as well as grown-up people, cherish. Its illustrations, we are bold to say, are not to be matched in our own children's monthlies. They have the effect of drawings, and not that often singularly unfaithful reproduction of a drawing, called an engraving. As soon as this very striking magazine becomes known, many homes will be thankful to the English publishers for bringing it within their reach."

The Little Folks' Reader, issued monthly, by D. Lothrop & Co., as a reader for primary schools, has become very popular as a magazine for home reading. Each number is beautifully illustrated.

During his late visit to England, Mr. D. Lothrop, of the firm of D. Lothrop & Co., purchased of Kate Greenaway the picture she is painting for the next Royal Academy Exhibition in London. It will be engraved as the frontispiece of the Christmas number of Babyland. Mr. Lothrop also secured a new work by the author of Israel Mort, Overman, called The Tempter Behind, which will be published in advance of the English edition.

The publishers of Wide Awake have secured for that magazine the new story which George MacDonald is now writing. It will be printed directly from the author's own manuscript.

A choice and beautiful presentation volume, prepared by D. Lothrop & Co. expressly for the coming holiday season, is The New England Story Book, containing thirty-seven stories by prominent New England authors, among them, Mrs. A. D. T. Whitney, Celia Thaxter, Elizabeth Stuart Phelps, Nora Perry, Mrs. A. M. Diaz, Sophie May, Blanche Howard, Lizzie W. Champney, and others. There are a large number of exquisite illustrations, and the binding is tasteful and elegant.

The Keepsake Text Book, a beautiful volume now in press, will be ready soon. It contains Scriptural texts upon one page, and blanks for writing upon the other.

A NEW PAYING OCCUPATION FOR LADIES AND GENTLEMEN.

The handsome Nickel Plated New Home Lamp being introduced to the public this season, is the most meritorious article ever offered Agents to make money with, is safer, and more convenient than the Student Lamp, which has heretofore had the reputation of being the Safest Lamp made, it has a clamp to firmly attach it to the Sewing Machine, Piano, Organ, Desk, etc. The fear of the ordinary lamp being accidentally upset or thrown from the table, is entirely relieved by this simple contrivance. It can be adjusted to throw the light just where it is wanted to suit the eyes, and can be converted into a handsome wall lamp. It has the best argand burner, a filling indicator, and convenient match box, and its price is within the reach of everyone. It has been fully tested and editorially endorsed by the "Western Christian Advocate," "Am. Christian Review," "Herald and Presbyter," "Journal and Messenger," and "Christian Standard," the leading Religious papers of Cincinnati, and is endorsed by the Mayor and Post-Master of Cincinnati, the Agent of the American Express Companies, as being the Safest, Most Convenient and best Lamp made.

There are three reasons why Agents should seek such an article to canvass for—first for its absolute safety and great convenience, it is needed in every home—second its low price makes its sale immense—third it will be a credit to handle such an article. One southern Agent writes, it sells faster than Gen. Lee's portrait sold right after the war, another writes it beats the palmy days of the Sewing Machine, its rapid sale, low price, and liberal terms surprise old Agents.—Address Home Lamp Co., Cincinnati, O. Mentioning our paper and they will give you full particulars and exclusive territory to canvass in.

A Wonderful Discovery.

For the speedy cure of Consumption and all diseases that lead to it, such as stubborn Coughs, neglected Colds Bronchitis, Hay Fever, Asthma, pain in the side and chest, dry hacking cough, tickling in the throat, Hoarseness, Sore Throat, and all chronic or lingering diseases of the throat and lungs. Dr. King's New Discovery has no equal and has established for itself a world-wide reputation. Many leading physicians recommend and use it in their practice. The formula from which it is prepared is highly recommended by all medical journals. The clergy and the press have complimented it in the most glowing terms. Go to your druggist and get a trial bottle free of cost, or regular size for $1.00. For sale by M. Wright & Son, Tecumseh, Mich.

Poverty and Suffering.

"I was dragged down with debt, poverty and suffering for years caused by a sick family and large bills for doctoring, which did them no good.—I was completely discouraged, until one year ago, by the advice of my pastor, I procured Hop Bitters and commenced their use, and in one month we were all well and none of us have seen a sick day since, and I want to say to all poor men, you can keep your families well a year with Hop Bitters for less than one doctor's visit will cost—I know it.

A WORKINGMAN."

How to Get Rich.

The great secret of obtaining riches, is first to practice economy, and as good old "Deacon Snyder," says, "It used to worry the life out of me to pay enormous doctor's bills, but now I have 'struck it rich.'" Health and happiness reign supreme in our little household, and all simply because we use no other medicine but Electric Bitters and only costs fifty cents a bottle. Sold by C. A Wright & Co., Tecumseh.

THE FARMERS' PAGE.

WINTER DAIRYING.

The better class of livers in the United States are beginning to demand good, fresh butter instead of the salted article which has hitherto been eaten through the winter months. In consequence those farmers who try to please the palate by producing a sweet, nutty-tasting commodity, will reap their reward by receiving a remunerating price. Setting aside fancy prices, it is certain that a good, fair rate will always be paid for butter which can be depended upon to come to hand weekly in uniform quality. The best butter-maker in the United States fails unless the cows are fed properly, therefore there must be the right sort of food. The hay should be made from grass cut when in blossom, and this alone will do, but some corn meal and wheat bran will increase the cream and add to the rich flavor of the butter. Also the use of carrots will cause a greater flow of milk, and there will be then the peculiarly fresh taste which characterizes butter when cows are in good pasture in June. Of course comfortable stabling, cleanliness, and exercise in a sheltered yard will be requisite for full success. The cows should have their calves in September or thereabouts, and the heifer calves from all good-milkers should be raised, which can be done on the skimmed milk. In the autumn there is no forage or food of any kind, better for milch cows as a help to failing pasture than pumpkins. I have used them freely for years with the best results, and find the fear of the seeds all nonsense. At the present time I have a fine lot growing among the corn and about three acres planted near the barn, which together will be sufficient to last till Christmas if I can secure a portion of them from frost. After the pumpkins are gone, carrots are better than any other variety of roots, and if feed till grass comes again there need be no loss of quality in the butter. The quantity of the milk will be equal to the best grass season, and will depend upon the cows. Any man having common sense, and managing properly, can obtain double the average given by cows of the kind usually met with, if he will buy good ones and breed from none but deep milkers, and from bulls which are from a deep milking strain.—Correspondence of Country Gentleman.

THE COMING FENCE.

The Farm Journal gives in a few words its opinions concerning the fences of a no distant future. It says: "1st, the fencing material of the era now dawning will consist more largely of iron than heretofore, but, 2d, iron posts will not be used unless there is a great fall in the price of iron, a circumstance not likely to occur. 3d, to turn cattle and horses only, a fence consisting of wooden posts with three iron No. 6 wires will prove the cheapest and best fence. The bottom wire, about two feet from the ground, may have barbs upon it, to prevent cattle from pushing against it; the top wire should have plastering lath wired to it horizontally, the lath whitewashed, to prevent animals running into the fence. 4th, to turn sheep and hogs wooden fence is cheapest and best.—5th, as to the fence of the more distant future for turning cattle, we are not prepared to name it, but many farmers in the old dairy sections will say 'fence, no fence.' The soiling system that will feed and support one hundred cows on one hundred acres requires no fence at all, for the cows do not graze, but are fed at the barn winter and summer."

SALT FOR POULTRY.

Hens often have a habit of biting and pulling their feathers and greedily eating them until their bodies are bare. This practice, it is believed, is occasioned by a want of salt, as when salted food is given them they make no attempt to continue the habit.—Salt pork chopped very fine and feed twice a week has been adopted with success, while others put a teaspoonful of salt with two quarts of meal or shorts, moistened, well mixed, and fed about twice every week. Fowls, like human beings, to be healthy must have a certain allowance of salt. So long as the American people prize sugar sweet cakes, and the New York hotels consume 1,800,000 chickens and poultry, and 5,500,000 of eggs every week, the poultry business in this country will remain a good one. Give your fowls warm, clean houses, and dry grassy runs, if you would have them clear of roup and canker. And feed them regularly with good nourishing food, if you would have them free from disease, lay more eggs, and be more profitable every day.

Perhaps the heaviest returns ever obtained in this country from a single sheep was secured last year by Daniel Smith, of Hinsdale, N. H., who raised from a Shropshire ewe three lambs, which he sold for $18, and the wool of the ewe for $1,50, making the total income from the sheep $19.50.

BONE DUST AND WOOD ASHES.

One of our subscribers in Indiana sends us the following results of experiments with bone-dust and wood ashes on wheat: "I applied 600 pounds of dry, unbleached ashes to the acre, and sowed wheat on that, and the result was only six bushels to the acre. Adjoining this tract I drilled in 200 pounds of bone-dust, and the three acres produced twenty bushels to the acre, being an increased yield of fourteen bushels over the tract sown with wood ashes. The following year I used 200 pounds of bone-dust on the plat which I had previously sown 600 lbs. of ashes, and the result was forty bushels of wheat to the acre, being double what the bone produced alone. This experiment satisfied me that ashes alone nor bone alone would not give me a yield that paid to my satisfaction. The acre with ashes yielded six bushels, the acre with bone-dust yielded twenty bushels, but when the two were combined I harvested forty bushels." This shows what experiments and a small expenditure of money will do for the progressive farmer.—Ohio Practical Farmer.

THE GREATEST MEDICAL DISCOVERY OF THE AGE.

Kellogg's Columbian Oil is a powerful remedy, which can be taken internally as well as externally by the tenderest infant. It cures almost instantly, is pleasant, acting directly upon the nervous system, causing sudden buoyancy of the mind. In short the wonderful effects of this most wonderful remedy cannot be explained in written language. A single dose inhaled and taken according to directions will convince any one that it is all that is claimed for it. Warranted to cure the following diseases: Rheumatism or Kidney Disease in any form, Headache, Toothache, Neuralgia, Sprains, Bruises, Flesh Wounds, Bunions, Burns, Corns, Spinal Affection, Colic, Cramping Pains, Cholera Morbus, Flux, Diarrhoea, Coughs, Colds, Bronchial affection, Catarrh, and all aches and pains, external and internal. Full directions with each bottle. For sale by C. A. Wright & Co., Tecumseh.

WET LANDS.

When wet lands are drained, the water enters through the joints of the drain-tiles all along their course. It is not necessary to provide inlets for the water. It must be remembered that if drain-tiles are laid three feet below the surface the pressure of the water above them is considerable, and will force a large quantity through a very small space. The tiles may be laid so close that a knife-blade cannot be inserted between them, and yet the entering water will be sufficient to keep an inch and a half tile, sixty rods long, full in wet weather. The cost of draining land depends on several conditions, such as the character of the soil, the distance of the drains apart, the depth of the drains; the size of tile depending upon the wetness of the soil; all these may vary the cost from about $30 to $50 per acre.—Prairie Farmer.

Given Up by the Doctors.

Where doctors have failed to cure, and have given their patients up to die, Electric Bitters have often been used, and a cure effected, greatly to the astonishment of all. Diseases of the Stomach, Liver, Kidneys and Urinary Organs are positively cured by Electric Bitters. They invariably cure Constipation, Headache and all Bilious Attacks. Try them and be convinced that they are the best medicine ever used. Sold by C.A. Wright & Co. at fifty cents a bottle.

SEED CORN.

The method of selecting and saving seed corn, practiced by a New York farmer is, when husking, to select, from stalks having two or more ears—those having a small cob, well tipped out, rows regular and straight, bright and clear seed, and with no strange kernels. On such he leaves three or four husks, and when a quantity has accumulated he takes one or two dozen and braids the husks, adding the ears on one side. These "trusses" are then hung in some airy loft, where they will not be liable to be affected by moisture rising from anything stored beneath, or be attacked by insects or vermin. The deeper the kernel, with a given size of ear, the smaller the cob, and the larger the yield. The eye will easily detect this with a little practice.

A small article of great efficiency is American Ball-Blue. A favorite in every laundry. Unsurpassed for purity and brilliant effect. All grocers have it.

In Saxony dairies, milk is kept from souring by passing a thin iron chain through the milk pans, the ends of which chain are kept constantly in cold water.

Heavy draught breeding horses seem to be in greater demand, in the United States, than even before the days of railroads.

Country Gentleman.

THE BEST OF THE AGRICULTURAL WEEKLIES.

A Premium Annual to Every Reader.

THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN is UNSURPASSED, if not UNEQUALLED, for the Amount and Variety of the Practical Information it contains, and for the Ability and Extent of its Correspondence—in the Three Chief Directions of

Farm Crops and Processes,
Horticulture and Fruit-Growing,
Live Stock and Dairying—

while it also includes all minor departments of rural interest, such as the Poultry Yard, Entomology, Bee-Keeping, Greenhouse and Grapery, Veterinary Replies, Farm Questions and Answers, Fireside Reading, Domestic Economy, and a summary of the News of the Week. Its MARKET REPORTS are unusually complete, and more information can be gathered from its columns than from any other source with regard to the Prospects of the Crops, as throwing light upon one of the most important of all questions—When to Buy and When to Sell. It is liberally Illustrated, and constitutes to a greater degree than any of its contemporaries A LIVE

AGRICULTURAL NEWSPAPER

Of never-failing interest both to Producers and Consumers of every class.

THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN is published Weekly on the following terms, when paid strictly in advance: One Copy, one year, $2.50; Four Copies, $10, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the club; Ten Copies, $20, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the club.

For the year 1881, these prices include a copy of the ANNUAL REGISTER OF RURAL AFFAIRS, to each subscriber—a book of 144 pages and about 120 engravings—a gift by the Publishers.

All New Subscribers for 1881, paying in advance now, will receive the paper Weekly, from receipt of remittance to January 1st, 1881, without charge.

Specimen Copies of the Paper Free. Address

KIDNEY-WORT
THE ONLY MEDICINE
That Acts at the Same Time on
THE LIVER, THE BOWELS, and the KIDNEYS.

These great organs are the natural cleansers of the system. If they work well, health will be perfect; if they become clogged, dreadful diseases are sure to follow with

TERRIBLE SUFFERING.

Biliousness, Headache, Dyspepsia, Jaundice, Constipation and Piles, or Kidney Complaints, Gravel, Diabetes, Sediment in the Urine, Milky or Ropy Urine; or Rheumatic Pains and Aches, are developed because the blood is poisoned with the humors that should have been expelled naturally.

KIDNEY-WORT

will restore the healthy action and all these destroying evils will be banished; neglect them and you will live but to suffer.

Thousands have been cured. Try it and you will add one more to the number. Take it and health will once more gladden your heart.

Why suffer longer from the torment of an aching back?
Why bear such distress from Constipation and Piles?
Why be so fearful because of disordered urine?

KIDNEY-WORT will cure you. Try a package at once and be satisfied.

It is a dry vegetable compound and

THE BEST REMEDY
FOR
Diseases of the Throat and Lungs.

AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL.

In diseases of the pulmonary organs a safe and reliable remedy is invaluable. AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL is such a remedy, and no other so eminently merits the confidence of the public. It is a scientific combination of the medicinal principles and curative virtues of the finest drugs chemically united, of such power as to insure the greatest possible efficiency and uniformity of results. It strikes at the foundation of all pulmonary diseases, affording prompt relief and rapid cures, and is adapted to patients of any age or either sex. Being very palatable, the youngest children take it readily. In ordinary Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, Bronchitis, Influenza, Clergyman's Sore Throat, Asthma, Croup, and Catarrh, the effects of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL are magical, and multitudes are annually preserved from serious illness by its timely and faithful use. It should be kept at hand in every household for the protection it affords in sudden attacks. In Whooping-cough and Consumption there is no other remedy so efficacious, soothing, and helpful.

Low prices are inducements to try some of the many mixtures, or syrups, made of cheap and ineffective ingredients, now offered which, as they contain no curative qualities can afford only temporary relief, and are sure to deceive and disappoint the patient. Diseases of the throat and lungs demand active and effective treatment; and it is dangerous experimenting with unknown and cheap medicines, from the great liability that these diseases may, while so trifled with, become deeply seated or incurable. Use AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, and you may confidently expect the best results. It is a standard medical preparation, of known and acknowledged curative power, and is as cheap as its careful preparation and fine ingredients will allow. Eminent physicians, knowing its composition, prescribe it in their practice. The test of half a century has proven its absolute certainty to cure all pulmonary complaints not already beyond the reach of human aid.

HARPER'S YOUNG PEOPLE.
AN ILLUSTRATED WEEKLY—16 PAGES.
Suited to Boys and Girls of from Six to Sixteen Years of Age.

Volume II. commences Nov. 2, 1880.

NOW IS THE TIME TO SUBSCRIBE.

Within a year of its first appearance, HARPER'S YOUNG PEOPLE has secured a leading place among the periodicals designed for juvenile readers. The object of those who have the paper in charge is to provide for boys and girls from the age of six to sixteen a weekly treat in the way of entertaining stories, poems, historical sketches, and other attractive reading matter, the profuse and beautiful illustrations, and at the same time to make its spirit and influence harmonize with the moral atmosphere which pervades every cultivated Christian household. This important design they endeavor to carry out by combining the best literary and artistic talent so that fiction shall appear in bright and innocent colors, sober facts assume such a holiday dress as to be no longer dry or dull, and mental exercise, in the solution of puzzles, problems, and other devices, become a delight.

Mrs. Agnes Eaton is visiting relatives here.

Wm. Parks has taken himself to Clinton county.

George Chaple, of Detroit, spent Saturday and Sunday in the village.

George Boss is still confined to the house, though able to sit up a part of the time.

Milo Ousterhout has moved off the Wess Sanford place and is now domiciled in J. F. Temple's house on the Ridge.

Alfred Lawton is the proud father of a new daughter.

Mrs. Frank Pocklington is visiting her parents in Ohio.

Jess Exelby has concluded to run the "Exelby mill." It will be under the personal supervision of Orin Craft.

Frank Freer spent last Sunday at the Ridge.

Dor Cary and family occupy Dr. Loree's house at the foot of the hill.

Mr. Moore closed his term of school last Friday. The winter term will begin in a week or two and be taught by Rufus Raymond.

Sul Smith has opened a restaurant and candy and cigar store. Warm meals served upon application. This is what Ridgeway has needed for some time.

For Thanksgiving we shall have service in the church, to be followed by a dinner in the basement. Everybody especially invited to attend both and bring refreshments.

Christian church dedication to-morrow.

The matting has been laid in the halls and stairways of the M. E. church. The pulpit platform has been extended to accommodate the choir, who will occupy seats on the right of the pulpit.

The majority for Representative from this district was 582 instead of 519 as published in the Times.

RAISIN.

Perhaps one of the most pleasant surprises that has ever taken place in Raisin, for a long time, occurred Oct. 30th, at the house of James Brown on the Beamish farm. It was not until about three o'clock in the afternoon that neighbors and relatives began to flock in from all points of the compass, their intention being to celebrate the 20th anniversary of Mr. & Mrs. James Brown's wedded life.

The host was found tossing corn from the corn shock and the hostess plodding through the routine of household duties, each little thinking and not expecting to be made so conspicuous a mark of their knowledge of the event. At five o'clock about eighty persons having gathered, the presents, consisting of many useful and substantial gifts, among which were a full set of china from the relatives and a dozen silver knives and forks from the neighbors, were tastefully arranged on the extension table in the sitting room.

The family, composed of eight members, were then escorted to the table, and Rev. G. H. Field in a happy manner addressed them, making some pleasant references to matrimonial life, and closed by presenting the tokens before them as coming from loving hearts and significant of that best of all earthly rewards, the regard and affection of true friendship. Rev. Mr. Pardington followed with a short prayer. The children, Willet, Anna, Lena, Jacob, Andrew and Lulu, also, each received nice presents, the whole amounting in value to not less than $50.

Next came the refreshments, which could not have easily been improved, either in quality or variety, having been furnished by so many different families. The whole occasion was one of those peculiarly jolly and profitable ones characteristic of similar anniversaries, and as all who had participated separated for their homes they left many kind wishes with the family, and probably resolved in their minds how nice it would be to have a china wedding surprise themselves.

CAPTAIN EADS' SHIP RAILWAY.

The Scientific American of this week contains two full page illustrations of Captain Eads' proposed railway for transporting ships with their cargo across continents.

Captain Eads claims by his plan to be able to take loaded ships of the largest tonnage from one ocean to the other across the Isthmus of Panama, as readily as can be done by a canal after the Lessep's plan, and at a much less cost for engineering construction.

The project is certainly bold and ingenious, and the projector anticipates no serious difficulties in carrying forward his enterprise. The engravings referred to in the Scientific American show the proposed construction of not only the railroad, but the appliances for transferring the ships from the water to the rail.

In addition to the large number of engravings, illustrative of engineering works, inventions and new discoveries which appear weekly, the Scientific American has, during the past year, devoted considerable space to illustrating and describing leading establishments devoted to different manufacturing industries.

This feature has added very much to the attractiveness and usefulness of the paper. More than fifty of the most important industrial establishments of our country have been illustrated, and the processes of the different manufactures described in its columns. The Scientific American has been published for more than thirty-four years by Munn & Co., 37 Park Row, N. Y., and has attained a larger weekly circulation than all similar papers published in the country. The publishers assure the public that they have not printed less than 50,000 copies a week for several months.

Remarkable Cures of Kidney Diseases.

Mr. L. Jackson, of Boston, an extensive produce dealer, was persuaded to give the Kidney-Wort a trial. He writes July 21 for more, and says:

"I used most of one package myself last winter. I had soreness across my kidneys and my water would turn milky after standing a short time. The Kidney-Wort cured me. I gave some of it to a lady who had for a long time been obliged to make water every half hour or less, and suffered much from irritation of the urinary organs, and it cured her. About two months ago, I gave some of the medicine to a gentleman who is foreman in a Sewing Machine Manufactory in Boston. I met him last Thursday, and he told me he was using the third package, and the night before he laid all night without getting up to make water, a thing he had not done before for more than fifteen years. He says it has done more for him than all he has ever taken before, and he has paid out more than a thousand dollars for medicine. It is evident from these facts, that Kidney-Wort is a great thing for diseases of the kindeys and urinary organs."

GLEANINGS FROM THE COUNTY PAPERS.

The veteran Carl Draw, of Blissfield has engaged to travel for a Detroit grocery house the coming winter.

Clinton News: A Clinton gallant came to grief the other day by presenting the idol of his heart with a pair of solitaire ear-rings wrapped up in a ninety-nine cent store advertisement. He says it was entirely an accident, but she sent the jewelry back and wont speak to him on the street.

Morenci Observer: We regret to hear that the symptoms of insanity which began to appear in the case of Moses Negus, an old settler of this township, about a month since, have assumed so decided a type that his friends are about to take measures to remove him to the asylum at Flint; and it is feared that his case is an incurable one. He is at present but a ravin maniac.

Morenci Observer: Last Sabbath completed the 7th year of Rev. Mr. VanAntwerp's pastorate of the Congregational church in this village, and the society have promptly engaged him for another year; as a more thoughtful, laborious and faithful minister could not be obtained for the position. The repairs of the church being completed, one week from to-morrow is to be observed as a memorial day by the church and Sabbath school.

Morenci Observer: A successor to Judge Pratt, of this judicial district, is to be elected next spring, and already our people are looking about for the coming man. We could wish that some young man fully competent for the position, and who is full of energy, ambition and work, will be the recipient of the judicial ermine of this important district. If Morenci is to furnish the man, we name J. F. Welch, as having all the qualifications necessary for the place.

Morenci Observer: Miss Franc J. Baker, was the purchaser of most of the Morenci lots sold for non-payment of taxes at the county treasurer's office Oct. 4th. Of course, it is easy to guess that the ancient T. S. is managing the matter and a little prospective "scalping" was the governing motive in the transaction. One poor victim, whose lot of an acre and a half was sold for about $5, has been offered a settlement for $100. And more remains to be heard from.

Hudson Post: Mr. Alonzo Palmer, one of the old time residents of Hudson, but for a few years past living at Jonesville, has closed out his business at that place, and connected himself with one of the best flouring mills in Michigan, at Three Rivers. Mr. Palmer is known to our citizens as an energetic, go-ahead man, and will have the respect and friendship of all with whom he may become associated, and in the business of milling we believe will prove to be "the right man in the right place."

Clinton News: The largest and most pleasant social gathering of the season was the occasion of the infair given at the residence of E. W. Freese, on Wednesday evening of last week, in honor of the marriage of his son, Charles E. to Miss Mary Hobart, of Blissfield. Over four hundred invitations had been issued, and the palatial residence was crowded to its utmost capacity with friends of the bride and groom, all in their best good humor. At about nine o'clock an elegant repast was served.

Hudson Post: About a year ago some clover seed was stolen from the barn of William Robins, of Wheatland, and other places, and the seed taken to Adrian and sold. Investigation showed that James Murphy, of this township, and a James Waite, as he called himself, were the thieves.—Both parties immediately skipped the country, and for about a year they could not be found. Deputy Sheriff Wood, of Wheatland, however, obtained a trace of Murphy about a month ago, and went to Manistee and brought him to Hillsdale, where he pleaded guilty and was sentenced to a year's imprisonment at the House of Correction at Ionia. Last week Deputy Sheriff Potts got track of Waite, and having a warrant that officer immediately proceeded to Three Rivers, where he got his man. Waite was married to an estimable young lady near Three Rivers this summer, and has been spending the latter part of the season on the lakes as a sailor. He goes by the name of Stephen Kellogg at his new home. After his arrest he was brought here and arraigned before Justice Hiller, where he pleaded not guilty, and the trial was adjourned until Thursday of this week. Kellogg has in the meantime reposed at the county jail.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

From our Regular Correspondent.

ELECTIONS AND DEPARTMENT CLERKS.

Washington, Nov. 6, 1880.

There is a universal feeling of relief and gladness here that the long and bitter campaign is at an end, and that the result is decisive. Now we may turn our attention to other and more pleasant subjects. No matter which side we are on, whether defeated or successful, there is a certain strain and friction incident to such a struggle from which we rejoice to be relieved by its close. Over the result in the present instance, however, there are as widely different feelings here as elsewhere. The Republicans are in great glee and can scarcely restrain themselves, while Democrats are disappointed and gloomy. Yet such is politics. One party or the other must suffer defeat, and judging from the past there is every reason to believe that the Democrats will bear it as philosophically and heroically as any party could under the same circumstances. The disappointment over the final result is not apparently as great to them as was that over the loss of Indiana in October. From that time I think most Democrats regarded the case almost hopeless. At least that appeared to be the feeling among them in this city, where people pretend to know a good deal about politics. During the first eight or nine weeks following the Cincinnati convention no Democrat could be found who believed the defeat of Hancock a possibility, and there were some shaky Republicans of the same way of thinking. The causes that have brought about that result are too well understood to require recapitulation here. The preponderance of feeling among Democrats, now that they see success would have been secured with New York, is that John Kelly defeated them. In the face of all other influences, such as the business boom, the opposition to a solid South and to a change, they argue that but for the machinations of the Boss of Tammany Hall, New York City would have given its usual majority and Hancock would have been elected.

Among the clerks in the departments here, joy is unbounded. They were all decidedly opposed to a change, naturally enough, though not without fears that it might come. The general result being ascertained the pleasure was enhanced by going over the details of the election returns.—These never failed to give satisfaction. Perhaps, however, there is an exception, as a great many regret that New Jersey and the two Pacific States did not wheel in line to complete the solid North. This, however, is a slight objection, and does not interfere with the undisguised satisfaction with which the results of the election are received. Whether an entirely new Cabinet, which Garfield is said to be pledged to make, will cause so much of the "change" to which employes are so earnestly opposed, can not be foretold. If the heads of departments are altogether changed very likely other changes will follow, but they would not be at all general. John Sherman announces that he is not to stay at the head of the Treasury Department, but expects to take the seat to which Garfield was elected in the Senate.

While business is a little slack in the departments the clerks find various and varied methods of amusing themselves. Lately a gentleman whose yard is adjacent to the Pension Office came to the Commissioner with a singular complaint. It seems that the clerks in that office have whiled away their leisure moments in shooting rubber bands at the man's chickens. They got up quite a rivalry as to who was the best marksman. The chickens didn't complain. On the contrary, they took the bands for worms, and ate them. Several of them died. The owner could not account for their demise. Bye and bye some more turned up their toes. In a spirit of investigation he cut the deceased birds open, and found their craws stuffed with rubber bands. He was as much astonished as was the owner of the jumping frog, told of by Mark Twain, when he discovered that his pet had been stuffed with shot. He soon learned where the rubbers came from, and made complaint to Commissioner Bentley, who has issued a prohibitory order as to target practice on chickens.

In the Census Bureau, where an immense volume of labor is being performed in getting statistics of the census into shape, the clerks find a good deal of amusement in the singularity of names, strange communications and other incidents. DON PEDRO.

BE HONEST.

Young man just commencing life's turbulent career, in whatever pursuit—whether in the free, manly industry of the farm and the workshop; in the professional, or in the more hazardous and wearing mercantile undertakings—let me say to you, be honest. You have doubtless been told this in print and by word, since your earliest recollection. But have you realized the full import of its meaning—of what vital importance it is to your whole career? In brief, it amounts to just this: If you wish to succeed, to be happy and respected, then be honest, freely and heartily, for principle's and honesty's sake. If you wish to go down to ruin, shame and dishonor, then be dishonest, untruthful, tricky, and your wishes will be speedily carried into effect. You may see the time when the temporary success of unprincipled undertakings may allure, but do not be deceived. Be firm as a rock for truth and right, and you will find yourself on the rising road to fortune and fame when their rotten structures are toppling to destruction. If you are intrusted by others with their interests and business, prove worthy of the trust in every particular. You will have hard battles to fight, but keep up your courage and stick to principles of right. Let not the hell-gilded allurements of the practices and amusements of those who spend more money uselessly each week than their wages amount to, ever lead you from a firm determination to be honest and manly, and you cannot help but succeed. You may oftentimes find yourself spurned, neglected, and those less worthy promoted over you, but let this not swerve you. In time your success, your upward career, will be all the speedier, all the more glorious. Never misrepresent to make a sale. Never advertise a humbug, falsehood or colorable statement. Be frank, gentlemanly and honest, and charge for your labor and your products all they are worth, just what you can afford to take, and you will find plenty to appreciate, plenty to patronize.

Young men, let me especially and earnestly advise you to so conduct your lives and acts that each night, when you seek your pillow, you can truthfully say to yourself and to God: I have been faithful, truthful and honest. I have not wronged others to enrich myself. If you do this you will be happy and successful. A peace and a joy of heart and mind will be yours, which the world could not purchase from you. There is nothing in all my varied experience which gives me so great comfort and abiding satisfaction as an inward consciousness that I have never been tempted to grossly misrepresent, nor to unlawfully appropriate to myself a single fraction nor farthing intrusted to my care.

Young men, you will be greatly tempted: you may have reverses and misfortunes, may be foully slandered; but be steadfast for truth and honesty, proving to the world by your lives that your reverses are not through your carelessness or inability; that contingent slanders are without foundation, and success will supplant misfortune, and slander will revert with crushing force on the heads of its inventors.

Stay on the Farm.

The Practical Farmer relates an instance of a nice boy in the country, who, having came into possession of a few thousand dollars, visited an uncle in the city, an old merchant, to get his advice about investing his capital in business. "I have been in business nearly forty years, and have accumulated a fortune, but it has been done at fearful risks, heavy responsibilities, constant toil and worrying anxieties. A dozen times I have been on the verge of bankruptcy, and twice I have been sorely tempted to take my own life. Of ten men who commenced business here when I did, only one besides myself has succeeded, some dragging families to poverty and disgrace. Go back to the farm, young man," said the merchant, "and invest your money in land and settle down on it, and do a safe business. Take my advice, and keep away from the city and its delusive avenues. Quiet and content on a moderate competency in the country is the best fortune I could wish you.

Feels Young Again.

"My mother was afflicted a long time with Neuralgia and a dull, heavy, inactive condition of the whole system, headache, nervous prostration, and was almost helpless. No physicians or medicines did her any good. Three months ago she began to use Hop Bitters, with such good effect that she seems and feels young again, although over 70 years old.—We think there is no other medicine fit to use in the family."—A lady, Providence, R. Benjamin A. Shepard, the successful candidate for prosecuting attorney of Hillsdale county, is dangerously ill and his recovery is doubtful.

Bronson gave a Republican majority for the first time in twenty years, and the Greenback vote was reduced from 292 to 142.

Charles Weatherstrand, the alleged Hillsdale forger, has been admitted to bail, to appear for trial at the January term of court.

The Grand Rapids Leader argues that there has been a big Greenback vote, but that the news thereof is suppressed in every conceivable way.

The census of Roscommon county footed up at 1,417—men, women and children—but they managed to poll 1,026 votes. The elasticity of that population is something remarkable.

Of the hundreds of election returns sent into the various headquarters, newspaper offices, etc., at Detroit on the 3d, only four alluded to the vote on the constitutional amendment.

At Lakeview, recently, John Turk was run over by a car on a tramway, and had one leg broken so badly as to necessitate amputation. John Hickey had one hand badly injured in a sawmill at the same place.

Samuel Edgerton, of Orion, a brakeman on the Detroit & Bay City railroad, was killed at Lapeer last Wednesday night. A switch was left open and the train of freight cars upon which he was working was ditched and wrecked. The engineer and fireman were also hurt, and escaped by a miracle, as it were, after their engine had capsized.

The Sims hotel, at Orion, which burned last Thursday, was the property that figured in the great Orion lottery scheme, for which many tickets were sold last summer, but on which no drawing has yet taken place. Sims is credited with saying that he will rebuild and thus keep good faith with the ticket holders. The loss by the fire was about $5,000, with $2,000 insurance.

Herman Ziem, brother of Charles Ziem, arrived in this city on Monday from Dallas, Texas, traveling from that point to this city, over 2,000 miles, with a team and wagon, passing over mountain ranges, etc., the entire journey lasting nine weeks and one day. Up to within three weeks ago his wife and family roughed it through with him, but when they had reached Quincy, Ill., he sent them on by rail.—Saginaw Courier.

Four of the Southern Republican nominees for Congress were graduates of the University of Michigan. They were the following: Augustus H. LEGAL NOTICES.

ESTATE OF HENRY TRIPP.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, ss.

At a session of the Probate Court for the County of Lenawee, holden at the Probate Office in the City of Adrian, on Monday, the 18th day of October, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty.

Present Norman Geddes, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Henry Tripp, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of Edwin B. Wood, administrator of said estate, alleging that he has paid the expenses of administration thus far incurred, the expenses of last illness and funeral of said deceased, and the dividend heretofore declared by this court to the creditors of said deceased, and praying for the allowance of his final account; that the residue of the estate of said deceased be distributed to and amongst the creditors of said deceased or other persons entitled thereto, and for his discharge.

Thereupon it is ordered, that Monday, the 15th day of November next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court then to be holden at the Probate office in the city of Adrian, and show cause if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, that said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing. (A True Copy.)

THE FARMERS' PAGE.

FARMERS' WIVES AND THEIR NEEDS.

Mrs. Clara Colby of Nebraska read a very sensible paper before the Women's Congress at Boston on the ills which attend the life of the farmers' wife. Her pictures of the characteristics of existence on a farm were drawn chiefly from observation of the farming communities of the West and of the far West; but the life she describes is little different from that we see in the agricultural portions of even the oldest States in the East.

There is the same monotony, the same seclusion, and the same lack of wholesome friction with society, whether the detached farm is in Nebraska or in New York, and the daily routine in the one place is very like that in the other. Moreover, we must remember that our great farming regions are no longer at the East; that the richest granaries of the country and of the world are not now in the Genessee Valley, but in Minnesota and beyond.

Mrs. Colby first spoke of early marriages as fruitful of many troubles.—Matrimony is easily undertaken in rural life, and the country girl assumes the cares of a household and of maternity at an age when city and village girls are still at school. Her health is likely to break down in consequence, her nerves to become shattered, and the hardships which severe poverty adds to the many which are necessarily incident to farm life in its beginning make her old prematurely, and she may add another to "the long list of farmers' wives who are found in our insane asylums."

When a country boy thinks of starting out for himself in life, his first care is to look out for a wife among the neighboring girls. Perhaps there are not many competitors to interfere with him, and if he is a likely young fellow, he is not apt to find it hard to win a helpmeet. He is not after money, nor a fine social alliance. All he wants is a wife, and because he has nothing to offer but his heart the girl is none the less ready to accept him. Worldly considerations do not affect her choice of a husband.

She receives a cow and a feathier bed as her dowry, and he gets a team from his father as his capital in business, after having given his work under parental authority up to the age of twenty-one. This, Mrs. Colby says, is the common custom throughout the region of which she knows, and it is substantially the same as that prevalent in the old States.

The couple may begin housekeeping on a rented farm, one-third of the produce of which comes to them for their toil. If they get more than a bare subsistence, it must be an exceptionally good year for crops and prices. Perhaps some of the young men may be able to buy their own farms, or make a first payment on them. In the East the oldest and in the West the youngest son generally stays at the homestead, but the life is apt to be irksome to him, and at last he plucks up courage and goes after his brothers to new fields in the West.

The most eastern States for these pioneers nowadays are Iowa and Minnesota, but the chief objective points are Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas and Texas. Dugouts, unhealthy and gloomy at best, may be their first habitation, and even when houses are built they are small, inconvenient, and finished only in degrees. The women's work in them is peculiarly trying. "No one only familiar with the comfortable homesteads of the East, can form any conception of what farming is to the woman. The fuel is not under cover, the water is hard to draw. When the land is bought, and not homesteaded, there are the payments to be met; and until the land is clear the farmer feels that nothing must be expended for comforts in the house."

Debt and poverty rest over these homes, overwork breaks down the women, who may rebel against the hardships of their lives, and seek to change them by escaping from the bonds of matrimony. "Divorces are frightfully common among the farmers of the West," Mrs. Colby tells us. And even when the farmer's wife sees her husband gaining in prosperity she finds no lessening of her arduous labors. They may rather increase.—"More stock, more grain and fruit, more help to the farmer, all these mean more work to the woman. She can seldom procure help, for such as there is naturally seeks the town." Besides taking care of the house and children, she must look after the poultry, and, her husband having no time to "putter" in the garden, she must plant, hoe, and gather such vegetables as she needs for the table. She is cook, nurse, washmaid, chore boy, gardener, all in one. She loses regard for her personal appearance, and perhaps becomes an untidy drudge, careless of beauty in herself and surroundings. "Anything will do at home or is good enough for the family. They live, as they tell you, a dog's life of it, but without a thought that they are in any way responsible for their wretchedness."

They do not even have the diversion and excitement of buying their own clothes. "As a rule, the husband makes the purchases, even to procuring his wife's dresses, while she rarely or never has control of a dollar. The wife remains a child in finance, and if she is ever entrusted with the shopping, she does it awkwardly and unwisely." She may get to town twice a year; her nearest neighbor may be miles away; the loneliness of the farm life drives the daughters to town to work, and leaves the mother to still greater loneliness at home, "in which perhaps, the spirit chafes until it breaks the bounds of reason."

An early marriage has prevented her getting sufficient schooling, and she is lamentably deficient in intellectual resources. She knows nothing of hygene, and only a stout constitution can resist the hard usage to which she subjects her health with indigestible food and impure air. What little social intercourse she has may serve to add to her labors rather than to relieve them; for when she entertains, she is overcome with the work of providing a profusion of food for her company, and "the extra fuss necessitates extra stinting afterward."

This is a gloomy picture certainly, and the life it holds up to us is one devoid of all the graces and beauties which make existence tolerable to a person of refinement or of social taste. And yet, that it truthfully represents the circumstances of the lives of many thousand farmers' wifes there can be no question. Their hard lot and the dreary monotony and coarse toil of their existence are told in their haggard faces and dull eyes.

But what is the remedy? Mrs. Colby advocates the establishment of agricultural colleges in every State, with free tuition for both men and woman, for by the census of 1870 there were over 200,000 women in the United States engaged in agricultural pursuits, besides 5,000,000 farmers' wives. She would also have colleges of domestic economy for girls, where the proper preparations of food, care of the health and dwelling, and household thrift should be taught. "The educated woman will manage more economically, govern more wisely, and work more advantageously, besides having a better time in doing it." She should also be stimulated to interest herself in the country agricultural society, and these societies should become a guild looking after the welfare of their individual member, men and women both. "The grange might have been such a guild had it not undertaken to manage the politics and finances of the nation; yet even this has been a great educator to women in districts where it has been successfully established."

There is no class in the country whose moral and intellectual improvement needs more care than the farmers' wives, and none whose social wants are so ill supplied.

BROICHE.—This is an excellent light cake for breakfast or luncheon, and is much used in France. Beat one-quarter pound butter until it is in a cream; take three eggs, and beat until light; mix thoroughly with the butter; add to this one half pound sifted flour, and to this mix one small cake compressed yeast; then a gill of water; set to rise over night in a warm place, put in turban form, and bake in a quick oven.

BRAN AS A MEDICAL AGENT.—A German scientific paper of recognized authority, Die Fundgrube, recommends tea of bran as a specific against coughs, colds, fever and restlessness. To a handful of bran of either wheat or rye should be added about a quart of water, this should boil a good half hour, then be strained, and a little lemon juice or sugar may be added to the taste. It is said to make a pleasant and nutritious beverage, always having a quieting effect on the system.

THANKSGIVING PROCLAMATION.

BY THE PRESIDENT.

At no period in their history since the United States became a nation has this people had so abundant and so universal reasons for joy and gratitude at the favor of Almighty God or been subject to so profound an obligation to give thanks for His loving kindness and humbly to implore His continued care and protection. Health, wealth, and prosperity throughout all our borders; peace honor, and friendship with all the world; firm and faithful adherence by the great body of our population to the principles of liberty and justice which have made our greatness as a nation and to the wise institutions and strong frame of government and the society which will perpetuate it, for all these let the thanks of a happy and united people, as with one voice, ascend in devout homage to the Giver of all good. I therefore recommend that on Thursday, the 25th day of November next, the people meet in their respective places of worship to make the acknowledgement to Almighty God for His bounties and His protection, and to offer to Him prayer for their continuance.

In witness hereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done in the city of Washington this first day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eighty, and the Independence of the United States the one hundred and fifth. R. B. HAYES.

[SEAL.]

By the President: WM. M. EVARTS, Secretary of State.

THE ELECTIONS.

The returns of the late election have been received pretty fully now, at least sufficiently so to indicate the general result. Hancock will receive the 138 electoral votes of the South; also the nine of New Jersey, the three of Nevada, and five from California, making a total of 155. Garfield will get 214. The result in California was peculiar. The Hancock electoral ticket was chosen by 150 majority excepting one man, who was badly scratched, which gave one Garfield elector a majority. The majority for Garfield in the State of New York will be about 20,000, the Herald and Sun, both independent papers, placing it at that figure. The shrinkage of the natural democratic majorities in New York city and Brookiyn was at least 35,000, and this result was caused, as is now very generally conceded, by the treachery of John Kelly and Tammany Hall. Had the Democrats in those cities done their duty, Hancock would have carried New York and been elected. Garfield therefore owes his election to John Kelly and Tammany Hall. He will undoubtedly feel much humiliated at receiving aid from that quarter, but we do not apprehend that he will refuse the electoral votes of New York on that ground.

In the next Congress, the Democrats will control the U. S. Senate by two majority, counting Mahone, of Virginia, on that side. Should Mahone decide to act with the Republicans, the Senate will be a tie.

In the House the Republicans will have a majority of about ten, providing the Greenbackers elected from the Southern States shall act on that side, which is more than probable. The Democrats lose about a dozen districts in the South and nearly every loss was brought about by a coalition of Republicans and Greenbackers. The party of "honest money" would be greatly shocked at receiving Greenback assistance in the North, but it is not very probable that they will repel their Southern Greenback allies, when by utilizing that force they can secure the House organization. The next House will undoubtedly be Republican.

THE Republicans last Friday evening gave vent to their excessive joy in a jollification meeting. Two large bon-fires, a torch-light procession, fireworks and brilliant house illuminations cast their bright reflections upon the sky so that it was seen for many miles. Speeches were made by Col. Watts and A. W. Smith, of Adrian.—Charlie Bidwell was loudly called for and cheered on his appearance. The procession had a number of interesting features the most prominent being "Barnum's 329th mule." The house illuminations were profuse and beautiful and the jollifications were great.

OUR snow storm was unexpected and as quick to go as it was to come.

THE RESULT OF THE ELECTION.

Comments of Leading Newspapers Thereon—Hancock Defeated by the Folly and Treachery of Democratic Leaders.

The Philadelphia Times, (Ind.) says: "The Times believed that the election of a tried soldier, patriot and statesman like Winfield Scott Hancock would have purified the administration of the government, dignified the civil service, promoted the now assured business prosperity of the country, and effaced forever the demon of sectional strife; but, discounting the result by all that power, money and violence could accomplish, the election of General Garfield will be accepted by the country and the world as the considerate choice of the American people, and to that judgment all good citizens will bow with generous trust in the rule thus chosen.

No popular government, or government possessing any feature of popular power, has ever been overthrown when the people were prosperous. It is the pinch of paralysis, distress and want that overturns existing administrations; and the election of General Hancock, just when the country is emerging from years of embarrassment and business prostration; when the fires of the forges, the hum of the spindles and the hoarse music of the shops of industry have been renewed after long silence and desolation, would have been an entirely exceptional revolution. That the people have preferred to continue in power a more than distrusted political domination, rather than accept one of the purest and noblest of our chieftains with a distrusted party behind him, is not a matter of surprise, nor will it in any degree dim the lustre of General Hancock's fame. Like Winfield Scott, the Great Captain of the last generation, and like Clay, whose following bordered on idolatry, he has fallen in a race because no man can be greater than the convictions or presumed interests of the whole nation. He emerges from the struggle without a stain upon his record, and the Republic will continue to honor him. His place in history and in the affections of his countrymen is assured—can as much be said with entire faith of General Garfield?"

The New York Herald, (Ind.) says: "No Republican orator or manager or politician of any stripe whatever can justly claim to have done his party so great a service in this campaign as John Kelly has done it. If any man of them all, from highest to lowest, shall weigh his own claims upon the gratitude of the President-elect, and fairly compare them with a claim that might be presented by John Kelly, he must honestly admit that "the honored leader" of the Democracy of this city has outdone him in his brilliant and substantial services to the Republican party. How the Democrats may feel over this case is to be imagined, but assuredly if the Republicans do not feel a lively sense of good will for favors received they are scandalously lacking in gratitude. But a little while ago Mr. Kelly made the Republican party a present of the Governorship of this State, and now he gives them the Presidency and the national administration. If they do not admire and love an opponent like this they have no nice appreciation of how fine a thing it is to have a generous foe.

With California and Oregon given to Garfield General Hancock has still one hundred and fifty electoral votes, and if the thirty-five of this State were added he would have exactly the needed one hundred and eighty-five. New York, therefore, could have elected him. It depended upon this State to name the next President, and she has not named the Democratic candidate. Why? Because the majority that Democrats fairly looked for from this city failed through the treasonable disorganization of the Democratic vote that was brought about by Kelly's machinations; because, in short, it did not suit Mr. Kelly to have the Democratic party win, if it had to do this at any expense whatever to his private schemes for obtaining control of our municipal twenty millions.—That General Hancock could and would have carried this State but for the disorganization and demoralization of the Democratic vote of the city brought about by Mr. Kelly seems to be demonstrated by the returns."

The New York Sun, (Ind.) says: "From ditch to ditch, deeper and deeper into the mire, Mr. John Kelly leads the Democratic party.

When he lost us the State, defeating that upright Democrat, Lucius Robinson, for Governor, and throwing all the patronage of the State into the hands of the Republicans, we were assured that whenever he chose he could readily recover the power he had recklessly flung away.

When he pushed aside our candidate for President, whose strength he had thoroughly tested and not found wanting, and gave us General Hancock in his stead, he promised a very large majority for Hancock in the State.—How has the promise been fulfilled? The returns show Hancock in a minority—20,000 short of an election.

Then for Mayor Mr. Kelly selected a carpet bag candidate who barely scraped in.

Neither the city nor the country is any longer satisfied with Mr. Kelly's management. The course he takes in the city loses to the Democracy thousands of votes in the country. Grace handicapped Hancock all over the State.

When the news came of the loss of Indiana in October, Mr. Kelly made a speech, in which he said: "The Democratic party can stand defeat."

But Mr. Kelly seems to forget that not every member of the Democratic party still holds, as he does, a lucrative office. Sitting by a blazing fire, mid winter, with the utmost nonchalance, he says to the crowd outside whom he perceives through his plate-glass windows, "Never mind the cold."

The possession and retention of the office of Comptroller of the city of New York by John Kelly have cost the Democracy the control of the government of the State of New York and the control of the government of the United States for the next four years.

Are the Democrats satisfied with the purchase at such a price?

Mr. Kelly's recent attempt to gag the press, and his violent and vulgar assault upon the editor of the Herald in his Tammany Hall speech on the night of the election, were very offensive to gentlemen whose sympathies and principles would lead them, under a more discreet and more enlightened leadership, to act with the Democratic party.

These be words of soberness and truth. Mr. Kelly makes a great mistake if he supposes them to be prompted in any degree by personal ill will toward him. We feel none. But we are tired of drumming up recruits for the Democratic party only to have them, at the end of four long years, led, not to victory, but into a ditch by a blundering political manipulator.

The Nation, (Ind.) says: "The canvass was conducted by Kelly in a shocking way for a pious man. He filled his paper, the Express, with filthy stories about the editor of the Herald, to punish him for opposing his candidate, and disgusted a long-suffering community to such a degree that Grace's natural majority of about 40,000 was cut down to 4,000 or less. This indicates that he lost about 35,000 Democratic votes, probably owing to the extraordinary rufflanism of his political and religious patron."

The New York World, (Dem.) says: "Down, down goes the market," said the first broker whom the World reporter encountered at the close of business yesterday. "The boom which was to follow the election of Garfield turns out to be a sort of back-action affair. The whole bottom seems to have dropped out of the market and it is only saved from a grand 'slump' or a panic by the efforts of brokers who are yet 'long' of stock or who are anxious to have their clients' interests conserved. All the talk about the good times which were to come turns out to have been a Republican campaign movement. It was pleasant to have the money of the government temporarily used to foster speculation on the street and of course to send prices booming up. A strong market can be created at any time if money for speculation be only supplied out of a bottomless purse. With plenty of government money and a very active set of Republican brokers working for themselves and their party and other brokers willing to come in and share in the profits of the high prices which stocks sold at just before the close of the canvass, it is no wonder that there was a steady 'bull' movement and that every day before the the election brought higher prices."

The Great Healer of all Inflamed Injuries and Disorders.

It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the unparalleled demand with which it meets, stamps it at once as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.

The most incredulous are convinced, and the most skeptical are compelled to believe in the power of this great remedy.

WHAT IT CURES.

All SORES, CUTS, BRUISES, SPRAINS, BURNS, SORE THROAT, LAMENESS, RHEUMATISM, PILES, INFLAMMATION of LUNGS and BOWELS, BRONCHITIS, CROUP, SALT RHEUM, CHILBLAINS, AFFECTIONS of the SPINE, ERYSIPELAS, NERVOUS IRRITATION, and all disorders attendant with INFLAMMATION.

It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is gained over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame; every bone, muscle, vein, nerve, and ligament is searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it copes readily with internal as well as external diseases.

Over 40 Years

This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such that as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates of cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it, to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should feel perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.

Price 25 and 40 cents per bottle. Sold by all dealers in medicine.

DEATH OF HON. PERLEY BILLS.

Died at his family residence in Tecumseh, at the going down of the sun, on the 7th day of November, 1880, after a painful illness of many weeks, borne with great fortitude and marked Christian resignation, the Hon. Perley Bills, aged 70 years.

At a meeting of the Lenawee County Bar held in Tecumseh, Nov. 9, Gov. C. M. Croswell was called to the chair and Lucius Lilley, Esq., was appointed Secretary. Judge C. A. Stacy, B. L. Baxter and E. B. Wood were appointed a committee to draft and present appropriate resolutions, who after a few moments for consultation, presented the following which were unanimously adopted. The Bar then adjourned to meet at the house in a body and attend the funeral:

RESOLUTIONS OF THE BAR.

The Bar of Lenawee county assembled on the occasion of the death of our friend and brother, Hon. Perley Bills, and to pay proper respect to his memory,

Resolve, That our brother during his long life among us has exemplified the virtues of his profession, in skill, learning, legal acumen and the highest model of integrity.

As a teacher in early life among us his labors were exceedingly useful and long to be remembered. As a school trustee for nearly forty years, he, in a large measure, founded, developed and made permanently useful the public schools of the village of Tecumseh, and by his noble example influenced, beneficially, the public schools of our county and state.

As a legislator in the State Senate for four years, his labors were efficient and valuable, distinguished for a high order of moral, intellectual and legal excellence.

As a citizen and neighbor he was kind and benevolent, devoted and active in all measures necessary to the public welfare, and ever ready with time, advice and pecuniary assistance to promote the general good of our community.

As a business man he showed much ability, both in developing large projects, and in the careful attention to details so necessary to successful accomplishment, evincing in all his business affairs a high order of mental keenness and integrity.

As a communicant of the church of which he has been from his youth a devoted member, he was a humble, consistent prayerful Christian, second to none in fidelity to his own church. At the same time he displayed thro' all his life that spirit of noble Christian tolerance toward others which served to exemplify and perfect his own noble Christian life and character. As superintendent and teacher in the Presbyterian Sabbath School of Tecumseh for many years he manifested his devotion to the interests of the young, faithfully guiding their footsteps in the school; and even after they had gone from the Sunday School and out into the busy world with its temptations, the young people of our community always received from him that thoughtful consideration and interest and words of good cheer so necessary to the proper development of their intellectual, moral and religious character.

As a friend he was kind, true and unchangeable. In his domestic relations he was an indulgent husband and an affectionate father.

The legal profession, the village of his residence, the state at large will feel the loss of our friend and brother.

To his bereaved widow and family we extend our heartfelt sympathies in their hour of affliction.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be presented to the Circuit Court for the county of Lenawee at the next term thereof to be placed upon the records.

Resolved, That a copy be presented to the widow of the deceased.

And that the papers of the county be requested to publish the same.

C. A. STACY,
B. L. BAXTER,
E. B. WOOD, } Committee.

The funeral services were conducted on Tuesday afternoon, Nov. 9th, by Rev. Wm. Grandy, pastor of the Presbyterian church. Members of the bar, near friends and relatives assembled at the residence of the deceased at two o'clock, where the remains were viewed and a brief service was held. Several members of the legal fraternity were present from Adrian, among whom was his Excellency Gov. C. M. Croswell. Messrs. B. J. Bidwell, J. S. Strong, H. Brewer, W. H. Mather, E. B. Wood and B. L. Baxter acted as pall-bearers.

The procession of mourners then wended their way to the Presbyterian church, where the remaining services were held. During the exercises all the business houses of the village were closed. An eloquent discourse was delivered by Rev. Wm. Grandy, which is herewith given.

THE SERMON.

"I have finished the work thou gavest me to do." Jno. 17 : 4.

May these words, like a ray of light through rifted cloud, illumine the darkness of this sad hour.

Words to the dying, while surrounding the ashes of the dead, may well be drawn from the closing hours of the one perfect man, in order that our hearts may the more deeply feel the overshadowing presence of Almighty God and our minds be impressed with the thought of our personal accountability to Him in whom we live and have our being.

Our text is an extract from the closing utterances of Jesus of Nazareth when there was only the crown of thorns and the cross between him and the resumption of that equal glory which he had with the Father from eternity. He drew comfort in that hour from the clear, full consciousness that the unique work given him, to perform during his earth life, he had done—done it all in spirit and letter—nothing had been left over—accumulating to be at the last crowded through or forever neglected; but the work of his youth, had in youth been done; the duties of manhood, manhood's strength had fulfilled; what pertained to priestly office, as spotless high priest he had performed, (for he speaks as if his sacrificial death was already accomplished) and now having come to his sepulchre, he kneels before God saying: "Father, I have glorified thee on the earth; I have finished the work which thou gavest me to do. And now, O Father, glorify thou me, with thine own self, with the glory which I had with thee before the world was." What consciousness of right is here! What strength springing from knowledge of a perfect obedience underlying, shaping, developing life! What an appeal to God, that he would recognize and reward such a life! And, O what joy as the spirit bounds from the cross of death to the throne of glory!

This was Jesus, indeed, but let not that fact cause us to turn in dull discouragement to our own life on earth as a thing altogether unlike his, and not like his to be comforted at the last by full consciousness of having done the work God gave us to do. Assuredly not; for herein Jesus is made like unto his brethren, is set before them as their exemplar, that from his life ours might gain inspiration and courage to live worthily. As Jesus had a work from God to do, so has every man. As Jesus so accomplished his work as to glorify God, before men, in the doing of it; so, all men's work may shine with God's light and glory—may "glorify God in the earth." As in turn God glorified Jesus with his essential and immortal glory which he had before the world was, so will he glorify all who obey him, giving to each "an exceeding and eternal weight of glory," as it is written, "To him that overcometh will I give to sit with me in my throne." And again: "He that overcometh shall inherit all things." To confirm this, nothing more is needed than to call the name of one, here and there at intervals as we come with God down the centuries, and survey the workman at the work assigned him. The names of Noah, Abraham, Joseph, Moses, David, the Hebrew prophets, Matthew, Mark, Luke, John, Peter, Paul, Augustine, Luther, Wesley—of ten thousand times ten thousand of our race glorifying God in the earth life as they begin, continue, and finish the work the Father gives them to do; and having finished it, in turn, God glorifies them with his own glory. We see them here, faithful in their work, prayerful in their death; and beyond, looking up with John, through the "opened heavens," we see them white with glory, in the presence of God. Ah! with him too we can hear ascriptions of praise and gratitude to God. "Worthy is the lamb that was slain to receive power, and riches, and wisdom, and strength, and honor, and glory and blessing for ever and ever."

And our brother, Perley Bills, whose latest parting of the lip on earth was for God, now white with glory, also sings the song of the ransomed. He finished the work God gave him to do; and on Sabbath evening last just as the sun of nature passed onward, in an unclouded pathway to shine on others; so, at that most tranquil of hours known to earth, he also went onward far beyond our vision—went to shine in serving forever another of the "many mansions" of his Father and of ours. He will not return to us—we will go to him.

"The veil! the veil! so thin, so strong
'Twixt us and thee:
The mystic veil! when shall it fall,
That we may see?"

From the vantage ground given us of God in this hour, shall we not look back over the life now closed at the full end of seventy years of earthly pilgrimage.

The first fifteen years was the life of a husbandman's son, on the eastern slope of the Green Mountains of Vermont; and the next four, also largely spent in like manner under the parental roof. At nineteen, Mr. Bills set his face towards advanced education, with a thirst for knowledge, both for its own sake and for its potency in life; but without the means in hand to devote himself wholly to its pursuit; his record from nineteen to twenty-seven shows a steadiness of aim, a tenacity of purpose, which day by day resolves the difficulties in his way into aids, gaining from little triumphs courage to attempt greater conquests; and so he makes circumstance his servant to aid him in effecting the work God gave him to do.

Thus in early life, in Vermont, in Pennsylvania, in Ohio, and in Michigan, he met obstructions in his chosen course which multitudes of young men, in like circumstances, have suffered to block their way; and because, like a streamlet setting out to the sea, they could not remain forever blocked, they have like the streamlet just turned and gone on in another way, gone on till yet another obstruction has again checked for a time and then changed their course.

But he, our brother, in the unfolding of his life, was as if that streamlet had thought, and will, and power, by the skillful and patient putting forth of which it held and steadied itself in its channel till the difficulties, by its own right hand were removed, and the obstacles by the accumulating force of its own volume overcome, or, swept away, and so by holding on its way, by and by as a grand river it flows onward in its course, a blessing to many, hastening to its destined goal.

At twenty-seven he chose, (and was determined in his choice by the late Dr. William Baldwin,) Tecumseh as his home—and home, indeed, has it been to him from that day to this; when we fittingly, with reverent hearts and tender hands, lay his body away, cradled in its earth, in God's keeping, to await the coming of the Almighty to change the clay body of earth, into the spiritual body of the heavenly life. His life here—as teacher, in primary and advanced education, having had among others as students, Hon. J. Q. A. Wood, Hon. W. H. Wood, Dr. A. C. Wood, the two former now of Minnesota, and the latter of Kentucky; also, Hon. Witter J. Baxter and Hon. B. L. Baxter, of this state; his long career in the practice of law, in banking, and in more public life in the Senate for a double term, as well as in the general upbuilding of the town is before you. Your presence, like an eloquent tongue, declares your judgment of the man, and gives expression to your sorrow that his life has ended.

I could say much of that life as unfolded here in forty-three years residence. The ardent friend and supporter of education—organizing the first primary school district—present at over forty annual school meetings, presiding often, shaping always towards liberal things in buildings and teachers. Our schools, to-day, are, in a modified sense, a monument to his memory.

Perhaps there is not a public work of beneficent character in Tecumseh which has not found a friend and supporter in him.

In this—the church of his choice—he was ever ready with time, counsel, means, refusing a place as ruling elder only—accepting the call of his brethren to serve as Superintendent of the Sabbath School, and as trustee in the congregation.

A man of strongly marked individuality, invincible will, he let Almighty God into his life, courted his presence with him; and in his fear, with a good conscience, did what he believed to be right, not fearing the frown, nor coveting the favor of man.

I could also speak of ways and times not a few, in which he "let not his left hand know what his right hand did;" and the telling of which would reflect honor upon his memory, or offset, before men, the failures, faults, mistakes and sins which were his.—But, he needs not eulogy; he is alike, and forever, beyond my censure and above my praise. He accepted Jesus, the Christ, in his vicarious atonement for sin and guilt; as a sinful man, condemned, he came to Jesus, and was justified by faith, rejoicing in God's free gift of eternal life.

He served his God in life, trusting not to the integrity of his own doing, but the merits of Christ's doing in his behalf, for final acceptance with Almighty God, before whom all men must appear and answer each for himself. In this faith he lived; when the end came, God was with him. His approach to the golden gates was by racking pain of body,—a pain, in its constancy and poignancy, altogether unusual, but no murmuring escaped his lip, for to him it was at every step the approach to the portals of glory; and in and through it all he smiled, earnestly beholding God and Heaven breaking through his night; and morning, day, eternal day, at hand.—"I have tried the foundation which God has put under the dying soul and it is strong—it is safe." "I must die, but I am satisfied, more than satisfied—more than satisfied." "Jesus is with me; the sense of his presence is beyond what I thought or could have expected." Such are some of the last words of this man of strong convictions, of great energy of will, and of abiding faith in God. Let this be rest and consolation, for his family—that while an attached and kind husband, an affectionate father, one provident and thoughtful, he has fallen asleep in Jesus.

Let his fellow members of the bar mark the value of faith, and know that theirs only is the loss—his the the gain. "To die is gain." Let all friends and neighbors be admonished of the brevity of life, of the blessedness of going into eternity covered with the atonement of the Son of God. May we all know and acknowledge that we too have a work from God to do, and so do it that we every one, with the one departed, when the trumpet sounds, and in response:—"The earth groans and rocks herself as if in in travil, till they rise, the sheeted dead; but how lustrously white are their garments! How dazzling their beautiful holiness! What a mighty host! They fill the air, they acclaim hallelujahs; the heavens bend with the shouts of harmony; the Lord comes down, and his angels are about him, and he owns his chosen and they rise to meet him, and they mingle with cherubim and seraphim, and the shoutings are like thunders from the throne—thunderings of joy. "O, death where is thy sting; O, grave where is thy victory. Thanks be to God which giveth us the victory, through our Lord Jesus Christ."—When all this happens, as happen it will, may we, kindred, friends, neighbors, citizens, every one, have part in that glorious resurrection.—When our time to die has come, God grant that at the close of a divinely directed life we may each be able to say, "I have glorified thee on the earth, I have finished the work which thou gavest me to do; and now, O Father, glorify thou me, with thine own self."

Amen! Amen!

RESOLUTIONS OF SCHOOL BOARD.

At a session of the School Board of this district, holden on the 10th inst., the death of the Moderator, Hon. Perley Bills, was announced, and this testimonial of respect was adopted:

Perley Bills came to Tecumseh in the spring of 1837, and during the first three years of his residence here he conducted a school. In the fall of 1838 he organized the first primary school district in this township and became one of its officers; and during nearly all the years intervening between that date and his death he has faithfully served this community as a school trustee. For more than thirty years continuously he has been kept in this important station, nor would his friends consent to relieve him until the Angel of Death severed the official bond. His early experience in teaching, his natural taste for school management, his practical good sense, his wise counsel, his liberality in expenditure, all united to render him a most valuable and indispensable officer.—Fortunate will it be for our schools if his official mantle shall fall upon so worthy a man. His loss will be keenly felt by his associates upon this Board. We extend our sympathy to the bereaved widow and family, knowing that they will cherish his noble and disinterested labors for the upbuilding of our schools as the brightest ornament of his long and active life.

Let this feeble testimonial be inscribed upon our records and let a copy thereof be transmitted to the family of the deceased.

THOMAS LOVETT, of Oak Grove, one of the suburbs of Chicago, handed us a paper which gives an account of the building improvements going on in Chicago. Among them are the glucose works which have just begun to be built by the Sugar Refining Company of Chicago. The outside walls will cost $200,000 and the machinery the same amount. There will be five buildings; the main building will be eleven stories high; 9,600,000 brick at $8 per thousand will be required.—When the works are fully completed they will have a capacity of 25,000 bushels of corn per day. The building goes on day and night and will be finished by July 1.

THE FAMILY CIRCLE.

ADVENTURE OF SIR THOMAS CAT.

M. J. V.

Sir Thomas Cat
Went out and sat
Beside the vat
To watch a rat.
Sir Malt at that Began to spat
By jumping at
Tom's tail so fat.
"Spit! spit!" and—pat!
Sir Malt lay flat.
Then up he got—
"Spit!"—it for rat.
Tom's ears ached, that,
And shied a hat
At Tom, who squat
Plump in the vat—
'Twas Johnny Sprat!
The daring cat—
Well, shy he fat
Played games with Mat
On the grass plat.
This sly, small brat,
Smoothed his cravat.
Then sought young Pratt,
The aeronaut,
To have a chat.
"Sputter! Spit!" "Drat
The luck!" cried Pat,
The tinner fat
"A skunk! Whew! phat
A stinkin' vat!"

THE ORDEAL OF LOVE.

Adolphe and Celeste were lovers—the course of true love never did run smooth, and it was interrupted in theirs by cruel parents, who had different views for their children. Adolphe, in despair, takes poison, but the invention of stomach-pumps prevented his desperate purpose, and he recovers. Celeste had the poison in her hand, and was in the act of raising it to her lips when her mother discovers her. The story thus proceeds:

Whatever the exaggerations of our lovers, they loved fervently, disinterestedly, and with all their hearts. Not one in ten thousand loves is so strong, or promises to be so lasting.

Adolphe did not die—antidotes were given in time—he recovered. The illness of Celeste was more dangerous. She suffered, poor child, a delirious fever, and it was several weeks before her life and reason were restored.

No parents could stand all this; ordinary caprices it is very well to resist, but when young people take to poison and delirious fevers—il faut céder. Besides, such events derange one's comforts. One is always glad to come to terms when one begins to be annoyed with one's self. The old people accordingly consented, and the young people married.

As the bridegroom and Celeste were convinced that the sole object of life was each other's company, they hastened at once to the sweet solitudes of the country. They had a charming villa and beautiful garden; they were both accomplished, clever, amiable, young, and in love. How was it possible that they should be susceptible to ennui? They could never bear to lose sight of each other.

"Ah, Adolphe—traitor—where hast thou been?"

"Merely shooting in the woods, my angel."

"What, and without me? Fie! Promise this shall not happen again."

"Ah, dearest, too gladly I promise."

Another time:

"What, Celeste! three hours have I been seeking for you! Where have you hid yourself?"

"Don't look so angry, my Adolphe; I was only directing the gardener to build a little arbor for you to read in. I meant it as a surprise."

"My own Celeste! three hours—it is an eternity without you! Promise not to leave me again, without telling me where to find you."

"My own dearest Adolphe! how I love you—may my company be ever as dear to you."

This mode of life is very charming with many for a few days. Adolphe and Celeste loved each other so entirely that it lasted several months. What at first was passion had grown habit, and each blamed the other for want of affection, if he or she ever indulged in the novelty of different pursuits.

As they had nothing to do but to look at those faces they had thought so handsome, so it was now and then difficult not to yawn; and of late there had been little speeches like the following:

"Adolphe, my love, you never talk to me—put down that odious book you are always reading."

"Celeste, my angel, you don't hear me. I am telling you about my travels, and you gape in my face."

"My dear Adolphe, I am so exceedingly sleepy."

One morning, as Adolphe woke and turned in his bed, his eyes rested on his wife, who was still asleep—"Bless me," thought he, "I never saw this before—let me look again—yes, certainly she has—a wart on her chin!"

Adolphe rose and dressed himself—Adolphe was grave and meditative. They met at breakfast—the bride and bridegroom. Celeste was in high spirits; Adolphe was sombre and dejected.

"Let us ride to-day," said Celeste.

"My dear, I have a headache."

"Poor child! well, then let us read the new poem."

"My dear, you talk so loud."

"I!" and Celeste, gazing reproachfully on Adolphe, perceived for the first time something in his eye that surprised her. She looked again—"Good heavens!" she said to herself, "Adolphe squints!"

It is impossible to say what an effect this fatal discovery had on Adolphe. He thought of it incessantly. He had nothing else to complain of—but then warts on the chin are certainly not becoming. Celeste's beauty had improved greatly since her marriage. Everybody else saw the improvement. Adolphe saw nothing but the wart upon her chin. Her complexion was more brilliant, her form more perfect, her walk more majestic; but what is all this, when one has a wart on the chin? That wart seemed to grow bigger and bigger every day—to Adolphe's eye it threatened speedily to absorb the whole face! Nay, he expected in due time to see his beautiful Celeste all wart! He smothered his pain as well as he could, because he was naturally well-bred and delicate; and no woman likes to be told of the few little blemishes she is blind to herself. He smothered his pain, but he began to think it would be just as well to have separate rooms.

Meanwhile, strange to say, Adolphe's squint grew daily more decided and pronounced. "He certainly did not squint before we were married," tho't Celeste; "it is very unpleasant—it makes one so figity to be stared at by a person who sees two ways—and Adolphe has unfortunately a habit of staring. I think I might venture to hint, delicately and kindly, that the habit can't yet be incurable."

As wives are always first in the emulation of fault-finding, Celeste resolved to hazard the hint on the first favorable opportunity.

"Well, my Celeste, I have brought my dog to see you," said Adolphe, one morning.

"He! down, down! Pray turn him out; see the mark of his paws. I can't bear dogs, Adolphe."

"Poor thing!" said Adolphe, caressing his insulted favorite.

"Was that to me, or the dog?" asked Celeste.

"Oh! to him, to be sure."

"I beg your pardon, my dear, but I thought you looked at me. Indeed, Adolphe, if truth may be said, you have lately contracted a bad habit—you are getting quite a cast in your eye."

"Madame!" said Adolphe, prodigiously offended and hurrying to the glass.

"Don't be angry, my love; I would not have mentioned it if it did not get worse every day; it is yet time to be cured, I am sure; just put a wafer on the top of your nose, and you will soon see straight."

"A wafer on the top of my nose! Much better put one at the top of your chin, Celeste."

"My chin!" cried Celeste, running in turn to the glass. "What do you mean, sir?"

"Only that you have a very large wart there, which it would be more agreable to conceal."

"Sir?"

"Madame!"

"A wart on my chin, monster!"

"A cast in my eye, fool!"

"Yes! How could I ever love a man who squinted!"

"Or I a woman with a wart on her chin!"

"Sir, I shall not condescend to notice your insults. No wonder—you can't see! I pity your infirmity."

"Madame, I despise your insinuations; but since you deny the evidence of your own glass, suffer me to send for a physician, and if he can cure your deformity, so much the better for you."

"Yes, send for a physician; he will say whether you squint or not. Poor Adolphe! I am not angry; no, I pity so melancholy a defect."

The doctor could not very well see whether Adolphe squinted, for he had his hat over his eyes; besides, he prudently thought it best to attend to one malady at a time.

"As for the wart, sir," said he, "it is not difficult to cure."

"But if my wife don't confess that she has it, she will never consent to be cured. I would not mind if she would but own to it. Oh, the vanity of women!"

"It must have been after some absence that this little defect was perceived by you—"

"After absence—we have not been a day separated since we married."

Celeste burst into tears. Adolphe, in a rage, seized his hat, mounted his horse and went himself to the doctor.

The doctor was a philosopher as well as a physician. He took his pony and ambled back with Adolphe. On his way he extracted from Adolphe his whole history, for men in a passion are easily made garrulous.

"The perfidious women!" said Adolphe. "Would you believe it?—we braved everything for each other—never were two persons so much in love—nay, we attempted suicide rather than endure a longer separation. I renounced the most brilliant marriage for her sake—too happy that she was mine without a dowry—and now she declares I squint. And, oh, she has such a wart on her chin!"

"O-ho," thought the doctor, sinking into a reverry—I have said he was a philosopher—but it did not require much philosophy to know that persons who would have died for each other only a few months ago were not alienated only by a wart or a cast in the eye.

They arrived at Adolphe's villa—they entered the saloon. Celeste no longer wept; she had put on her most becoming cap, and had the air of an insulted but uncomplaining wife.

"Confess to the wart, Celeste, and I'll forgive all," said Adolphe.

"Nay, why so obstinate as to the cast of the eye; I shall not admire you less (though others may), if you will not be so vain as to disown it."

"Enough, madam; doctor regard that lady, is not the wart monstrous?—can it be cured?"

"Nay," cried Celeste, sobbing, "look rather at my poor husband's squint. His eyes were so fine before we married."

The doctor put on his spectacles; he regarded the first one and then the other.

"Sir," said he deliberately, "this lady has certainly a pimple on the left of her chin considerably smaller than a pin's head. And madam, the pupil of your husband's right eye is like that of nine persons in ten, the hundredth part of an inch nearer the nose than the pupil of the left. This is the case, as it appears to me, seeing you both for the first time. But I do not wonder that you, sir, think the pimple so enormous; and you, madam, the eye so distorted, since you see each other every day!"

The pair were struck by a secret conviction; when an express arrived breathless to summon Adolphe to his father, who was taken ill. At the end of three months Adolphe returned. Celeste's wart had entirely disappeared, and Celeste found her husband's eye as beautiful as ever.

Taught by experience, they learned then, that warts rapidly grow on chins, and squints rapidly settle upon eyes, that are too constantly seen. And that it is easy for two persons to die joyfully together when lovers, but prodigiously difficult without economizing the presence, to live comfortably together when married.

ANTIQUE FURNITURE.

Say not there is no fun in the furniture maker of Paris, particularly in him who maketh the old furniture. On this side the water it is concurrently admitted that the Yankee is equal to almost any "cuteness" required by demand and supply, but his Parisian brother is quite his equal. The latter is now largely in the way of inventing antiquities. We are told of a party who the other day went into a shop near the Boulevard Montmartre. There was a woman in the shop.

"Has your husband gone out?" was asked.

"No; he is in the back shop. Do you want to speak to him?"

"What is he doing?"

"He is working," she replied; and at the same moment an explosion was heard in the back shop.

"Ah! what is that?"

"O, it is nothing—simply my husband is finishing a Gothic cabinet."

And lifting up the curtain her worthy husband was seen firing small shot into a pseudo Gothic cabinet, in order to give it an appearance of worm eaten antiquity. The Parisians are very sly. One of their favorite tricks is to place these "antiquities" in country inns and cottages. The tourist sees them; the inn-keeper says they have been in his family for hundreds of years; the amateur pays a long price for them and restores them to their native Paris, which they had left only a few weeks before. Talk of Yankee cuteness!—Harper's Magazine.

MORE SALMON THAN WATER.

As for the salmon, as seen this morning urging their way up the swift, crawling current—tens of thousands of them, side by side, with their backs out of water in shallow places—nothing that I can write may possibly give anything like a fair conception of the extravagance of their numbers. There is more salmon apparently, bulk for bulk, than water. In fording the stream the writhing multitudes, crowding against one another, could not get out of one's way. One of our men waded out in the midst of them and amused himself by seizing them above the tail and swinging them over his head. Thousands of them could thus be taken by hand while they are making their way over the shallows among the stones. Whatever may be said of other resources of that territory, it is hardly possible to exaggerate the importance of her fisheries. Not to mention cod, herring, halibut, etc., there are probably not less than a thousand salmon streams in Southeastern Alaska.—Alaska Letter.

SEARCHING FOR SOCIETY.

A Westerner Who Wanted the Very Best There Was in Stock.

"What I want to see," said a Denver man, as he alighted from the train at Manhattan Beach, "what I want to see is some of your boasted civilization. I ain't much of a swell myself, but I want to see some top-shelf society. That's what I want. Now just parade your Astors and your Vanderbilts and your Jay Goulds and your Knickerbockers and the other ancients right before my presence. Don't be any way skeered of me. These clothes only cost fifteen dollars, and I'm no way stuck up. I want to see some tone. Cut me a thick slice of high life. I came a long piece to see the fashionables, and if they're in condition, just pull off the blanket and trot 'em forward."

"Is there anything I can do for you?" asked the manager courteously, noticing the crowd gathering.

"Right you can, stranger. I came mor'n a bushel of miles to see this climate, and I want the attractions spread so I can examine the layout. I can throw some money myself, but what I want is style. Tell 'em not to hide on my account. Just walk some of the dignitaries up and down before me a couple of times. I want to see their points. Fetch me out a couple of well-matched high-steppers and give 'em their heads."

"All the people you see around you, sir, are first-class people. They move in our highest circles, and belong to the aristocracy," explained the manager.

"Are you giving it to me straight, partner? All these fellows way-ups? Who's the philosopher with his breeches tucked in his socks?"

"That is a Yale young gentlemen, come on a vacation."

"I don't want that kind. Show me a high daddy, one of 'em that gets their name in the paper for going to whooping weddings, and is called the elight. Pick me out some Astor. That's the trout I'm throwing for."

"I don't think any of Mr. Astor's family are here to-day. That stout gentleman with side whiskers belongs to one of the first families in New York. He is a very popular young man and leads in the germans."

"Ain't big enough. Haven't you got a couple of head of Vanderbilts or a Jay Gould or so anywheres? You see, stranger, I've read about these [illegible] cordiality. What I want is to wabble fins with the satin lined. The Yale man and the boss leg slinger in the Dutch fandango ain't new. We see them home when they string for tourists, I'm on to them, but what I want is to see the balloons, the soarers. Throw your pickaxe and see if the wash don't pan better dirt. Strikes me your rock don't assay pretty well this evening. Where's the mob?"

"These are the best people I know of to-day," said the manager in dispair. "Mr. Vanderbuilt is not here, nor is Mr. Gould."

"Ain't you got any Knickerbockers on draught? Don't you keep the best in stock? You'd make out to starve in Denver, if you wasn't interfered with, partner. When a man throws himself for a hoteler in those parts he keeps the high-toned population right out in front and shored up behind. You don't seem to have much experience in running a beef-a-la-mode ranch. Just begun, haven't you? If I was in your place I'd have them Goulds and Knickerbockers and Vanderbilts and Astors ranged right along the front edge of the back stoop, spitting at a chip for drinks, and the first one that broke gravel would pay his bar bill or go home bare-headed; now you hear me. What you want, stranger, is enterprise. All you've got is a shed and some water, and if your liquor ain't any better'n your judgement, I'm going back dry."

"You will find everything first-class here, I think," argued the manager. "We aim—"

"Just so, chief, but you don't hit. You aim to low. You've got room here to hold the biggest bug that ever straddled a blind, but there isn't a card out higher'n an eight spot. I reckon you play pool without the fifteen."

"Would you like to try something?" asked the man anxious to dispel the grinning crowd.

"You might fetch me one, and these gentlemen a little tan bark, if its good; I don't want any stock which the shareholders are responsible for the debts, but if you've got some liquid symphony in Q major, I'll wrap up a cartridge with you, stranger."

"Join me in the bar-room," said the manager nervously.

"Good stake out for a junction. Gentlemen, me and the engineer are going for the doxology. Will you jine us?"

They "jined," and the stranger ordered refreshments and left, despite the entreaties of the gentleman from Denver that he would introduce him to the ladies, such as they were, and he would forego the toplifters until he (the manager) had run along the vein to the prospect of paying clean up."

Unmerited honors never wear well.

"Plenty of room. Just insert it yourself." replied the editor, gently pushing the waste basket toward him.

A NEW PAYING OCCUPATION FOR LADIES AND GENTLEMEN.

The handsome Nickel Plated New Home Lamp being introduced to the public this season, is the most meritorious article ever offered Agents to make money with, is safer, and more convenient than the Student Lamp, which has heretofore had the reputation of being the Safest Lamp made. It has a clamp to firmly attach it to the Sewing Machine, Piano, Organ, Desk, etc. The tear of the ordinary lamp being accidentally upset or thrown from the table, is entirely relieved by this simple contrivance. It can be adjusted to throw the light just where it is wanted to suit the eyes, and can be converted into a handsome wall lamp. It has the best argand burner, a filling indicator, and convenient match box, and its price is within the reach of everyone. It has been fully tested and editorially endorsed by the "Western Christian Advocate," "Am. Christian Review," "Herald and Presbyter," "Journal and Messenger," and "Christian Standard," the leading Religious papers of Cincinnati, and is endorsed by the Mayor and Post-Master of Cincinnati, the Agent of the American Express Companies, as being the Safest, Most Convenient and best Lamp made.

There are three reasons why Agents should seek such an article to canvass for—first for its absolute safety and great convenience, it is needed in every home—second its low price makes its sale immense—third it will be a credit to handle such an article. One southern Agent writes, it sells faster than Gen. Lee's portrait sold right after the war, another writes it beats the palmy days of the Sewing Machine, its rapid sale, low price, and liberal terms surprise old Agents.—Address Home Lamp Co., Cincinnati, O. Mentioning our paper and they will give you full particulars and exclusive territory to canvass in.

LEWIS' CONDENSED BAKING POWDER

STRICTLY PURE!

We will give $1000.00 for any Alum or other adulteration found in this POWDER.

Indorsed by the Brooklyn Board of Health, and by the best chemists in the United States.

It IS STRONGER than any Yeast Powder in the world.

It NEVER FAILS to make light Bread when used as directed.

It is COMMENDED by every housekeeper who has given it a fair trial.

It is an entirely NEW INVENTION, without any of the bad qualities of soda or saleratus, yeast or other baking powders.

It has in itself a tendency to sustain and nourish the system.

Good food makes good health; and health is improved or impaired in proportion as the food we eat is nutritious or otherwise.

LEWIS' BAKING POWDER always makes good food.

One can of this is worth two of any other baking compound.

It makes bread whiter and richer.

More than half the complaints of bad flour arise from the use of common baking powders, which often make the best of flour turn out dark bread.

The most delicate persons can eat food prepared with it without injury.

Nearly every other baking powder is adulterated and is absolutely injurious.

This is made from Refined Grape Cream of Tartar, and is PERFECTLY PURE. It makes the BEST, lightest, and most nutritious

BREAD, BISCUIT, CAKE, CRULLERS, BUCKWHEAT, INDIAN, AND FLANNEL CAKES.

A single trial will prove the superiority of this Powder.

KIDNEY-WORT

The Only Remedy

THAT ACTS AT THE SAME TIME ON THE LIVER, THE BOWELS, and the KIDNEYS.

This combined action gives it wonderful power to cure all diseases.

Why Are We Sick?

Because we allow these great organs to become clogged or torpid, and poisonous humors are therefore forced into the blood that should be expelled naturally.

KIDNEY-WORT WILL CURE

BILIOUSNESS, PILES, CONSTIPATION, KIDNEY COMPLAINTS, URINARY DISEASES, FEMALE WEAKNESSES, AND NERVOUS DISORDERS,

by causing free action of these organs and restoring their power to throw off disease.

Why Suffer Bilious pains and aches?
Why tormented with Piles, Constipation?
Why frightened over disordered Kidneys?
Why endure nervous or sick headaches?
Why have sleepless nights?

Use KIDNEY WORT and rejoice in health. It is a dry, vegetable compound and One package will make six quarts of Medicine. Get it of your Druggist, he will order it for you. Price, $1.00.

Chambers' Encyclopædia.

15 Vols. Over 13,000 Pages. Price During July, $6.25.

Among the wonderful things which have been accomplished for lovers of good books by the "Literary Revolution," perhaps the most wonderful is the reproduction of this great Encyclopædia at a merely nominal cost.

It is a verbatim reprint of the last English edition, in 15 beautiful volumes, clear nonpareil type, handsomely bound in cloth, for $7.50; the same printed on finer, heavier paper, wide margins, and bound in half Russia, gilt top, price $15.00. The first ten volumes are ready for delivery. Vol. 11 will be ready July 10. The remaining volumes will be completed by October next.

$6.25. An Amazing Offer. $6.25.

The more widely and rapidly these volumes are scattered, the greater is their influence in inducing other purchasers of this and our many standard publications. Accordingly we give special terms to early subscribers.

To all, whose orders and money are received during the month of July, we will supply the 15 volumes in cloth, for $6.25, and in half Russia, gilt top, for $12.50. To any one sending from any place where we have no special agent (usually the leading bookseller of the town), a club of five orders, we will allow a commission of 10 per cent. The volumes issued will be sent at once by express, and the remaining volumes when completed.

A specimen volume in cloth will be sent, postpaid, for 50 cents, or in half Russia, gilt top, for $1.00, and may be returned at once, if not satisfactory.

The "CHAMBERS'S ENCYCLOPÆDIA" comprises the first 15 volumes of our "Library of Universal Knowledge," and the remaining volumes, complete in themselves, will be sold separately when published.

THE PLEASURES OF WINTER.

A FORETASTE OF THE FUTURE.

THE ELECTRIC LIGHT.

We want to advise every one in Tecumseh and vicinity to avail themselves of the opportunity to see the electric light in operation, and to hear it explained in detail, on Friday evening, Nov. 12, at the opera house by Prof. E. M. Avery, of Cleveland. The Hall Association have been at a large expense to procure the exhibition and lecture, and we hope they will be well remunerated. In order to enable every one to see this great invention of the age, they have put the price of admission to all parts of the house at 25 cents; and at greatly reduced rates to the scholars of our public schools. From some of the many favorable notices of Prof. Avery's lectures we have room only for two or three brief ones.

Toledo Bee, March 6, 1880: The lecture by Prof. E. M. Avery at High School Hall last evening was a brilliant one in many respects. The light was exhibited and its workings clearly explained by the speaker to the delighted interest of the audience present. The subject is one of great scientific interest and Prof. Avery handles it with intelligent skill.

Cleveland Leader: All were delighted with the lecture, and free in their commendations of the matter of the lecture and manner of the lecturer. The lecture, wherever given, will be found unusually interesting and instructive.

From a Veteran Scientist and Lecturer: I heard with great pleasure Prof. Avery's lecture on the electric light delivered at Lakeside O., last summer; as to conciseness and comprehensiveness, clearness and accuracy, and absorbing interest, I pronounce it a model lecture.

J. TINGLEY,
Prof. of Physics and Chemistry, Allegheny College.
Meadville, Pa., Nov. 5, 1880.

TUESDAY evening Frank Tannehill and company produced Davy Crockett at the Opera House. The scene of the play is in the West, where Davy, an uncouth young trapper, by his generous and courageous efforts for her safety, wins the affections of the refined and cultured Eleanor; and finally takes her to his forest home to wed.—Tannehill, as Davy, was good; he imparted to the play a seeming reality. His acting was fine, but in his speech he seemed to lack the spirit and broad Western brogue that Mayo gives to Davy. Eleanor, Miss Talbot, won more by her beauty than acting. The support in general was not first class, but not so poor that it detracted much from the play. The audience was very fair and was pleased with the play.

Important to Consumptives.

Rev. Dr. Cass, while a medical missionary to the East Indies, had placed in his hands the formula for a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma, and all Throat and Lung affectations; also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Complaints, Debility, etc. After having thoroughly tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, he feels it a duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. The Recipe will be sent free of charge to all who desire it, with full directions for preparing and successfully using. Address, with stamp, (naming this paper,) Dr. M. E. Cass, 1257 Washington St., Boston, Mass.

A Grand Reputation.

Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure has reached a reputation that is not limited by the confines of section or country. There are no injurious substances, nor false and temporary stimulants in the preparation. It is purely vegetable and compounded under a formula that has passed severe tests, and won endorsements from some of the highest medical talent in the country.—New York World.

THE grocery men are out of sorts. One of them declares his intention of disregarding his contract with the others to close his place of business at 8 o'clock, and they all fear that they may be compelled to keep their stores open as late as they ever did. This certainly is not as it should be, one man should consult the wishes of the others, and not act directly against the wishes of his fellow merchants when it is really of no benefit to him. As far as the merchants having more trade when they kept open late than they do now, it is not probable. The people will soon learn their business hours and will make their arrangements to do their trading accordingly, so that the merchant will procure the same amount of trade as before, at a less expense and conform more strictly to the life of a sensible business man.

As S. A. Remington, of Newcastle on the Tyne, England, was passing through here on the cars last week, he noticed the large number of apples that were being shipped, so he jumped off to enquire about the prices. The prices were so exceedingly low for a first class apple, he has been buying and shipping to England ever since. For a good barrel of pippins, which are very choice fruit in Newcastle, he receives $8. It is only when such cases as this come to our notice that we feel the proper gratitude for our abundance, and becomingly relish the fruit.

As Alva Waring was distributing milk one day last week he began to feel a peculiar sensation coming over him, and as it increased he decided to drive back home. By the time he reached his home he was in such a state that he was unable to alight.—Those in the house saw him and at once assisted him from the wagon. It was some time before his friends considered him out of a critical condition. The reason for his sickness is attributed to his handling and doctoring some swine that had the hog cholera.

ESTATE OF LUCIUS GRAMER.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, s.s.

At a session of the Probate Court for the county of Lenawee, holden at the Probate Office in the city of Adrian, on Tuesday, the 9th day of November, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty.

Present, Norman Geddes, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Lucius Gramer, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of Rosa Gramer, widow of said deceased, praying that letters of administration on said estate be granted to James A. Stacy or some other suitable person.

Thereupon it is ordered, That Monday, the 6th day of December next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs at law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said Court, then to be holden at the Probate office, in the City of Adrian, and show cause if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said County of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing. Country Gentleman.
THE BEST OF THE AGRICULTURAL WEEKLIES.
A Premium Annual to Every Reader.

THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN is UNSURPASSED, if not UNEQUALLED for the Amount and Variety of the Practical Information it contains, and for the Ability and Extent of its Correspondence—in the Three Chief Directions of
Farm Crops and Processes,
Horticulture and Fruit-Growing,
Live Stock and Dairying—
while it also includes all minor departments of rural interest, such as the Poultry Yard, Entomology, Bee Keeping, Greenhouse and Grapery, Veterinary Replies, Farm Questions and Answers, Fireside Reading, Domestic Economy, and a summary of the News of the Week. Its MARKET REPORTS are unusually complete, and more information can be gathered from its columns than from any other source with regard to the prospects of the Crops, as throwing light on events of the most important character are now or may soon be in store. It is liberally illustrated, and constitutes to a greater degree than any of its contemporaries A LIVE AGRICULTURAL NEWSPAPER of never-failing interest both to Producers and Consumers of every class.

THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN is published Weekly on the following terms, when paid strictly in advance: One Copy: one year, $2.50; Four Copies, $10, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the club; Ten Copies, $20, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the club.

For the year 1881, these prices include a copy of the ANNUAL REGISTER OF RURAL AFFAIRS, to each subscriber—a book of 144 pages and about 120 engravings—a gift by the Publishers.

☞ All New Subscribers for 1881, paying in advance now, will receive the paper Weekly, from receipt of remittance to January 1st, 1881, without charge.

Is a compound of the virtues of sarsaparilla, stillingia, mandrake, yellow dock, with the iodide of potash and iron, all powerful blood-making, blood-cleansing, and life-sustaining elements. It is the purest, safest, and most effectual alterative medicine known or available to the public. The sciences of medicine and chemistry have never produced so valuable a remedy, nor one so potent to cure all diseases resulting from impure blood. It cures Scrofula and all scrofulous diseases, Erysipelas, Rose, or St. Anthony's Fire, Pimples and Face-grubs, Pustules, Blotches, Boils, Tumors, Tetter, Humors, Salt Rheum, Scald-head, Ring-worm, Ulcers, Sores, Rheumatism, Mercurial Disease, Neuralgia, Female Weaknesses and Irregularities, Jaundice, Affections of the Liver, Dyspepsia, Emaciation, and General Debility.
By its searching and cleansing qualities it purges out the foul corruptions which contaminate the blood and cause derangement and decay. It stimulates and enlivens the vital functions, promotes energy and strength, restores and preserves health, and infuses new life and vigor throughout the whole system. No sufferer from any disease which arises from impurity of the blood need despair who will give AYER'S SARSAPARILLA a fair trial.
It is folly to experiment with the numerous low-priced mixtures, of cheap materials, and without medicinal virtues, offered as blood-purifiers, while disease becomes more firmly seated. AYER'S SARSAPARILLA is a medicine of such concentrated curative power, that it is by far the best, cheapest, and most reliable blood-purifier known. Physicians know its composition, and prescribe it. It has been widely used for forty years, and has won the unqualified confidence of millions whom it has benefited.

TESTIMONY
Of the Hon. Jos. E. Gray, Judge of the Superior Court, Chicago, Ill.
CHICAGO, Feb. 11, 1879.
DEAR SIR:—Permit me to add my grateful testimony to the army of witnesses to the virtues of your justly celebrated Arabian remedies. For a long time my wife was seriously afflicted with hacking cough, oppressed breathing, soreness of the chest, and constant acute pain in the lower portion of the right lung and under the shoulder blade. Her sufferings were intense, and she became extremely nervous and prostrated. Her disease was pronounced consumption by the physicians of Chicago and other cities, whose prescriptions had been taken without benefit. When you visited Chicago in June, 1878, we called on you, having very little hope of deriving help from your treatment. We were inspired with hope by the skillful manner in which your thorough examination was conducted and the satisfactory explanation with which you closed your diagnosis. My wife determined to take your medicines in accordance with your plan and practical directions. She began to use the Arabian Milk Cure and Arabian Tonic; their beneficial effect at once became manifest—the cough loosened and soon ceased, respiration became easy, the soreness of the chest was relieved and all pain removed, she began to gain in flesh and improve in strength and appearance. I fully believe that your medicines and skillful advice have saved the life of my wife. She unites with me in this grateful tribute to the merit of your remedies.
Very respectfully yours,
JOSEPH E. GRAY.

AROUND THE COUNTY.

RIDGEWAY.

C. A. Sharp now runs a news stand.

The railroad tank at Britton's is being put up. A steam engine will be used to elevate the water.

John Emons had a cord of choice hickory blocks stolen from in front of his house one night last week.

It will be ties this winter instead of bolts, and wood and the latter will probably not be a drug in the Tecumseh market this winter.

The M. E. pulpit was filled last Sunday morning by Rev. Mr. Sink and evening by Rev. Mr. Young; both of Christian church conference.

Another battle was fought on the Washing-took-in flats last Saturday afternoon. The first man wounded was Jake Barrett of the reserve settlers. As soon as the hurt was carried off, the enemy reached out and Pat took in a fly on his jaw and immediately retired. General Underwood sat calmly on horse back, amid that hailstorm of billingsgate and profanity, issuing his orders with the disinterestedness of an old hand. It took five women to hold Jakie from immediately returning to the fray after his wounds were cared for.

The Christian church was dedicated on the 12th. The sermon was preached by Rev. Mr. Millard, of Jackson.—The building committee reported that the structure had cost, including the heating apparatus, $2,669.05, and were behind $626.10. A subscription was then solicited which netted $664.10, which virtually puts them out of debt and a margin. The society was organized some thirty years ago, under Elder Bradshaw, and numbers to-day one hundred and fifteen members.—Elder Swank, the present minister in charge, is in rather poor health.

SPRINGVILLE.

Singing school on Monday and Tuesday evenings of each week at the M. E. church.

John Hand is burning his brick and tile kiln. Having started rather late in the season he will lose considerable many of his brick and tile, by the frost.

Look out for E. Ayres, he is around after your turkeys and ducks, to be delivered here Dec. 6th.

T. R. Mother has a fine assortment of fall and winter goods on hand.

The Springville school commences next Monday, taught by Supt. J. B. Stephenson. The school board have adopted a new class of books to be used in the school.

Ira Hayes' auction, Tuesday, was well attended; nearly everything bringing a high market price. We understand Mr. Hayes intends moving north.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Alderdice celebrated their 31st anniversary, Tuesday, Nov. 16. A number of very fine presents were presented them, of which the following is a partial list: 2 doz. silver knives by Mr. & Mrs. N. S. Wheeler, Mr. & Mrs. Skeilds, Mr. & Mrs. Wm. C. Rogers; 2½ doz. silver forks, Mr. & Mrs. R. L. Rogers, Mr. & Mrs. Ira Rogers; 1 set silver spoons, Mr. & Mrs. Ira Rogers; 1 silver pickle fork and lamp mat, Mr. & Mrs. Wesley Rogers; silver tobacco box, Wm. C. Rogers; gold ring, Mr. & Mrs. David Galloway; 2 books, Mr. & Mrs. Bert Tate; pair vases, Mr. & Mrs. C. Brooks.

CLINTON.

Clinton is again without a hotel. Mrs. Pope, who has been running the Exchange for the past year, having moved to her former home at Bradner, Ohio.

O. M. Palmer, for the past seven years connected with E. G. Cook in the business of shipping stock and grain from here, has decided to quit the business and engage in some other occupation elsewhere.

A young man by the name of Chubbuck is about to open a first-class jewelry establishment here in the Post-office building. May success attend the undertaking.

The examination of Geo. Becker of Bridgewater on the alleged charge of illegal voting here at the last election, is set down for Friday of this week at Justice Robbins' court in Adrian, and Norman Crittenden has an examination on Saturday in the same court, on a charge of having voted twice at one and the same election.

The trials of the above cases may necessitate an investigation into the facts recently brought to light with reference to certain alleged fraudulent votes that were cast at the election held here four years ago.

FRANKLIN.

This community has become so orderly and law abiding since election that little has occurred worthy of note. But perhaps fair play demands an explanation of a charge made by the Franklin correspondent of the Adrian Times last week in relation to pulling down Republican notices of a meeting just before election. The facts were these: The Greenbackers had posted a bill on a greenback pole for a meeting on Monday evening and subsequently it is supposed some Republican, ignorantly or otherwise posted one of their bills for a meeting on the Saturday evening previous so as to completely hide the former, and there is no doubt the gentleman that removed it holds himself responsible before the law for trying to maintain what he conceived to be his rights.

Rev. James Vincent preached at the Congregational church last Sabbath morning by request, but takes leave of his many friends in this community this week, having accepted a call to preach at Summit, Washtenaw Co., this state. Consequently he will not go to Tecumseh as they anticipated.

Prof. Lowrie of Adrian college will preach next Sunday, with a view to becoming pastor of the church, and we are confident from our personal acquaintance with him that the society would be extremely fortunate should they procure his services, as he certainly possesses many essential qualifications pertaining to a successful pastor. The Ladies Aid Society has reorganized and propose a series of social entertainments during the winter for the pecuniary, as well as social benefit of the church. The first will be held at the residence of the President, Mrs. Carroll Roberts, on Thursday of this week.

Several business changes have occurred here recently. Mr. Will Deming of Adrian succeeds Bank & Co. at their old stand, and A. F. Peters has taken an interest in the blacksmithing business with Beers. Mr. Bates Cole has also established himself at Decker's Hotel where he will carry on shoe making and barbering, in both branches of which he is said to excel, and I see no reason why he should not be well sustained.

Our winter schools are all in full blast and generally well attended. Miss Cora Decker is teaching her third consecutive term near Sand Lake, Miss Webster is teaching her second term at the Center, Geo. Tripp at the Paragon, Josie Butric at the Grub and Harry Sanford near Leroy Mills'.

21 NUMBERS of SCRIBNER'S for $5.

The richly illustrated November number of Scribner's Monthly, the Decennial Issue, appears in a new cover, and begins the twenty-first volume. The increasing popularity of the magazine is strongly evinced by recent sales. A year ago the monthly circulation was about 90,000 copies; during the past nine months it has averaged 115,000, while the first edition of the November issue is 125,000.

The first Part of the now famous serial by Eugene Schuyler, "The Life of Peter the Great," was finished in October. With November begins Part II., "Peter the Great as Ruler and Reformer," which will be an advance, in point of popular interest and wealth of illustration, upon the part already published. To enable readers to secure Part I, the publishers make the following special offers to new subscribers after October 20th, who begin the November number.

(1.) New subscribers may obtain, for $5,00, Scribner's Monthly for the coming year, and the previous nine numbers, February to October, 1880, which include Part I. of "Peter the Great." Mrs. Burnett's "Louisiana," etc. In accepting this offer, twenty-one numbers will be had for $5,00.

(2.) They may obtain the previous twelve numbers of Scribner's, elegantly bound in olive-green cloth (two volumes), containing Part I. of Peter the Great, all of Cable's novel, "The Grandissimes," with the numbers named above, and a year's subscription, for $7,50. (Regular price, $10.00.

All book-sellers or news-dealers will take subscriptions and supply the numbers and volumes mentioned in the above special offers, without extra charge for postage or express; or the publishers, Scribner & Co., 743 Broadway, New York, may be addressed direct. The regular price of Scribner's is $4,00 a year, 35 cents a number.

Mrs. Wm. Tippett, Owasco, N. Y., says:—I have worn an Improved Excelsior Kidney Pad about three weeks, and have received great relief from it for pain in the back. See advertisement on 8th page.

STATE CHRISTIAN CONFERENCE.

The Annual Convention Held at Ridgeway—Dedication of the New Christian Church.

The convocation of the State Christian Conference met at the Christian church, three miles east of Ridgeway village on the 10th inst., according to appointment.

The recent storm and inclement weather, together with the unfavorable condition of the roads, prevented a full attendance of the clergy. About forty members in the ministry constitute the whole body, but not more than about one-half this number were present. Usually a delegation of representatives from different portions of the State are in attendance as well as distinguished visitors from the adjoining States, and when its members, delegates and representatives are together this convention presents an imposing body. The conference contains a comparative number of fine orators, as well as a good number of talented men. The addresses, sermons and speeches gave evidence of culture and good literary attainments, and were well timed and pointed. The business of this conference appeared to be of the evangelical order, as well as of importance to the churches at large, but was dispatched with both wisdom and promptness.

On Fridey, the 12th, the new and commodious edifice that is erected next west of the old building was dedicated to God. The structure is of wood and brick and is a model of neatness, and is warmed by a hot air furnace situated in the basement.

The following is the program of the dedicatory services:

Volunteer song by choir.
Song by Rev. Fogleson.
Prayer by Rev. C. I. Deyo.
Reading of the scriptures by Rev. M. W. Tuck.
Historical statement by Rev. Geo. Price.
Sermon by Rev. D. E. Millard.
Financial statement, showing an indebtedness of $626.
An appeal by Rev. R. E. Mudge.
Dedicatory prayer by Rev. Young.
Singing by the choir.
Benediction by Rev. Mr. Field, of the M. E. Church at Ridgeway.

The amount of money raised at the time more than cleared the church from indebtedness, and the members have a sanctuary well furnished and entirely out of debt. Its pastor, Rev. Mr. Swank, is quite popular among his people, and is well sustained by them. The membership numbers more than one hundred and contains a large number of some of the best families in the neighborhood and of those neighborhoods adjoining.

The convention closed its session on Saturday the 13th, and its influence in the community will be long and favorably felt.

Among the prominent features of this denomination we may mention the following: The church in its general aspect claims to be evangelical, but each church is individually independent and congregational. The sect has no creed but the Bible, and holds to the doctrine of immersion as the true mode of water baptism. They reject the doctrine of the trinity as it is held by the leading churches. They believe that the human race is generally depraved, but reject the doctrine of a total depravity. They teach the doctrines of justification by faith, repentance, regeneration, the atonement, moral agency of man, the resurrection of the dead, the general judgment and the eternity of future rewards and punishments.

The sect numbers now over 100,000 communicants in the United States, and are supporting a goodly number of local missionaries, and are rapidly becoming a prosperous denomination. They have in common with other churches their biblical schools, publishing houses, colleges, academies and seminaries, and in proportion to their numbers, are wealthy and intelligent.

The Rev. C. I. Deyo, of Mendon, presided over the deliberations of the session, and gave good evidence of ability. It will be a long time before the people will be favored with another such convocation in this community, and we cannot help but bid both the church and its ministers God speed.

The Michigan Christian Conference convened at Ridgeway, Wednesday, Nov. 10th, and continued in session until Saturday noon following. The body was called to order by C. I. Deyo, president, at 7 o'clock P. M.

The following ministerial members were present, viz: C. I. Deyo, of Mendon; M. W. Tuck, of Coral; D. E. Millard, of Jackson; E. Mudge, of Belding; B. Haynes, of Sandstone; Geo. Price, of Tecumseh; P. H. Simpson, of Augusta; N. L. Swank, of Ridgeway; M. P. Fogleson, of Adams; J. A. Young, of Romeo.

The following churches were present by delegates, viz: Adams, Fairfield, Livingston and Worth, Marshall, Nashville, Ridgeway, Vergennes, Mendon, Pittsford, Sandstone, Holly, Emmerson, Belding, Romeo, and Richfield, O.

The following visiting clergymen participated in the deliberations of the conference, viz: Rev. E. Jones, of Tioga River Conference, N. Y.; Rev. C. C. Sink, of N. W. Ohio Christian Conference; Rev. Mr. Butler, pastor of the M. E. church, Ridgeway, and Rev. Sarah E. Garwood, of N. W. Ohio Conference.

The opening address was delivered by Rev. C. I. Deyo, who was requested to furnish an abstract of the same for publication in the Herald of Gospel Liberty.

The following standing committees were announced by the president:

Churches—E. Mudge, Dr. D. A. West, Geo. Price.
Ministry—P. H. Simpson, N. L. Swank, H. Essery.
Sunday Schools—Dr. D. A. West, E. Jones, Sarah E. Garwood.
Missionary Work—Geo. Price, D. E. Millard, Isaac Hewitt.
Moral Reform—D. E. Millard, B. J. Haynes, E. Jones.
Education and Publications—M. W. Tuck, P. H. Simpson, Dr. West.
General Meetings—N. L. Swank, Sarah E. Garwood, E. Mudge.
Finance—M. W. Tuck, Isaac Hewitt, M. P. Fogleson.

The following are the officers of conference for the ensuing conference year:

President—N. L. Swank.
Vice-President—D. E. Millard.
Secretary—E. Mudge.
Treasurer—Geo. E. Maeson.
Who are also ex-officio Trustees.
Additional Trustees—Geo. Price, I. Hewitt, E. S. Jenks, J. H. Filkins.

The committee on education and publications reported, recommending that the conference demand a higher standard of educational qualifications from those persons seeking ordination. The report was adopted.

Rev. D. E. Millard was recognized as State correspondent of the Herald of Gospel Liberty, published at Dayton, Ohio. The committee on the ministry submitted their report, showing the following persons to be in good and regular standing and entitled to certificates for the ensuing year, viz: M. W. Tuck, D. E. Millard, C. Q. Deyo, J. W. Weeks, E. Mudge, J. A. Young, S. Bradshaw, C. T. Barber, H. Hayward, S. Snyder, B. Haynes, Geo. Price, E. Beard, P. H. Simpson, R. A. Burgess, John Cannon, J. E. Church, E. Crosby, S. M. Fowler, J. Leonardson, H. N. Richards, A. H. Vose, Ira Warner, John Wilcox, A. Sleeper, F. Greene, Jos. F. Demings, S. C. Post, F. H. Adams, G. W. Sherman, Ezra Smith, Thomas Holmes, N. L. Swank, M. P. Fogleson, G. B. Fuller, V. S. Root, Thomas Linscott. C. Mendenhall was received as member of conference.

The committee on churches submitted their report. Eighteen fill the statistical blank, showing a total membership of 957, and total expenditures of $6,565.36. Value of church property, $28,000.

The committee on Sunday schools submitted their report, showing an aggregate attendance of about six hundred scholars, besides officers, teachers and adults. The committee recommended the holding of three S. S. institutes during the year, which was concurred in by conference.

A resolution was passed favoring the proposed constitutional amendment prohibiting the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors, but protesting against the exception for sacramental purposes. The conference was emphatic in declaring its opposition to the use of alcoholic wine at the communion.

The committee on finance reported, showing the aggregate assets of conference, including mortgages, notes and cash to be $1,610.79; expended during the year $560.36.

The next annual meeting was appointed at Oxford, Mich. Rev. J. A. Young to deliver the opening address, with M. P. Fogleson as his alternate.

A resolution was passed thanking the church and citizens of Ridgeway for their hospitality in entertaining the conference during its session.

The attendance was not large, but the deliberations were harmonious, and much valuable work was done.

THE FAMILY CIRCLE.

DO YOUR BEST.

BY JOHN M. STARR.

Strike hard! the world loves sturdy blows,
And honors him who valiant gives,
One that for years its impress shows
Honored o'er afterward he lives.

Strong barriers yield to sturdy strokes,
Strong evils are by them overcome,
And men who benefit the world,
Also efforts well and drive them home.

What e'er the hand doth find to do,
That do with all thy will and might
In efforts for the good and true
The greatest delight is yours right.

God gives to all appointed tasks,
And unto him who does his best,
And him alone, the Savior says,
"Well done, enjoy thy hard earned rest.

TAKEN BY STORM.

"Mademoiselle, we are obliged to ask your hospitality. Believe me, we will encroach upon it as little as possible."

The speaker, a young Prussian officer in full uniform, bent low before the beautiful girl whom he addressed.

But Matie Moreau saw neither the courtly grace of manner, nor noted the young, handsome face or form. She only knew that the enemy of her country stood before her, that the tricolor of France had been dragged down from its high standard where it floated protectingly over the little French town, and the hated banner of Prussia put in its stead; that the very privacy of their hearths and homes had been intruded upon—in many instances ruthlessly—and that the man before her was but a representative of all that the disaster entailed.

"Sir!" she answered, her lip curling in undisguised scorn as she spoke, "we are women and defenseless. It fits you well that you should make a pretense of asking, through courtesy, that which you have already obtained through force. The only request we can make of our guests"—emphasizing the latter word with supreme irony—"is that we may see as little of them as possible. Unless your regretful consideration demands all the house, leave us any portion, however small, that shall be ours, not only in word but in deed."

"Mademoiselle, your wishes are commands," answered the young officer, though a flush had risen to his cheek at her hot words of scorn. "My advice to you would be to take the upper floor, where there would be no excuse of intrusion upon me. I wish most earnestly that I might withdraw my men from the house, but it is impossible. The town is small and the troops are many. They are quartered everywhere, and even should I withdraw them, you might be subjected to fresh annoyance, from which it will ever be my earnest endeavor to shield you. Permit me, mademoiselle, to hand you my card, and I beg you to command my services, and to report to me any incivility which you may encounter."

So speaking he placed on the table beside her a slip of pasteboard, and making a low bow withdrew.

The girl made no motion toward it, not even bending the haughty little head in recognition of his courtesy.

"Really, Marie," said her aunt, stretching out her hand for the card, "the young man was very polite. It would have been better policy, my dear, had your manner not been so repellent."

"Repellent," exclaimed the young girl, rising from her seat in her excitement, and pacing up and down the room. "I wish I could have crushed him with my scorn. Does he not know that a true Frenchwoman will bear any insult rather than the humiliation of Prussian magnanimity? I hate him! I hate them all! How shall I ever draw a free breath, knowing that they live on the same air that sustains me! France, be patient; it is but a little longer."

"Hugh Von Trenck," read the elder lady, aloud from the card. "We must not lose this. The young man may really be of future service to us."

"Aunt, how can you? Give me the card or tear it up yourself. Do you think I would ask a favor at his hands—aye, or accept one? Never, never!" and then the bright eyes flashed.

But madame quietly slipped the piece of pasteboard within the reticule she wore at her belt, determining, if necessary, to take the young officer at his word.

Madame will pardon a stranger's interference, but I must beg that neither she nor mademoiselle venture into the streets to-day. The soldiers are in a state of revelry and riot, which might subject them to insult. Any commands I should be happy to fulfill.

Respectfully, HUGH VON TRENCK.

Madam Moreau some three days later, read aloud the above card just slipped beneath her door.

Her niece stood beneath the glass, tying on her hat and listening, with curling lip.

"You see, Marie," she said, glancing up from the writing, "you must not go out. It would be rash madness."

But Marie only picked up her veil and began adjusting it across the pretty face.

"Marie, do you hear me?"

"Yes, aunt," she answered; "but inasmuch as I am hungry, and there is nothing in the house to eat, I think it rather a matter of necessity than of choice. Besides I would rather have open insult than Herr Hugh von Trenck's magnanimous interference. Have no fear, auntie. I am quite able to take care of myself."

And in spite of the elder lady's entreaties, and with a good-by kiss, and a reassuring smile, she was gone.

But the smile faded as she stood a moment on the threshold of the outside door and glanced up and down the street filled with soldiers. The color in her cheek paled to whiteness, and her heart beat loud and fast.

She almost determined to turn back, when some one, standing at her elbow, said in tones so earnest as to be nearly harsh: "Did your aunt not receive my warning?" It was Hugh von Trenck who spoke.

"Are you in authority in this house, sir, over all its inmates?" she questioned.

"If we are your prisoners, let us know it. You can then enforce your wishes."

"You do me injustice, mademoiselle," he replied, in low, thrilling tones. "I beg you for your own sake, not for mine, not to venture out this morning."

"Your prayers and commands are all one to me, sir," she retorted.

The next minute she had gained the street, fear forgotten in her indignant anger. With quick step she hastened in the necessary direction. Beyond a rude stare of admiration she was unmolested, and her few purchases were effected.

She started to return, when coming immediately toward her, extending from the curb to the wall, was a line of Prussian soldiers, arm linked in arm, their steps unsteady from liquor, and their voices raised in laughter and song. What should she do? She feared to turn and flee, lest they should pursue her. Perhaps by hiding her tremor and walking boldly on they might make room for her to pass.—Herr von Trenck's hated advice rang in her ears. She should hate him trebly if it proved unnecessary. But now all the soldier's eyes were turned upon her, as they stood, an impassable phalanx, barring her way.

"Pay us toll, my pretty little Francaise," said one, fastening his coarse gaze upon her.

"Yes; pay us toll," the others echoed; "a kiss apiece!"

Concealing the awful sinking at her heart, she strove to pass them by stepping down from the curb; but the outside man and first speaker threw out his arm to prevent her escape.

"No, no!" he said, in a freezing tone. "You are our prisoner, and we let you off easy. Pay us willingly, and we will prove good as our word. Drive us to force and we'll help ourselves."

To scream would be but to gather around her fresh tormenters, so she struggled to appear calm.

"Let me pass," she said, in low, indignant tones, when, without deigning further parley, the first speaker threw his arm about her waist.

She felt his tainted breath upon her cheek. Oh, God! must her lips be polluted by his touch.

With sudden strength she wrenched herself from his grasp, the brutal laugh of the others jeering on her ears.

A scream, loud and long, burst from her lips, followed by another and another, as her persecutor again approached, when, as if by magic, some one darted in between them and felled the ruffian to the earth.

The others, bold with drink, murmured angrily, but a gleaming pistol soon silenced them, even as they recognize their young colonel and respectfully moved away.

Calling a guard, he put the man he held under his heel under arrest, then turned and offered his arm to the trembling girl.

She saw then, for the first time, that it was Hugh von Trenck who had saved her. Haughtily refusing his arm, hating herself, hating him more, she walked on in silence by his side. At her door she forced herself to speak: "Sir, I owe you my thanks," she said.

"Mademoiselle, the day will come when you will pay me your debt in full," he replied, and left her.

What did he mean? His words, the man himself, haunted her. How brave and full of courage he had been!—How nobly he had come to her relief! How generously he had uttered no word of reproach, or of the truth that she had brought it all on herself. If he had not been a Prussian, she might almost have liked him. As it was—but she got no further than this. She broke down in a storm of tears.

A week later the troops, all but a small reserve, were ordered out for a sortie. Paris had long been in siege and must soon capitulate.

With all her heart Marie prayed night and day for success to the flag already doomed. That her cause could be lost seemed to her impossible.

Now and then the winds bore to her the boom of cannon. They were fighting not far off, and among them was the man she had treated with such disdainful contempt.

Could it be that she thought of him at such a time?

The third day the fighting closed—the Prussians were again victorious; but all night long they were bringing back the dead and wounded to the little town.

It was just daybreak when a squad of soldiers halted at her door. She had not dreamed of undressing during the long night. A nameless dread had tortured her. She knew in this moment what it was, as herself she went down and threw open the door to receive the pale, motionless form they bore.

"This way!" she said, with quiet dignity, and led the way to her own room and her own bed.

He had told her she should repay her debt. Could he have foreseen this day? Would he ever know what she had done for him?

For weeks his life hung in the balance; but one night he opened his gray eyes to consciousness, and they rested on the solitary figure by his side. Her aunt, weary, had gone to rest. A smile broke over the white, thin face.

"You here, mademoiselle?" he said.

"Yes," she answered, "I am here."

He held out his wasted hand, and she silently placed hers within it. Then still with a smile upon his lips, he fell asleep; but from that moment the tide had turned and life had gained the victory.

He was almost well again, when one day came the tidings of the fall of Paris, and on the same day, by the fatality of fate, came to him the news of his promotion to a general's rank.

"Ah, mademoiselle," he said, "I cannot rejoice while you weep. I once said you should pay your debt. I little imagined how you would pay it. I meant then the day should come when you should love and marry me. I had loved you from the first moment my eyes rested on you, in spite of your scorn and contempt. But now you have paid your debt in your own way. You have given me back my life. I will no longer torture you by my presence. I will go away and leave you."

And he turned his head, that she might not see the moisture in his eyes.

But softly she stole to his side, and, kneeling down, nestled her head on his arm.

"If I say stay, Hugh, then will you go?"

"My love—my darling! do you mock me?"

"Nay, Hugh, I am like my own poor Paris," she replied. "The siege has been a long one, but she and I, I fear, have alike been "Taken by Storm."

A Wonderful Cure of Costiveness.

St. Albans, Vt., Feb. 12.

Dear Sirs—After nearly sixteen consecutive years of prostration from spinal disease, my bowels becoming more and more constipated I was forced to resort to the daily use of the most approved alteratives and cathartics prescribed by the medical profession; which, however, seldom produced an evacuation more than once or twice a week—and not even then, without resorting to one or two injections before any relief.

Possibly you can imagine—I hope you may never experience—my sufferings from Piles and otherwise, in consequence of costiveness and partial paralysis of the rectum. Such was my condition when by the advice of my physician I commenced the trial of your Kidney-Wort some three weeks ago. Since then I have taken nothing else excepting one small blue pill. Now by the use of one or two spoonfulls each week of the Kidney-Wort, the evacuations are sufficient and without suffering. Such a medicine is of priceless value, and I hope you will spare no pains in making known its virtues for the relief of suffering humanity. Respectfully Yours,

NELSON FAIRCHILD.

A BOY'S ESSAY ON STATESMEN.

There waz a statesman. His collar was sixteen and his hat was five. He went to a meetin' to orate. He said "ax me a question if you want to no." So when he was a sweten under his shirt a man hollered and he said: "Wot is tarif anyway?" And the statesman he larfed kinder short, and he said, "I want no foolin' around me. I am a bad man, and carry a cane." So he gave his cane a whirl and laid it on the table. Then this awful man down among the spittoons sed again, "How much is tarif a peck, anyway?" And the statesman sed, real hot, "I am a free man, and I won't be adjourned, so I demand the law." And then the law, dressed as a policeman, got the orful man by the back hold and took him to the kaboze. And when in the kaboze he did not ax any more tarif questions, but fot the cockroches all night. And the statesman went home with his cane.—Cleveland Herald.

At a recent performance in the New Haven Opera House, as a number of students left their seats between acts, a good lady was heard to observe:—"Ain't it too bad those fellows have to go home and go to studying?"

Good Company—Number Fourteen.

Good Company, Number Fourteen, has the second installment of Rose and the Doctor, the serial story by Ellen W. Olney. Organization in Charity is a timely article by Mr. D. O. Kellogg of Philadelphia, where the associated charity reform was first put into practical operation in this country a few years since. There is a readable account of the origin and workings of the Interior Department, which includes a larger part of the practical details of the general government than many are aware of, doubtless. My House and my Handmaiden gives some experiences in Germany. Pennyroyal Church and An Exceptional Case are two of the stories. The remaining material includes An Episode of Modern Egypt, Boreing 'Round A Day in the Ruins of Carthage, What She Lost at the Fortune-teller's, The Bouguiniste, Calf's Head en Tortue, an account of the Horace Mann School for the Deaf in Boston where the deaf and dumb are taught to speak; besides contributions from Mrs. Lizzie W. Champney and Miss Dora Read Goodale.

Greatest Remedy Known.

Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumptive is certainly the greatest medical remedy ever placed within the reach of suffering humanity.—Thousands of once hopeless sufferers, now loudly proclaim their praise for this Discovery to which they owe their lives. Not only does it positively cure Consumption, but Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, Hay Fever, Hoarseness and all affections of the Throat, Chest and Lungs yield at once to its wonderful curative powers as if by magic. We do not ask you to buy a large bottle until you know what you are getting. We therefore earnestly request you to call on your druggists, M. Wright & Son, and get a trial bottle free of cost which will convince the most skeptical of its wonderful merits, and show you what a regular one dollar size bottle will do. For sale by M. Wright & Son, Tecumseh.

Important to Consumptives.

Rev. Dr. Cass, while a medical missionary to the East Indies, had placed in his hands the formula for a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma, and all Throat and Lung affectations; also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Complaints, Debility, etc. After having thoroughly tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, he feels it a duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. The Recipe will be sent free of charge to all who desire it, with full directions for preparing and successfully using. Address, with stamp, (naming this paper,) Dr. M. E. Cass, 1257 Washington St., Boston, Mass.

Feels Young Again.

"My mother was afflicted a long time with Neuralgia and a dull, heavy, inactive condition of the whole system, headache, nervous prostration, and was almost helpless. No physicians or medicines did her any good. Three months ago she began to use Hop Bitters, with such good effect that she seems and feels young again, although over 70 years old.—We think there is no other medicine fit to use in the family."—A lady, Providence, R. I.

A NEW PAYING OCCUPATION FOR LADIES AND GENTLEMEN.

The handsome Nickel Plated New Home Lamp being introduced to the public this season, is the most meritorious article ever offered Agents to make money with, is safer, and more convenient than the Student Lamp, which has heretofore had the reputation of being the Safest Lamp made; it has a clamp to firmly attach it to the Sewing Machine, Piano, Organ, Desk, etc. The fear of the ordinary lamp being accidentally upset or thrown from the table, is entirely relieved by this simple contrivance. It can be adjusted to throw the light just where it is wanted to suit the eyes, and can be converted into a handsome wall lamp. It has the best argand burner, a filling indicator, and convenient match box, and its price is within the reach of everyone. It has been fully tested and editorially endorsed by the "Western Christian Advocate," "Am. Christian Review," "Herald and Presbyter," "Journal and Messenger," and "Christian Standard," the leading Religious papers of Cincinnati, and is endorsed by the Mayor and Post-Master of Cincinnati, the Agent of the American Express Companies, as being the Safest, Most Convenient and best Lamp made.

There are three reasons why Agents should seek such an article to canvass for—first for its absolute safety and great convenience, it is needed in every home—second its low price makes its sale immense—third it will be a credit to handle such an article. One southern Agent writes, it sells faster than Gen. Lee's portrait sold right after the war, another writes it beats the palmy days of the Sewing Machine, its rapid sale, low price, and liberal terms surprise old Agents.—Address Home Lamp Co., Cincinnati, O. Mentioning our paper and they will give you full particulars and exclusive territory to canvass in.

TO THE AFFLICTED.

Since the introduction of Kellogg's Columbian Oil it has made more permanent cures and given better satisfaction on Kidney complaints and Rheumatism than any know remedy. Its continued series of wonderful cures in all climates has made it known as a safe and reliable agent to employ against all aches and pains, which are the forerunners of more serious disorders. It acts speedily and surely, always relieving suffering and often saving life. The protection it affords by its timely use on Rheumatism, kidney affection, and all aches and pains, wounds, cramping pains, cholera morbus, diarrhœa, coughs, colds, catarrh, and disorders among children, makes it an invaluable remedy to be kept always on hand in every home. No person can afford to be without it, and those who have once used it never will. It is absolutely certain in its remedial effects and will always cure when cures are possible. Call at C. A. Wright & Co's. and get a memorandum book giving more full details of the curative properties of this wonderful medicine.

A Wonderful Discovery.

For the speedy cure of Consumption and all diseases that lead to it, such as stubborn Coughs, neglected Colds Bronchitis, Hay Fever, Asthma, pain in the side and chest, dry hacking cough, tickling in the throat, Hoarseness, Sore Throat, and all chronic or lingering diseases of the throat and lungs. Dr. King's New Discovery has no equal and has established for itself a world-wide reputation. Many leading physicians recommend and use it in their practice. The formula from which it is prepared is highly recommended by all medical journals. The clergy and the press have complimented it in the most glowing terms. Go to your druggist and get a trial bottle free of cost, or regular size for $1.00. For sale by M. Wright & Son, Tecumseh, Mich.

Poverty and Suffering.

"I was dragged down with debt, poverty and suffering for years, caused by a sick family and large bills for doctoring, which did them no good.—I was completely discouraged, until one year ago, by the advice of my pastor, I procured Hop Bitters and commenced their use, and in one month we were all well and none of us have seen a sick day since, and I want to say to all poor men, you can keep your families well a year with Hop Bitters for less than one doctor's visit will cost—I know it.

How to Get Rich.

The great secret of obtaining riches, is first to practice economy, and as good old "Deacon Snyder," says, "It used to worry the life out of me to pay enormous doctor's bills, but now I have "struck it rich." Health and happiness reign supreme in our little household, and all simply because we use no other medicine but Electric Bitters and only costs fifty cents a bottle. Sold by C. THE READY FAMILY SOAP MAKER:

LEWIS' LYE

98 PER CENT. PURE.

(Patented.)

FINELY POWDERED,

HIGHLY PERFUMED.

The strongest and purest Lye made, will make 12 pounds of the best perfumed Hard Soap, in 20 minutes without boiling.

The best ever offered for household use.

The Lye is disinfectant.

First. It is packed in an iron can with a slip or removable lid, easily taken off and leaving the contents exposed, thereby saving the trouble, annoyance, and danger (from flying particles) as with other Lyes, which, being sold in the cans, must be broken with a hammer to get the Lye out.

Second. It being a fine powder, you can remove the lid and pour out all the contents, being always ready for use.

Third. A teaspoonful or more can be used, as in water-softening, scrubbing, etc., and the lid returned to the can, and thereby save the balance of contents. With other Lyes all need be dissolved at once and used in a short time, or the strength is gone.

Fourth. Absolute purity. Free from all adulterations.

Fifth. The best Soap can be made in from ten to twenty minutes with this Lye.

Sixth. No failure is possible in making Soap with this Lye when the simple directions given are followed.

Seventh. One can of this Powdered Lye is equal to twenty pounds of Sal Soda or Washing Soda.

Eighth. One can of this Lye will saponify one pound more of grease than any other Concentrated Lye, Ball Potash, or Saponifier.

Ninth. This Lye is 25 per cent. stronger than any other Lye or Potash.

Tenth. One to two teaspoonfuls will soften a pail of the hardest water.

Eleventh. One teaspoonful will thoroughly cleanse Sinks, Drains, or Closets.

Invaluable for killing Roaches, Mice, Rats, etc. The best article for washing Trees.

Chambers' Encyclopædia.

15 Vols. Over 13,000 Pages. Price During July, $6.25.

Among the wonderful things which have been accomplished for lovers of good books by the "Literary Revolution," perhaps the most wonderful is the reproduction of this great Encyclopædia at a merely nominal cost.

It is a verbatim reprint of the last English edition, in 15 beautiful volumes, clear nonpareil type, handsomely bound in cloth, for $7.50; the same printed on finer, heavier paper, wide margins, and bound in half Russia, gilt top, price $15.00. The first ten volumes are ready for delivery. Vol. 11 will be ready July 10. The remaining volumes will be completed by October next.

$6.25. An Amazing Offer. $6,25.

The more widely and rapidly these volumes are scattered, the greater is their influence in inducing other purchasers of this and our many standard publications. Accordingly we give special terms to early subscribers.

To all, whose orders and money are received during the month of July, we will supply the 15 volumes in cloth, for $6.25, and in half Russia, gilt top, for $12.50. To any one sending from any place where we have no special agent (usually the leading bookseller of the town), a club of five orders, we will allow a commission of 10 per cent. The volumes issued will be sent at once by express, and the remaining volumes when completed.

A specimen volume in cloth will be sent, postpaid, for 50 cents, or in half Russia, gilt top, for $1.00, and may be returned at once, if not satisfactory.

The "CHAMBERS'S ENCYCLOPÆDIA" comprises the first 15 volumes of our "Library of Universal Knowledge," and the remaining volumes, complete in themselves, will be sold separately when published.

THANKSGIVING PROCLAMATION.

BY THE PRESIDENT.

At no period in their history since the United States became a nation has this people had so abundant and so universal reasons for joy and gratitude at the favor of Almighty God or been subject to so profound an obligation to give thanks for His loving kindness and humbly to implore His continued care and protection. Health, wealth, and prosperity throughout all our borders; peace honor, and friendship with all the world; firm and faithful adherence by the great body of our population to the principles of liberty and justice which have made our greatness as a nation and to the wise institutions and strong frame of government and the society which will perpetuate it, for all these let the thanks of a happy and united people, as with one voice, ascend in devout homage to the Giver of all good. I therefore recommend that on Thursday, the 25th day of November next, the people meet in their respective places of worship to make the acknowledgement to Almighty God for His bounties and His protection, and to offer to Him prayer for their continuance.

In witness hereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done in the city of Washington this first day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eighty, and the Independence of the United States the one hundred and fifth. R. B. HAYES.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

From our Regular Correspondent.

AN INTERESTING LETTER.

Politics—Census Report—The National Lincoln Monument.

Washington, Nov. 12, 1880.

Things political are quieting down and both the cost and the results are about counted up. It is settled that the next Congress as well as the presidency will be practically in the hands of the Republicans, and there is little left to the realm of speculation except to canvass the probabilities of General Garfield's Cabinet and the possible results of the new responsibilities with which the party is invested. There are rumblings from New York and suggestions that the vote of that State may be contested before Congress, but it does not as yet create any serious uneasiness. It is believed to be substantially a devise of "Boss" Kelly to let himself down easy, and there is no apprehension that enough responsible Democrats will join in the movement to make it dangerous. Most of those I have talked with here doubt the wisdom of such a movement.—General Hancock, himself, it is said, refuses to be president, if he could, upon a technicality. So, all things considered, I think we may regard all these points settled, and begin to turn our attention to the coming session of Congress and other subjects pertaining to public affairs.

A New York paper recently contained a sensational editorial calling for a Congressional investigation and asserting "on high authority" that before the presidential election was held and while all the important members of the cabinet were absent from Washington, the records of the various executive departments of the government were overhauled by unofficial persons who appeared in the several departments bearing the authority of the chiefs of those departments respectively. The editorial says that the archives of the government cover four Republican administrations as well as the administration of President Hayes, and that the accounts of the nation have never been examined by experts or officials not affiliated with the party in power since the year 1860. It argues that the purpose of the alleged overhauling of records was to suppress any that would be damaging in case the Democrats came into power. I have not been able to verify this story, and guess its author would have hard work to divest it of the "ancient and fishlike smell" that attaches thereto.

Gen. Walker, the Superintendent of the Census, is preparing a set of tables which he will submit to Congress at as early a date as possible, giving the necessary information upon which to base a reappointment of the Congressional representation. The table will show the number of Representatives to which each State would be entitled on the assumption of both an increase and a decrease of the total number, so that when Congress shall have decided the total number of members which it is desirable to have, reference may be made to the corresponding table and the apportionment readily found. The Joint Committee on the Census, of which Hon. S. S. Cox is chairman, will consider the matter of the increase or decrease of the number of Representatives. There is one of two things to be done, either the present basis of population will have to be enlarged, or the number of Representatives increased. While many complain that the House is already too unwieldy others hold that the basis of representation is too large, and should be decreased rather than increased.

The first bronze statue for the National Lincoln Monument was cast a few days ago at the bronze foundry of Clark Mills the sculptor. It is of Secretary Chase, and Mr. Mills has models of Secretaries Stanton and Seward, Bishop Simpson, Henry Ward Beecher, and George H. Stuart ready for casting. The monument is to be erected by the National Lincoln Monument Association, which was formed some years ago, and will be reorganized this winter. Bronze has been supplied by the government in the shape of condemned cannon. Congress will be asked to appropriate funds for the pedestal, and the other expenses will be met by private subscriptions. The site has not yet been decided upon, but the sculptor will urge the selection of Judiciary Square. The present plan of the monument is as follows:—The main structure will be granite, in three stories, approached by three steps, each several feet in height. The shaft will have three concave sides. At the base there will be six equestrian statues, each about eighteen feet high, and standing on jutting pedestals. The statues will be of Generals Grant, Sherman, Sheridan, Thomas, Howard and Wadsworth. At the three corners of the second story will be commemorative statues, one of Frederick Douglas and typical of the results of emancipation; another of Liberty succoring disabled soldiers, and the third of a volunteer or of a naval officer or a sailor. Between these, on the granite sides, will be placed bas-reliefs, the front one representing the firing on Fort Sumter and the other the Senate and House adopting the amendments to the constitution. Around the third story will be grouped the statues of those prominent in civil positions during the war. At the front will be represented the following members of Lincoln's Cabinet:—Chase, Seward, Stanton, Blair and Wells. On another side will be Simon Cameron, Caleb B. Smith and Edward Bates, all of the Cabinet; Thaddeus Stevens, who is given a place as a friend of Lincoln; Dr. Bellows as founder of the Sanitary Commission, and George H. Stuart, of the Christian Commission. Bishop Simpson will represent the pulpit, and Henry Ward Beecher will also have a statue. On the third side there will be an alto-relief representing the surrender of Gen. Lee, from a description furnished by General Grant. Above will tower allegorical figures of Liberty, Justice and Time, while a seated figure of President Lincoln, twelve feet high, signing the emancipation proclamation, will dominate the whole work. It is intended to have, in all, thirty-six bronze statues, the positions of some of which have not yet been decided upon.

DOM PEDRO.

Every Family Without Exception,

In City, Village and Country will find it highly useful to constantly read the American Agriculturist. It abounds in plain, practical, reliable information, most valuable for In-door as well as Out-door work and comfort, and its 800 to 1,000 Original Engravings in every volume are both pleasing and instructive. In this respect it is pre-eminent and stands alone, and it should have a place in every Household, no matter how many other journals are taken. Its Illustrated Department for Youth and Children contains much information as well as amusement.—Its Humbug exposures are invaluable to all classes. The cost is very low, only $1,50 from now to the end of 1881, or four copies for $5. Single numbers 15 cents. One specimen, 6 cents.—Take our advice and subscribe now for volume 40 (1881). Orange Judd Company, Publishers, 245 Broadway, New York.

THE Michigan School Moderator is a neat sixteen page magazine just started at Grand Rapids and devoted to the interests of the public schools of Michigan. It will supply a long felt want, and if the first number, which is on our table, is an earnest of what it will be hereafter, it deserves and will achieve success. It is published fortnightly at $2,00 per year.

THE Gardener's Monthly for November is fully up to the usual standard of that excellent magazine. The different departments are well filled with choice and instructive reading, that of Fruit and vegetable gardening being especially full in this number. COMMON COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS.

VILLAGE OF TECUMSEH, MICH., Council Room, Nov. 3, 1880.

At this adjourned session the Council convened at the usual hour.

Present, the entire council.

Minutes of last session read and approved.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

On Streets:

Report in writing adversely on petition of E. R. Crossman, Wm. Kyle and others.

On motion the report was accepted and adopted.

On Finance:

Report in writing recommending the following bills be paid as presented:

James Moir	$2 85
W. C. Jordan	80 00
Weaver Brothers	21 00
LaFrance Fire Engine Co	30 00

On motion, the report was adopted, the bills placed on file, and orders directed to be drawn for the several amounts.

REPORTS OF OFFICERS.

The Street Commissioner presented his monthly report, dating from Oct. 4, 1880, to Nov. 1, 1880, during which time there was performed on the streets of the village, 24 days of team work and 13 days hand labor.

The report was accepted and placed on file.

On motion, the monthly reports presented by the Street Commissioner during the season were referred to the committee on streets with instructions to compare the same with the assessment roll of the village for the year 1880, and report to council if the tax assessed on said roll in "street days" has been worked upon the streets.

The marshal made verbal report in relation to the matter referred to him at last meeting, when, on motion, he was instructed to report the same in writing at next meeting of council.

PETITIONS AND APPLICATIONS.

Of L. M. VanTine, P. C. Temple and ten others, asking for a sidewalk along the south side of Shawnee street from the east line of Pearl street to the west line of Evans street.

On motion, it was

Resolved, by the common council of the village of Tecumseh, that a sidewalk be and the same is hereby required to be constructed along the south side of Shawnee street from the east line of Pearl street to the west line of Evans street; such walk to be constructed of sound pine plank not less than 1½ inches in thickness or more than 6 inches in width, to be spiked down on sound oak stringers, which shall not be more than 2½ feet apart, and to be completed to the satisfaction and approval of the committee on streets within 30 days from date of notice.

Of G. P. Sparks, Ed Prichard and eight others, asking for a street at the intersection of Logan street with Maumee street.

Referred to Committee on Streets.

NEW BUSINESS.

A communication was received and read from Sheriff Cairns, which, on motion, was accepted and placed on file.

A notice, with an affidavit attached, was served on the council by Peter J. VanVleet that the testimony of Joseph W. Brown and Ezra Blood would be taken before Willis Merritt, a circuit court commissioner, on the 10th day of November, 1880, such testimony to be used in a suit which said Peter J. VanVleet expects to be commenced against him by the common council of the village of Tecumseh.

On motion, a special committee consisting of Messrs. Fitzsimmons, Burridge and Heesen was appointed to confer with the village attorney in reference to the matter introduced by Mr. VanVleet's notice. The committee was further instructed to take such steps as shall protect the interests of the corporation in the testimony to be taken as aforesaid, in their descretion, to prevent any further trespass on the old cemetery ground, and to investigate the title by which the same is held by this village.

Willis Merritt came before the council as attorney for Heeman Hand in the matter of Hand's claim against the village for damages to a horse at a bridge in this village. E. B. Wood appeared as village attorney in the same matter. After some discussion and conference, on motion, a special committee consisting of Fitzsimmons, Heesen and Root was appointed to investigate the case and report at next meeting of council.

On motion, an appropriation of $120 was made for the benefit of the Fire Department from the contingent fund.

J. B. Swan made a proposition to pay $10 for one of the Babcock fire extinguishers owned by the village.

On motion, the proposition was accepted.

Bills presented and referred to Committee on Finance:

UNFINISHED BUSINESS.

The report from the committee on public grounds and buildings laid on the table at last meeting of council for consideration this evening, was taken up, and, on motion, its consideration was indefinitely postponed.

On further motion, council adjourned.

P. S. MCKINNON, Recorder.

FROM the Comet, published at Jackson, Mississippi, we see that the LaFrance fire engine company took one of their fifth size engines there for a trial. In four minutes and forty seconds the steam guage registered eighty pounds of steam, at which instant the engine was started. A stream was maintained through one hundred feet of hose two hundred and thirty feet.

A Liberal Offer.

We have made arrangements to furnish The Ohio Farmer, one of the oldest, largest and most valuable weekly agricultural and family journals of America, with the HERALD, both one year, postage paid for only $2.80.

The Great Healer of all Inflamed Injuries and Disorders.

It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the unparalleled demand with which it meets, stamps it at once as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.

The most incredulous are convinced, and the most skeptical are compelled to believe in the power of this great remedy.

WHAT IT CURES.

ALL SORES, CUTS, BRUISES, SPRAINS, BURNS, SORE THROAT, LAMENESS, RHEUMATISM, PILES, INFLAMMATION of LUNGS and BOWELS, BRONCHITIS, CROUP, SALT RHEUM, CHILBLAINS, AFFECTIONS of the SPINE, ERYSIPELAS, NERVOUS IRRITATION, and all disorders attendant with INFLAMMATION.

It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is gained over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame; every bone, muscle, vein, nerve, and ligament is searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it copes readily with internal as well as external diseases.

Over 40 Years

This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such that as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates of cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should feel perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.

Price 25 and 40 cents per bottle. Sold by all dealers in medicine.

THE Episcopalian society are making arrangements to present the Mistletoe at the Opera House on Thanksgiving night. There will also be a fair connected with it that will be open from four o'clock to seven in the evening, when various articles will be offered for sale. All those to whom have been consigned parts in the play, are requested to meet at the residence of Wm. Hayden for rehearsal to-morrow evening.

HENRY DEMUNN, a man of color, was arraigned before Justice Burridge this week for the larceny of some clothing from George Imerson. DeMunn, for the last thirty-five days, has been quartered at the county jail for a like offence, and it was at the expiration of the first sentence that he was arraigned for the second. He pleaded guilty, and in consequence was consigned to the protection of the county for sixty days.

SEVERAL days ago deputies Ed. Merritt and Peter Miller started out for Macon in search of Charles Allen, who was wanted for stealing a pair of boots. They found the man in bed; but soon had him out and dressed.—The three started down stairs, Allen behind; as soon as the bottom was reached Allen sprang past the officers and through an open door, slamming the door in Merritt's face who was only about three feet behind him.—When the officers opened the door Allen was flying through the outside door, bareheaded. The night was so dark that it was impossible to see any object, so the officers gave up the search, while Allen probably wore off considerable of the sole leather of his boots in making good his escape.

HYMENIAL.

Last night a gay and happy throng were received by Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Sholes at their home, at the instance of their daughter's marriage. The bride, Miss Ella Sholes, is the daughter of one of Tecumseh's most respected business men and the bridegroom, Mr. James Moore, our present village marshal, is a young man of merit and highly esteemed by the community. Both have a large circle of friends who wish that their years of wedded life may be of halcyon and pleasant days. The presents were many in number, of a useful and beautiful nature. Among those present from abroad were Mrs. A. Searls, Mrs. D. W. Osborn, of Cleveland, O.; Mrs. Capt. Osborn, Jonesville; Mrs. J. Baldy, Toledo, O.; Miss Hattie Bonsteel, Ypsilanti; Mrs. John Bailey, Detroit; Mrs. Edwin Osborn, Antwerp, Ohio. The guests departed late in the evening, having passed a festive and joyous evening.

At the Universalist church next Sunday evening the pastor commences a series of special lectures and sermons. Subject next Sunday evening, "David is King, or the Royalty of Wisdom."

DR. HOUSE has just received a new microscope from Professor Edwards Smith, of the Cleveland Medical School. The machine has all the latest appliances and was constructed under the directions of the American Microscopical Society.

WE have received one of the lamps advertised in another column by the "Home Lamp Company." It seems to be all that the proprietors claim for it, and is certainly a very ornamental as well as useful piece of furniture.—Any one wishing to apply for an agency can see the lamp at our office.

WE heard one of Tecumseh's prosperous millers say lately that if he could procure barrels at twenty-five cents apiece he would use barrels instead of the heavy cloth bags now used. And it is reasonable to suppose if one flouring mill used barrels the others would. Such being the case, it seems that there ought to be a good opportunity for coopers here. The mills could probably keep twenty coopers in constant employment, and thus add considerable to the business of the town.

A LARGE grist mill of seven run of stone is being built in Adrian.

MRS. NASH and Avery, of Cuba, N. Y., are the guests of Rev. H. Shepard.

BOYS are now sharpening their skates preparing for hair breadth escapes.

LAST Tuesday evening being the fifth anniversary of the wedded life of Mr. & Mrs. Geo. Kies, they commemorated the event by a gathering of friends and a social time.

MRS. E. W. KNOX, of Rome, N. Y., is the guest of her brother, W. H. Sink, of this village. She expects to remain among her relatives in Michigan during the winter and regain, if possible, her health.

WE ask attention to the advertisement of The Ohio Farmer, of Cleveland, O., in this issue of our paper, and recommend it as one of the oldest and most valuable agricultural and family papers of the country.

UNION services are holding this week by the Presbyterian, Methodist and Baptist societies. This evening at the Methodist, to-morrow evening at the Baptist and Saturday evening at the Presbyterian church. These meetings are especially for the young men.

OUR wrapping paper trade is opening up finely. Tecumseh merchants are learning that they can buy wrapping paper at just as good figures at home as elsewhere and save the cost of transportation. All the principal kinds of wrapping paper are kept constantly in stock.

THE Rev. C. C. Sink, pastor of the first Christian church at Marshall, Michigan, occupied the pulpit of the M. E. church, at Ridgeway, last Sabbath morning, and the pulpit of the M. E. church, in this village, Sabbath evening, by request. Mr. Sink returned home on the noon train on Monday last.

PROF. AVERY delivered his lecture upon the Electric Light at the Opera House last Friday evening, under the auspices of the Opera House Association. His lecture was illustrated throughout by various interesting and instructive experiments. The light itself was an interesting feature. His lecture was a complete explanation of the philosophical principles of the subject.

THE new enterprise, which is manufacturing the Zeigler Treadle, is now under way. Some delay has been experienced in getting the treadles ready for market, incident to the starting of a new business, but the first lot of treadles is now finished with all the latest improvements. One of them can be seen at the HERALD office in full running order. Persons are invited to call and examine it.

Saginaw Herald: Hon. Perley Bills, of Tecumseh, who died on Saturday, was one of the prominent men of the state for many years. One of his daughters has practiced medicine for the last two years in this city, and is highly esteemed by all who know her. The writer was intimately acquainted with Mr. Bills for many years, and bears cordial testimony to his worth and integrity, both in his public and private life.

THE public schools of Tecumseh are unusually prosperous this fall. From Supt. Fairchild's last monthly report we glean the following items of interest: The whole number of enrollments on Oct. 29th was 518; number of different pupils enrolled up to that date 446; number belonging, 438, of which there were 69 pupils in the High School, 187 in the Grammar grade, and 182 in the Primary grade. The number of non-resident pupils was forty. The visits up to that date comprised 6 by the Town Supt., 143 by Supt. Fairfield and 47 by other persons.

ADRIAN is all aglow over the prospects of the Peninsular Car Company removing their works from Detroit to that city. They will, if they remove the works, purchase the car shops at Adrian and put them in full blast, necessitating the employing of 200 or 300 men. The only difficulty is obtaining a clear title of the property from the creditors of Henry Angell, the former proprietor of the works. A meeting of the citizens was held last Monday evening, representatives of the Detroit company being present. There it was agreed that the citizens of Adrian should raise $7,000 in order to obtain a clear title of the property, and if they are successful, as in all probability they shall be, the project is a sure thing and will be of great commercial value to Adrian.

THE COUNTY CANVASS.

Last Tuesday the county canvassers met at the county clerk's office, and with J. W. Bradner, of Clinton, as chairman. The following committees were appointed:

On Electors—Cornelius Knapp, J. G. Harkness, E. N. Taylor.

On State Officers—J. H. Warren, W. F. Rogers, C. J. Bradish, G. A. Slayton.

On Congressman—W. R. McKey, J. M. Judson, John Phillips.

On State Senator—E. H. Hume, W. P. Luke, Abram Harrington.

On County Officers—Horace Holdridge, H. C. Hanford, Adam Dreher, T. H. Temple.

On Constitutional Amendment—Edwin Crane, Jerome Davis, Rollin Robinson.

On Representatives — 1st district, Rollin Robinson, Abram Harrington, W. S. McKey, W. P. Luke; 2d district, Heman Loomis, Edwin Crane, W. H. Wiggins; 3d district, H. C. Hanford, J. M. Judson, A. H. Briggs.

Wednesday the board finished their canvass. We take the following tables of the result from the Times:

THE ELECTRIC LIGHT EXHIBITION.

EDITOR HERALD:

SIR—As some curiosity seems to have been excited as to the arrangement for, and the success of the Electric Light exhibition, if you can afford me a few lines in your paper I will, as one of the managers of the Hall Association, explain very briefly the matter as far as may be necessary.

When in Adrian on Saturday the 6th inst., I found that two lectures and public exhibitions on the Electric Light were to be given there on the 10th and 11th, under the auspices of their High School Lecture Course. I saw Prof. Curtis, and got some idea of the probable expense of getting one exhibition in Tecumseh, immediately after the two evenings in Adrain. On my return home I saw those of our managers whom I could find conveniently, and wrote that afternoon to Prof. Avery at Cleveland. I did not hear from him until Tuesday forenoon by telegraph. As there was then no mail to Adrian until next morning, I answered by telegram, saying that we would guarantee fifty dollars; he replied in the same way in the afternoon and sent by the evening train a supply of posters.

The exhibition and lecture came off on Friday evening last as announced. The receipts were 161 from the schools at 10 cents each, 130 outside of the schools at 25 cents each, in all $48.60; falling short a little of the amount guaranteed to Prof. Avery. Besides the scholars and others included above, there were free tickets given to the Clergy and their wives, and some of the employees of the HERALD office, making an audience of a little over 300; which would probably been largely increased if there had been time for larger and more extended advertising.

Allow me to say in conclusion, Mr. Editor, that the Association are much indebted to you for your generous gift of the use of your engine, subject only to a small gratuity to the engineer and assistant who run the engine during the evening, and which was paid with pleasure. Although the payment of the lecturer and some incidental expenses will exceed the receipts on the occasion, still the Association do not begrudge the deficit made for the enjoyment of those who went to see and hear, and for the entertainment to our public schools.

Yours Respectfully,
JOHN J. ADAM, Treasurer.

MRS. EDWIN OSBORN, who is visiting friends here, favored the HERALD with a call yesterday and expressed herself as highly pleased with the establishment. Mr. Osborn, her husband, is editor of the Gazette, Antwerp, O., consequently she takes an interest in visiting a printing office.

DIED.

ALVORD—In Lansing, Nov. 7th, at the residence of her son-in-law, Lyman T. Baylis, Anna, wife of David B. Alvord, aged 95 years.

A resident of Tecumseh from 1836 to 1874. Her remains were brought to Tecumseh and laid beside those of her husband.

WHEELER—In this village, Thursday evening, Nov. 11th, Mrs. R. R. Wheeler, aged 60 years.

Mrs. Wheeler was well known in this village, having resided here 20 years. She was on the street in apparent health until just before her death, coming home she complained of a difficulty to breathe. In a few minutes more she said it was death, calmly she met the messenger, and without the shadow of fear, and with expressions of charity for all, passed away. Mrs. Wheeler leaves an adopted daughter, Mrs. Emma Dibble of Franklin, and three brothers two of whom reside in this state, and Rev. C. C. Richardson, who resides at Olcott, N. Y. She was intending to visit the the latter in a few days, who now receives the sad intelligence of the higher journey. The funeral, which was held on Saturday at 2 o'clock by Rev. H. Shepard, was well attended by friends, and neighbors. May heavenly comfort be administered to the hearts of mourners so suddenly bereaved.

STAY AT HOME.

The number of men who leave Michigan annually for the purpose of improving their fortunes we have no means of estimating accurately; but it must be very large. Many are attracted by the glowing prospectuses of the immigration agencies established in the growing States of the West. Many more are afflicted with the mining craze and start for Nevada or Colorado, either to dig or speculate in mining claims. Under one delusion or another there is a constant stream of emigration from Michigan, westward; and though it is not very large when compared with the influx of immigrants from the Old World, from the East, and from Canada, it is very much larger than it should be.

There is no State or Territory between Michigan and the Pacific Ocean that presents any better field for energy, activity and industry than Michigan itself does; and without these qualities a man may as well be in one spot as another so far as getting ahead is concerned. Of the masses of men who have drifted westward from the State to the fertile fields of Kansas and Nebraska and the mines of Nevada and Colorado, only a fortunate few have bettered themselves. The rest have fared worse than they would if they had stayed as home; and hundreds of them would be glad now to return if they could take at once their old places, or in some cases, if they could raise the means. And this results, not from mere homesickness, but from an honest conviction, arrived at under the teaching of experience, that Michigan offers better facilities to the agriculturalist, the artisan, the manufacturer and the workingman than any other State in the Northwest.

Of this fact Michigan men can easily convince themselves without the expense of emigrating, if they will examine the question for themselves. Its forests are unsurpassed in magnitude and value. Its mines yield a return which is far more certainly remunerative than the return from mines where the precious metals alone are sought. Its agriculture is far more varied than that of any State between it and the Rocky Mountains. Its fruit crop alone is a mine of wealth, and its productiveness in this direction no Western State can hope to rival. Its apples in particular are the reliance of the whole Western country, and it is the chief anxiety now of the dweller in far Dakota that the rivers may not close for the winter until his supply of Michigan fruit has been brought to him. Even in the matter of grain, Michigan makes a showing which is not surpassed by the prairies of Minnesota, Kansas or Nebraska; while the treeless condition of these States subjects the farmer to vicissitudes in the way of flood and hurricane to which the Michigan farmer is a stranger. In the raising of the most important product, wool, no State in the Northwest can compete successfully with Michigan; while her enormous water power and inexhaustable supply of fuel give her facilities for manufactures unrivaled by those of any State in the Union.

The same inducements which Michigan offers to its own citizens to stay at home it offers to the citizens of other States and countries to come hither. The State is out of debt; taxation is moderate; the climate is equable; land is obtainable on reasonable terms; and there is room enough and work enough for all. Of foreign immigration the State gets, perhaps, its full share. But if its advantages were properly presented to the people of the Eastern States we believe thousands of the emigrants who pass through on their way to Kansas and Nebraska, would stop and add their quota to the swelling of Michigan's population at the next census.—Free Press.

READING FOR CHILDREN.

Parents should give their children the advantage of a good healthy library, and furnish them with papers that respect the morals. Select the matter for your children. Take time, since the whole future of your son or daughter may lie in the literature which you place before them. The writer knows of cases that came under his own observation which resulted in great harm, and all the result of reading filth. You are interested in the future of your child; take care of the reading matter. There is nothing more injurious to the development of the mind and the formation of character in young people than for them to form the habit of reading corrupt literature. It is in such books that the false side of life is given to the young, and they will get the idea that life is not the great earnest battle which each must fight for himself.—It is from what we read that we derive many of our thoughts and ideas, which influence many of our deeds and actions in after life. If our reading is pure, the thoughts obtained will likewise be pure; but if it is degrading in its nature, it will pull us down to a level with itself.

MICHIGAN STATE NEWS.

Flint already fears a mud blockade.

Battle Creek has a night school in successful operation.

The epizooty is doing much damage at Howell and thereabouts.

The third district W. C. T. U. will hold a convention at Jackson to-day and to-morrow.

J. B. Tyler, arrested on a charge of forgery at Charlotte, has been admitted to bail.

The course in fence destroying and sidewalk lifting has been opened at the University city.

Rev. Charles Marsh, has been duly installed as pastor of the Cheboygan congregational church.

John H. Welch, of Ionia, is to be the agent of Uncle Sam in looking to his timber lands in this State.

Charlotte is about to bathe itself in light—from 50 street lamps of the automatic self-extinguishing variety.

Dowagiac is in the midst of a business boom of unprecedented proportions.

Those social swindles know as donation parties are again becoming fashionable in this State.

Rev. W. W. Lyle, of "Duxbury, Mass., has been "called" to come and preach for the Bay City congregationalists.

Mrs. Horace G. Coles, one of the pioneers of Jackson county, died at her home in Rives a few days ago, at a ripe old age.

The German evangelical church society at Ionia dedicated a new church edifice on Sunday last. It cost $1,600, and is all paid for.

Coldwater butchers have agreed to sell no more meat on Sundays. Heretofore they have sold it whenever they got a chance.

Complaint is made about the dangerously fast rate of speed at which certain Michigan Central railroad trains run through Marshall.

It is alleged that the train over the Kalamazoo & South Haven railroad has arrived at South Haven on time but once since sometime last July.

At Flint the fashionable bets are wagers of hats, and just now the Republicans nearly all wear new head covers.

The dedication of the new Oddfellows' hall at Sturgis on the night of the 10th was a decided success in a social way.

The property left by Mary Porter, of Chillicothe, Ohio, as a legacy to the Michigan University, consists of 280 acres of land worth about ten thousand dollars.

The Niles union school house caught fire last Friday during the session of the school, and narrowly escaped destruction. The children had a big scare.

Norton E. Bassett, of Coldwater, fell from a scaffold some time ago and broke his leg. Thursday afternoon he fell from another scaffold and broke his other leg.

John Nesbitt, of Porter, Van Buren county, died at Kankakee, Ill., a few days ago, aged 76 years. He was one of the veteran pioneers of Van Buren county.

THE EPIZOOTIC.

Its Causes, Pathology, Diagnosis, Prognosis and Treatment.

The prevailing horse disease known as the epizootic, which has caused so much anxiety among horse-owners all over the country, commenced in the East and has been steadily traveling westward. The disease appears to be of a similar type to that of the epizootic of 1873, but of a much milder character, and though many cases of a complicated nature have occurred from imprudent treatment, yet the mortality has been comparatively trifling. We presume our numerous readers, especially those interested in the welfare of the equine family, are anxiously watching for some advice on this important subject, indeed we know of no subject connected with veterinary science that would be more appropriate just now for the veterinary column, or one that would be more likely to prove interesting at present.

THE CAUSES OF THE MALADY.

The first and most important, tho' least understood, is atmospheric, by which we mean some kind of poison floating in the air, so subtle as to elude all chemical investigations, but which acts specifically on the brain and nervous system of such horses as are predisposed to disease from improper ventilation or other causes of a debilitating nature. Secondly, the coating process which we believe to be generally attended with more or less febrile and nervous disturbance of the system. Can we wonder at this when we consider the vast surface requiring an increase of the vital fluid to perform so important a function as the reproduction of hair? And as there is no more blood in the system at this than any other period of the year, if there is a determination of it to the skin it must be taken away from the internal organs, such as the cerebral, respiratory and digestive, which are thus rendered liable to congestion, a state which we regard as evidence of the weakness of the coats of the vessels. We have ample evidence of the febrile disturbance and debility occurring in horses during the coating process if we carefully observe the alternate chills and heats, particularly of the extremities, and mark how easily the horse will sweat on the least exertion. We now come to the third cause of this and all other epidemics, namely, the want of pure air in the stables, which, in the Spring and Autumn months, is usually excluded when there is frost, snow or a cold wind.—Horse-owners will close all ventilators lest the cold air might get in, and, according to their idea, give the horse a chill; but by this means they cause the very disease they are so anxious to guard against. The inmates of the barn are thus deprived of proper ventilation, so necessary for the preservation of health, strength and endurance. The foul air renders the blood unfit for the nutrition of the body and the stimulation of its several organs, so necessary for the maintenance of animal life. Any one who has a knowledge of the physiology of respiration must know how necessary it is at all times to have a fresh supply of air in their stables, since by not allowing free ventilation oxygen is excluded, and the horse produces an amount of carbonic acid gas which becomes positively poisonous. A second reason for preserving free ventilation, is that the ammonia resulting from the decomposition of the urine has a deleterious effect on the horse's health, and hence the necessity of good stable drainage.

All that we pretend to know of the pathology of this disease, is that it is produced by some mysterious atmospheric poison, which is conveyed into the system through the medium of the lungs, and acts specifically on the brain and nervous centers, causing great loss of vitality, debility and less of functional activity. In regard to the diagnosis, any person who has had an opportunity to observe one or more horses suffering with this disease can readily recognize it. We have, as a rule, from the first, loss of appetite, foul mouth and tongue, slimy condition of the faeces, and sudden prostration of strength, without the usual catarrhal symptoms being at first present; the membrane within the nostrils is either palid or of a deep scarlet; the coat will stare, the limbs will be of a variable temperature, two of them cold and the others preternaturally hot, or cold and hot in patches, and the throat will perhaps be sore; a troublesome cough with more or less discharge from the nose is invariably present.

PROGNOSIS.

In all cases where there is no serious complication and the disease is manifested in the form of some catarrhal affection, the recovery of the patient may be looked for in from one to two weeks. However, the recovery of animals attacked by this malady will in a great measure depend on the kind of treatment they receive.

TREATMENT.

This will consist of proper sanitary regulations, hygienic and medical treatment, comfort, cleanliness, plenty of fresh air, freedom from work, a proper diet, and the frequent administration of stimulents and restoratives. The sick patient should be comfortably clothed, and if the legs are inclined to be cold it will be proper to have them bandaged with red flannel. It is sometimes necessary to apply some stimulant in order to keep up the warmth of the extremities. For this purpose we use tincture of capsicum, 1 oz.; alcohol, 3 oz. This may be applied to the legs, if necessary, before the bandages are applied. The barn should be well drained and kept free from filthy accumulations. An abundance of fresh air should be allowed to circulate freely through the stables, and all draughts should be carefully avoided. The great prostration, which is one of the prominent symptoms of this disease, should be sufficient to admonish every intelligent owner of the absolute necessity of giving the poor prostrated animal a rest. Yet you will find the majority in favor of working the animal. Such imprudent and inhuman treatment is always the cause of retarding the recovery of the patient, and not unfrequently the cause of serious complications. A suitable nourishing diet is as necessary as anything we have mentioned. Scalded oats, with a double-handful of malt in each feed, carrots, a bran mash occasionally, is good; oat-meal gruel and linseed tea may give ad libitum. Pure cold water is about as palatable as any thing we can offer a sick horse; some horses will not drink anything else, and they should not be deprived of it. The best way to give it is little at a time, and often. The medical treatment we have found to be the most successful is nerve stimulants, restoratives and diuretics; stimulants to restore the depressed nervous power, and diuretics to increase the action of the kidneys and thus eliminate the poison from the system. The majority of the cases will, however, get well without the aid of medicine by devoting proper attention to the comfort and health of the patient. Good food, pure air, freedom from work, comfort and cleanliness, is as essential for the successful treatment of our domestic animals as it is for the salvation of the human family.

HOW TO DRESS A TURKEY.

There is much practical wisdom among the poultry men, that does not get into the papers or books. A turkey raiser who prides himself on sending to market the handsomest lot of turkeys in his town, for the Christmas market, tells us how he dresses his birds. The turkeys are fed as usual the night before butchering, and in the morning are driven in upon the barn floor, as soon as they come from the roost, and are made secure. Their crops are empty, and they can be caught as they are wanted. Make a slip noose of strong cord for each turkey, in an adjoining stable or shed, put the turkey's legs into the noose, and with a small pointed knife stick the bird as near the head as possible. As soon as the bird is dead, strip off the feathers, pin-feathers and all. Cut the neck off as near the head as possible, remove the wings and draw the entrails, before taking the bird down. The turkey is hung up alive, and taken down ready for market. Lay the bird on his breast or side, upon a clean board to cool. Turkeys should be carefully handled in dressing, to avoid breaking the skin, for it rubs off very easily when they are warm. Remove all the pin-feathers and pack the birds when sent to market, in clean straw, so that there will be no marks of blood upon them. Handsome, clean dressing will add a cent a pound, and often more, to the market price of all kinds of poultry.—American Agriculturist.

HINTS FOR FARM WORK.

Young Stock need not be housed until real cold weather sets in, but they should have a warm shed to lie in at night, and be kept in first-rate condition through this month with turnips fed tops and all.

Sheep bear more exposure than any other of our domestic animals (not even excepting horses, not worked,) that is, exposure to the weather, but not without shelter from storms. The ewes ought to be in lamb by this time and must be kept doing well. Half a pint of corn a day each will go far towards keeping them in good condition. Weed out all those which show signs of weakness, have poor teeth, etc., and fatten them if you can.

PIGS.—It is much better to kill early than late. As soon as cold weather comes on, pigs will gain very little, if any, and often lose during cold storms. Therefore, crowd them if not fat enough to kill. Feed occasionally pulverized charcoal, to keep their digestive functions in tone; keep them clean and warm, and coax them to eat every ounce possible.

Rabbits if left to themselves can do much harm. A protection of the trees may be made of lath, or tarred paper may be tied around the trunk with fine wire. Smearing the trees with blood will keep away the rabbits, as meat is very distasteful to them. A fat rabbit in November is good eating, and a small bounty will induce the boys to trap and otherwise secure many of these injurious animals.

Terms as usual. Ben Reynolds, Auc.

COLOR BLIND.

Hired girls not only being rather uncertain as to the length of time they will remain in one's employ are sometimes very eccentric in their taste. For instance, a farmer of Ridgeway while in the city of Toledo a few months ago, as we are informed, met a young lady of about 23 summers, of white descent, possessing more than ordinary beauty and features that bespoke intelligence. The gentleman was in need of a girl to do general housework for the family and as the aforesaid young lady was willing to accept such a position, he hired her. She came to his home and up to a short time ago performed her duties very satisfactorily; when some stranger began to visit her. Last Tuesday the object of his visits became known. The visitor was a big negro with a color of the deepest hue. He conveyed the girl to the depot for the afternoon freight going south. There the bewitching young girl purchased tickets for the two to Blissfield. When the train started she might have been seen listlessly drooping her head upon the arm of the brawny negro, seemingly in perfect peace.

The girl, to use a colloquial expression, was "in love" with the black and gave up her position in order that she might live with him. The farmer offered her extra inducements to remain but to no purpose as she preferred to go with her sable spouse.

WIDE AWAKE FOR 1881.

If the Boys and Girls of America could but see the piles of delightful manuscripts, and the beautiful drawings for them, waiting to be grouped into the twelve numbers of WIDE AWAKE for 1881, we are sure that during the next three months the Subscription List of the magazine would be more than doubled. Out of many brilliant features we announce the following, leaving delightful surprises in store.

Perhaps first in general interest will be

A NEW STORY BY GEO. MACDONALD,

the Publishers having recently completed arrangements abroad with Mr. George MacDonald to write and send them the original manuscript of a Serial Story for older readers, which form its subject and character Americans will find of greater interest than any of his former books. This story, the title of which will be announced later, will be given complete during 1881, in Monthly Supplements, thus giving free to every subscriber one of Mr. MacDonald's longest and finest stories.

Those who remember with delight that charming home story of the "Dogberry Bunch" will read with still greater delight a Story of the Ohio Hill Country, by Mary Hartwell Catherwood. Those who have read this Serial in Manuscript pronounce it one of the most fascinating stories they ever read. It is as gay and sparkling as a wild mountain brook. Mr. Geo. F. Barnes will illustrate this story with thirty-six drawings.

ROCKY FORK,

Mrs. A. M. Diaz has written the Little Folks own serial, and it will be very fresh and funny. At least one hundred and twenty illustrations will accompany it. Those famous twin boys, the Jimmy-johns, are prime actors in Polly's wonderful adventures.

POLLY COLOGNE,

For the older young folks there will be

THE STORY OF HONOR BRIGHT

by Magnus Merriweather, author of "A General Misunderstanding," and "Royal Lowrie's Last Year at St. Olaves."

This new story is dedicated to the boys of a certain school, real live boys, who wrote to the author, challenging him to produce a story equal to the two just mentioned. In response, "Honor Bright" has been written, far superior to either, in both interest and influence. In the name of the hero, Honor Bright, lies a great surprise. Mr. Walter Shirlaw, instructor of the Art Students' League, New York, will illustrate this story fully.

Several striking Two-Part Stories will appear during the year: King Philip's Head, by the Editor of the Boston Courier; Tot, the Dwarf, by Margaret Eytinge, with eight drawings by George Foster, etc.

A New Feature, including Cash Prizes, for best original stories, drawings, puzzles, inventions, etc., will be introduced during 1881 (full particulars in January number.

And after long consideration of what would best meet growing demands, the Editors have decided to add a Special Department for Boys (which the girls are also invited to enjoy), which will be or what the boys (and girls too, wish to know and ought to know of what the great world is doing, saying and thinking. This department will be under the able charge of Edward Everett Hale, whose name alone is guarantee of its certain remarkable interest and practical value.

NEWSPAPER NEWS,

The publishers also have pleasure in announcing A New Cover, artistic and genuinely American in design and novel in color, which, with entire new type, will add largely to the attractiveness of this popular magazine.

ARTHUR'S

HOME MAGAZINE.

Taking literary rank with the best periodicals of the day, it claims to be, in its peculiar characteristics and varied Departments, more thoroughly identified with the people than any other magazine of its class, going into their homes, not only as a power for good, but as a pleasant companion and friend, interested in all that interests the household, and ready to help, comfort, amuse, instruct and delight all, from the youngest to the oldest.

What Our Subscribers Say.

"Each year I have taken it contains at least twelve happy days—the days on which my magazine comes."

"Accept my congratulations upon the brave spirit with which you refuse to pander to a vitiated public taste."

"I am a better wife, a better woman, a better mother for its sake."

"I feel as though I could not keep house without it."

"For six years I have, each month, greeted the arrival of your dear, delightful magazine with the affection I would bestow on a dear friend."

"I cannot send off my order without expressing, briefly, my gratitude for such a blessing as your magazine is to us, and to hundreds of women in our fair land."

"It fills a want in the household that I have long felt the need of; and, I am sure in this, that I only express the sentiments of wives and mothers all over the land."

"I thank you for giving us a magazine which holds up a high standard of life, and lifts one up to new and earnest endeavor toward the right."

"I wonder how I have done without your magazine so long. I hope never to be without it again."

TESTIMONY

Of the Hon. Jos. K. Gray, Judge of the Superior Court, Chicago, Ill.

CHICAGO, Dec. 14, 1878.

DR. S. D. HOWE,

Dear Sir:—Permit me to add my grateful testimony to the army of witnesses to the virtues of your justly celebrated Arabian remedies. For a long time my wife was seriously afflicted with hacking cough, oppressed breathing, soreness of the chest, and constant acute pain in the lower portion of the right lung and under the shoulder blade. Her sufferings were intense, and she became extremely nervous and prostrated. Her disease was pronounced consumption by the physicians of Chicago and other cities, whose prescriptions had been taken without benefit. When you visited Chicago in June, 1873, we called on you, having very little hope of deriving help from your treatment. We were inspired with hope by the skillful manner in which your thorough examination was conducted, and the satisfactory explanation with which you closed your diagnosis. My wife determined to take your medicines in accordance with your plain and practical directions. She began to use the Arabian Milk Cure and Arabian Tonic; their beneficial effect at once became manifest—the cough loosened and soon ceased, respiration became easy, the soreness of the chest was relieved and all pain removed, she began to gain in flesh and improve in strength and appearance. I fully believe that your medicines and skillful advice have saved the life of my wife. She unites with me in this grateful tribute to the merit of your remedies.

Very respectfully yours, JOSEPH K. GRAY.

Best steel engravings, best colored fashions, best dress patterns,
Best original stories, best work-table patterns, best music, &c., &c.

Its immense circulation and long established reputation enables its proprietor to distance all competition. In 1880, a New Feature was introduced, which will be improved on in 1881, namely,

Splendidly Illustrated Articles,

The stories, novelets, &c., in "Peterson" are admitted to be the best published. All the most popular female writers contribute to it. In 1881, about 100 original stories will be given, and in addition six Copyright Novelets, by Ann S. Stephens, Frank Lee Benedict, Jane G. Austin, Mary V. Spencer, Sidney Trevor, and that inimitable humorist, the author of "Josiah Allen's Wife." The

Colored Steel Fashion Plates

In "Peterson" are ahead of all others. These plates are engraved on steel, twice the usual size, and are unequaled for beauty. They will be superbly colored. Also, Household and other receipts; articles Art Embroidery, Flower Culture, in short everything interesting to ladies.

HARPER'S YOUNG PEOPLE.

AN ILLUSTRATED WEEKLY—16 PAGES.

Suited to Boys and Girls of from Six to Sixteen Years of Age.

Volume II. commences Nov. 2, 1880.

NOW IS THE TIME TO SUBSCRIBE.

Within a year of its first appearance, HARPER'S YOUNG PEOPLE has secured a leading place among the periodicals designed for juvenile reading. The object of those who have the paper in charge is to provide for boys and girls from the age of six to sixteen a weekly treat in the way of entertaining stories, poems, historical sketches, and other attractive reading matter, the profuse and beautiful illustrations, and at the same time to make its spirit and influence harmonize with the moral atmosphere which pervades every cultivated Christian household. This important design they endeavor to carry out by combining the best literary and artistic talent, so that fiction shall appear in bright and innocent colors, sober facts assume such a holiday dress as to be no longer dry or dull, and mental exercise, in the solution of puzzles, problems, and other devices, become a delight.

GOLDEN WEDDING.

Rev. and Mrs. Robert Wooden, of Cambridge, Celebrate their Fiftieth Anniversary.

On Wednesday of last week, the friends of Rev. and Mrs. Robt. Wooden assembled at their spacious farm house in the south part of Cambridge, to assist in celebrating the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding day.—Friends gathered from near and far. Besides all the older residents of Cambridge, who were present, persons were there from Adrian, Tecumseh, and Quincy, Mich., and several relatives from the State of New York. Five of of the witnesses to their marriage also witnessed the anniversary festivities fifty years after, vis: Jas. Wooden, Cordelia Graves, Julia A. Dix and Louisa Hubbard, brother and sisters of Mr. Wooden, and Aurey Sickner, brother of Mrs. Wooden. Among the guests were eight relatives and acquaintances from the State of New York, and Lucas Joseph, of Quincy, Mich., who was in Mr. Wooden's employ forty-five years ago.

The arrangements for serving refreshments could not be excelled. The first table was seated shortly after noon and it was four o'clock before the last of the guests had partaken of dinner. One hundred and seventy-five dinners were served. At five o'clock the guests were assembled in the parlor, and there the exercises were brief but very impressive. The wedding gifts were formally presented by S. C. Stacy. C. H. Dewey followed in a few fitting remarks. W. R. Wooden, of Tecumseh, a grandson of the aged couple, read a paper which touched the hearts of all present. Rev. H. Shepard followed with prayer. The older portion of the company then dispersed to their homes, although many remained during the evening. We herewith give

W. R. WOODEN'S ADDRESS.

We have met here to-day to celebrate that period in married life very seldom attained.

Fifty years ago Robert Wooden and Lydia Ann Sickner were united in the holy bonds of matrimony, and all along that period of time they have been helpmeet to each other, through adversity and prosperity. Starting out with hopes for the future, casting longing glances into the impenetrable darkness before them, that has since become light, they dwelt only upon that which was to come.

Hand in hand they have climbed the long ladder, until now, upon the eve of what must soon remove them into that land of rest and peace, they look backward instead of forward. They see themselves as they started from childhood following different paths until they finally united and they commenced the ascent together, which has been long and fraught with many perils as well as pleasures and joys. Standing as they were upon the threshold of youth with the bright rays of the sun of life lightening up their yearning countenances as they eagerly scanned the landscape before them, they saw only the smooth surface. The rugged paths, the rough corners and the dangerous pitfalls were obscured by the veil of self-confidence. They started forth with the fire and energy of youth in their veins; they trudged along and as they met obstacles, by their joint efforts they overcame them. The path that seemed so smooth grew to be more difficult; what seemed to be a path of roses became one interspersed with thorns, and in following it, they grew old together, until to-day, instead of the youthful pair of fifty years ago, we see grandfather and grandmother upon whom time and years of toil have cast their shadows, but whose countenances ever beam with love and kindness, hospitality and good cheer. From whose doors the poor were never turned away hungry or naked, nor the sick in want or distress.

Their kind roof has sheltered all, from the rich whose pockets were lined with gold, to the beggar who asked at the gate for a drink of water and a crust of bread. All have been treated alike; charity dispensed upon all with an equal hand.

The love of God has been the guiding star of their existence, and kindness the chief of their many virtues.

Since then, fifty years ago, many things have transpired; the old have withered and died and gone to that bourne which is the destination of all mankind, the young have grown old, some are alive and with us to-day, others have passed away. New beings have come into existence and have taken the burdens from older ones. Everything has a different appearance, the change has been rapid and sudden and effective. The whistle of the steam car has been close upon the war whoop of the Indian, the rattling of the harvester close upon the cry of the wolf, and the wail of the infant has been wafted by autumn's gentle breeze after the mournful funeral cortege. Morn follows night as sure as morn becomes night.

The place where we now stand, our birth place, fifty years ago, was but a wilderness. In spring, beautiful for its many flowers; in summer, grand for its mighty oaks, made musical by the singing of the birds as they built their nests and reared their young among the branches; in autumn, sublime for its silence, broken only by the merry brook whose rippling surface glistened here and there in the bright sunlight, whose gentle footfalls led it o'er its pebbly bed, and 'neath the mandrake and brake, whose withered leaves it carried on its bosom to the sea. The fallen leaves of the massive oaks lay in great heaps upon the sod, disturbed only by the squirrel in search of his winter food; in winter gray like old age. The flowers of spring and the foliage summer were gone. The birds had sung their farewell song and departed for warmer climes. The brook hushed in the dead silence of sleep. The fallen leaves were borne down by the heavy weight of show, marked only by the trail of the Indian, who has since been driven thousands of miles westward until he has but a scanty foothold upon the slope of the golden Pacific.

But now we are in the midst of a rich and fertile country; the ax of the pioneer has fallen the wilderness and the ploughshare has turned the rich mould into fields of golden grain. What then was but the handiwork of nature, now can scarcely be traced in the improvement made by human progress. Railroads have reached out their iron arms and inclosed a continent in their grasp. The power of electricity discovered and made the obedient servant of man, now carries his thoughts around the globe as quickly as spoken, and produces light equalled only by that of the sun.

A new generation has sprung up and taken the place of those who once bore the duties of the world. And the aged pair here to-day, who fifty years have borne one another's burdens, have lived to see their children grow up and become old, and grandchildren to take their places. They have lived to see all these changes take place as the march of time neared them to their journey's end.
